Things Were Not Right for Jack When Blood Flowed Like Tar

It Was Not on the Battlefields of Europe But From the Veins of a Lumber Jack in North Woods of Northern Ontario

Many of the lumbermen know Jack Ledoux of the lodging camps of the North Woods. And they know Jack for a splendid square buddy always ready to hold up his end to put in how hard the breaks. Well Jack has to lay off work during the fall of the season this year and came down to Ottawa to get straightened out. He says: "I had been feeling dopey all winter. I didn't have any strength and my old grit seemed gone but I had never doctored much and thought I could wear out the disease.

out thin and thick. I realized then that things were not right for Jack and the blood was one of them. We got the Ottawa Journal in the camp and I read about this PHOSPHO-COD and how it had helped another lumberman down in Ottawa by the name of Tom Kelly who lived at 17 Cecile Street, so I came down to Ottawa and I "got four bottles took them all up and felt better every day.

Well here this spring I hurt my arm and contracted blood poison. I neglected seeing about it until nearly too late and then the doctors had to lance it in order to save it. They held a council of war and one man said my blood was bad and it wouldn't be fair if I had diabetes. But they took a chance and lanced it and I went to the drug store and got four more bottles of PHOSPHO-COD and took it steady In two weeks my arm was all healed perfect and the doctors were surprised, but they didn't know about the PHOSPHO-COD and I didn't tell them.

Gives Phospho Lots of Credit

The doctors did a good job and used every precaution but I believe and know that if I hadn't taken the second batch of PHOSPHO-COD and got the poison out of my system that no amount of skill would have saved that arm. I give PHOSPHO-COD lots of credit, for I know how much I owe it and I am anxious that others should know about it too"

GIVE EMPLOYMENT BY BUILDING ROADS

Unemployment Problem Is Tackled by Ferguson Cabinet at Toronto. To Spend $1,250,000.

Influenced by conditions of unemployment existing in the Province, the Ferguson Government has decided to increase by $1,250,000 its contemplated expenditure during the summer upon Ontario highways. Announcement to this effect was made by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways and Public Works. The policy in the first governmental attempt to alleviate the unemployment problem, the Federal and municipal authorities having so far taken no especial steps to cope with the situation.

"Owing to the unemployment situation," Hon. Mr. Henry said in making the announcement, "the government has decided that it is incumbent upon it to push the work which it reasonably can during the present season."

Hon. Mr. Henry said that the decision had been made to undertake an additional 30 miles of road proving during the present season. The work, he declared, would be carried out in places which still formed gaps in the Provincial Highway system.

The government's arterial programme for this season was the paving of some 115 miles of road and the grading of an additional 75 miles. The projected cost of this work was in the neighborhood of $5,500,000. This figure was far in excess of even the highest budget of the period of U. F. O. administration.

Cannot Speak Too Highly of Your Medicine

So Says Mr. and Mrs. A. Armstrong After Using Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Ontario Lady Who Suffered From Neuralgia, Backache and Headache, Tells of Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Spreadale, Ont., June 16th, (Special).—"I thought I would write and tell you how much your Dodd's Kidney Pills have helped both my husband and myself. We have used several boxes and they have helped us wonderfully. I cannot speak too highly of your medicine."

This testimonial comes from Mrs. A. Armstrong, of this place—well known and highly respected residents.

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to occupy such a prominent place in the family medicine chest, is that so many of the ordinary everyday ills come from sick kidneys. Rheumatism, Lumbago, Backache, Urinary troubles, Diabetes and Heart Disease can all be traced directly or indirectly to sick kidneys. Insist on having Dodd's Kidney Pill your neighbors use.

The members of a football team were returning by train from a match. The train stopped at a station and a stranger rose from his seat to leave. He was at least 6 feet in stature, and as he stood up to the full he looked him up and down with open-mouthed astonishment.

One of them, thinking to have a joke at the stranger's expense, said: "I say, mister, what's the old world like on the other side?"

"Oh," replied the stranger, "my big brother's a football player and he wears them for bitches."

ALONG THE DOCKS

The Paradie reports good early season business.

The schooner Lyman M. Davis is tied up in port owing to dullness in coal freights.

Capt. McCullough made several fast trips from Toronto this season, and his vessel, one of the few remaining Lake schooners, looks quite trim with her newly scraped spars.

The sailing yachts, Skip Jack, Dolphin, Heather and Katie Gray have been overhauled and placed into commission. The latter celebrating her semi-centennial or a little better with sails from Dr. Simpson's "White Wings" and fittings of mounted old "Dauntless", looks as staunch and shippy as ever.

The summer camp in the "Reach" will have quite a fleet this season, the latest and probably largest addition being Dr. Harold Ward's "Swamba", a George Cup boat.

The motor boat fleet is out in full force and new paint.

"Buff" Markle has completed a seaworthy boat the record time of Mr. Ernie Madden for use at his Thompson Point camp.

Mr. George Gibbard is building a mahogany day-sailer, according to men-or, which will represent the last word in power boats.

Bathing and canoeing is popular with the youngsters, and would be more enjoyable in our beautiful Bay river if the sewerage disposal plant was working properly, or the Town Council have the river skimmed daily in that locality, and also have a sign posted at entrance to harbor warning all boats to slow down in passing docks and boat moorings.

SOME POULTRY POINTS

Selection and Mating Are Both of Much Importance

Does "Like Beget Like?"—The Question of Selection—Inbreeding and Line Breeding—Winter Egg Production—Points on Plow Adjustment.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

There are two main points to be considered in poultry breeding. First, the selection of birds that have the characters desired; and secondly, a further selection from these of birds that can produce offspring as good as or better than themselves.

Does "Like Beget Like?"

Many are of the opinion that "Like begets like." In general, that is true, but it is true for general and not for particular qualities. It is true that a male White Leghorn mated to White Leghorn females will breed chickens that are White Leghorns, or that have white plumage, yellow legs and white earlobes. But of the offspring of these there will be no two chicks exactly alike. We find large and small feathering; most of them never go broody but some do; some lay large eggs, others small eggs. And we find a great variation in the number of eggs produced by different hens.

The Question of Selection.

Selection is made on the basis that like will produce like, but experience has taught all breeders that to secure uniform superiority they must carry on the selection through generations of poultry. If we select birds that have laid better than 200 eggs in twelve consecutive months and mate these to a male of similar strain, we do not expect to get all daughters that will lay 200 or more eggs a year, but we do expect upon the average a better proportion than had no selection been made.

Inbreeding and Line Breeding.

Having located a successful pair, the one can perpetuate easily so long as the originals are breeding, but the problem begins after the first mating season. Shall one breed mother and son, or brother and sister, or cousins, or what is the best procedure?

Our experience in breeding birds of very close relationship, such as mother-son, or brother-sister matings, would not warrant us recommending such a procedure. It is true that we have had some successful results, but it is likewise true that most of such matings have been very bad. If one is anxious to breed closely, our experience would suggest a trial of any relationship, so long as the birds are vigorous, but it is not wise to depend entirely upon such a mating. A good inbred bird will likely be a valuable breeder, but such a bird is difficult to produce.

It is very doubtful if one can say what relationship will give the best results, for the average person is not in a position to be good advisor nor to breed too closely, and to keep new blood from some source where the breeding has been similar.

Winter Egg Production.

Many people appear to believe that the secret of getting eggs, particularly in winter, is to give them clover and the method of feeding others believe the whole problem is in the breed or strain, while others think that the housing is the problem to solve. All these are important, but the main reason for poor results is a lack of careful work months before the eggs are wanted. While you are collecting the high-priced winter eggs you should be making careful plans to secure the crop of pullets for next season.

Where eggs in winter are wanted the early hatched pullet is without doubt, the one to depend upon. Yearlings hens and older ones are rapidly made good producers during November and December. They are uncertain even in January and February and really do not begin to lay well until March. Where the egg production falls below fifteen per cent. during the winter months, one is not making much profit. The pullets which must pullets begin laying in from six to seven months; some lay at four and one-half to five months, and others not until eight or nine months of age. This means that fifty per cent. egg yield is wanted in November the pullets should be hatched during March or April; early hatched pullets will lay a little, but, as a rule, not more per cent. daily.—W. R. Graham, O. A. College, Guelph.

Hints on Plow Adjustment.

1. Adjust the springs till the weight of the plow beams and bottoms are practically balanced.

2. Hitch plow at a point on tractor drawbar midway between horizontal centre of tractor and horizontal centre of plow.

3. Adjust vertical position of hitch so as to be substantially level in working position.

4. Set levers for first pointed and open first furrow.

5. Change levers to working position.

6. When plowing is finished, set the levers in transport position and take plow and tractor to nearest shelter.

THE HANDLING OF MILK

A Column Dealing With Milk and Its Products

Pasteurization — Preservatives — Commercial Buttermilk — Cheese From High and Low-Testing Milk. —Milk From Sweet Clover —Goitrin and Bacteria in Ice Cream.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Following are summaries by the Department of Extension of the O.A.C., Guelph, of work done in that institution with milk and some of its products:

Value of Pasteurization.

To test the value of pasteurization as an acid in keeping milk in a usable condition for a long period, a study was made by the Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College during July of 1923. Similar samples of raw and pasteurized milk subjected to a temperature of 57° to 58° C. gave results as follows: The raw milk did not keep for twenty-four hours, while the pasteurized milk was in good condition at the end of third day. Similar samples of raw and pasteurized milk held at 37° to 42° F., gave the following results: The raw milk kept sweet for less than forty-eight hours, while the pasteurized milk was still sweet and in good condition at the end of three weeks. The trials show the great value of pasteurization in the fluid milk trade and the necessity of low temperatures for holding the milk after pasteurizing.

Milk Preservative.

Investigational work carried out by the Department of Bacteriology, O.A.C., that is of special interest to the cheese and butter and ice cream factories, was concluded during the past year. Many factory managers had experienced trouble in keeping the composite samples of milk in good condition for the period required by the Dairy Standards Act. The staff of the O.A.C. Bacteriological Department investigation shows that not less than six grains of corrosive sublimate is required to keep a one pint sample of milk good condition for forty days. This amount should be used. If the butter fat tests are made either once or twice a month.

Commercial Buttermilk.

In the Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College during the past season a few lots of commercial buttermilk were made by mixing either pasteurized skim milk, or the butter milk from churnings of pasteurized sweet cream, not ripened before churning.

To the milk was added 20 per cent. starter, 2 per cent. culture and one-half ounce of salt per one hundred pounds of milk. This was allowed to stand until the milk curdled, which was slowly coagulated. The coagulated milk was then put into the churn and churned for about forty minutes. This made a buttermilk that had a good acidity, a fair flavor, was smooth, and did not appear to churn any quicker than for fifteen minutes. A small amount of cream was added. The churning was then continued for twenty minutes, the cream and churned into butter. The granules which are it the appearance of "cold-finished" butter, milk and was well liked.

Commercial Milks From High and Low Testing Milk in Cheese-making.

Investigations carried out by the Dairy Department and the Chemistry Department of the O.A.C. show that raw and fifth testing milk used in the manufacture of cheese gave no difference in the yields of cheese or factory patrons. The low testing milk contained 3.12 per cent. solids and 2.61 per cent. fat. The high testing milk contained 12.29 per cent. solids and 3.82 per cent. fat. It did not vary one's difference in expert tion qualities. The yield of cheese per 1000 lbs. of milk was 96.84 lbs. from the low testing lots, and 96.84 lbs. from the high testing lots, or nearly six pounds of cheese from a thousand pounds of milk for a variety of cheese. The loss in moisture, fat and total solids. This is further evidence of the injustice of basing fat milk on the basis of a cash price and not considering the fat and solids content of milk when dividing money among patrons of cheese factories.

Milk From Sweet Clover.

The Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College made some lots of butter during July when the cows were pasturing on sweet clover. The butter was good when fresh and cools after holding in storage, but soon after it had a flavor that could be attributed to sweet clover. These results are similar to those obtained in 1922.

Gelatin and Bacteria in Ice Cream.

With the great increase in the consumption of ice cream and the development of the ice cream manufacturing business various experiments have been carried to take care of the demand in a way profitable to those manufacturing and selling this food. The making of examinations of various samples of gelatin sent to the Bacteriology Department of the Ontario Agricultural College some reasons were found to have a bacterial content of over 50,000 per cubic c.c. Wholesome ice cream cannot be made if low grade gelatin is used in its preparation.

Coupons.

As a rule consumers should not total for buy before the pods begin to turn yellow. The bean quality is produced and the hay when most readily. If the vines are cut when most of the pods are filled and are considerable number of them are matters. All that stage of growth none of the loss in hay value will be lost, the leaves and the plants will have practically attained their full growth.

MOSCOW TEAM BEATS ISLAND.

Young's Pitching Big Factor in Victory—Island Team Without Spoor Was Weak.

On Saturday afternoon at Moscow, the Wolfe Island team fell to defeat by the score of 9-2. Costly errors in the field and inability to hit when chances were good for scoring, caused the downfall of the Island team while the reverse could be said of Moscow who laid no opportunities to score.

The Island team was without the services of Spoor on Saturday and was considerably weakened but they tried hard all the way through and put up the best fight they knew how. Billy Little appeared at first base for Manager Cosgrove's team and he surprised the fans by his splendid performances. He had more pep than any of the other players and he was right in the game all the time. McDonald in right field played dandy ball also. Young's pitching was one of the main features of the work of the Moscow team and he certainly served up great ball, getting 11 strikeouts and allowing only 4 hits. Goodfriend did the twirling for the Islands.

The game was good in seven out of the nine innings, the 4th and 8th frames being productive of ball of lower quality. There was a good crowd in attendance and the utmost enthusiasm prevailed. Things ran smoothly all the way. The next game is at the Island and the Island team has every confidence, that with a strengthened team, they will be able to put a crimp in Moscow's chances for the Inter-County League title.

MESSAGES IN BOTTLES.

Many "Drift Bottles" Have Been Recovered From the Sea.

A message in a bottle, thrown overboard in the Arctic in the autumn of 1913, and which was picked up on the coast of Spitzbergen, Father Neptune has a long time to deliver the mails and his latest delivery of bottle-encased drift addressed to "Finder" but it spells success in many cases.

Years ago a shark took on board the British ship Buckingham near Greenland whalers. The vessel was caught in the ice floes, and the shark carried on wireless the mate evidently of the story of the crime so that people that it would be watched up on the island.

It was hence 2,000 miles away on one of the Shetland Islands. Nearly three years had passed, and the crime had vanished.

Cruel practical jokes have been played by means of bottle messages. Many tales were picked up after the loss of the Wrattah, which went down, indeed, leaving any trace of the South African coast.

A bottle message told the world of the fate which all hands of the Atlantic liner President. She was due to arrive at Liverpool in March, 1841. But became long overdue. At last a ship at sea picked up a bottle containing a scrap of paper with a message from Tyrone Power, a celebrated comedian of those days. It said that the vessel was sinking in a gale as he wrote.

There is a scientific use, too, for Neptune's mails. Drifting bottles, containing a request to the finder to post back an enclosed card, recording on it the date and place at which it was picked up, have been liberated by the British Ministry of Agriculture and Fisheries. From the data valuable information concerning ocean drifts may be gathered.

Some of these bottles will doubtless be unnoticed on lonely beaches, but in the past many such "drift bottles" have been recovered. One bottle drifted 3,000 miles in about 1,000 days. It was thrown overboard near Sierra Leone, on the West African coast, and, borne by a current setting eastward, reached the place where many bottles have been found—the Shetland Islands.

PACKING FARM BUTTER

The Best Way to Store Butter For Home Use

Keep the Cream Cans Clean—How to Pasteurize the Cream—The Best Storing Package—Use Care in Curing Alfalfa—Mixing Time.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

We have all heard the expression "The best is none too good." This applies especially to butter for storage. So says Miss Belle Millar of the Ontario Agricultural College. It is necessary to put away the very best, as no butter improves in storage.

Keep the Cream Cans Clean.

The can in which the cream is collected should be clean and free from rust.

The cream should be good flavored and should be churned sweet, or with very little souring. A cream with high acidity will not make a long-keeping butter.

As pasteurized, cream butter will keep very much better than raw cream butter, it would pay to go to the extra trouble of pasteurizing the cream when the butter is going to be held for some time.

How to Pasteurize.

To pasteurize, place the cans of cream in a large vessel containing hot water. Stir the cream gently until the temperature comes up to 170° F. Hold it at that temperature for at least ten minutes, then cool it quickly to a low temperature. Hold it cool for a few hours before churning it.

Churn at a temperature low enough to bring the butter in nice firm granules. Avoid over-churning. Wash the butter-taken out in the usual way. Work the butter a little to salt in the salt, then let it stand in a suitable place for a few hours before finishing the worklast.

Have the butter of such amount that it will stand sufficient working so that the salt will be evenly distributed, and that it will be close in body and not show water pockets.

The Best Storing Packages.

As butter keeps best in large packages, crocks, tubs and boxes are used. The crocks should be in good condition, free from cracks in the glaze, and should be well scalded before using. Tubs and boxes should be coated with parafine wax and lined with heavy parchment paper.

Put the butter in in small pieces, pack solidly, using a butter packer or a wooden potato masher. Pack each piece by working from the centre outward. Pound well around the edges and in the corners so as to avoid having holes.

When the box is filled, level off the top and fold the ends in the paper over. If a tub or crock is used place a circle of parchment paper on top.

Make a pickle by measuring some salt with a little cold water, and spread on each layer over the top of the package, then fasten down the lid.

Further Packing and Storing Hints.

If using crocks it will be necessary to cover the lid with two or three ply of clean wrapping paper and tie it securely.

Butter to keep must be protected from air, light and heat, so after the packages have been made secure they must be placed in a clean, cool, dark place. The temperature should be low and even. Butter made in September is just seasonable to hold like the June butter. Those who make butter in July for holding and have not a good place for keeping it would find it to their advantage to place it in a cold storage if there is one in the vicinity. The saving in quality would more than pay the storage fees.—Department of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Use Care In Curing Alfalfa.

Alfalfa leaves, require careful handling if they are to be retained with the stalks in the harvesting of the hay.

Alfalfa, to be harvested properly, needs to be put up while it is still a trifle green, as it will retain the leaves in this state, dark green in color when fed.

It is a common practice to cut the day in the morning as soon as the dew is off, and then rake into windrows late in the afternoon after it has thoroughly wilted. Often alfalfa that is put in the morning dries too fast and becomes brittle when cured this way, so that many grower defer the cutting of the hay late one afternoon and putting it up the next afternoon. This allows some of the moisture to go out gradually and gives better quality hay.

Although many times the first cutting is often discolored by moisture it is still valuable as feed, as experiments show that stock eat it as readily as the better grades.

In placing alfalfa cover hay in mow see that it is spread carefully and that no large air spaces are left. Do not open a mow when the hay is undergoing a heating process, and there will be little danger of spontaneous combustion or fire.

Mating Time.

While breeding pens need not be united until about three weeks before hatching is to begin, yet I mate my breeding pens in January. The hens in my breeding pens have been kept separate from the males since last fall, so I could mate them only ten days before beginning hatching, if necessary, but it is just as convenient for me to mate them early. Where more than ten hens are put in one pen, two male birds will be used on alternate days. There is an advantage in using two male birds in a pen, as quite often a hen refuses to mate with one male, while this very rarely happens in a pen where two males are used.

Get far more wear from dainty garments

It isn't because they're so fragile that your crepe garments, fine silks, and laces wear out quickly.

It's the injurious things contained in ordinary laundry soaps.

You can get far more wear from the sheerest, daintiest things you own—by laundering them this way:

Use snowy-white, crinkly PALMOLIVE PRINCESS SOAP FLAKES. Nothing but purest soap. A great foam of suds that gently dissolves all dirt and soil—but never injures the flimsiest fabric. And if anything at really brightens and renews delicate colors.

Being pure soap—nothing else—they go farther and clean more thoroughly. That makes them actually economical for use in the washing-machine, for all laundering, and for all household purposes in fact.

Your dealer has them in handy one-pound packages. Do get some—if only to try—today.

The June Bride and Her Trousseau

The Bride will find the choosing of her wardrobe a pleasing task at Robinson's. In our various departments will be found garments suitable in styles, materials and colors, for her many activities, before and after her wedding. Everything has been chosen with deliberate care, the summer colorings are extremely bright and happy, the varieties are endless. We invite your early inspection.

For the Wedding

White Georgette is the choice of many brides. We are featuring a very attractive gown made in this material. Lace is the only ornamentation featured. This is used in a liberal manner around the panels of the skirt, the neck-line, and the sleeves.

Crepe-de-chene also creates another charming dress in white. This number was chosen from a selection of imported hand-made Paris frocks. Narrow pleats and hand-drawn work create charming decorations.

Both are moderately priced.

The Travelling Suit

Can be well chosen from a clever range of garments which feature tailored, loose-back, and boyish form styles.

These are all admirably tailored from fine All Wool Tricotine and Poiret Twill fabrics of extremely fine character. Each garment is lined and finished with utmost care.

Trimmings are dignified and in good taste. Narrow pin tucks, neat bias bands, delicate thread traceries, unique cartridge tuckings, add exclusiveness to the various garments.

Obtainable in colors of Navy, Black, and Sand. All sizes.

If You Prefer a Wrap

Many attractive models present themselves for selection. Each is proper in its own way. All conform to the prevailing "tubular" silhouette, but each possesses many individual points of merit. Shirred collars, sleeves with wide circular cuffs, draped fronts, cartridge skirt flounces, tuckings and fancy ornaments add beauty and charm to the various models.

They come in shades of Sand, Tan, Mole, Navy and Black.

Featured here are garments that represent the cream of the Canadian markets.

Her Afternoon Dresses

In this group you will find a noteworthy assemblage. Obtainable are Silks in a wide range of delicate and staple colorings. Procurable also are gowns made from the very finest of imported cotton fabrics, some of which have been created in Paris; others in our own domestic factories. Whether Paris-made or Canadian-made, you will find them faultless from any view-point.

Color plays an important role in our summer dress range. Every conceivable shade is represented. Powder Blue, Honeydew, Peach, Rose, Green, Mauve, Amber and White are some of the best.

Her Sports Wear

No wardrobe this season would be complete without its quota of sports wear. Fashion has linked together a three-piece costume consisting of separate skirt, waist and sweater, that is captivating. These can be had in a pleasing range of colors, such as Sand, Tan, Gold, Grey, Dawn, White, Navy and Black.

The Knit Suit also claims its share of attention, as do Knitted Dresses and Knitted Capes.

Your desire for summer comfort can be well supplied here. Prices are extremely moderate.

Henry the First.

Henry Ford owned the first motor car in Detroit. I made a rackus and scared the horses. Also I made traffic. It hit about even for a motor car, some inquisitive person always turn in front of it. Finally we had to carry a bottle and chain it to a lamp post in a store so as to get it anywhere. And then there was trouble with the police. He got a special permit from the mayor of Detroit for a time so the only licensed chauffeur in America. He ran that machine about a year since 1895 and 1896, and then sold it to Charles Ainsley of Detroit for $200.

A Striking Compliment.

Gen. Robert E. Lee received a striking compliment from an enemy on the day of his surrender at Appomattox Court House. The Federal general (Meade) was a former friend of his in the "old army," and when the formalities of capitulation were over he remarked pleasantly to him: "Marse, years are telling on you; your hair is getting quite grey." "Ah! Gen. Lee," was Meade's prompt reply, "it is not the work of years. It is you who are responsible for those grey hairs."

"Treasure Trove."

Maurice Hewlett was once a guest in an old English country mansion dating from Edward II. The same family had always had it. In the library he found books, the overflow of the shelves beyond—directories, Bradshaws, and things of the kind and odd volumes at random a tall, old book, bare-backed, but with faded green sides, opened it, then looked quickly for the title-page and portrait. All were there. It was a first folio Shakespeare worth $30,000.

SOCIETY'S WORST PEST

HOW THE BLACKMAILER PLIES HIS EVIL TRADE.

Human Vulture Fattens on Secrets of the Dead—Willing to Be Silent, But His Silence Must Be Paid For—Is Pitiless and Merciless.

The blackmailer is pitiless and merciless. This human vulture fattens on the secrets of the dead, and his prey are the defenceless ones who can never speak or deny the foul charges brought against them.

He is willing to be silent, but this silence must be paid for, and so he extorts money from those who loved and honored the dead and who pay the price asked, in order that no disgrace may rest on their dear one's name.

"When a man is dead he can deny nothing," is a motto which might be adopted by a class of scoundrels at work nowadays, whose methods are as cunningly ingenious as they are heartless.

A man who started his career in Australia, and subsequently built up a big business and made a large fortune in England, died, leaving a son who was ambitious of entering Parliament.

Scarcely had the coffin been lowered into the grave when an individual appeared with an allegation of certain black transactions in which the deceased man was declared to have participated at the Antipodes.

The son disbelieved the story, but he was afraid that a scandal, even if in reality a false and unjust one, would ruin all his political prospects before he could disprove and silence it. So he very foolishly paid to have the whole matter hushed up—and by paying once practically put himself in the power of the blackmailer, and had to submit to pitiless extortion for a number of years before he accidentally discovered that the charge against his father was, as he originally supposed, a lying fabrication.

"It is because the dead cannot come back to defend themselves that this sort of thing is possible," remarked a private inquiry agent, whose attention was drawn to the matter.

"One can understand it would be very unsafe to suppose that all the stories brought forward by these vultures, flourishing on the secrets of those in their graves, are false. Some are lies, but others are true, and frequently the truth and falsity are so interwinded as to render it impossible for even an expert to judge where one ends and the other begins.

"One scoundrel of this stamp was a person of some education and distinctly talent, who used to devote practically all his time to gleaning details about the careers of men who had made their way up from nothing to eminence.

"Most men who have had this experience prefer to leave their humble past in obscurity, and the vultures took full advantage of this. An example will throw some light on his methods.

"A man found his way to a country town where no one knew him, and worked hard until he became the chief banker of the place, won a name for unimpeachable worth and probity, and eventually married the daughter of a country magistrate.

"Then he died, and as his coffin was about to be carried from the house, the blackmailer appeared at the door and demanded to see the father of the widow.

"He had discovered that the dead man, in his earlier days, had served a term of years in prison, although connected with the Society of the Horn, and he threatened to reveal this secret to the funeral guests unless his silence was purchased at a large price. He got what he asked, so that there should be no scandal.

"When he was finally arrested there was found in his possession a diary, entries in which left no doubt that he had made a systematic practice of 'marking' likely victims during their holidays, and learning everything possible concerning their past careers, so that when they died and left widows and grown-up sons and daughters could be compelled to pay for the suppression of the different secrets.

"While he was grinding every penny possible out of this poor woman the blackmailer was extorting heavy sums from a pair of its relatives.

In an office was a clerk—a man of a genial, unsuspicious nature—who took no pains to make himself popular with his fellow-clerks. He was friendly with a friend of the chief's brood of the firm, and was retained always on this account and out of good nature. On the evil old man's death it was taken for granted by the staff that the obnoxious individual would be discharged by the new head of the business, the son of the dead man's age.

Instead of this, however, he was promoted to the chief clerkship at once, with double his former salary, and subsequently advanced from one post to another, although no one could guess what he had done to deserve it.

He had done nothing at all, but he had discovered a guilty secret in the life of his dead master and benefactor, and rather than allow his father's hoariest name to be disgraced the son had consented to accede to the demands of a blackmailer, who thus became a regular old Man of the Sea to him.—Tit-Bits.

DODGE MOTHERS-IN-LAW.

Strange Custom Among Natives In West Africa.

A strange custom prevails among the natives of Angola, Portuguese West Africa, according to Lole Davis, diamond prospector, who is now in New York after a visit to the dark continent.

While the Backoko tribe, he says, the custom is for the bridegroom to look on his mother-in-law for the last time when he marries her daughter, and she, in turn, takes her last gaze on the features of her sons-in-law. If ever they meet afterward, Mr. Davis continues, the one who sees the other first has to pay a heavy penalty in silver or salt.

"I was going through one of the Backoko villages one day," the diamond prospector said, "with my guide, Umtoto, when he suddenly uttered a loud yell and leaped to one side of the narrow path through the tropical undergrowth, and ran away as fast as he could, after throwing his packages on the ground. I chased him and caught him under a banyan tree, shaking violently. When I asked what was the matter he replied in the Backoko tongue, which sounds like a man with a hoarse voice trying to talk Chinook through a megaphone: 'Because of my mother-in-law.' I then learned of the custom among the natives, and discovered that we had been within a few feet of Umtoto's mother-in-law's palm-thatched hut, but she did not see him. The handicap of paying many foreitis is not a very serious one with the Backokos, as the marriages do not last many moons."

Nursing Sick Children.

To nurse a child through a severe illness requires much more than the loving attention and care which all mothers are prepared to bestow upon their little ones when they are ill. It requires knowledge and firmness, added to an inexhaustible fund of patience.

It is when a child is ill that the full value of previous training in the good habits of childhood will manifest itself. Though many things may go by the board when a child is ill, one that has been well trained is more amenable than a child that has entirely followed its own devices.

Generally speaking, a sick child is best left alone. Look into the wards of a children's hospital. The patients are in their cots — and there they stay. They are not, as many an anxious mother is tempted to do, continuously nursed and rocked in someone's lap.

When there is unpleasant medicine to be taken, or minor unpleasant operation of the sick room to be performed, it is better to be truthful with the child and promise some little treat afterwards, rather than deceive in the first instance, and be found out. Once deceived, the child is for ever after sceptical, and in this way a healthy lie may a good deal of trouble for herself.

Blackfoot Sun Dance.

Blackfoot sun dance ceremonies at Gleichen have come to an end. This year's high priestess is Mary Wolf Leg, a Blackfoot Indian woman. During the final afternoon the high priest and medicine men recited the long tribal prayers, the Sun Dance pole was hoisted into the open and was erected and Mary Wolf Leg was permitted to eat for the first time during the dance, the fasting period nothing passed her lips save a small quantity of water, given to her at the medicine men at noon of each day. While the woman was fasting the other members of the tribe held their various social, fraternal and other ancient dances and ceremonies. Following the initiation of new members into the Society of the Horns, which took place on the sun dance, were performed. Another interesting feature of the annual gathering was the traditional ceremony accompanying the sale of a medicine pipe. This year Victoria Kills Enemy sold a medicine pipe to Jack Sun Calf. Every woman and child attending the Sun Dance camp took part in a big special feast and dance.

Beastly Language.

Certainly dogs understand language sometimes seems to say and make sounds resembling words. A French scientist tried to teach a homing pigeon to talk, and it "to say 'feu" (French for "fire") whenever a match was struck. The scientist smiled when asked why he did not teach the animal English. Really the animal seemed to understand enough. It has been estimated that the maximum vocabulary of monkeys is about thirty words, and being a domestic dog common to all members of the species, and indicative of its emotion.

Collect Cathedral.

The world's ugliest cathedral is in Munich, Germany. Its ugliness is due to the fact that its towers and walls of brick are perfectly plain until they rise above the level of the surrounding houses. The other day it was discovered that two great towers are built entirely of concrete, which has moved four inches and the other nearly a foot towards the west, and that the building in the near future could thus by having two "leaning towers."

Keen for Herself.

When forty women met recently to form a musical club in W—, and were asked to write on slips of paper the name of their choice for president, the organization of the club had to be abandoned because the nominating committee found on the slips the names of thirty-nine of these women. The fortieth slip bore the word "Me."—Musical Courier.

Early Golf.

Speaking of golf, a correspondent says that Shakespeare must have been a golfer—at any rate, after a "bad lie" he "lay dead." Sapphira, too, he says, for after a worse "lie" she "halved the hole."—Boston Evening Transcript.

JAPANESE GOOD FLIERS.

Head of British Air Mission Says They Have No Nerves.

A rather curious report current in two or three years with reference to Japanese aviation is revealed by an interview in London with the Master of Semphill, who has just returned after spending many months in head of the British air mission to Japan. The suggestion was that Japanese could not be made into good airmen because of something in their early upbringing, one point being that because they were carried pick-a-back in infancy they had somehow lost their sense of equilibrium. In support of this it was pointed out that many accidents had happened in Japan, and even to-day it is conceded that they have produced no outstanding fliers.

The statement, however, that they do not make good airmen is disproved by the Master of Semphill, who describes them as pupils leaving little to be desired, and the standard achieved by pilots thereafter in the naval air force is very high. In fact, one report of the interview credits the statement that it is higher than the British naval air force. The Japanese are said to be ready to try anything, and to have no fear of nerves. All this makes a very different story from that which became current properly shortly after the armistice, and there seems now no doubt that that hypothesis outran facts.

To Excavate City of David.

The proposed excavation on the site of the City of David in Jerusalem, is discussed recently at a meeting of the Palestine Exploration Fund at the rooms of the Society of Antiquaries, in London.

Dr. D. G. Hogarth, who presided, said that the occasion was epoch-making in their history, and they were on the eve of undertaking the excavation of the City of David, which had long been their ambition. He remarked that there might not be much in it, because it was a rocky hill, but he reminded them that the excavation of the pockets of earth on the Acropolis Hill at Athens gave up a most interesting collection to the Athens Museum.

The Dean of Westminster had written saying that he had the highest hopes of the work. The Palestine Government assured them of its assistance, but had said that the fund should have £5,000 in its possession before anything could be done. They had themselves, and through the British Academy, £2,000. Mr. Charles Masterman had given £2,000, and Viscount Burnham £1,000.

They started thus under very fair auspices, and he gave a promise that no one's prejudices would be outraged.

"Orphaned" Horses.

Three unknown thoroughbred horses grazed on Beddington swamps for the last few years, says a London Daily Express report. All attempts to find the owner have failed. They now have been sold at Aldridge's to meet the expense of their keep. The best horse fetched more than £70.

They arrived at the sewage farm with a groom, who gave the name and address of the "owner." The horses were taken in and grazed. When the "owner" was asked for grazing money he disclaimed all knowledge of the horses.

The matter was placed in the hands of the police, and the horses were advertised all over the country. The owner did not come forward to claim them. Several people whose horses had been stolen went to Beddington, but none recognized the animals.

Sandy Scotch.

A Scotsman was being shown over a battleship for the first time in his life, and, being keenly interested in all he saw, he plied his guide with reams of questions.

The marines seemed to interest him, and going up to one, he pointed to the grenade in the marine's cap and asked what it was.

The marine looked at him in surprise.

"Don't you know what that is?" he asked. "Why, that's a turnip, of course."

"Ach, mon," replied the Scotsman, impatiently, "I was not asking about yer head."

FEATS OF SLEEP-WALKERS.

Rarely Come to Harm Unless Abruptly Awakened.

Sleep-walkers, though they often move in most dangerous places, even a London paper, very rarely come to harm unless they are abruptly awakened. But in one case recently a lady fell out of a window in her sleep, awaking to find herself lying in the courtyard below the window.

Somnambulists are supposed to be able to see with their fingers when sleep-walking. Extraordinary as this may sound, it has been proved over and over again that a sleep-walker who takes the precaution to put on gloves, before going to bed, will never walk in his sleep. The gloves should be firmly fastened at the wrists.

Another preventive of sleep-walking is to put upon the carpet by the side of the sleepwalker's bed a strip of sheet metal, iron or zinc, wide and long enough to make certain that in getting out of bed his feet will rest upon the metal. The sudden chill is bound to awaken him.

Yet doctors say that sleep-walking is more common in cold countries than in hot, so that if you are given to sleep-walking you should see to it that you are thoroughly warm in bed.

Another odd fact is that fair-haired people are more given to sleep-walking than dark-haired folk.

The feats of some confirmed sleep-walkers are absolutely amazing. While around asleep, men have been known to saddle and ride horses, to walk for miles, to thresh corn. Once a California actually walked two miles down a river and continued his sleep upon the bank after leaving the water.

Another, a schoolgirl, awakens to pass an examination, one night after night, lit a candle and studied, yet was totally unconscious of what she had done and amazed to find that she knew her lessons when to all seeming a coalition of hell had not opened the book.

Oddest of all, perhaps, was the performance of a tradesman at Ilkeworth, who one morning woke to find that, in the night, he had stripped all the paper off the walls of his sitting-room.

A Bird Monument.

In Salt Lake City, Utah, is one of the two monuments in the world—the other is in Italy—erected to the memory of birds. This monumento commemorates the fact that about the year 1859 the original settlers in Utah were saved from starvation by sea-gulls.

A year after their arrival the white settlers were alarmed to observe that their crops were being devoured by myriads of crickets and grasshoppers, which swarm in the country until it was as if it had been scorched by fire.

Attempts were made to stop the plague, but without results. At that time the nearest point of civilization was 1,000 miles away, and it seemed as if the people must be starved.

Prayer was offered to, and one day, as if in answer to their appeals, a great flock of sea-gulls, which proceeded to devour the pests, and it was not until the crops had been completely annihilated that the gulls took to their wings and disappeared.

The monument commemorating the event was unveiled in 1915.

The Real Reason.

A minister in a small Scottish town noticed the regularity of one particular member of his flock in his attendance at the kirk.

Meeting him one day, he thought it his duty to commend him for his good example, and express his appreciation.

"I am delighted," he said, "to see one of my congregation take such an interest in the kirk, and I wish to thank you personally for being so regular in your pew. I trust you are enjoying spiritual comfort from my ministrations."

"It's no' that, man," replied the supposed devotee. "I'm the father o' a big family, an' there's aye sic a steer on the Sabbath mornin's that I'm glad to get out o' the house. When I get into my pew, I jist like to fauld my airms, shut my een, an' think about—nothing!"

Sweet and palatable, Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator is acceptable to children, and it does its work surely and promptly.

PENALTY 56674

Penalty No. 1970, is a handsome bay stallion. Stands 15.3 hands high and weighs 1,150 pounds. Foaled 1911. Bred by Graham Bros. & Brown, Carthage, Ill.

Individually he is a horse of grand finish and plenty of substance, with a fine disposition, with short, strong shoulders, stout back, very strong loins and stifles, strong bone, with good feet and legs.

His blood lines are of the best, as will be seen by his tabulated legal pedigree, the most popular and prepotent sire breeding combination in trotting blood lines, the kind that get the money on the race course and the prizes in the show ring.

That he will beget speed and grand road qualities there is no doubt, as he positively inherits but possesses these qualities in a marked degree.

Even yearling mares bred to a horse of this class cannot fail to produce foals that will find a ready market, as carriage horses or roadsters, as well as general all-purpose horses.

He will make the season of 1924 at Soule, Napanee Driving Park.

A Remedy for Earache.—To have the earache is to endure torture. The ear is a delicate organ and few care to deal with it, considering it work for a doctor. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil offers a simple remedy. A few drops upon a piece of lint or medicated cotton placed in the ear will do much in relieving pain.

"At times," said the girl, "you seem sanely enough, and then at other times you're absurdly effeminate. Why is it?"
"Er—ah—heredity," he answered.
"Heredity?"
"Yes. You see half my ancestors were men and the other half women."

Freedom From Asthma. Asthma is one of the most distressing troubles, seldom in its attacks and prolonged in its agonies. Frequently many things are tried, but nothing seems to give hope of relief. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy can be fully relied upon to overcome the most distressing symptoms of this dreadful disease.

A certain very dignified bishop was walking along a street one day, and three young fellows, evidently in rather a heated argument. The language was such that the prelate felt compelled to stop and remonstrate. "My good men," he said severely, "will one, whom you seem to accept like that, "the language you're using." "Beg pardon, sir," replied one, slipping his cigarette behind his ear, "but we can't learn it. It's a girl's school."

A certain prominent city man was in the habit of wandering into the office of his physician, ostensibly for any thing he found there which tempted his appetite. One morning his wife called on the doctor, and asked if Mr. Jay's luncheon with the maid, and recalling a pudding which they had been unable to finish the evening before, she said, "Do you know where the cold pudding is, Mary?"
"Yes, ma'am," unsatisfactorily replied the girl, "it has gone to the city."

I was sure he would never manage it. In due time, doubtless, when his fixed focus eyes had gained the ceiling. It was only then that I saw how every few paces his spinnerets had attached invisible thread to the glass, so that when he jumped no risks should be run. I could see the spinnerets perform the action; the thread I could not see, even under a powerful lens, so fine was it; yet so efficient that it bore the weight of the struggling combatants immediately it was spun."

Some Secrets of the Sea

There was a time in the earth's history when there was no sea. The surface of the young earth was too hot to allow the accumulation of water in basins. More than that, there were no basins, for the surface of the earth must have been at any one place as flat as a pancake, says Tit-Bits.

On an average there are three and a half pounds of salty material to every hundred pounds of sea-water. More than three-fourths of the salts in the sea consists of common salt (sodium chloride).

Different parts of the surface of the sea vary markedly in salinity, for it is not necessarily the evaporation of great (as in the Red Sea) and decrease where the rainfall is heavy or it flows in from rivers. Wind and much precipitation. In a general way the salinity corresponds with the climate.

The total surface of the globe occupies about 197,000,000 square miles, and about 141,000,000 of that area (nearly 140,000,000) belongs to oceans, seas, and lakes.

Soundings have been taken in all parts of the navigable globe, and we know that the average depth of the sea is about two and a half miles.

Deep rays are lost at 250 fathoms, and even in the tropics the upper stratum of warmish water is comparatively thin. Below that lies 6000 feet of the water in the oceans is cold. In the great depths the temperature is a little above 32 degrees, just short of fresh water. The cold demand from above, because of the tropics is so cold that it cannot be handled with coal discomforts.

It is calculated that at a depth of 2,500 fathoms the pressure of the sea is at 2½ tons per square inch.

There is an enormous pressure on the fish's stomach, noted that ships and fish sink small, they push their jewel," and then remain suspended. Everything sinks to the bottom.

Below 2,000 fathoms the fishes above its usual route in pursuit of its prey, the purpose of carrying provisions brings about an expansion of the gases in the swim-bladder, and the whole strain on the fish is relieved. The result is that in spite of its effects, the fish "reaches upwards" to the surface, and is found dead later by the distension of its organs.

AGE AT THE ALTAR.

Some Amazing Records In Marriage Century.

Public curiosity has recently been tremendously whetted in Canada and the United States by the announcement that Mrs. John McKenzie, known far and wide as "The Snow Queen," was to marry Mr. Harris, aged at the great age of ninety-four!

The bride is the idol of the Cree Indians, and has already had three husbands, all trappers. Two of these were frozen to death, and the other perished from starvation. It was whilst this third husband lay dying that Mrs. McKenzie had the unfortunate adventure which obtained for her the title of "The Snow Queen."

The family was camped one hundred miles north of Stanley Mission, when it became evident that they were threatened with starvation. Then the man fell ill, so Mrs. McKenzie, driving a dog-team, set off for help with her two babies. After thirty miles the famished dogs died. She tucked the babies in the sledge, harnessed herself to it, and started again, pulling it mile after mile.

Ten miles farther on she baby died, so she wrapped it up tenderly in a cloth and buried it in the snow. Then she went on, dragging the sled and herself, until she reached the Stanley Mission.

Food and comforts were at once sent off to her husband, but he was dead when they reached him.

But even Mrs. McKenzie's new venture is far from constituting a record. In the registers of Chapolu, Lincolnshire, Eng., may still be seen a note which was added to the marriage entry of Thomas Bellamie and Margaret Sudburie, on November 20th, 1699. This amazing note runs as follows:

"Memorandum: Bellamie was an Ironcatarian bride in our own land. It will take even the United States a long time to beat this."

Sir Stephen Fox, ancestor of many famous people, including Charles James Fox, had not become one hundred years old when he married for the second time. He was only ninety-one; but he may boast a record, as the result of this, which will probably never be equalled in British annals.

For Sir Stephen married his first wife whilst yet a young man, and had a daughter who was a baby when Oliver Cromwell came to visit her father.

After his wife died he remained a widower to many years, and then married again, as stated, at the age of ninety-one. And by this second wife he had another daughter. She lived to a very great age, and who, then almost a centenarian herself, took the girlchild of the Duchess of Kent on her knees and nursed the future Queen Victoria.

Thus there were two sisters, the elder of whom looked on the face of Oliver Cromwell and the younger on the face of Queen Victoria, the interval between these events covering no less a time than 164 years! It is an amazing record, and one which will probably never be beaten.—Answers.

British Held Bull Fights.

Bull fighting was not always a peculiarly Spanish institution, it was once a common amusement in great Britain in a somewhat different form. The bull was tied to a stake, after having the points of its horns padded. Fierce dogs were let loose on it, and a terrific battle would ensue. Bulldogs were bred specially for the sport. Their peculiar jaws gave a grip so strong that the bull could not throw off its attackers once their teeth had met in its shoulder. Bear-baiting, too, was popular during the reign of Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth. Both were fond of bear-baitings and bullbaits. Great men kept "bears," and there was one in nearly every place of amusement. "Bankside" was a noted place for the "sport" in London. The charges for admission were a penny to enter, another penny to go in the "grand stand," and a third penny for the equivalent of reserved seats. Thursdays and Sundays were the favorite days for baiting bears and bulls. Monday-time the theatres were ordered to close down on the former day so that competition should not interfere with the baitings.

Newfoundland Death Rate.

The death rate for Newfoundland last year compared favorably with that of 1921 which was the lowest on record, says the annual report of the Registrar-General just made public. The rate for the Dominion was 14.21 and for 1921 it was 13.67. In 17.22 per 1,000 of the population during 1922 as compared with 12.29 and 16.06 respectively for the year previous. The total registrations for the year were 12,852, viz.: births, 7,392, or 28.25 per 1,000; marriages, 1,441, 5.50 per 1,000; deaths, 3,719, 14.21 per 1,000. Compared with 1921 there was an increase of 120 births and a decrease of 81 marriages. The number of deaths from tuberculosis tuberculosis for the Dominion were 579. This number is less by 10 than for the previous year. Other forms of tuberculosis accounted for 265 deaths and cancer 715 deaths.

Wed Twice In One Day.

Twice wed in one day was the novel experience of a Buxton, Derbyshire, Eng., couple. After the first ceremony the bridal party went to the vestry to sign the register. There the officiating clergyman was astonished to hear from the bride and the bridegroom that the Christian names he had used during the ceremony were not theirs. They had been wrongly entered in the certificate. The clergyman, although quite sure that the marriage was legal, made assurance doubly sure by insisting on a repetition of the betrothal part of the ceremony, using this time the correct Christian names.

Unfair Discrimination.

"Oh, no!" soliloquized Johnny bitterly; "there ain't any favorites in this family. Oh, no! If I lose my finger nails, I get a rap over the knuckler, but if the baby eats his whole food, they think it's cute."

Limited Armament a Farce
Great Powers Building
Large Airplane Fleets

While the Washington Conference was a step in the direction of limiting armaments, no one of the capital ships of the Great Powers are concerned, the truth appears to be that never were some of the powers so feverishly engaged in building up their fighting strength as at present. The idea that the Great War was a war to end war has been abandoned. Everywhere has been the plaint of alarm, speaking both in the Chamber of Deputies, and in the House of Commons concerning the building of air fleets. There has been a 1,250 plane ready for instant service. Britain has half that many, and even the United States will have a greater air force than in the last war, and that there will be a next war. Even with the huge airplanes and prostrate France rushed forward into a great airplane building program which she will be unable to find any money to pay her debts to Great Britain. She subsidized the building of planes and the operation of commercial planes, and by these means got the road which she will now maintain. Britain paid little attention to airplanes after the war, but became alarmed when she noted the extraordinary production of them in France. She is now one of the few countries that has not suddenly come into possession of a weapon with which she might destroy London in short order. If France was not building with an eye on Britain, who was the enemy? Britain felt bound to acknowledge the implied challenge, which explains the large appropriation for airplanes in the last budget.

Germany is not allowed to have any, but she has built, and if war comes it will probably be found that planes will be her chief dependence. It is suspected that both in England and France bombing planes are being built which are capable of carrying fifty soldiers and their equipment at the rate of a hundred miles an hour or even faster. Experiments are being conducted with a view of perfecting the direction of unmanned airplanes by means of radio. Such planes will be out for the destruction of life or other experiment concerns the use of smoke screens to hide the planes from the attacks of hostile planes that attacked. More war-like intentions will be denied in a hundred directions where Government chemists are toiling to produce some more deadly gas than was used in the last war. Although the use of gas was so generally deplored during the war, it was employed it, all the powers had to use it later on. Pierce does very well as a poison gas, if that it will play a great part in the next war.

Meanwhile there is the greatest secrecy surrounding all these preparations. Attachees over their wine hobnob in the shoulder, Bear-baiting, too, was popular during the reign of Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth. Both were fond of bear-baitings and bullbaits. Great men kept "bears," and there was one in nearly every place of amusement. "Bankside" was a noted place for the "sport" in London. INDIAN DANCES AT 107.

Bareleg—An Osage, Joins In Tribal Rites.

Bareleg, reputed to be 107 years old, the oldest Indian of the Osage tribe, lives in Grayhorse, Ok. Although he is unusually stooped and though he is armed with a cane, he enjoys the best of health and complains in all Indian events, even the dances. He carries out the customs of the Osage Grayhorse store he always has enough to make the entire purchase come out in even dollars, so that there will be no small change.

He had in his possession a number of war instruments and had concealed in a trunk many scalps, but these were taken away from him a few years ago by the authorities. For old times sake he always wears a knife at his side, although he is harmless.

Among the Loss.

The new member of the club listened with solemn interest to the various stories that were told in the smoking-room.

They were good stories, and obviously lies, and each of them was the cause of a shipwreck during one of his voyages. He described the appalling horrors of the situation with such power that the hearers were deeply interested. He recited the part he had played in each of these terrible crises. Under fire he had directed the laboring vessel's helm, and all hail on board were destroyed.

Then he ended, panted, and there was a period of tense silence. But the president somewhere coughed.

"And you—what became of you?"

"I was drowned with the rest of them."

Unusual Mile Landmark.

Every time the speedometer registers another 1,000 miles, automobile experts, motorists and others interested in such a brief but correct examination. If this were done regularly by all, three-fourths of the annual toll of more than 14,000 fatal accidents could be prevented.

Experts say that any car should be made to include the following:

1. Tighten bolts and nuts; renew cotter pins and body bolts, and replace missing cotter pins.

2. Tighten or replace, where clogged, the gasoline distributor and carefully oil the clevis breaker levers and bearings.

3. Tighten, or replace, worn clevis pin downstroke rods, and have brake rods set out two inches so that they may blow out and cause no bad skid.

4. Inspect your brakes. Just as tire wear aids and fear the clearance of the brake, the brake should be tire wear aids and fear the clearance of the brake, the brake should be free when applied. If it is not, the brake is not adjusted so as the thing is an easy, steady, non-erratic application.

Milk In Tea and Coffee.

When tea was first introduced in Europe indeed, thought of milking it with milk, though it was customary to sweeten it with sugar or sugar candy. Mme. de Sevigne, writing to her daughter in 1680, mentions as an eccentric proceeding on the part of Mme. de la Fayette that she "drinks milk in her tea." Coffee, too, was then drunk without milk. Several years ago Dr. Pierre Vigne, of Nevache writes that a doctor used in vogue has discovered the virtues of coffee milk. "Pleasant to drink," he intimable, and this he has tastefully flavored with sugar and coffee. He make a most delightful compound, which will help to support us through the course of life."

A Glorious Gift.

Do Yenks and Jags hate each other? There thousand beautiful Japanese cherry trees in Washington for Spring. Yet when, in 1683, a citizen of the City of Tokio to the City of Washington, in 1912, as token of friendship. To the Japanese the cherry blooms has a symbolism all its own, and the thousand trees, a gift of Japan—Symbol of Happiness." Bloom this year is a season so general which takes the form of a national rite.

How They Got It.

It is a long way back to the battle of Hastings in 1066 when the Normans won England from King Harold the Saxon. For bravery at Hastings William of Normandy gave his sword to Sir William Fitzwilliam, one of his comrades in arms. To those days the sword is still preserved at Wentworth Woodhouse, the home of Earl Fitzwilliam, and has been in the hands of the christening of all the Fitzwilliam heirs.

Mad as a Hatter.

Do you remember the Mad Hatter in Alice in Wonderland? The expression "Mad as a Hatter" really has nothing to do with hatters. The word "mad" in Anglo-Saxon meant "furious, angry, or even venomous" and "atter" meant an "adder or viper." Thus the whole expression really means "as venomous as an adder."

MUSIC IN MEXICO.

Every Little Hamlet Has a Band Stand of Its Own.

A HELP IN THE GAME OF LOVE.

To the Strains of Melody the Youths and Maidens "Play Bear," a Peculiar National Diversion That Is the Correct Road to Matrimony.

Music plays a very prominent part in the social life of Mexico, not alone in the capital and other larger cities, but all over that picturesque land. A Mexican who can play no musical instrument is nothing less than a curiosity. There is no hamlet so insignificant that it has no band. Eight or ten men get together and decide to form a band. Having reached that decision, they go to the jefe politico, or major.

"All right," he will tell them. "You are to play Wednesday evenings from 9 to 12" and a record is made.

And during these hours, rain or shine, hot or cold, through famine, war and pestilence, as long as those men are alive and in the town, the band is in the band stand playing for such as choose to linger in the plaza, or public square.

About the evening concerts much of the social and domestic life of Mexico centers. It is at the concerts that many a youth and maiden first meet and begin to "play bear," a game indigenous and peculiar to Mexico, without which no self respecting Mexican couple adventures on matrimony.

The general plan of every plaza is much the same. In the center is the band stand. Immediately surrounding the band stand is an open paved space. Then there are flower bordered walks with plenty of benches.

Round the edge of the plaza, outside the trees and flowers, is another broad paved walk. Upon this outer walk are grouped the poorer Mexicans, the peons. On the benches sit the fathers, the mothers, the older folk, of the better classes. Round the walk that surrounds the band stand saunter tireless by the youths and maidens of the same class.

The women circle to the left on the outside, the men in the opposite direction, on the inside. Thus every one sees every one else innumerable times during the evening. And in this melodious circling a youth sets eyes on a maiden who strikes his fancy—the cause of "playing bear" has begun.

He looks steadily at his charmer every time they pass, and she, if she is pleased, glances at him in return. After they have passed each other ten or a dozen times he is at the edge of the procession in which he walks, and she has moved to the edge of the column of young women.

Then the young man, with a friend, withdraws to some cantina, or cafe and writes an ardent note. On the next round his friend in passing slips it into the hand of her companion. Then they continue their strolling until the concert is at an end.

On the next concert evening the performance is repeated, only this time the young lady is the one who presents the note, which she has written in her room. If she rejects her suitor's advances he presents or sheds, according as he is rich or poor.

If he meets with success he begins the next phase of the game. Each evening he will be seen opposite his lady's house, passing back and forth like a sentry walking his post. Every during business hours he will row out gently from his stool, seize his hat ruch frantically to his accustomed host and for several minutes walk up and down, gazing reproachfully at the fair one standing across the way.

As time goes on, after six weeks or two months say, have passed, the girl is at last to be seen seated in the window. Then comes another period of from two weeks to a month. The young man's walks gradually shorten and one evening he is to be seen under the window, gazing, mournfully upward for hours, much to the disconcert of passersby. But no one grins when all the world loves a lover, especially in Mexico.

After this stage father and son call formally on the father of the young lady and make a proposal of marriage.

When all the arrangements have been made the young man for the first time calls at the home of his affianced wife and meets her face to face, but never except in the company of a third person—mother, father or aunt.—Youth's Companion.

When Solid Iron Floats.

Experiments have shown that if a ball of solid iron be lowered into a mass of liquid iron by means of a metal fork the last at first sinks to the bottom with the fork, but that in a few seconds it will seize the prongs and rise to the surface, where it continues to float until it melts. The rising is explained by the expansion of the ball, due to heating, whereby it becomes built for bulk, less dense than the molten metal.

Friendly Criticism.

Pennlite—Two of my latest poems appeared in the last issue of McDuff's Magazine. Inkerton—Yes; I noticed them. Pennlite—Would you mind giving me your opinion of them? Inkerton—Well, to be candid, although the one was awfully simple and the other simply awful.

FORSAKEN ENKHUIZEN.

At One Time One of Holland's Richest and Greatest Cities.

Of all the so called "dead cities" of the Zuider Zee, Enkhuizen has most completely lost her former prosperity. One who wanders about her silent and empty streets can impossibly realize that this shrunken and depopulated city was once one of the wealthiest and most important in Holland.

Enkhuizen dates from the ninth century or even earlier. In the zenith of its greatness, the seventeenth century, it possessed 40,000 inhabitants and a fishing fleet of 400 boats engaged in the herring trade. Enkhuizen sailors were well known for their courage and seafaring ability.

But less than a hundred years later the harbor of Enkhuizen was silting up, and her commerce had already declined. Since then whole streets have been pulled down, as the population diminished, for only a few thousand inhabitants remain. But the ancient gate, the Dromedaris, that guards its now empty harbor still stands, a monument of the past greatness of Enkhuizen.

The noble Wester kerk is built of the deep red, narrow bricks often used in Netherlands architecture. In its choir are some sixteenth century wood carvings. Its unlovely wooden belfry is detached, but connected with the church by a minute but attractive old house. The small, old, red tiled houses, each with a different facade, form an irregular line that is singularly charming. The streets of the little town are very quiet and empty. Their stillness is almost unbroken except by some beautiful chimes.—Argonaut.

Bullfighting.

In tradition the bullfight dates from the time before Hercules is said to have visited Spain and driven off the wonderful cattle of Geryon. In actual recorded history it antedates Caesar's campaign in Hispania, but the fight that is witnessed by the present day is far more exciting and cruel than the contests between the noble Spaniard and the noble bull four centuries ago. A first class spectacle now involves the torturing and killing of seven or eight bulls and at least thirty horses.

A Hearty Eater.

In a look on gastronomy appears this anecdote of the gastronomic prowess of a Swiss guard in the employment of the Marechal de Villars: "One day the guard was sent for by the marechal, who had heard of his enormous appetite. 'How many sirloins of beef can you eat?' he tentatively asked. 'Ah, monseigneur, for me I don't require many—five or six at the most.' 'And how many legs of mutton?' 'Legs of mutton? Not many—seven or eight.' 'And fat pullets?' 'Oh, as to pullets, only a few—a dozen.' 'And larks?' 'As to pigeons, monseigneur, not many—forty, perhaps fifty.' 'And larks?' 'Larks, monseigneur? Anyways.'"

The Way to Float.

This is the advice of an old swimmer to those who cannot swim: "Any human being who will have the presence of mind to elasp the hands behind the back and turn the face toward the zenith may float at ease and in perfect safety in tolerably still water. When you first find yourself in deep water you have only to consider yourself an empty pitcher. Let your mouth and nose and not the top of your heavy head be the highest part of you and you are safe. But thrust up one of your bony hands and down you go—turning up the handle tips after the pitcher." There are reason and logic in this.

A Street In Moscow.

One street in Moscow, Mussinitskaya Ulitza, is devoted almost entirely to stores selling "machines." The windows of these shops are large and of plate glass and display the various wares to good advantage. Many windows are devoted to large exhibits of various mechanisms, and at a certain hour in the afternoon these machines are, so far as possible, set in motion to give practical illustration of their workings.

Dispositions.

The dispositions of men are different. No house is managed well by men and women of different dispositions, just as much as a carpenter cannot build a house with big and tall timbers only. Even a man of obstinacy or argumentative is not unnecessary in a family. But there must be a supervision over them all. If there is no one who binds them all the different dispositions bring confusion to the house.—Kyoo.

Exzerum.

Erzerum means in Arabic "the fortress of Rome," for Rome and Byzantium, capitals of the old and new Roman empires, took turns in keeping it as an outpost against the hordes north of the Caucasus mountains. Then in the thirteenth century Islam conquered the city on the way to Europe.

You Write It.

How would you set down in figures the number eleven thousand eleven hundred and eleven? About half of a class to which the teacher put the question across the answer 11111; the other half wrote it 111111.—Youth's Companion.

Didn't Try Any Soft Soap.

"Go!" said the girl. "I wash my hands of you."

"Before you do any hand washing better take off that ring I gave you," he retorted frigidly.

Magistrate—"You are charged with being drunk. Have you anything to say?"

Culprit—"I've never been drunk in my life, sir, and never intend to be, for it always make one feel so bad in the morning."

The score was 13-6, in favor of Odessa.—The funeral of the late William Heath, who passed away in Rochester, was held from his brother's home, John Heath, Friday afternoon, and was largely attended by relatives and friends. Rev. S. F. Dixon officiated. The interment took place in the family plot at Union cemetery. To mourn his loss are five brothers, Charley, Cobourg; Orton, Fred and Samuel, Chamois, N.Y., and John, Odessa; also one sister, Mrs. Norman Snider, Odessa. Mr. Heath will be remembered by many, as this was the home of his boyhood years.—Mrs. J. E. Mabee motored to Whitby, accompanied by Miss Frances Asselstine, also Mrs. Ernest Sharpe, of Stuart St., Kingston, to attend the Golden Jubilee of the Ontario Ladies' College. One interesting feature, when arranged in class groups at the 'Old Girls' banquet', out of the 651 guests, there were twelve ladies present who were pupils at the beginning in '74. Before leaving on Thursday, they heard a most interest concert given by "old" and "new" graduates, and attended the reception held by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Cockshutt, Pres. and Mrs. R. C. Hamilton, Prin. and Mrs. Farewell and Lady Prin. Miss Maxwell, after which luncheon was served on the spacious and beautiful lawns, to 1200 guests from many countries. Miss Mary Ray was a most genial hostess during the hours not spent at the old school. Mrs. Donald Thompson also accompanied Mrs. Mabee as far as Oshawa, and called on her daughter, Mrs. Jack Lount.

"The constable seems wonderfully certain about the details of my case," said a defendant with a sneer. "But how is it he does not call his fellow-officer to corroborate what he says?"

"There is only one officer in the village, sir," explained the police-man.

"But I saw two last night!" indignantly asserted the defendant.

"Exactly," the policeman rejoined, smiling broadly. "That just the charge against you."

They Had No Banks

IN pioneer days the general merchant often kept the money of his customers for them — there were no banks. Buying and selling were largely by barter only.

The coming of the branch bank filled an important need in every community, and to-day the wise farmer, business man or private individual keeps his money in the bank and makes full use of the many services it has to offer.

The Ounce of Prevention

There is no "cure" for the financial loss represented in uninsured property or merchandize that is damaged or destroyed by fire or accident.

There is no cure—there is prevention. Insurance, if rightly applied to your risks—and dependable — prevents financial loss through property loss.

We can give you property insurance and we can show you how to apply it economically to your individual risks.

Kingston Woman to Hold One Hundredth Birthday.

On Wednesday a lady who has lived for forty-two years at 135 Alfred Street, Kingston, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth. She is Mrs. Isaac F. Asselstine, who was born two miles west of Odessa, on June 18th, 1824. Her father was Captain John Parrott, who was attached to a battalion stationed in Kingston at the time Fort Henry was built. Mrs. Asselstine was a school mate of Mrs. Darius Smith, of Collins' Bay, who has been ill, but is recovering, and will be one hundred and three years old next October. Mrs. Asselstine has been bedridden for twenty-two years.

GREEN TEA IN GREAT DEMAND

Twenty-five years ago, Green Tea was more popular than Black, but due to the heavy importation of poor quality Japan and China Green Teas, the demand fell off. Ceylon and India started producing Green Tea on a large scale only in recent years. They were of such fine quality and delicious flavor that Green Tea drinkers immediately recognized their superiority and demanded them in ever increasing quantities. Salada Tea Company is practically the sole importer of Ceylon and India Green Teas in Canada.

ADOLPHUSTOWN

Adolphustown was en fete on Tuesday of last week for the reception of the U. E. Loyalist pilgrimage. The old Parish Hall, built about 1795 by Dixie wacre memory hundreds have come to honor, was gay with flags and bunting. Here a bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of S. Alban's camp ground. Dinner also was served near the Loyalist landing place by the Women's Institute, after which some excellent speeches were delivered on the grounds. Many enjoyed the baseball game between Tamworth and the local team, which met defeat at the hands of the visitors. During the day Rev. Canon Bell, B.A., Rector of Ernestown, which was built in pious memory of those patriots who became founders of the Province of Ontario, in Honor, Loyalty, and the fear of God." Great interest was taken in the old church bell, dated 1690, which formerly belonged to S. George's Cathedral, and which was the first bell in Upper Canada to summon the people to worship. To add to the excitement of the day, representatives of the Fox Films took moving pictures of several local points of interest. The Rector of Christ Church, Deseronto, and Adolphustown, Rev. H. Coleman were at the Rectory; Rev. G. W. and Mrs. Swayne were with Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Johnson; Rev. J. Paterson was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Box; Rev. C. E. S. The former clergy and full choir were present to do honor to one who grew old in the service of Christ and His Church. Canon Forneri is frequently referred to as "the builder of churches," churches having been erected during his ministry, among them the beautiful S. Alban's, which is justly famed as one of ecclesiastical architecture. Interment was made in the family cemetery beside his wife and daughter.

A UNIQUE EVENT

A unique event was celebrated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Rutter, Mountain Grove, on Monday, June 23rd, 1924, it being the ninety-fourth birthday of Mrs. Rutter's mother, Mrs. Harriet Tompkins. Her son is with her son, Frank, of Newburgh, who, with their eight children and one place last year, but she has been visiting at Mr. Rutter's. In anticipation of the occasion Mrs. Rutter had come down to a most sumptuous repast and prepared and served in the most style of the generous hostess.

After supper a toast to the health of Mrs. Tompkins, the honored guest was moved by her Pastor, Rev. Geo. Jackson, of Newburgh, and responded to by Rev. R. F. Dixon, of Odessa. Short addresses were given by a number of her many relatives and others, all of whom spoke in high praise of her good qualities and integrity of character.

She was born in England and came to Canada when four years of age. At Dorchester, in 1846, she was married her late husband, Mr. Joseph Tompkins, and had resided in Ernestown Township. Her three sons, Charles, of Watertown, John Albert, of Bath, and Frank, of Newburgh, and one daughter, Mrs. D. B. Rutter, were present. She has twenty-one grandchildren, of whom seventeen were present, notably among these were eight of the nine grandchildren of her son, John Albert; ten great-grandchildren. Some guests that might be named are Mr. and Mrs. John Rutter, Napanee and family, Mr. Len. Drury, Mrs. W. Rutter, all of Kingston; a granddaughter, Miss Corlein Jeffrey, and Mr. and Mrs. Parker, old friends, of Watertown, N.Y.

During the evening Rev. R. Nickle baptized Dorothy Jean, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick LeRoy Rutton, of Kingston, and great-granddaughter of Mrs. Tompkins.

OLD BOYS' RE-UNION NEWS

Splendid progress is being made by the Old Boys' Re-Union Committees, and already can be seen accomplishment as a result of endeavour. An Old Boys' Re-Union has been contemplated here before, but never has got really under way before. Perhaps one of the errors of former times was made in confining the event to ex-residents of Napanee alone. The new project includes the County, and this is as much a Lennox and Addington Old Boys' Re-Union as it is for Napanee.

Many replies to the invitations sent out by the Secretary have been received, and each mail brings several more, bringing word that Old Boys and their families will be with us in Napanee in September. Some have been away for many years, and whether fer many or few years, the Old Boy will be struck with the many changes in the town and country since he left so long ago. Perhaps the greatest physical changes will appear in the town, for of recent years the residents seem to have taken greater pride in appearance, and have spent more effort on pleasing the eye of the passer-by. Absence is also the prettiest town in the province by others here, and by those who have seen most of the best places, and of others who may be considered competent to speak. The County itself is worthy of highest praise, for there are few that can compare to Lennox and Addington, either in traditions or from a commercial point of view. The beauty spots are far too numerous to mention, and it is to be hoped that none can be found to show off our County to visitors in September.

Homecoming often has its pathetic side, and for many to come home alone, and find all of the old boys gone, and old places changed, would be unbearable. The Old Boys' Re-Union makes this state of affairs impossible, for many of our absent friends may forget for the nonce that their friends are ex-residents also. But during the Re-Union they will all be here—the boys and girls from far and near who were here together years ago. There will be few vacant spaces, and we predict a regular Mardi Gras for all at the Old Boys' Re-Union, September 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. Don't forget the date. Don't depend entirely on others. Send your friends a personal invitation. The Committee in charge will furnish the date cards, and everybody will have a real full time.

All communications should be addressed to the Secretary, J. M. Clarke, Napanee.

Mr. Simpson tells us that reduced railway rates will be granted by the railway to bring our visitors here in September. This will be a boon to the man or woman who does not motor, and should be taken advantage of by all who intend to make a visit here this summer.

NEWBURGH

The real holidays are on us. What an institution they have become, what a centre around which revolves a great deal of our plans for the year; what a great many things we put off to the holidays, and then how many things we put off for the holidays. To think of holidays means to think of relaxation and freedom, in many cases from toilsome grind. To such people holidays mean something. To them holiday time is not a bore, but a blessing; the relaxation comes as a tonic to body and mind.

Last week the Newburgh correspondent took a motor trip of sixty odd miles through a prosperous part of the country and at intervals, two or three miles apart, would appear the little country school house, where boys and girls are not only being taught from books, but are being taught discipline, to fit them for life's battles. In nearly every case these schools are being taught by girls. What a God-send holidays are to those teachers and how much they need them. It is easy to say that they get well paid for their time, but viewed in a general sense, it is a question if the contribution these teachers are making to public weal and to the future of our country, can ever be paid for in dollars and cents. What we say with regard to rural teachers, applies equally to those in the week in-the-urban centres.

Mr. Jeffrey, whom we reported last week as having suffered an electric shock from lightning, has gone to his home in Yarker., much improved.

Mrs. Tees Millap, who has undergone an operation in Kingston Hospital, is, we understand, improving as well as could be expected.

News has come that our former townsman, Mr. Wm. Wright, is in a hospital in London, Ont., where he has undergone a critical operation, and his case is reported favorable.

Mrs. Carscadden, sister to Mr. W. W. Adams, and Mr. and Miss Adams, of Napanee, and nieces, of Mr. Bissell, spent the week end in the Adams home.

Mr. Naylor, who spent some years in Newburgh, as manager of the Standard Bank, now of Beaverton, with his wife and family, made short visits to their friends in Newburgh on Monday.

Dr. Gardier and Mrs. Gardier, Lady Belleiner and son, Robert, arrived at the Gandier home here on Sunday evening for a short visit.

The annual members of Prince of Wales Lodge, A. F. & A. M., will attend divine service at the Methodist Church here on Sunday, the 29th inst., at 7.30 p.m. Members of outside lodges are cordially invited to attend. The brethren will meet at the lodge room at 7 p.m. where the parade will be formed. Rev. Mr. Anderson, of Selby, will conduct the services. Rev. Mr. Nickle goes to Myrtle on one of his old circuits to conduct services on Sunday.

An interesting event took place in the Public School on Tuesday, when prizes were given to the pupils who stood highest in their several classes. The prizes were presented by Rev. Mr. Nickle, and were distributed as follows: Junior 4th, Carmen Sherman; 3rd Class, Ruby Switzer; Spelling, Louisa King; 1st Book, Loraine Alcombrack; Primer, Lois Ramey; Sr. 4th prize will be awarded later. Miss McGowan, who is leaving the school, was presented with a clock in a walnut case. Miss McGowan leaves the school with the good wishes of the School Board and all her pupils.

PILGRIMAGE TO U. E. L. SHRINE

It was not the modern buildings at Adolphustown village, such as its up-to-date church, that the 500 pilgrims of U. E. L. descent visited on Thursday afternoon; it was those things which are crumbling in ruin and decay; it was a dried up creek where once the waters were deep enough to support the flat-bottomed boats on which the refugees came to land 140 years ago; it was the old churches, the old burial places, where almost every vestige of the abode of the dead has vanished; it was rather the shrine of memory and imagination, the long since decayed frail memorials, the clumps of bush springing out of burial mounds that they journeyed to see.

The Crowning Event.

It was fitting that this should be the last crowning event of the four-days' commemoration of the coming of the Loyalists to Upper Canada. It was a pilgrimage of men and women gathered not only from Belleville but from all parts of the province to pay their tribute of respect to their sturdy forefathers who landed, labored and fell asleep within the sound of the waves of Kente.

So long ago did these heroic men and women land there that highways were not thought of, water being the way of travel. To-day the railways and the highways have left the spot in somewhat of an isolation, which could not fail to recall the lines of Gray's Elegy, written in a country churchyard. No provincial highway leads to the spot as dear to their descendants as Plymouth Rock is to the citizens of the United States, but township roads. A small wharf permitted landing at the village of frame buildings by those who travelled by steamer. These facts explain why this part of the country retains its historic character while elsewhere a change is rampant.

The little church of wood which has withstood the sun and rain for three-quarters of a century, the 40-year-old monument dedicated to the Loyalist founders of Upper Canada, and the burial places of the past were the individual shrines they visited.

The band of 500 pilgrims marked their return to the shrine of their ancestors by a simple gathering beneath the flag bearing the insignia of the Loyalists, not far from where a Union Jack fluttered, indicating the exact landing place of the Loyalists, and not far from the granite memorial.

Addresses were delivered by J. L. Haycock, a United Empire Loyalist descendant living in Adolphustown; Colonel S. S. Lazier, of Belleville; P. M. Canniff, of Los Angeles; Mrs. Murray Whitney Ferris, of Los Angeles; Mark Bond, M.P., of Welland; Russell Nesbitt, M.P.P., of Toronto; T. A. Thompson, M.P., Lanark; Rev. MacGregor, Napanee; W. S. Herrington, K.C., Napanee, President of the Historical Society. Warden Milling, of Lennox and Addington Counties, acted as chairman.

The addresses inculcated the sturdy courage of the pioneers and their vision of future greatness for the nation which they were about to found. It was pointed out that the economic and other problems which face the Dominion to-day were but trivial things when compared with the grave problem of existence which confronted the United Empire Loyalists when they hewed out their homes in a rough and almost inhospitable land.

ROD AND GUN IN CANADA

Fishing from coast to coast in Canada features the July issue of Rod and Gun in Canada, as among the score of interesting articles and stories there is included the trout fishing experiences of H. M. Buswell in British Columbia, a story of fishing in The Margaree rivers, Nova Scotia, by N. M. Browne, an article on the sea trout, by Bonnycastle Dale, and as a special feature an unusually authoritative article on inland game fish by Prof. A. Y. S. Pulling of the University of New Brunswick. R. P. Lincoln in his popular fishing department has a good account of the White fish, while in addition to these features, "Club Days in the Service" by Martin Hunter is a gripping story of pioneer days in the Hudson's Bay Company. Guns and Ammunition contains four articles by well known shooters while the other departments and stories are fruitful of interest for the sportsman.

Rod and Gun in Canada is published by W. J. Taylor, Ltd., Woodstock, Ont.

CRUSHED !

The youth had only left college and his ambition was high.

At home the all-engrossing subject was the young man's career, and he was discussing with his parents which profession stood most in need of his genius.

The father's idea of his son's ability was low.

"I think," said the old man, "that you had better adorn one of the stools in my office."

The young man drew himself up, and his collar grew tight so he strove to swallow his righteous anger.

Folding his arms across his narrow chest, he asked, "Am I a dog?"

"No, not yet, but you'll grow," came the response.

It is still at the top. Sherwin-Williams Paints and Varnishes are surpassed by none. A special product for each special purpose, whether house, barn, auto, floor, wall, ceiling, boats or carriages. Full information at Hooper's Drug Store.

JEWELS CAUSE WORRY.

Best Precautions to Guard Against Thieves.

The possession of rare and precious jewels is a source of great worry to many people. It is so easy to lose them.

Jewel thieves are such well-dressed rascals that they almost look like gentlemen, and it is difficult for the unwary to anticipate that the man who is making a friend, and an agreeable companion is actually planning a raid on a well-filled jewel-case.

If only jewel thieves were compelled to wear some distinctive mark of their profession—say, a broad arrow on the forehead—it would relieve the anxiety of all lovers of priceless gems.

I was once asked by a woman, says a writer in an English paper, what were the best precautions to take to guard against jewel thieves. I replied that if I had £50,000 worth of jewels no thief would ever steal them. I should just sell them.

That is the sort of answer a man would give, but it does not help a woman very much. As a matter of fact one can only give the general advice that common sense and reasonable care should be exercised.

A very famous jewel thief named Nicholson used to say that so many temptations were placed in his way that he could not resist them. He never blamed himself but always the women who were so careless with their valuables.

He appeared in the dock for the last time at Middlesex Sessions, in London, some years ago, when the late Sir Ralph Littler sentenced him to ten years' penal servitude.

"My lord," he pleaded, "I am an old man and I'm afraid I shan't live to serve that sentence."

"How old are you?" asked the Judge.

"Turned seventy, my lord," was the reply.

"I suppose you are right," said the judge. "Well, look here, Nicholson, do as much of it as you can!"

He did his best and died six years later in Parkhurst Prison.

Iris From Heaven.

Some flowers get their name from beautiful old legends.

Narcissus was a beautiful youth beloved by the nymph Echo. But as he was incapable of love Echo died from grief. In order to punish him, the goddess Nemesis caused him to see his image reflected in a fountain. Narcissus fell in love with his own shadow and slowly pined away until he was changed into the form of the flower.

The hyacinth sprang from the blood of another handsome youth, Hyacinthus, the son of a Sparta king. Apollo he was playing with the god Zephyrus, in a fit of jealousy, caused a quoit to strike his head, killing him instantly.

Iris means "a rainbow." And because the rainbow was supposed to unite heaven and earth the ancient Greeks regarded Iris as the messenger of the gods.

Snowdrop, bluebell, and honeysuckle are named that explain themselves. The daisy is the "day eye," but the foxglove is really the "fairy glove."

The origin to tulip is in the Turkish form of "turban," a name prompted by the resemblance between the flower and the headdress. Thyme is derived from a Greek word meaning incense."

The Marriage Portion.

That brilliantly witty playwright and novelist, Mr. Israel Zangwill, is telling a new story about a "Shodchan" (marriage-broker).

He called on a prospective client. Taking some photographs from his pocket he said: "I have some nice eligible girls waiting for husbands. Now this one"—showing the photograph—"is rather pretty. Her marriage portion is £250. This one here—she is a little plain. Her dowry is £500. This third one—maybe she is a little ugly, but she brings £1,000 for a husband.

"I've got one, too, who brings with her £5,000, but I ain't got her photograph."

"No matter," retorted the client. "I can well imagine it."

Poor Little Babies.

Java has a population of 28,000,000. It would be impossible for that enormously fertile island to accommodate such a population if it increased normally. It is kept within limits only by the fact that 50 per cent. of the babies die before they are five years old. The Javanese who kills them and people take few precautions to check it. Polygamy still flourishes there. The Sultan of Soko, the Crown Prince of Soko, who is an educated man and speaks English, and a number of European languages, has two wives, and his father, the Sultan, has many more.

Luck at Cards.

Many card players are particular about the cut of the cards. They must be divided and put back with the most meticulous care. A clever by cut brings good luck to the dealer and bad luck to the cutter. Some imagine that special tables or positions at the tables are lucky to them, and refuse to play unless they can get the places they desire. Others conceive that certain numbers are unlucky to them, and nothing will induce them to play with them. To drop a card on the floor when playing is generally regarded as a bad omen.

Motorcars a Terror In China.

The motorcars of Chinese officials are formidable terrors. With fur-capped servants standing on the running boards, they go full speed through the long streets, careless of life or property, and with no thought for traffic laws. The khaki-clad police hold out their arms in warning, and everybody dashes to the curb as the cars speed by with shrieking sirens.

Seth Woodbury was a tight-fisted, hard-hearted old farmer. His brother William dying, the neighbors said, from lack of proper treatment, Seth hitched up and drove into town to have a notice about his death inserted in the weekly newspaper.

"There ain't no charges, be there?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, yes, indeed," answered the advertisement manager, "one price is 15 shillings an inch."

THE SOYA BEAN.

Grown For More Than Five Thousand Years.

A German horticulturist, some years ago, smiled at the office of the Royal Botanical Society, in London, Eng., with news of a wonderful plant he had discovered in far-off Manchuria.

The plant was known as the Soya plant. Asked if he would supply the royal botanical society with some seeds of the new plant in the interests of scientific research, the German refused, although he agreed to send some empty pods.

When the pods arrived they were placed in the society's museum. One day Mr. J. L. North, the curator, happened to be relabelling the exhibits, when he noticed in the pods some beans not larger than a pin's head. He took them home, thirteen seeds in all, and planted them in his own garden, nurturing them as tenderly as if they were worth untold wealth.

Perhaps, indeed, this may yet prove to be the case, for, as a result of the curator's care and foresight, the Soya bean is now coming into its own as one of the most valuable plants known to science.

In its native country the Soya bean has been grown for more than five thousand years. Hundreds of thousands of tons are cultivated every year, yielding one of the staple foods of the people, besides producing huge quantities of cattle fodder. In growth not unlike a smaller edition of the ordinary, broad bean, the Soya plant is capable of producing thousands of seeds, as many as forty bushels being grown to the acre.

In Manchuria the average yield is nearly one hundred bushels to the acre, from an original sowing of half a bushel of seed! Over and above this, the plant yields green food as valuable as the best clover, at the rate of four tons or more to the acre.

But the possibilities of the Soya bean are not limited to its value as a food. It is used extensively in the manufacture of glycerine, explosives of various kinds, waterproofing material, linoleum, enamels, varnish, soap, celluloid, printing ink, paint, and lubricating oil!

Every month, ten thousand tons of these wonderful beans are unshipped at Hull, while Manchester imports another fifteen thousand tons. A considerable proportion is made into a special kind of bread, which is becoming increasingly popular in England, while it is also taking its place as an ingredient in many other kinds of food, including cheese, a new brand of milk, cakes, and confectionery.

Perhaps the chief reason why the Soya bean is unsurpassed with the name and possibilities of this truly magic bean is that up to the present, it has not been possible to grow it upon an extensive scale in Britain. The Soya bean has to be acclimatized—a fairly long process, involving almost inexhaustible patience and care. There is encouragement in the fact that the bean it now cultivated in the United States, after much patient research and the expenditure of a vast amount of time and trouble in selecting the right strain of Soya that lends itself to growth there.

Bread made from the Soya bean is said to contain all the best elements of both meat and milk. In China the people use the "cream" of the beans after they have been boiled and stored for use as a winter food. It is claimed that a man could live entirely upon the product of the bean, and experiments are being carried out by scientists with the object of proving this.

Origin of "Two Bits."

Many have wondered why 25c should be referred to as "two bits," and may be interested to learn how it originated. A bit is the American equivalent to the old Spanish real, which was used in California back in '49. When it disappeared finally, it had become part of the language. When American silver replaced the real it was reckoned in terms of bits, which were worth 12½ cents. Two of them made two bits, which equalled the American quarter. It was also used in company with Chinook the western trade language of early days. Difficulty arose when anything smaller than a quarter was produced in payment. The bit was the universal standard. Hence, a dime was known as a short bit and 15 cents as a long bit. Copper was tabu. If a customer boasted his worth of tobacco and gave the storekeeper a quarter he'd get a dime change. If he had a dime it would be accepted, but if he didn't he was penalized 2½ cents.

Not Sovereigns, But Halfpennies.

Piles of glistening new coins at banks, railway booking offices, and other places in England, have caused a little misapprehension lately among short-sighted people and those who have almost forgotten the size of a sovereign.

"Gold at last," they have exclaimed, only to be assured by the bank cashier and the booking clerk that "all that glistens is not gold," but, in this case, bright new halfpennies.

"The issue of new halfpennies followed a period during which there was apparently a surplus of copper pennies, and, therefore, no need to produce more," an official of the Royal Mint states.

"There is at present a very big surplus in pennies, caused possibly by the large number that were issued during and just after the war and by the state of trade as well."

Argentina Products.

Keen competition of Argentina in the exportation of beef to the United Kingdom has resulted in the New Zealand farmer taking to the fattening of lambs, or to the production of butter and cheese rather than beef raising, according to Premier Massey. Mr. Massey cited figures showing that in 1922 South America furnished the United Kingdom with 6,417,535 quarters of beef, while New Zealand's export fell to 267,730 quarters, as against 629,852 the year before.

They had had one of their usual tiffs because hubby was home late for dinner. "You're always late," she said, indignantly. "You were late at the church the day we were married." "Yes," he answered, bitterly, "but I wasn't late enough."

PERFECTED WINDSCREEN.

A New Device to Keep a Good Lookout.

No motorist would care to proceed far on his journey, especially during the cold weather, unprotected by a windscreen, which, however, he often regards as being a very great nuisance indeed, for when it becomes spattered with rain, sleet, or snow he has either to stop his car and clear it, or else be content to travel at an agonizing pace on roads which may be almost entirely free of traffic.

Cute conception of the motorist's requirements has been responsible for the invention of a device which enables him to keep a good look out and retain an unobstructed view of his route, no matter how inclement the weather may be. It consists of a revolving piece of thick glass which, operated by a small motor or otherwise geared to the engine, whirls round at such a dizzy speed that no moisture, even when a deluge is falling, can adhere to it.

The disc is always available for the purpose of keeping a good outlook, and those travellers who are concerned both with the safety of themselves and pedestrains will appreciate its invaluable aid as a means of avoiding accidents.

The same invention has also been applied to marine uses, and has been fitted to some to the largest liners on which keen observation is more necessary in bad weather than in fine.—Weekly Telegraph.

Lighthouse Candles Birds.

As the candle attracts the moth, so the lighthouse on St. Simonds Island, just off the coast of southern Georgia, attracts thousands of birds.

It has become necessary for the Government to erect a huge steel net around the glass in the top of the tower to save the windows from further injury and to protect the light and it powerful lens from possible destruction.

The light is of 2,200 candle power and is in a tower 160 feet high. It is visible on a clear night for a distance of sixteen miles, and according to C. O. Swenson, keeper of the lighthouse, offers as much fascination to the fowls of the air as the white lights to Broadway, other to the thousands of Americans who annually visit New York.

During the migrating season thousands of birds fly into the net," Keeper Swenson said. "Often on a dark and stormy night the net is swayed overtime. Then the birds believe that the light often turns to dash from the wind, but instead it increases many of them in their death.

The lighthouse does not observe any of the game laws, but gets all the birds that come toward it, quite often I pick up birds or rare plumage. Sometimes the birds are killed outright, but most of them escape death and are either badly stunned or suffer broken wings. These I kill to end their suffering, and feel that in doing so I am showing them mercy.

"Ducks, rice birds, quail and doves alike fly into the net and often the birds break it under the up, drops them and they are soon on my dining table."

The lighthouse is located on an island about 5½ miles from Brunswick, occupies a very commanding position. Since its erection many years ago it has been a source of joy to birds, but for a number of years there was no net around the light.

City Without Windows.

In the holy city of Nejef, five days distant by caravan from Bagdad, there is said to be scarcely a house that has a window. The city has a population in the neighborhood of 100,000 persons, most of whom live in huge underground caves built beneath the city. These strange dwellings are excavated out of limestone that underlies the desert round about. Many of these caves are built one room below the other, some of the lower apartments being 100 feet below the street level. These underground chambers are reached by winding stairways, also newn from the rock. They were originally built to provide a refuge from the intense heat of midsummer, but in many instances they have now become a refuge for Arab criminals and robbers who dwell at Nejef and prey on the caravans of Mecca pilgrims. Nejef itself is a great pilgrim city and each year thousands of devotees from Persia and Turkestan make the journey to the holy Nejef, bringing with them the mined and embalmed bodies of their dead for burial in sacred ground outside the city walls. There is a vast city of tombs has grown up.

Salmon Are Travellers.

Experiments with the marking of salmon carried out under the direction of the Fisheries Board of Scotland have yielded some notable results.

From the Kyle of Tongue (Sutherland) salmon have moved to places as far apart as Loch Broom and Cromarty, Lochinvar and the River Spey.

One salmon made a journey of 256 miles in seven days. The record, however, is held by a salmon which travelled from the River Spey to the Solway, near Carlisle, a distance of fully 620 miles.

The most effective beauty treatment known —is this simple method. Millions now employ it to keep youthful loveliness

You will be amazed, reading this, to discover the perfect simplicity of a beauty secret millions of women use.

Yet it is the most effective known. It will help you, too, in keeping the radiant loveliness of youthful skin.

Regularly, do this

Cleanse the skin regularly, authorities say, to keep your complexion lovely, radiant, youthful.

But beware of harsh cleansing methods. They injure skin.

Wash thoroughly with Palmolive Soap—each night before retiring. Rub the creamy, foamy lather well into the tiny pores. Rinse — and repeat the washing. Then rinse again.

Then—if skin is dry—apply a little cold cream. That is all. Skin so cared for is not injured by cosmetics, by wind and sun, or by dirt.

The simple, correct way

You cannot find a more effective beauty treatment. Because Palmolive Soap is blended of rare palm and olive oils—famous for mild but thorough cleansing qualities since the days of Cleopatra. And it is inexpensive.

Just be sure it is Palmolive that you get. Note name and wrapper—for Palmolive is never sold unwrapped. All dealers have it. In one week you will see most encouraging results!

WISE AND OTHERWISE.

"I think your wife needs a little change."

"Oh no, doctor, a little change would never satisfy her."

The most obstinate corns fail to resist Holloway's Corn Remover. Try it.

"A man is never older than he feels," declared the ancient bean bravely. "Now I feel as a two-year old."

"Horse or egg?" asked the sweet young thing brightly.

All mothers can put away anxiety regarding their suffering children when they have Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator to give relief. Its effects are sure and lasting.

Manager—Really, Miss Dubb, your figures are dreadful. Just look at that 3. Any one would take it for a 5.

Miss Dubb—But it is a 5.

Manager—Well, I should have sworn it was a 3.

May—So you wouldn't undertake a long journey on Friday! I can't imagine how you can have faith in such silly superstition.

Tom—No superstitution about it, Saturday's my pay day.

Children suffering from worms soon show the symptoms, and any mother can detect the presence of these parasites by the weirdness and fretting of the child. Until expelled and the system cleared of them, the child cannot regain its health. Miller's Worm Powders are prompt and efficient, not only for the eradication of worms, but also as a toner up for children that are run down in consequence.

A woman went to buy some cigars for her husband, who was laid up.

"Do you want them mild or strong, madam?" asked the tobacconist.

"Give me the strongest you have," she said. "The last ones he had broke in his pocket."

Stop the Cough. — Coughing is caused by irritation in the respiratory passages and is the effort to dislodge obstructions that come from inflammation of the mucous membrane. Treatment with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will allay the inflammation and in consequence the cough will usually stop. Try it and you will be satisfied.

The telephone in a well-known surgeon's office rang. When the doctor answered, the voice at the other end of the line inquired, "Who is this?"

The doctor, recognizing the voice of his seven-year-old son, replied, "Your smartest man in the world."

"Well, then," continued the boy, "I have the wrong number."

Its Quality Sells It. — The fact that so many thousands of intelligent people continue to use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil speaks volumes for its healing efficiency. Ever since it was first introduced it has grown steadily in public favor, owing entirely to its manifold usefulness in relieving and healing sickness. As a specific for cuts, burns, scalds, and various inflammatory pains its record is beyond reproach.

The Englishman looked up as his native Indian clerk entered the room. "What is this I hear about you wanting a transfer, Babu?" he asked. "Why do you want to leave here?" The plain salaam'd as he answered, "Because I am homesick, sahib." "And so you are homesick, are you? Where is your home?" "Here is my home, sahib, and I am sick of it!" answered the man despondently.

Nexdore—I say, old man, is your daughter going to practice on the piano this afternoon?

Sayso—I believe so.

Nexdore—Well, then, I'd like to borrow your lawn mower. I've got to do the grass sometime, anyway.

Mrs. Brown—I admire Dr. Young immensely. He is so persevering in the face of difficulties that he always reminds me of Patience sitting on a monument.

Mr. Brown—Yes, but what I am becoming rather alarmed about is the number of monuments sitting on his patients.

Persistent Asthma. A most distressing characteristic of this debilitating disease is the persistence with which recurring attacks come to sap away strength and leave the sufferer in a state of almost continual exhaustion. No wiser precaution can be taken than that of keeping at hand a supply of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy, famous as the most potent remedy for eradicating the disease from the tender air passages.

Beauty In Distress.

At a seaside concert some pretty girls were acting as attendants. One approached an old gentleman.

Shall I show you to a seat?" she murmured, with a bashful blush.

The old man stared at her, and the girl repeated her question, feeling rather abashed.

"Can I show you to a seat?" she said in louder tones.

"Eh, what—what?" exclaimed the old man, who was very deaf.

That finished the poor girl.

"Shall I sew you to a sheet?" she screamed wildly.

No More Peters.

There are more churches dedicated to St. Peter than to any other saint. But there has never been a Pope Peter. The custom, according to which popes change their Christian names on their elevation, was introduced in A.D. 854 by Peter di Porca. He felt that it would be presumptuous to have himself styled Peter the Second, so he took the name of Sergius the Second. Following in the same line of sentiment, no pope has ever retained or assumed the name of Peter.

Kills and Cures.

Cocaine relieves in dulling our pain and making the tooth extraction almost painless—comes from the coca plant, whose dried leaves South American Indians carry about with them in little bags. These leaves are chewed much as we smoke tobacco, when they are on journeys, and are extremely sustaining. Cocaine taken in this form is harmless, and if people would be content to chew the dried coca leaves instead of taking the concentrated form of the drug no harm would be done.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. J. Galbraith, who died June 27th, 1923.

The month of June again is here,
The saddest one of all the year.
Just one year ago
Our dear mother passed away.
Forget her, no we never will,
For in our hearts she liveth still.
We miss a mother, kind and true,
We miss her voice, her smiling face,
No one can fill a mother's place.

HAWLEY

A number from here attended the Old Boys' Re-union at Adolphustown. Also Mr. and Mrs. Sinclair, of Napanee, who have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Schell, took in the celebration.—The Misses Marion and Muriel Wamsley spent an evening recently at Clayton Frost.—Mrs. M. L. Clark, of Napanee, has been spending a week or more at her daughter's, Mrs. G. W. Parks.—Mrs. Ethel Clark, of N. C. L, have returned home for their holidays.

On the evening of June 11th, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Creighton, formerly of this place, called upon them in their new home at Bath, and spent a very enjoyable evening, after which cake and sandwiches were served, and Mr. T. D. Creighton, son of Mr. J. C. Creighton, very generously treated all to ice cream. At the close of the evening, an address was read by Mrs. G. W. Parks, and a couple of fancy wicker chairs were presented by Mrs. F. Lampkin and Mrs. D. Pross.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Creighton,—It is with mingled feelings of pleasure and sadness we, as neighbors and friends, assemble here to-night in a happy re-union. We cannot let the opportunity pass without as a church, Sunday School and neighborhood, expressing our regrets at your removal from our midst. You, Mr. Creighton, have held many important offices in the township and church, having been councillor and reeve, also trustee of the church and superintendent of the Sunday School, all of which offices you have filled to the best of your ability.

We will miss you, Mrs. Creighton, in the Ladies' Aid and the W. M. S., of which you are a life member. You have faithfully filled many offices, doing everything in your power for the welfare of these societies. As a teacher in the Sunday School you have used your influence in leading children to a better life.

Mr. Creighton, you having lived here all your life, and Mrs. Creighton since her girlhood, are in our midst, will be greatly missed; your home was ever open for any good work. We ask you to kindly accept these chairs as a remembrance from your neighbors and friends. May God's choicest blessings follow and may you both be spared to help others as you have helped us.

Signed on behalf of your neighbors and friends,

Mrs. Gordon Parks,
Mrs. Fraser Lampkin,
Mrs. A. D. Fretts.

Mr. Creighton replied in a very pleasing manner, thanking all for their kind remembrance.

BETTER GREEN TEA IMPORTED

Many think that those who drink Green Tea are more critical judges of quality than those who drink black. Such would seem to be the case, because some years ago great quantities of poor quality Japan and China Green Teas were brought into Canada. The demand for this type of tea soon fell off. Now, however, the much finer quality of India and Ceylon Greens, imported mostly by the Salada Tea Company, has sharply revived the demand by those who enjoy the distinctive flavor of Green Tea.

OBITUARY.

Mary E. Walsh.

Napanee has another of its real pioneers in the passing of Miss Mary E. Walsh, on Friday last. Miss Walsh was the youngest and only surviving member of the family of the late John Walsh, who settled in Napanee over one hundred years ago. With her going passes the name of Walsh in this family. The funeral was held Monday morning from her late residence, West Street, to St. Patrick's Church, where High Requiem Mass was sung by Rev. Father O'Connor, assisted by the choir, Miss Frances Dwyer rendering very beautifully Miss Walsh's favorite hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee". Miss Walsh for many years played the organ in St. Patrick's Church and performed many other duties in church work. In late years she has been a great sufferer, but her unfailing courage, genial disposition and keen sense of humour, kept her surrounded by a large circle of friends. Miss Walsh was a lifelong resident of Napanee, and the many spiritual and floral offerings testified the high esteem in which she was held.

Billy had had a serious misunderstanding with his older cousin Conrad. That misunderstanding had been very scrupulously concealed from his mother, so when he came into the house after school she said:

"Billy, what would you like to give Conrad for his birthday?"

"I know what I'd like to give him," said Billy vindictively, "but I ain't big enough."

MOSCOW WOMEN'S INSTITUTE.

A very pleasant and profitable afternoon was spent by the Women's Institute of Moscow, on Tuesday, June 24th. The chief object of the meeting was an address given by Miss Iva M. Langton, of Waterdown, on "Keeping Fit" and "The Institute as a Factor in the Community". Miss Langton handled these subjects in a very pleasing and forceful manner, which had a producing effect upon an audience of about one hundred ladies.

Her address was interspersed by a beautiful sacred duett rendered very ably by Mrs. W. Shangraw, of Colebrooke, and Mrs. A. E. Hoffman.

This being the first anniversary of the Institute, an invitation was extended to other Institutes in the district, and about twenty ladies from Enterprise, as well as some from Colebrook and other places were present.

Following the meeting in the church a very sumptuous luncheon was served on the lawn, consisting of sandwiches, cake, ice cream and lemonade.

Don't forget the play to be given at Moscow, this (Friday) evening, June 27th, entitled "The Little Clod-Hopper".

JUNE SHOWERS.

Two bridal showers were given for Miss Dorothy Smith during the week previous to her marriage. The first was a handkerchief shower at the home of Mrs. F. S. Boyes. The bride-to-be received with her hostess, in a chic gown of black and grey, and was the recipient of the good wishes of about forty friends. The tea room was a bower of fragrant white Persian lilacs and lilies of the valley, and the "shower" was a generous one.

At Mrs. Harry Steacy's, on Friday, Miss Smith was given a "heart party", with about fifteen of her most intimate friends as guests. The decorations were red peonies and an abundance of pretty red hearts fastened to streamers at the end of which were many lovely surprise-parcels.

Miss Alice Preston also entertained at the tea hour on Tuesday, in honor of Miss Dorothy Smith, who wore a charming costume of orchid, trimmed with val. lace and hat to match. The rooms were prettily arranged with mauve lilacs and bowls of purple pansies and old English violets.

CO-OPERATIVE SHIPMENT OF LIVE STOCK

I have a number of head of hogs and a few cattle that I wish to place in a co-operative shipment to the open market, believing this to be the farmers' best outlet for surplus stock. It is said that 48 per cent. of the hogs marketed in Ontario, East of the Counties of Essex and Kent, graded selects the past year. If this is so, who received the premium?

If there is sufficient encouragement by other farmers between now and Monday, June 30th, I will load a car, or more if necessary.

All stock will be marked so their identity cannot be mistaken.

Only actual expenses will be deducted from the proceeds and distributed pro rata.

The Commission House statement covering each sale, together with expenditure, will be furnished on the following Saturday, and settlement and payment will be made, at the Lennox and Addington Insurance Office, Napanee.

If interested, phone 49 r 6.

A woman made a purchase from one of the flower girls in Piccadilly Circus and said: "I suppose you will be here on Wednesday? I shall want a lot of flowers for my daughter; she is coming out on that day."

"She shall have the best in the market, mum," replied the flower seller, sympathetically. "What's she been in for?"

BOWLING.

One of the most interesting and pleasant events of the bowling season to date, was the yearly visit from the bowlers of Ontario Hospital, Kingston, headed by Dr. Ryan, Superintendent of that institution.

The generosity of the weatherman in providing pleasant weather added greatly to the enjoyment of all.

The games were keenly contested, both afternoon and evening. The Napanee rinks were successful in winning by a comfortable margin.

The club-house was beautifully decorated by the Napanee ladies, who played cards while the men were bowling. Afterwards a dainty tea completed an exceedingly pleasant afternoon.

The Napanee Club entertained the Rockwood bowlers to dinner at the Campbell House.

The following composed the Napanee rinks:—

YARKER

Yarker is losing a large number of its citizens this summer. With those who go camping and the families that are moving away, our village will be somewhat deprived of its population. Those who are moving away are Robt. Dolby, Wm. Wilson, Rev. J. W. Down and Rev. Winters.—School closes this week and the children will enjoy a well earned vacation.—The Moscow B.B. team defeated the L. W. of Kingston on last Saturday in the league game of ball.—Quite a number attended the U.E.L. celebration at Belleville and report large crowds. — On Thursday evening Mrs. F. Storms entertained the Women's Missionary Society in honor of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Down. After a short program in the house a delightful delicious lunch which was followed by the presentation of a purse to Mr. and Mrs. Down as small remembrance of their faithful work in connection with the W.M.S. Also on Friday evening the Ladies' Aid met at the parsonage and presented Mr. Down with a silver pyrex dish, showing their appreciation of her services in the Ladies' Aid while living at Yarker.—We heard a traveller say the other day that Yarker was the prettiest little village in a good many miles; and that is quite a lot to say, and should encourage everyone to keep their lawns clean.

DESMOND

On Friday, June 20th, the Desmond annual community picnic was held at Switzer's landing, Varty Lake. There were over fifty present to enjoy the sports and to do justice to the well laden tables, especially the cake decorated with orange. The picnic grounds had been previously prepared for the occasion by the men. The bank along the shore was walled up, and made wide enough to set the tables on, and the grounds were cleaned of rubbish and stones. People who come there for a day's sport would do well to remember that they are expected to leave the grounds in good shape, free of paper and other kinds of rubbish.—Mr. Michael O'Neil of Ottawa, is visiting his brother-in-law, Mr. Richard Quinn, Sr.—Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Ruttan at Bell Brot.'.—Mr. George Beverley, of Mountain Grove, at George A. Merram and family took dinner on Sunday at George Drew's.—Victor Drew at Moscow.—Carman Patterson at H. F. CHINESE DOCTORS,

Their Weird Ideas About Disease and Its Remedies.

PUNCH HOLES IN PATIENTS.

To Perform This Operation They Use Eight Different Styles of Needles, Some Two Feet Long, and the Bigger the Punch the Greater the Doctor.

The bigger the needle with which a Chinese doctor punctures the patient the higher the charge, for the bigger the needle the more distinguished is the physician. If the doctor wears a straw hat, that signifies he is a prosperous doctor and his charge is a little more. If he comes in a sedan, the patient must pay for the sedan.

Dr. Franz Otto Koch, writing in the Popular Science Monthly, gives a description of the Chinese physician and how he practices.

"The native Chinese doctor is a curiosity," writes Dr. Koch. "He possesses no examination; he requires no qualifications; he may have failed in business and set up as a physician. In his new profession he requires little stock in trade, medical instruments being almost unknown.

"Acupuncture, as it is called, is one of the nine branches recognized in medical science among the Chinese. It is of most ancient origin, having been in use from time immemorial. There are 357 martipoints to be treated. Every square inch on the human surface has its own name, and some relation to the internal parts, every imaginary, is assigned to it. The user is cautioned against wounding the artery, hence he must know the position of the blood vessels. By close study of a manikin pierced with holes the acupuncturist learns where to drive his needles. Parts of the body are selected which may be pierced without fatal results. Sometimes heat is applied to the outer orifice of the needle, and this is called a hot acupuncture, but the needle is never heated red hot before insertion.

"The needle used looks very much like a sewing machine needle, but it is sharper and coarser. Some of the Chinese doctors have needles two feet long and are supposed by ardent admirers to be able to drive these instruments entirely through the patient's body. The great size of the needles is limited naturally by the strength of the owner's skill and reputation. The needles used are of eight forms, as follows: The arrowhead, blunt puncturing, spear pointed, pointless, round, cutting, lancet and three. The pen, the first section, the depth and direction are all important. The method is usually to strike the point through the epidermal skin by aiblow from a light mallet.

"If he can get an old book of practical anatomy from a retiring doctor or so much the better for the Chinese doctor. He is now equipped to kill or cure as the case may be. Fortune favored us before the Seventh day of July, 1924, to sell or deliver to T. B. German, Napanee, Ontario, Solicitor for the Executors, in the said matter, their Christian names and surnames, addresses and descriptions, of the full particulars of their claims, duly verified.

"Now take notice that after such last mentioned date the said Executor will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased among the parties entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which they shall then have notice, and that the said Executor will not be liable for the said assets or any part thereof to any person or persons of whose claims notice shall not have been received by them at the time of such distribution.

EIGHTY YEARS OF STORIES.

Interesting Tales From the Victorian Era.

How times have changed!

This is the effect of a most agreeable volume by Mr. Ralph Nevill, "The World of Fashion, 1837-1922."

Mr. Nevill is a vivacious writer, and records the changes of the past eighty years in a series of articles which give a great liveliness to his narrative.

Take, as an example, the introduction of the examination system, which came as a blow to young men of good family, who, in order to obtain appointments under Government, found themselves obliged to learn a variety of tedious subjects. In the early days of competitive examinations curious answers were often given.

"Why did Moses leave Egypt?" inquired an examiner of a young fellow seeking to enter the Civil Service, upon which the latter, looking very embarrassed, said:

"Well, sir, if you must know, I suppose it was because his father-in-law was Potiphar's wife!"

Another examiner said that John the Baptist was beheaded because he would dance with Herodias's daughter.

A comparison of the old journalists with the new furnishes an anecdote of the days of Sala and Augustus Sala:

At a Bohemian club, Mr. Sala once told a friend that he had been brought up solely on milk, to which the latter, with a glance at the sparkling rubicund countenance, retorted, "Ma Sala, I suppose?"

Rivers Sink and Rise Again.

Some of the rivers in West Florida are very remarkable for their nature, and anyone unfamiliar with that section of the country should prepare himself for some curious freaks of nature.

The peculiarity is principally in connection with waterways, which mysteriously disappear. You see before you a swiftly flowing stream and then suddenly it is gone.

A description of these streams has been written by W. A. Mellar, commissioner of agriculture, who quotes a young man who has spent his life on the banks of the waterways. Type of substance of the surface of the needle, and this is called a hot acupuncture, but the needle is never heated red hot before insertion.

"The Warrien rises in "Beautiful Springs," near Thomas City, on the Tallahassee-Southern Railroad, and flows due south to within three miles of the Aucilla River, where it disappears underground and there reappears in the Aucilla. Loggen, have run a small vessel from the point of its disappearance to the Aucilla.

The Aucilla rises in Georgia and flows in a southwesterly direction, forming the eastern boundary of Jefferson county, Fla. About three miles south of Lamont the Tallahassee-Southeastern forms a junction with the Drifton-Aucilla railroad and runs parallel with the river for possibly twelve miles, rising about three miles north of where the Waccasassa disappears and is lost to view for a distance of many miles underground.

The course of the river is traced by sinkholes, and it can be seen plainly. As point to this an object dropped into the stream at Drifton sinks is seen to rise and pass through the various sinks to the point twelve miles below where it reappears on the surface.

The Mr. Marks, the third of the "sunken rivers," is a few miles to the west of the Waccasa and Aucilla. It disappears in the same manner a short distance away, making Florida's "Natural Bridge."

Tale of the Totem.

The western and northern Indians have no monuments of any remarkable totem according to those who have made a study of the subject. Each totem appears in kindred forms on all over the world. Savage tribes all apparently possess a set of beliefs and practices, mythological, religious, artistic, ceremonial and economic, which stem from their attitude towards animals, plants and inanimate objects. These beliefs and practices govern their mode of life and give rise to their forms of worship. This idea still lingers with the African Indians in the significance the latter has in regard to their family and the family myths and superstitions. These Indians believe they are descended from some animal, beast or other object, and take this as their symbol. The emblem chosen is carved on their totem poles, belongings, and is regarded as the visible being who has to do with certain obligations. Those with the same crest, for instance, cannot intermarry. Christianity is in some places trading to abolition of the totem.

"Una and the Lion."

Una and the Lion, probably the finest piece of Chelsea ware ever made, which is valued at $25,000, was bought for £1,125 by an antiquary at a sale in Mayfair, the other day. The lucky buyer's deal was the result of a duel between rivals.

Nothing in the catalogue to indicate the importance of the piece. It was entered simply as: Lot 625, A Dresden china group of a female figure with a lion, with pink and gilt decoration, on scroll shaped base, flowering reed and the apple green and gilt stand for same. Thirty-one inches high. "Una and the Lion" has been in the hands of makers and Litchfield in their works on a pedestal, escaped the notice of all the experts at the sale.

Clergy Famine.

There is a grave shortage of clergy in the Church of England today, and no fewer than 3,000, half the number required to carry on the work of the Church. The theological colleges, moreover, are nearly empty.

One of the causes of this shortage is the financial position of the professional classes from whose ranks the clergy are usually recruited. They cannot now afford to give their sons the long and expensive training required. Another cause is the unattractiveness of the clerical profession at present. Stipends are rarely more than $1,460 a year."

WHO IS RICHEST MAN?

Rockefeller, Ford and Mellon Compete for First Place.

"Who is the richest man in the world?"

A contest between Henry Ford, multi-millionaire motor car manufacturer, Andrew Mellon and John D. Rockefeller, sr., of Standard Oil fame, has developed and is being discussed in Wall Street.

The Wall Street Journal recently cited Henry Ford as the richest man in the United States; Garet A. Davis, financial expert retorted with John Rockefeller; Roger W. Babson, another expert, came forward with Andrew Mellon, declaring he could probably match dollar for dollar the joint incomes of Ford and Rockefeller.

Judging from income tax figures Ford has the biggest income and the most profitable business, but while it may return Ford the profits of a billion dollar business, it certainly could not be sold at that figure, and if he attempted to liquidate it he would not get much more than half that amount for it, experts say.

In that case Ford's business wealth, while greater than Rockefeller's, would not be worth as much to one who wanted to cash in and get out of it as Rockefeller's fortune is much more negotiable.

Mellon's fortune is of a third stripe; his is a potential wealth, power over money, opportunity, if not inclination to hold possession of more money than any other living man. He is interested in corporations with resources of more than 7,000 million dollars. Ordinary well-to-do financiers would prefer Rockefeller's wealth first Ford's second and Mellon's third. The only probable change might be that Ford's would supplant Rockefeller's.

It is different and even impossible to state exactly what these multi-millionaires are worth because of fluctuating investments and their many gifts. The only conclusion is the keenly general feeling among financiers. Without doubt, therefore, Rockefeller, Ford and Mellon are the richest in the world. Which is the richest is the problem.

Light on Early Man.

Eastern anthropologists state that 12,000 years has made little or no change in the human skull or human form. They base their argument on a careful examination of modified bones dating back to the Pleistocene period, which were recently found in Egypt. The bones were found by a representative of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt, at a point to be spared if any public money for excavation, on the east bank of the Nile, near a village called Qau.

They discovered in a pit close to a cave which had probably been occupied by an ancient race, nine well used tooth flints and fossilized bones for ornamentation, for carved bones and ivory. The pit was found to belong to the 12th dynasty, about 12co B.C. Some of the flint bones found were very small, but were those of adults, and indicated that a smaller race of people had inhabited the area, most probably during the Pluvial period, when human life was possible in such a district. All the evidence went to prove that the skull of the Pleistocene man did not differ in any characteristics which are usually attributed to it, and that the mental development was closely akin to that of the present day. It was agreed that there was proof that fossil bones had been used for carving and ornamentation during the 19th dynasty.

Porcelain in Arabia.

Porcelain factories and stoves are mentioned in Arabia in writing of the period of 900 A.D. The Arabian geographer, Mohammed-el-Edrisi, who lived in Sicily at the court of Roger II, published about 1172 a geographic work in which he told of the town of Djankow, where "Chinese clay" was made. He added that there was "no finer and more esteemed profession in Djankow than that of a potmaker or a pot designer." Toward the middle of the fourteenth century, Ibn Batuta, the Arabian traveller, described Chinese ceramic as the most beautiful in the world. The Chinese manufactured dishes and porcelain vases for a very long time. In the history of the great Chinese Empire one reads that only certain towns in China were fit for porcelain and dustry. The finest chinaware was made in the province of Sou; it was so beautiful and so thin that the finest crystal that it never was exported, but was exclusively reserved for the use of the Chinese emperors.

Turkey's Charm Snakes.

According to an eminent naturalist, snakes have a most peculiar effect on wild turkeys. When a snake is encountered by a flock, they behave in a most extraordinary manner. At the sight of the snake, the birds will begin to dance slowly round it. As the turkey dance they lowe: their wings, raise and spread their tails and utter a continuous querulous call. Some birds will sometimes break from the revolving circle to make frantic dashes at the snake. If the snake is not too formidable the flock will probably kill it. Otherwise they will be dazed and deafened by their conduct and noise.

A Family Matter.

A man of considerable position and importance suddenly found his merry twinkle in his eye, to a serious blow to his reputation from an unexpected quarter.

His small son returned from school and confronted his father with the question, "Father, what are you?"

"What am I, my boy? Why do you ask?"

"Well, father," was the reply, "Jenkins came up to me in the dinner house and said, 'What's your father?'"

"And what did you say?' asked his father.

"I didn't say anything," answered the boy. "I just kit him."—Tit-Bits.

LEAPS IN THE DARK.

Why the Broncho Jumped In His Wild Race at Midnight.

A former herdsman relates a thrilling personal experience connected with a stampede of cattle. He was taking a herd of 400 steers to Leadville and had camped for the night on Bear river, near its junction with the Little Snake. At midnight, when he went on guard, all was quiet, but in an hour or so, for some unexplained reason, the cattle were up and off like a flash. Something had stampeded them.

He was riding an old blue colored pinto, a half-broken California broncho, just the best for the work. He had often ridden him hundred miles a day. The night was dark and cloudy, and he had to rely on the animal's sure footedness as he strove to stay on the flanks of the steers and turn them until their scare should cease.

It was a wild race. Four or five times the broncho gave tremendous jumps, but landed right and went on in good shape. In the course of an hour or so the mad lead the beeves quieted.

When daylight came, being curious to learn what obstacles had occasioned those tremendous jumps of the broncho, the rider got down to look over the ground. Leaving the bottom land, the steers had ascended a gentle acclivity, and on the plateau at the top he had kept circling them.

The plateau was intersected by a canyon about four miles long and from 1,500 to 2,000 feet deep. Its walls inclined toward each other at the top, and the distance across was fifteen or twenty feet.

During the chase the broncho had jumped that frightful chasm four times. His hoof marks were plainly visible, and down in the debris, hundreds of feet below, were a dozen mangled steers that had been crowded off.

WHALING DAYS ARE OVER.

A Once Thriving Industry That Has Nearly Vanished.

At the outbreak of the American Revolution and for a period of seventy-five years following, the crowsnests of that straggle whaling was the most important branch of the American fisheries. From 500 to 700 vessels could whales in all the oceans and seas of the world, and in one year New Bedford alone sent out 329 vessels, whose catches of bone and oil were the chief source of the material life of the city.

The pursuit of sperm whales reached its climax in 1846, when 82 vessels of nearly 81,000 tons were brought in, mostly from the south Pacific. The height of the industry in the United States was reached in 1854, when 735 vessels, with a burden of 233,313 tons, were employed, and 729 vessels, valued at $21,000,000, sailed from 20 ports.

For more than fifty years the fishery has been declining, and in numerous instances the vessels that made it famous have been broken up. It is now scarcely one of the most wonderful visions of the imagination in all literature.

Or we read the marvelous dramatic story rhetoric of Jeremiah and Isaiah over the destruction of the modern heretofore of New England. We read the solemn adjuration of the "King Proclaim," to remember our Creator in the days of our youth, and the beautiful picture of old age, and the loveliness of "The Song of Songs" passed into our lives forever.

To this purely literary love of the Bible there has been added within the last few years a certain renewed regard for it as the profoundest book of the soul, and for some minds not conventionally religious it has required even some of its odd authority as a spiritual guide and stay. And I will confess for myself that sometimes as I fall asleep at night I wonder if even the most picturesque of modern rhetorics has written anything to equal the Twenty-third Psalm.—Richard Le Gallienne in Pinsent.

When the World Is Full.

The pecan decumint rate of increase in the population of the world is 5 per cent per year, and as there are 28,000,000 square miles comprising the fertile regions of the earth, which Bavenstein estimates will only support 200 persons per square mile, will have their maximum population of 5,594,000,000 persons in the year 2,000. The estimate allows fourteen persons per square mile in the 18,000,000 square miles of steppes and deserts.

Crookedest Railroad in the World.

Up California's Tamalpais runs the crookedest railroad in the world. Of the eight miles of track the longest tangent is but 415 feet. In one notable instance the road makes a complete loops and ties two complete bowknots to attain an elevation of ninety feet. The end of the line is about half a mile higher than the starting point, and there is not one particularly steep grade in the entire system.

Painfully Frank.

GASTRIC REBELLION.

Some of the Mistakes In Eating That Incite Poor Digestion.

Indigestion is often attributed to hasty eating, and people are reproved, and rightly so, for bolting their food, but it is interesting to observe that, even when the bolting of meat is always severely censured, one never hears any blame attached to those who swallow fruit by the mouthful and devour uncooked vegetables without any attempt at mastication. Nevertheless it is the hasty swallower of vegetable diet who is really the healthier of dietetic rebellion. Vegetables are at all times very imperfectly digested by the stomach and require their tough fibers to be thoroughly broken up by the teeth if they are to be dissolved even in the bowel.

There is a well known saying which avers that digestion waits upon appetite and there is no doubt that of all the adjuvants to digestion a keen desire for food is the most powerful and important. But appetite itself often depends upon conditions which are independent of the body's absolute necessities. Thus the aspect of the food, its smell, taste and even the manner in which it is served all help either to whet or to dissipate for it or to induce a sense of aversion, while the environment of the diner often exercises important influence, beneficial or otherwise.

Brain work of any kind interferes with the rapid digestion of food, and even the habit of reading during meal times, practised by so many, is conducive neither to appetite nor digestion. A well lighted room, music and frivolous conversation will often permit a healthy appetite to enjoy without remorse the pleasures of the table, while a depressing atmosphere, uncongenial company and unappetizing dishes may induce a fit of indigestion in the most healthy individual.

CHARM OF THE BIBLE.

Its Poetic Beauty and the Marvel of Its Word Pictures.

Then some of us who catred for literature took up the Bible casually and found its poetic Flint and Bertha Cotton, Stewell's Evergreens. I have a nice line of Silver Hull and Rye Buckwheats, Hungarian, Siberian and Golden Millet. Try our Chick starter; it has the proper proportion of white lead, linseed oil and pure turpentine make it. This world famous paint for sale at Wallace's.

A coat of Ground Color Paint, then Campbell's Light or Dark Oak Varnish Stain, makes a splendid finish around rugs or over the whole floor. All size cans at Wallace's.

Experienced painters are dubious of an overly "thick" paint. Many firms use a chemical substance for this purpose. B. & H. English Paint is only as thick as the proper proportion of white lead, linseed oil and pure turpentine make it. This world famous paint for sale at Wallace's.

Over 36,000 last year

"Hello, Mrs. Brock, do you know who's speaking?"

"No, I haven't the faintest idea."

"It's Irene — we just had our telephone installed and I thought you would like to know our number."

"Why that's fine, Irene, I'm often wished your mother had a telephone."

And so Mrs. Brock returns to her paper with a new and greater appreciation of the fact that "every new subscriber adds to the value of YOUR telephone."

Of the net gain of 52,018 telephones in Ontario and Quebec in 1923, over 36,000 (or 70%) were installed in residences.

Merchants and shop-keepers should not overlook this large addition to the number of their householders; they can reach by telephone.

PUTS HEALTH AND VIM INTO WOMEN

So Says Mrs. MacPherson of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brantford, Ontario.—"I was always tired and the least exertion would put me out for a day or two. I had a pressing pain on the top of my head, pain in the nape of my neck, and often I stooped over I could not get up without help, because of pain in my back. I did not sleep well and was nervous at the least noise. I keep house, but I was scarcely able to get out of bed or keep the floor nor wash the dishes without lying down afterwards. A friend living near me told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her so I began to take it. With the first bottle I felt brighter and got so I could wash dishes and sweep without having to lie down. Later I became regular again in my monthly terms. I have taken ten bottles all told and am now all better. I can truly say that your wonderful medicine cannot be beaten for putting health and vim into a woman."—Mrs. JAMES H. ELIMINATION OF DEGENERATION POTATO DISEASES

(Experimental Farms Note)

Degeneration diseases of potatoes are there such as mosaic, leaf curl, curly dwarf, spindle tuber, and the like, which are known to be spread in the field by aphids, plant lice, and which can only be eliminated by removing the source of infection. The source in every case can be traced to tubers which were found in diseased hills the previous year. To aphids feed on the plants arising from these tubers, and when they go to healthy ones they carry some of the infection with them, and in the course of feeding, inoculate the juice from the diseased plant into the healthy one. In the course of a few weeks the former, by healthy plants, is diseased.

In order to prevent the spread of these degeneration diseases it is necessary to go through the field at the time the plants are eight to ten inches high and pull out all that appear unde...sirable. In doing this be sure to remove the entire plant system, including the seed piece. The removal of plants in this way is known as "roguing". Two or three weeks later the field should be gone through thoroughly inspecting and all diseased or undesirable plants pulled. It is also necessary at this time to remove any foreign varieties that may be present. Should it be necessary to rogue a field after the tubers have begun to form, care should be taken to remove these as well as the plant. This will reduce to a minimum the danger of disease being carried over to next year's crop by means of the tubers.

PRESIDENT WAS COOLIE

HEAD OF INFLUENTIAL POLITICAL ORGANIZATION.

Man Who Once Hawked Dry Goods Became a Soldier and Gradually Worked Upwards—Now the Ruler of Republic of China and 400 Million People.

Tsao Kun, marshal of the national army of China, high inspector-general of the three provinces of Chihli, Shantung and Honan, . now president of the republic by grace of a corrupt and largely illegal Parliament, is the figure head of the most influential political organization in China. He is the nominal head of the Chihli party, a group of politicians and militarists whose activities and headquarters centre in the metropolitan province of Chihli,-in which the capital city of Pekin is located. More important still, he is the nominal head of the Tsao brothers clique in the party, a smaller group of men that have been able to shove General Wu Pei-fu and his adherents into the background and wrest control from Wu.

Forty years ago or so a pedlar of dry goods might have been seen going about the dusty streets of Pekin hawking his wares. A long pole was across one shoulder, from either end of which depended a swaying bale of cloth. As he went from door to door sounding the call peculiar to the vendor of dry goods in North China, a housewife would step out and for several minutes would arise the harsh sounds of bargaining accompanied by laughter. The pedlar was none other than Tsao Kun, the future president of China and its 400 million people.

Abandoning his dry goods route the pedlar, in due course, became a foot soldier in the armies of the Emperor of China. His good conduct on the drill field and off, and a personality far above that of the common soldier, attracted the attention of his commander, and the young private was drilled by his military chief to attend a military school. In 1899 he graduated with honors and his record in the schools had been so excellent that he was appointed a teacher in the northern. Five years later he was made director of a soldiers' training school at the place where Yuan Shih-kai, then a trusted lieutenant of the old empress dowager and later to be selected by fate as the first president of the republic, was training an army on the same lines that are used in the United States. China was at war with Japan, and Yuan Shih-kai, realizing that the bow and javelin methods, so to speak, must be discarded, took the young Tsao Kun as his assistant in the reconstruction of the army of the empire.

After the quelling of the Boxer rising in 1900 by the allied forces of Great Britain, Germany, Russia, France, the United States and other nations who went to the relief of the besieged legations at Pekin, Yuan, a Manchu general invited Tsao Kun to Chihli province to re-organize the troops on the western model. That was an important move for Tsao Kun, who was located in the little village of Paotingfu. Insofar from his palace in the latter place he directs the government as prescribed into Pekin. In 1900 Tsao Kun was made a regimental commander with 1,500 troops under him. His rise was rapid, and by 1902 he had become a full general in command of 10,000 soldiers.

When Yuan Shih-kai reorganized with the revolutionists, who had driven Chinda's royal family, and became first president of the new republic, Tsao Kun aided with his old commander. In 1913, when Yuan thought to found a new dynasty with himself as emperor, Tsao was loyal, and as reward got the very important military governorship of the metropolitan province of Chihli, a post Yuan himself had once held.

Not a tall man, almost completely bald and sporting a breezy brush mustache, Tsao Kun has a frank bold look. General Wu Pei-fu, known as a cultured officer, is the acknowledged chief of the opposing political group headed by Marshal Chang and got control of Pekin. But Tsao Kun is not aided with Wu at the latter's behest. "With Wu's victory the reconstruction of China was moved out of office, and the former president, Li Yuan-hung, revalled. Then Tsao with the help of his brother-in-law younger brother, Tsao Jui, seized Li Yuan-hung, drove the president from his chair, which he now occupies himself. At the gates of Pekin sits his friend and ally, General Wu, with a well-trained army of 20,000 men, making Tsao Kun secure in office.

Wiley Tsao Kun has, however, a line out to leeward, for his son is married to a daughter of the still powerful Marshal Chang, whom General Wu defeated, but whose titles and estates have been restored to him. Frank Hedges, writing in the Washington Star, assures us that the disunion of China which logins so large in the foreign press, is much misunderstood in Europe and America. There is no sharp line of demarcation between north and south or between any other two sections. It is a disruption among military rulers and politicians with frequent and rather bloodless splits. Fundamentally China is sound economically and morally, and the mass of the Chinese people are going about their business, paying scant attention to the squabbles of the politicians.—Toronto Telegram.

His Lucky (?) Number.

When a boy appeared on remand at shorncliffe Children's Court on a charge of being found on enclosed premises, it was mentioned that he was originally charged on Oct. 13, was the tenth child of his parents, and was born on the tenth of the tenth month of 1910.

Mr. Clarke Hall, adjourning the case indefinitely, remarked: "Ten is evidently your number, and I hope it will be a good number."

"Do you know, my dear," said a lady to her husband, who was lamentably "close fisted", "last night I had such a splendid vision! I dreamed you gave me a $5 bill!"

"Splendid!" exclaimed her spouse, amiably. "You may keep it dear!"

THE CIRCUS.

Successful Manager Must Be Many-Sided Man.

While one may talk of a farmer or the manager of a toy store as being a many-sided man, his task in being to the many-sidedness of the circus-manager. Problems are cropping up all the time, and enough and people are competent enough, yet in the long run they depend upon him.

Wild animals feed a rare lot of handling and coaxing and no two are the same in their likes and dislikes, their appetites or their tempers.

What would you do if your elephant got elephantitis of your big African lion sniffed from toothache? How would you feed a baboon? Are you aware that all carnivorous animals must fast one day in seven? If you had eighty horses for a circus would you know enough to avoid pretty-pretty animals with arching necks and long tails, which would go bits after one night in a train?

The circus man has to know all these things and a great many more besides. He must be able to give ages as a veterinary doctor, and must also have a round-and-ready knowledge of medicine and surgery, particularly the latter, for accidents often happen. A man gets bitten by a monkey or kicked by a horse, and a doctor is not always handy.

The proprietor has to make a living out of his circus, when means that he must know how to time his visits and their people. Audiences differ greatly in different parts of the country, and he must thoroughly understand their likes and dislikes.

There are no end of points to be considered before an act may be put in rout for the season. For instance, if it is to use travelling through an industrial districts where a big strike is, or has lately been, in progress, for in such country the takings will not equal the expenses.

There is also the matter of feed for his animals. In one part of the country hay may be cheap, in another dear; in one part the transit is good, in another there is little or no grass.

Ring Superstitions.

The origin of the ring, or the use of it seems to go back a long time in the world's history. It was perhaps worn next around the ear as a badge of servitude. Then later on arm and ankle for ornament, and eventually on the hand. It is worn in the case of weddings or engagements mainly on the third finger of the left hand, on account of a belief that the nerves of the heart concentrate in that finger. A third ring worn by a woman on her little finger, denotes that she intends to remain single. A man wearing a ring on his first finger means to imply that he wants a wife. He wears a ring on the second finger if he is engaged, and on the third finger if married. If the ring be worn on the fourth finger were said to afford protection against evil-eye; hence a poor old man was said to care pains in the side.

Sheep That Was Lost.

On the Aletsch Glacier in Switzerland, says a correspondent, is a strange, beautiful sight—the parable of the "Ninety and Nine" peopled to the letter.

One day we were making our way with several guides and climbers from the glacier, when we saw a flock of sheep following their shepherd over the immense snow fields between the peaks and so passing from the pastures on the one side of the glacier to the pastures on the other.

The flock had numbered two hundred all told. But on the way one sheep got lost.

One of the shepherds appealed to it. We heard and saw. And presently one of the party had a field-glass. With its aid we discovered, amid a tangle of orag-wood, up on the rocky mountain side.

It was beautiful to see how the shepherd, without a word, left his flock and ninety-nine sheep out in the glacier world, knowing they would stand there perfectly still and then, with never slackening pace after the lost sheep until he found it. And he actually put it on his shoulders and carried it back to safety.

Here was our Lord's parable enacted before our eyes, though the shepherd was all unconscious of it. And it brought our Lord's teaching home to us with a reality which none can realize but those who saw the incident.

World's Laziest People.

The laziest people in the world are said to be the Sicanians, a race of mountain folks living in the almost inaccessible mountain ranges lying between the Black and Caspian Seas. Their living conditions are approximately what they were 2,000 years ago, save that they have invented new reasons for their laziness, having four holidays each week with a movable list of special "holidays" that may be declared any time they want another day off, while they live in squalor and filth, in huts and caves with none of the conveniences easily within reach.

Organize Native Workers.

The mine workers of Geouri Brazil, formed a scheme through out labor circles in South Africa when they recommended that a proposal to admit natives to trade unionism and organize them for that purpose should be placed on the agenda of the annual general meeting. The union declares that it needs money, and that many natives are willing to pay the fees. The bulk of the trade unionists are opposed to the idea, which is regarded with some anxiety in official circles.

SEVENTH of the series dealing with the establishment of the BANK OF MONTREAL at representative points in CANADA and elsewhere.

IN VANCOUVER AND VICTORIA

THE completion in 1886 of the Canadian Pacific Railway, a project that had received the moral and financial support of the Bank of Montreal, cast a bright ray of promise across the then somewhat troubled economic life of Canada.

Canada at last was spanned by rail from coast to coast, opening up for profitable development the fertile territory lying between.

The Bank of Montreal signalized the completion of the line by establishing a Branch at Vancouver and later at Victoria, thus completing its transcontinental chain of Branches and bringing to the Pacific Coast banking facilities essential to the successful development of the great economic potentialities there.

Of its 567 Branches, 53 are situated in the Province of British Columbia.

PERSUASION.

A woman took her four-year-old daughter to be photographed. The little one would not keep still.

The photographer was suave, called the child all the sweet, endearing names he could think of, and used every device of gentle persuasion to make the youngster keep quiet. Finally he turned to the despairing mother and said—"Madame, if you will leave your darling with me a few minutes I think I can take her to perfection."

The mother withdrew. Soon the photographer summoned her back and exhibited a highly satisfactory negative. When they reached home the mother asked, "Nellie, what that nice gentleman say to you when I left you alone with him?"

"Well, he thaid, 'if you don't chit sthill, you ugly, squint-eyed little monkey, I'll thake the life out of you.' So I that very sthill, mamma."

HIS OMISSION.

Georgie is the apple of his father's eye, and it would seem that he deserves to be. A little while ago a rough-looking individual called at the house, and when Georgie answered his knock he grasped the little fellow by the collar.

"If you don't tell me where yer father keeps his money," he growled, "I'll knock yer head off."

"Oh, please, don't do that," whimpered Georgie; "you'll find all the money we've got in an old waistcoat in the kitchen."

Two minutes later a bruised and battered wreck was heaved through the front door of Georgie's house. He sat for a while in the gutter and blinked.

"That kid's too smart—unnatural smart," he muttered. "Never said a word about 'is father bein' inside the westkit."

BASEBALL

Tamworth 8, Adolphustown 3.

These two teams met in a league fixture at Adolphustown, on Thursday of last week. The game was much closer than the score would indicate, Tamworth getting four of their runs in the ninth innings. The home team got three runs in the first, but failed to get enough hits after that to score, while Tamworth crawled up slowly but steadily to victory. The pitching for both teams was splendid. Kellar, for Tamworth, struck out nine, while Prout, for Adolphustown, retired eight. Adolphustown owe their defeat to loose fielding.

Gibbards 19, Tamworth 7.

The Gibbard ball team visited Tamworth on Wednesday afternoon, and defeated the home team by the decisive score of 19-7. By virtue of this win the Gibbard boys are leading the league.

Newburgh 6, Napanee 2.

At Newburgh, on Wednesday afternoon, the Napanee team were defeated by a score of 6-2.

Standing of the League.

MEETING OF LENNOX FAIR DIRECTORS

A meeting of the Lennox Fair Directors was held in the Council Chambers, on Friday evening, the 20th. The following Directors were present: Hiram Shannon, J. L. Boyce, Frank Smith, W. H. Hunter, Ed. Kaylor, C. A. Walters, W. H. Boyle, W. G. Scott, Rockwell Parks, F. H. Henderson, Russell Long, Roy Armstrong, J. W. Robinson, T. B. Wallace, M. P. Graham, Ross Parks.

Several matters pertaining to the Fall Fair was discussed, one of the most important being that the cattle be exhibited the four days of the Fair, Sept. 9th, 10th, 11th and 12th. The largest cattle exhibitors were agreeable to doing this for the benefit of the Fair, as they fully realize the Fair is a Farmers' Fair, and the bulk of the prize money goes to the farmers of Lennox.

A resolution was passed unanimously that the Hon. Martin, Minister of Agriculture of the Ontario Government, be invited to open the Fair, Sept. 9th. Mr. Martin is a practical farmer, and a very pleasant speaker, and has never visited this section, and no doubt many will be pleased to hear Mr. Martin's address.

The big Happyland Midway of Detroit, has been contracted for the Fair this year, and is one of the best Midways on the road.

The Napanee Lennox and Addington Old Boys' Re-union is to be held in Napanee the week of the County Fair, and many old residents of Lennox and Addington have written Mr. J. M. Simpson, the Secretary, that they will attend the Old Boys' Reunion.

THE CHAUTAUQUA.

Apart from the programme arranged by the Historical Society, and perhaps one or two other occasions, the Town of Napanee and district has no opportunity of hearing speakers on world topics of interest to every wide awake citizen. And the same holds true in respect to music. The artists who are sought after by the musical public cannot afford to visit under ordinary circumstances, the smaller towns of the Province.

It is to remedy this deficiency that the Chautauqua exists. It seeks to bring into the smaller towns music and literary talent, which under no other circumstances, is available. And the history of the programmes which these organizations have given in Napanee in the past, bears testimony to the success of the venture. For five days the people of the district are enabled to hear speakers in the realm of music literature and dramatics.

The programme is a well rounded out one, ministering to all tastes. There is music, literary skill, elocution, singing and instrumental music, besides a modern play. And the complete organization with its continuous circuit enables the authorities to give this to the public at an astonishingly low fee of two dollars and a half for the whole five days' programme.

The Chautauqua is backed by a strong committee of local citizens who desire that as many as possible avail themselves of the opportunities afforded of hearing and enjoying some of the best artists in their various lines that are available. It is hoped that the whole county will appreciate the efforts of the committee and will co-operate with the members of it in an endeavor to make the whole affair a success.

The dates are July 21st to August 4th, inclusive.

A. MacGREGOR,
Chairman of Committee.

NEWBURGH

During the last two years the farmers, to use the common phrase, have been up against it. We are still living through a time of readjustment, which always brings more or less hardship. These periods are bound to come in any country, and Canada has not been an exception in this regard. But it will be noticed that as the country grows older and business methods become more generally applied, that farmers and others are not hit so hard as they were for instance at the time that the reciprocity treaty of 1854 was abrogated by the United States. Those who lived through that time of readjustment will remember how almost helpless this country was in the face of the lost market for our produce and stock, and how until Sir John A. Macdonald and his conferees introduced the National Policy and established markets at home and abroad, and the business of the country was readjusted to the new conditions, did we begin to get on our feet again. Looking back to those times when the National Policy was an issue, one is led to wonder why a large section of our population opposed this policy, particularly as it was the purpose of the leaders of this party to introduce some such policy themselves, but through the haggling of Sir Richard Cartwright, and others who were opposed to it, the matter was delayed, and Sir Charles Tupper, who was the real author of the National Policy, slipped in and anticipated them, and the issue was fought out in all the cities and towns, sidelines and concessions, in the country. Such is good old partyism. I use the word "good" advisedly, for it is through these party strifes and discussions that people are aroused and educated. It would be an evil day for Canada if it gave up its system of government by party. We are living a little taste now of what we might expect if such were the case. We are not having government by party now, but by sectionism, and not a little by individualism. There are quite a percentage of the present members of parliament who do not give a hoot for policy if they only get what they want for their particular section and their personal interests is considered. This may seem a hard thing to say, but it is being said on all sides, so what is the use in pussyfooting. The only question we come to is that if we cannot be Tories, be it Grits, and whether we wave the old flag or eulogize Uncle Sam we will get something out of the Old Cow Last Will be for the good of the country. There are quite a number of people whose sphere of thought does not include either theology or political policy, and leaders, both ecclesiastical and political, have at times, to get down within the range of such peoples' thoughts, though the methods employed by some would appear ridiculous.

A detailed report of the last meeting of the local W. M. S. did not reach us in time for an earlier issue, now it is necessary for us to state that leads to say that the society made no mistake in appointing its delegates to the conventions for the year. Mrs. John Wartman gave a report of the conventions done and addresses given at the convention, which was a very ordinary retail character, but informing and inspiring and will be helpful both to future work. Mrs. Nickle also brought much that was helpful from the Belleville meeting.

A couple of weeks ago information came to us about a bear scare, and now it is stone throwers. A respectable old lady informs us that it was only here a short time that one of these missiles missed hitting her. This was one of many that were sent in the direction of her house by thoughtless and mischievous boys. It is a bad practice to throw stones, and parents should insist that their boys do not engage in it, as the results may be serious.

The Newburgh Orange Lodge will meet on the first Monday this month instead of the second Monday. A full attendance is requested, as arrangements for a merry social on the 18th will be completed.

NOTICE

The following notice has been received from the Ontario Department of Education :

"The Minister of Education has decided to retain for another year the present mode of apportioning the Legislative Grant to Schools, having in view of the fact that the Instructions to Inspectors for the current year contained a printed notice of the intention of the Department to alter the bases of apportionment, the Minister would be pleased if you will be good enough to give publicity to the fact that the change will not affect the method of distribution for the year 1924-25.

F. W. MERCHANT,
Acting Deputy Minister.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.

Under the auspices of the U. E. Loyalist Chapter of the Daughters of the Empire, a memorial service was held in front of the Monument on the County property on Sunday, in memory of the boys from Lennox and Addington, who gave their lives in the Great War. The grounds were decorated with flags and bunting, the weather was cool and refreshing, and the large crowd who gathered to do honor to the dead, showed by their silence and reverence their gratitude to those who had passed away in a great cause.

W. R. Herrington was the chairman of the gathering, and after the Boy Scouts and the local Company of Returned Men had taken up their places in front of the cenotaph, he gave an outline of the programme, and in a brief but gracious address, pointed out the abhorrence which the human soul feels towards the thought of a perpetual oblivion and pled that in the days to come those who had given their lives in the war should not be forgotten. He also made a suggestion which seemed to appeal to the audience, and that was, that it ought to become a settled custom that anyone passing the monument in the town should in honor to the memory and the sacrifices of those who had gone, raise their hats.

Father O'Connor was then introduced, and, in opening, said that the idea of having the memorial on a Sunday, and on the one nearest to Dominion Day, he thought to be most appropriate. It was a laudable desire on the part of the women that to plan to perpetuate the memory of those who had gone. And while it was not the place to judge as to the future of the dead this at least no one would deny, that their death had resulted in saving civilization for future generations. And with all the privileges we enjoy in this great country no one has more cause for gratitude than we.

The other Clergy of the town who had been given a place on the programme, asked that the time which they might take be given to Major Campbell, a returned Chaplain, who was visiting in the town.

The chief point in Major Campbell's address was that the men who died over seas died that the world might be a better world. Since 1918 a new world had come into being, and if we were to be true to the memory of those who had gone, the best way to do it would be to live for the things that they died for, and seek by all means in our power to end war. He ended with an earnest plea for the support of all classes for the league of nations, which now embraced sixty-four nations, but from which were as yet excluded four powerful peoples.

The singing of the local branch of the Salvation Army, the next speaker, was most delightful. Golding and Gaskell and Hollingworth also were heard to advantage. The first game, between Adolphustown and Napanee, was a battle royal, and the decision was in doubt until the last inning was out. Napanee winning by a score of 6-5. The second game, between Newburgh and Napanee, was rather one-sided, the latter winning by a score of 14-4. Newburgh got off to a bad start in the second innings, when Tamworth scored four runs, due principally to poor fielding and overthrows. A chance of pitchers did not help matters any, and the game ended as above stated.

WEDDING BELLS

Hodgston—Garrison.

Mr. Wilson Hodgston, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hodgston, and Miss Excelen Garrison were united in marriage on Wednesday, June 25th, 1924, at the residence of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garrison, Rev. J. H. H. Coleman officiating. The bride was given in her father's home from which was attended by Mr. Lorne Hodgston, and Miss Maud Garrison acted as bridesmaid. Mrs. Moore played the wedding march. The bride was very charming in a costume of white crepe with veil of satin and orange blossoms, carrying white carnations, and wearing pearls, the gift of the groom. The bridesmaid also looked charming in a costume of honeydew brocade crepe, carrying roses. After the ceremony all partook of a daintily prepared luncheon, the bride and groom leaving shortly after, amid showers of confetti. The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hodgston, Miss Cora Garrison, Gananoque; Miss Ada and Ward Hodgston, Mrs. Maybood Gilliland, San Francisco, California, Miss Mary Boyd, Timmins; Miss Kathleen Smith, Havelock; Miss Laura Anderson, Campbellford.

When Sir Edward Elgar, the noted composer, was quite a small boy, he made a curious prophecy about himself. On making his first appearance at school, the master asked him his name.

"Edward Elgar," he replied.

The master thought that the boy spoke too brusquely.

"Add the word, 'sir!'" he commanded.

"Sir Edward Elgar!" said the future knight, gravely.

The street orator thought he would like a little more enthusiasm at his meetings, and arranged with a friend that he should stand below his platform and shout "Hear, hear!" whenever a pea was dropped on his head. At the next meeting the scheme worked all right until the speaker became excited, and suddenly his man began to shout "Hear! hear!" unceasingly.

Then a hoarse voice was heard to exclaim:

"Shut up, you fool—the bloomin' bag's bust!"

Bavaria Wants a Union

With Remnants of Austria

With Rupprecht as King

Will a king once more rule Bavaria? Monarchists who would see the southland free from Prussia have been hailing Prince Rupprecht as king and calling for the union of Bavaria with all that remains of Austria. Though the allies would almost certainly refuse to permit such an amalgamation it would be a most suitable move for the two countries concerned. For Austria's western borders march with those of Bavaria, and both peoples are Teutons, speaking a common language and having a common religion in that two-thirds of Bavaria is Roman Catholic and practically all of Austria. Once part of the then Austro-Hungarian empire, 254,000 square miles in area, Austria has for her part participation in the Great War been cut down to a scant 31,000 square miles, a territory comparable in size with a few of Ontario's bigger counties lumped together. Today Austria's six million people inhabit a land lacking coal or iron. Their once glorious capital, Vienna, cannot be supported by so small a country. Union with Bavaria and her mines of coal and iron ore would be a boon to Austria and compensate in some small way for the loss of Hungary, Juzo-Slavia, Czecho-Slovakia and the Tyrol.

Prince Rupprecht, son of the late King of Bavaria and whom the monarchists would set on the throne is a man of 54. The Canadians faced his troops at various times along the western front, though on April 9th, 1917, when unpleasant news from Vimy Ridge was flashed to Hun headquarters, the big Bavarian would seem to have been in charge of the German armies further north, toward the Belgian coast.

Early in the conflict when the "blonde beast" was having it all his own way Rupprecht commanded the entire Bavarian forces and triumphed in Lorraine. His first wife, a Belgian princess, died in 1906, so that Rupprecht was a widower when Kaiser William blew the trumpet of Armageddon and summoned his vassal kinglets to his side.

Oddly enough the young Princess Charlotte, later Duchess of the tiny state of Luxemburg, through which the German masses had poured without permission on their way to the violation of Belgium, liked the prince well enough to accept his offer of a twin throne. That was in 1918, when prospects still looked bright for Germany. But at the close of the war the twain broke off their engagement, whether because the prince had lost his job or because the young Duchess tired of him, or because the allied youmet made them call it off, is not quite clear.

In November, 1918, just when the smoke of battle was clearing away and the air of Europe seemed strangely still after more than four years of artillery thunder, Rupprecht renounced his claim to the throne which his father had just abdicated. Later, in 1919, the prince dared to stand trial if a court were instituted for such purposes. Indeed in 1921 a letter signed by Rupprecht got wide circulation in the press — a letter claimed to have been written in 1917 and which roundly denounced Germany's foreign and military policy during the Great War and expressed the opinion that the Hohenzollern dynasty might not survive the war.

During the war there was a wild rumor that were Germany victorious Rupprecht might claim the crown of Britain. Indeed he is regarded by many Jacobites as the "legitimate" king. For his part the south German prince is, through his mother, the late Archduchess of Austria-Este, a descendant of the royal Stuarts. Every year on the anniversary of the execution at Whitehall nearly 200 years ago, a collection of queer cranks make a pilgrimage to the pedestal where Charles I, the "martyred king," sits his bronze horse just off Trafalgar Square. They hang wreaths on the statue of the man whom Cromwell had beheaded, and if you investigate you will see various mauve and white ribbons on the little cards attached to the floral offerings. They are signs of reverent reference to the decapitated Charles and his descendants, the Pretender, and that hero of romance Prince Charlie the Young Chevalier. Not that, of all times, would any Jacobite sympathize with a German king. Hope lord. And so far as is known, Rupprecht, who may be called the very central figure in a disturbed Germany, has no ambition to make the Bavarian house of Wittelsbach succeed the British house of Windsor. —Toronto Telegram.

Spoken With Feeling.

"There are all sorts of synonyms for money in this country," said the talkative person. "We call it 'tin,' 'necessary,' 'kale,' 'dough,' and a dozen other names I don't recall just now."

A gaberdine-looking man seated in one corner opened his mouth as if to say something and then closed it without uttering a word.

"What is your favorite synonym for money?" asked the talkative person.

"The matrimonial," the solemn man replied, and then fell once more into deep thought.

No Use For It.

"Have you a five dollar bill that you don't know what to do with?"

"Yes, here is one."

"Oh, thank you. But I say, this is counterfeit."

"Well, you asked me for one I didn't know what to do with."

"That woman pretended to be glad to see me. What an actress she is!"

"But you were a match for her?"

"Yes. I pretended to be just as glad to see her."—Exchange.

While Sunlight Works

YOU have more leisure hours on wash day if you use Sunlight Soap. Away downstairs in the wash tub this wonderful soap will do the labour. You rub the things with Sunlight—you put them to soak—and then its penetrating, cleansing ingredients search through and through the fibres, loosening even the hardest dirt or the oldest grease stains completely. No wash board rubbing, no boiling, no hard work. Then, with rinsing, the dirt runs away and your clothes are ready for the line, purified and snowy clean.

Wash day should not take your labour—only Sunlight's gentle strength.

LOVELY GARDENS OF ROME.

Garden of Augustus Has Wealth of Exquisite Blooms.

Augustus, first of the Roman emperors, gained his throne just twenty-seven years before Christ was born. He had conquered Mark Anthony at Actium and Cleopatra had died with asps in her maidens. Under his reign, the empire settled into greatness. In A.D. 14 he died, not knowing that in a cottage at home his wife Livia, near the place where Caligula is said to have been murdered. And there is his own palace, now mainly ruined, and the altar of peace, that he set up in the Campus Martius.

The way to it lies through the Palatine to where the Palatine rises in a great hillocked oil grass and ruin. On either side of the steps are long walks, dank with age, and the passages creeping away into darkness are massive sackage. At the top are the gardens of Augustus Caesar.

Some garden, resting so softly on ancient walls versus the triumph of love and earning over temporal power, superficial is dead, with all that he stood for, but above the ruins of his splendid palace expresses point in Nature's garden toward the sky and one should love of petals when the June wind bustles through.

Summer came quickly in Rome, and by April the Gardens of Augustus is full of the treasures that England spends May and June in collecting. Rose-arbs out, and along the borders are splendid lavender borders are replaced with mauve, and grey, lavender trees are lent to the ground with their burden of snow. Against a wall shines a long line of purple irises, crossed and aloof. They might be the patriots of the Roman soldiers who stood on guard at the palace of Augustus. Eleven hundred years ago. Over them, for incense, glows the scent of rose carnations. Scarlet trees point to the sky, studded with golden fruit, and cedars fling indigo shadows, like courtiers' cloaks, across the winding paths. A row of flowering trees, exquisitely slender and lovely, shows wan pink blossoms and blue flowers spot.

Forewarning for Rain.

There are many ways of foretelling rain. If the cow lie down, all facing the same way, you can bet the weather at night; if the chairs and tables, or the stairs, creak; if the ducks quack loudly; if the swallow flies low; if the cat washes more times behind her ears; if the sun rise to reach the above the stream; if toads are seen in the evening; if there are many glowworms about; if frogs croak brown instead of green; if the black-bird shrilly; if the dog, forsakes his bones to roll across himself; if the rocks, in their hush, give downwards moisture; — each and all of these clues fail may be expected shortly.

Hooks and gate foretell gales as well as rain. If the cocks crow late in the morning, there is going to be a wet; bats crash about when a storm is coming.

Spaniels are said to be abnormally sleepy when rain is expected shortly.

"What does this mile mean?" a Sussex, England, man was asked one morning. "Why, we'se 'Sowr' days, far rain; far thaw, near rain."

If the rat "goes to bed in the hole" the next day will be fine. If he goes to bed pale it will be wet. Soot falls down the chimney and spiders stay in their cobwebs when rain is expected.

School Howlers.

The following humorous mistakes are said to have been made in examination papers by school children. Can you point out the errors?

Horse-power is the distance one horse can carry one pound of water in one hour.

An acute is a triangle with two sides.

A ruminating animal is one that chews its cud.

Tennyson wrote "In Memoriam."

A vacuum is a large, empty space where the pope lives.

Alphabetical initials are used when we don't know what we are talking about.

Jerusalem was surrounded by walls so as to keep in the milk and honey.

Lengthy Tunnels.

Although the Otira Tunnel in New Zealand, opened recently, is officially stated to be the longest in the British Empire, it is easily beaten in this respect by several other tunnels.

The Simplon, for instance, through the Alps, measures 12¾ miles in length, or exactly 1,000 miles less a mile, and is the longest in the world. Next comes the St. Gothard, 9½ miles; the Mont Cenis, eight miles; and the Arlberg, 6½ miles. Then longest of the British tunnels is Severn Tunnel, 4 1-3 miles, which brings Cardiff and South Wales into close communication with Bristol and the south of England.

Not Tag Fast.

The lecturer was letting himself go. "I venture to assert," he declared with warmth, "that there is not a man in this audience who has ever done anything to prevent the destruction of our forests"

Stung to the quick, the mild-looking man in the back row bounded to his feet.

"I've—I've shot woodpeckers!" he protested, breathily.

INSURED FOR $50,000.

Mlle. Lenglen Protects Her Limbs With Large Policy.

Mlle. Lenglen takes the greatest precautions to guard from possible damage the hand with which she makes her wonderful drives and volleys. She even shakes hands with her left hand in order that her right may escape the slightest harm.

As she is an amateur she would suffer no financial loss if, by some injury, she were prevented from playing tennis again, whereas she might follow the example of other notable people and take out a heavy insurance on the limb which has brought her to the topmost pinnacle of lawn-tennis fame.

Famous dancers and instrumentalists are almost invariably protected by some such policy, since the slightest injury to ankle or finger might cause the cancellation of a contract and the consequent loss of thousands of pounds.

For many years Paderewski paid $4,000 a year in premiums against injury to his hands which were insured for $50,000. A kind apropos policies for his fingers, thumbs, eyes, and toes, and on one occasion, when a damaged finger-nail prevented him from appearing at a concert, he was paid $5,000 compensation.

Kubelik, the great violinist, had his "bow" hand insured for $10,000 against injury, and for $5,000 against permanent disablement.

Pavlova is said to have protected her beautiful limbs by a most comprehensive insurance policy. The disablement of a single one of her dainty feet might cost the underwriters no less than $250,000 in the her countrywoman, Mlle. Napierkowska, insured her feet against accident to the extent of $62,500.

It might appear to be impossible to insure such an intangible thing as a voice, but Mme. Patti, who was one of the pioneers of this form of protection, was invariably insured for $5,000 a performance. Since then her example has been followed by many famous singers.

When Mr Tom Burby, the celebrated tenor, was booked for a tour of 100 concerts throughout Canada and America, his impresario safeguarded himself by insuring the life of the singer for £500,000.

It is not only those who amuse and entertain the public who insure themselves against the loss of their powers. The late Fred Hedley was the first man on record to insure his eyesight, and would have received £25,000 if he had gone blind; while it is stated that the hands of Sir Herbert Barker, the famous manipulative surgeon, are insured for a large sum against disablement.

When, however, a person insures himself

AROUND WORLD ON "LIKE."

Experiences of Those Who Have Accomplished It.

With the exception of the North and South Poles, practically every part of the globe has been travelled by the cyclist. Mountains and deserts have proved no bar to the bicycle. Wherever the cyclist wants to go, he can.

The first man to go round the world on a cycle did it nearly forty years ago—and his machine was a big "Ordinary" (or "penny-farthing," as they were called). He met all sorts of difficulties on his way, but he surmounted them all, even managing to escape with his life from man-eating animals and tribes of natives.

Several people have followed him since (between nineteen and twenty thousand miles is the usual cyclist's route, by the way—and three years is about the time it takes).

Odd stories have some of these world-cyclists to tell of their trips. One man 6d forty miles through the snow-sheds" — wooden tunnels—which some of the North American railways put up to protect their lines from an avalanche of snow. As the track is single, only a few inches spare room was left, and into these inches the cyclist had to tuck himself and his machine every time a train passed. Forty miles of this, all in the dark, must have been a little nerve-racking.

Another man had his machine solemnly cursed by the village priest as an invention of the devil, after which the faithful villagers broke it up—and spent some hours looking for the rider. This man, by the way, did not complete his world trip. Instead, he walked back to civilization.

Still another world-cyclist experienced great trouble with his money.

It happened in China, where they had a coinage which worked out about a thousand to a dime, and which the natives usually threaded on string and carried round the neck. To take enough for a month or two's trip, therefore, meant carrying a considerable weight, and the cyclist only got over the difficulty by "scrapping" the rest of his luggage.

Even then he had to take the machine to pieces and literally stuff its tubes with silver, to be changed later as he went along. When he reached civilization again he had spent all his money, and couldn't get a meal until someone identified him.

Not For Sale.

Squire Greenwood could not be absolutely certain, but he believed that Dan Johnson and his family benefited more by his game than they should have done. But the keepers were no match for Dan, and the squire at last hit upon a brilliant idea. He would buy Dan's dog.

"That's a sharp-looking dog you have, Dan," he remarked one morning. "I've taken a fancy to him. I suppose a fiver would buy him?"

"No, sir," said Dan, respectfully.

"Ten pounds, then?"

"No, sir."

"Well" — desperately — "twenty! No? Good gracious, man, you on the verge of starvation, and you refuse twenty pounds for a lurcher! Look here, you know you can't afford to keep a dog!"

"True, sir."

"Then why do you?"

"I don't, sir! 'E keeps me!"

And, with a cheerful smile, Dan passed on.

A Musical Comedy.

The tall, long-haired youth nervously entered the publisher's office, carrying under his arm a small roll of paper.

"Good afternoon, sir!" said the publisher. "Take a seat, and tell me what I can do for you."

The youth looked nervous.

"Well—er—I have a song here," he began, "that I have composed, and I was wondering if you would publish it. Er—shall I sing it?"

"Oh, yes, let's hear it!" said the publisher; and the youth stood up and burst forth with his effusion.

When the song was finished the publisher sat very still and said nothing.

"Well," the young man asked impatiently, "what do I get for it?"

"Oh," replied the publisher, with an air of resignation, "I'm a publisher, not a magistrate!"

Extinguishers.

Fire extinguishers work on the principle that oxygen is necessary before anything can burn, and that in some cases, such as carbon dioxide, no fire can continue to burn. There are several types of extinguishers, but the usual type consists of a cylinder filled with bicarbonate of soda dissolved in water. Inside this is a small bottle of sulphuric acid. When needed, the two are made to meet, and once the acid meets the soda it forms a gas, carbon dioxide. The pressure of this forces the cork out of the cylinder, and a spray of water is played upon the fire. It is not the water that puts it out, but the gas carried with it, which "blankets" the flame, so cutting off the oxygen and making it impossible for it to go on burning.

Degenerated.

Fifty years ago meals were far more heavy than they are now—one has only to read Dickens to realize this. Our grandfather would have felt starved on the diet that most of us find sufficient.

But if we go back a few centuries we find appetites that seem amazing. Louis XIV. of France, who had the reputation of being a very moderate trencherman, used to breakfast off four entlets of whole chicken, four or five eggs, and some ham. The records of a dinner given by Henry VIII. show that each guest consumed nearly seven pounds of food. The fish course alone included eels, salmon, pike, barbed (now considered rather unfit for food), mulet, and sturgeon.

ROYALTY VISIT CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS' EXHIBIT

Their Majesties the King and Queen of England and the King and Queen of Italy were visitors to the building of the Canadian National Railways at the British Empire Exhibition. The two Queens showed great interest in the Rocking Scenic Model of Jasper National Park and the Triangle Tour and the two Kings gave a keen inspection to the transportation equipment exhibit. The Italian monarch showed much surprise when told of the extent of the National System, and both monarchs congratulated the Railway officers upon the appearance and attractiveness of the exhibit. The two Queens asked that models of the famous "6000" type of passenger engines, and models in gold and silver were sent to them. The photo shows their Majesties leaving the Canadian National Railways Building. In the foreground, from left to right, are:—King George, King Victor of Italy and the Hon. Peter Larkin, High Commissioner for Canada. In the background are:—Queen Mary (in white), Queen Elena of Italy, William Phillips, European Manager of the Canadian National Railways, Supt. MacBrien, Scotland Yard, and the Duke of Devonshire. In the rear, between Queen Elena of Italy and Mr. Phillips, is seen the Prince of Piedmont.

THELMA M. BUELL.

The other day I was chatting with Mr. Solly Joel, the well-known racehorse owner, on record speech, which the Derby had been run, when, with a twinkle in his eye, he asked me if I knew the record instance of elocution during the running of that famous race.

I thought for a moment, and then I had to confess that I could recall anything outstanding in that direction.

"Well," said Mr. Joel, "it was the horse that came in so late that everybody thought it was the winner of the next race!"

LOCKS THAT BAFFLE BURGLARS.

Battle Between Safe Manufacturers and Scientific Crackmen.

Those who have valuables deposited for safe-keeping with their bankers do not doubt that they are perfectly secure. They do not realize that the continuance of this security involves a never-ending battle of minds between strong-room and safe manufacturers and scientific crackmen.

Many modern burglars acquired experience of different explosives during the war that makes short work of them enormously. Before a new method of security has been long in use, some clever criminal will find a way to defeat it, and it is thereby rendered obsolete.

The time has passed since safe-makers produced anything they considered absolutely burglar-proof. Their aim nowadays is to produce a safe or strong-room calculated to hold out against attack for forty hours.

It is absolutely impossible to force an entrance into the safe in that time, plus a good margin for safety, the makers' object is generally attained.

The sorecesor to the key lock is the combination keyless lock, which possesses none of its disadvantages. For combination can be changed as often as desired, and the lock set so that two or more people, each with his own secret combination, are necessary to operate it.

The hinge-side door has a slab of manganese steel, at least two inches thick, as a first line of defence. This offers considerable opposition to liquid explosives and the oxy-hydrogen blowpipe, the deadly weapons of the up-to-date burglar. Will have to defy successive layers of force-resisting materials, which are calculated to blunt the strongest tools and delay the intruder, if not actually defeat him.

The progress of metallurgical science has been most rapid, and as each new method of attack is revealed it is promptly counteracted and render of useless.

Those of the public who put their trust in locks, bolts, and bars can rest assured that everything is done by safe-makers to justify their confidence.

The Printer's Devil.

A printer's devil was the name formerly given to the boy who took the printed sheets from the tympan of the press. They got themselves so bedaubed with black that the workmen jokingly called them devils.

Printing used to be called the Black Art, and the boys who assisted the pressmen were called imps.

According to a legend, Aldus Manutius, a printer of Venice, had a little page boy, who was left behind by a merchant vessel, to assist him in his business.

Upon get aboft that Manutius had a black imp to assist him, and to dispel the rumor he showed the boy as he usually appeared crowd, and said: "Be it known in Venice that I, Aldus Manutius, printer to the Holy Church and the doges, have this day made a public exposure of 'the printer's devil.' All who think he is not flesh and blood may come and pinch him."

The people were satisfied, and no longer molested the negro lad.

Doctor Loses Fat Fee.

A Paris surgeon is telling a good story on the same lines. He was asked to operate on an American woman for appendicitis, and when the cure was completed he asked the patient to show her gratitude in some way that was not too commonplace, embroidered a design and called in the fee of a surgeon.

Unfortunately the surgeon had just had a run of patients who had paid for his services by presents of little fabrics value, as he could not help saying, "No, really, madam, take away such rubbish; a 1,000-franc note would be much more acceptable."

"All right," said the American woman, and opening the cigar case she drew a 1,000-franc bill from it, laid it on the table, and said, with her loud voice, "There were five others like it in the case."

Oh, Quite!

Miss Fluff Flighty was making a great fuss. She was playing host in that successful revue, "Toodle-oo!" and while she was on the stage during the second scene someone had entered her dressing-room and stolen her diamond bracelet. All that was what she told the manager.

At last the later gentleman managed to calm down by promising her that

"Where did you keep this piece of jewellery?" he asked, when her loud bursts of hysterical weeping had somewhat subsided.

"In the box with the rest of my jewellery?" was the reply.

"What's it worth?" asked the manager rather coldly, as he had seen some of her other jewellery.

"Oh," was the confidential reply, "at least a column and a half!"

Shilling.

The word shilling really means a division of money into small parts, and is derived from a word meaning "to divide." Thus, in the first place, it was not a coin, but an indication of money having been made up in small form.

Sterling, as applied to money, is derived from the Hanseatic League, which had as important house in England, their land was "East of the East of England," Englishmen called them "Easterlings," and the gold they paid in the course of trade became known as "Easterling money," subsequently the expression became sterling.

Eau de Cologne.

This famous scent has been in use for two centuries. The area "4711" firm in Cologne which manufactured it has just closed down; but the supply available is practically unlimited still. Though Cologne has the credit of the manufacture, it was indebted for the secret recipe to an Italian immigrant, Farina.

WONDERFUL FLYING FEATS.

Speed and Endurance of Pigeons Are Remarkable.

The pigeon racing season is in full swing. Thousands of birds have been released on the continent to fly home to England.

Pigeon racing used to be confined to Belgium, but during the last few years its fame has increased prodigiously in the British Isles, though it is still essentially a North of England sport.

The pace and distance these birds can accomplish are remarkable. Three years ago the race which was held between Nantes and Lancashire showed that the winning bird could cover a distance of 477 miles at a rate of 1,600 yards a minute. The winner of the Marseilles race flew 542 miles at the rate of 1,467 yards a minute.

The courage of these birds has been proved over and over again. Perhaps the most illuminating example was given on the occasion of the Yorkshire Federation's race from Arras.

Two thousand birds were liberated at six o'clock on a July morning to fly 300 miles or more home. In mid-Channel they were enveloped in a fearful storm; in the South of England a worse storm was encountered, while in the Midlands the weather was no better. Yet at 2.30 p.m. the birds were arriving home.

But their journey left its mark on them. Their breast feathers were gone as a result of the head wind, while some of them were so exhausted that, having alighted in the yard, they were unable to fly up to it. The winner actually managed to fly at a pace of 900 yards a minute.

Naturally, only "old stagers" are allowed to take part in these long-distance races. Nevertheless, many of the pigeons that can be seen at St. Paul's and other famous places are recruited from the ranks of racing homers who have from time to time failed to return.

Indeed, often as many as 20,000, and sometimes 100,000, are lost every year, which means how financial loss to the owners, in view of the fact that homing pigeons are worth from £5 to £50 each.

Bishop on Sconces.

The Bishop of Salisbury, England, after he had consecrated a new churchyard, said it was the hungering to be sure that those who had passed away still lived which encouraged people in these days to look more and more deeply into the mysterious and dangerous, psychological practice called spiritualism, and led people to attend seances.

He, for one, was prepared to encourage scientific investigation into the borderland between the seen and the unseen, because he had seen them their reason to find out things. If there was something to find out, let them try to find it.

"But," added Dr. Donaldson, "let us try to find it out merely as a matter of knowledge. If we once let the charge you, do not expect to get in touch with, or to know, loved ones through these channels. Don't look for it. Don't attempt it.

"God has given you enough to comfort you in your sorrow. Follow His teaching. To go beyond that is to go into danger, and to tread forbidden ground which may lead you into trouble.

"I know Christian people who have found great joy in such things, but others who have found great dangers. And have had to choose between the Christian faith and spiritualism. I ask you not to begin to dabble in investigations unless you make them in connection with scientific societies."

Ample Reason.

The old Scottish minister was tireless in looking up members of his flock, and was never happy as when he was visiting them in their houses.

He had noticed that for some time past one hitherto regular churchgoer had got very slack in his attendance at the services, and he resolved to go and find out the reason for this neglect.

"Donald," he said, as soon as he was seated in the parlor, "I havena seen ye at the kirk for some time."

"No, sir," replied the man.

"And I wad like to know the reason."

"Weel, sir," replied Donald, "I hae three good objections. Firstly, Indiana believe in sae muckle simin'; secondly, I dinna believe in hell's fire; and thirdly, an', in conclusion, 'twas there I got me wife."

From the Hampshire Advertiser, 1830. Our handsome and far-famed British street presented last week the spectacle (the very opposite of beautiful)—a man in the stocks. Only fancy! From the gentleman upon whom devolved the disagreeable, but necessary duty, of watching the pair of legs during the four hours he remained exposed to the public gaze, that his crime was one which is much complained of in our neighborhood—the desecration of the Sabbath."

HOW LONG DO DREAMS LAST?

A Question Often Asked, But Never Clearly Answered.

How long do dreams last is a question that has often been asked, but has never been clearly answered. But the following instances seems to bear out the supposition that dreams are of really very short duration.

As a clock began to strike twelve a man fell asleep in a railway carriage.

In his dream he ran away to sea, served on board ship for a long time, was nearly drowned in a shipwreck, and swam to a desert island. No rescue arriving, he began to abandon hope, when at last a ship hove in sight and took him on board. He became a rich trader in a successful mutiny, took charge of the ship, and sailed it home to make an enchanted scan.

At last, wearying of this life, he sailed to England, sold his ship, and entered business on shore.

Then at last someone recognized him as a mutineer. He was arrested and tried, condemned to death and led off to execution. A rope was placed around his neck and he awoke suddenly to hear the last stroke of the clock striking midnight.

Dreams are sometimes helpful, as they bring back to one many things which we cannot consciously remember, says A. J. Ratcliff in "A History of Dreams."

A clerkier in a bank found an error in the books and was extremely worried about it, as he could not account for it.

One night he dreamt that a man came into the bank, withdrew a little money from his account and left. The cashier then noticed that, in the hurry, he forgot to enter the transaction in the books.

Remembering the dream the next morning, he found out that the error had actually occurred in this way, and was thus able to rectify it.

Egypt's First Lighthouse.

To Egypt belongs the credit of the creation of the first lighthouse on record, namely, the tower built on the island of Pharos at the mouth of Alexandria Harbor, by that most enlightened ruler, Ptolemy II., about 650 years before the Christian era. This tower was 100 feet high and stood as a monument to an ancient civilization until the fourteenth century, when it was washed away by the sea. Its light consisted of an open fire of burning wood, and the same practice was followed in the subsequent lighthouses until the beginning of the seventeenth century. Even as late as 1789 the South Foreland lighthouse was provided with reflectors were used for the lighting of the new system, and after the invention of the Argand burner 30 years later, oil became the standard illuminant. Mineral oil was introduced in 1872, and the concentric wicks of the Argand burner in due course gave way to the incandescent mantle, which now furnishes the light in the most important lighthouses of the world.

Temperance In Japan.

The four delegates from Japan to the eleventh World's W.C.T.U. Convention held in Minneapolis in November, 1922, have issued a striking statement on the question of national prohibition. They say that the new law forbidding the sale of alcoholic liquor to young people under twenty has been in force since 1922, and, thus attending the bill which Lady Astor has just succeeded in getting through the British Parliament. These Japanese women say: "The least one can say of the new law is that it has done young people. So we comprehend, do not indulge in it. To raise a fund to reach the millions of children of school age with the scientific truth about alcohol and other narcotics, and place them in all the public libraries and school libraries. We are all mothers, and realizing the need, can one of us has thankfully given $100; since the Philadelphia Convention $45; more was subscribed, so you see $7 the collection has been increased. Will you kindly help us to reach the remaining 9,149,- 000?"

To Steady Warships.

Experiments are being made at Chatham, England, with a gyrotrope to prevent the rolling of battleships. The invention already in use in the merchant service, and has proved to be the greatest difficulties with which naval gunners have to contend.

Movies Build Church.

"In the old church of the author of "The Old Story," Dr. Charles M. Stradon, in Topeka, Kansas, on Easter Sunday last year 120 persons were baptized to fellowship, all of whom said they were first attracted by the motion-picture services held every Sunday evening, and at which the pastor builds his sermon around the story told on the screen."

Evolution of Whales.

Whales probably evolved from land animals. They have vestiges of hind legs; and, although born one at a time; they have tufts of hair about the snout, and they also breathe air as land animals do, instead of like fishes.

PHOSPHO-COD THE QUICKEST AND SUREST WAY TO GET YOUR IRON AND VITAMINES

One tablespoonful of PHOSPHO-COD contains as much iron as half a pound of Raisins or a quart of Spinach or a quarter of a pound of Carrots. It contains the extract of Cod Liver, the concentrated extract — not the greasy oil. This extract — like the extract of beef, it contains the essence, the concentrated, nourishing part. Cod Livers are the richest of all known substances in vitamines, and there is more concentrated energy in one tablespoonful of PHOSPHO-COD than in three cakes of yeast. In each tablespoonful of PHOSPHO-COD over one-third is Solution of Hypophosphites. Hypophosphites contain other of the salts needed by the body, such as lime, sodium, potassium and Manganese. PHOSPHO-COD contains a liberal percentage of Glycerine which has been proven to be one of the most healing substances known to science, acting directly on inflamed or ulcerated membranes of the stomach, bowels, kidneys and bladder as it does on the irritated surface of the skin. Glycerine and Rose Water are an external lotion has been used for generations to heal and soften milady's hands and face, and heal and soothe the irritated skin. Internally its action is the same on the bronchial tubes and throat, making it most valuable for coughs and colds. PHOSPHO-COD contains Wild Cherry Bark, a splendid appetizing tonic made from the bark of the wild cherry tree, and it makes the delicate, picky appetite a thing of the past, and gives you a desire for food that is rich and substantial. PHOSPHO-COD contains Pepsin which is the most valuable to all stomach remedies known to medical science, and helps you to digest the food you eat, reducing it to a liquid state, so that it can be assimilated into your blood to carry nourishment to every part of the body. From your blood your nerve power is born, and through your nerves comes your happiness, ambition and power to do and to accomplish the full joy of living. PHOSPHO-COD contains ten drops of Port Wine in each tablespoonful; this is used to keep it from fermenting and also because Port Wine contains nourishment that is valuable in the process of making blood. These are a few of the reasons why you should get your Iron and Vitamines from PHOSPHO-COD in preference to any other way, because it contains more of them and costs you less for what it gives than any other method, product or preparation you can secure. PERSIAN DIPLOMACY.

Not Much Was Said, but the Prince Understood the Shah.

There were great variety and charm in the society of Kissingen, writes Princess Lazarovich in her account of a holiday on the continent. There were people from the four corners of Europe, American and the orient, each having a distinct personality that brought vivid suggestions of his origin.

Prince Malkoun was the diplomatic representative of Persia for all Europe, being accredited at the same time to London, Petrograd and Berlin. His wife, a beautiful Armenian princess, a Christian, was one of my great friends. It was a splendid sight to see Malkoun roll in one day of how he came to be a Persian diplomatic representative. He was the son of a poor Armenian tailor, who, by his cleverness and tact, had become the favorite of the shah, had been educated in several countries in Europe and had become interested in the Christian religion as the best force of civilization. His principles to Persians in forms that they would understand, making Christianity the fulfillment of old Aryan and Zoroastrian conceptions. Having formed a plan, he returned to Persia and began to talk to his countrymen and put before them the ideas that he believed would raise up the fallen nation. When he considered his principles to him eagerly and followed him about in throngs. Some of them began to proclaim him a prophet and the most worshiped his person. He tried in every way to combat that tendency to which he saw the speedy and complete wreck of his dearest hopes.

One day the shah sent for him and said:

"My cousin, you are much followed about here. You are exerting yourself too much. You need rest. Would you like to go as my ambassador to Europe—and stay there many years?"

Then Prince Malkoun sobbed.

"I knew what he meant. So with my heart falling like a stone I answered, 'Yes, your majesty, I accept.' On that day I started on my journey westward. And all these years I have been virtually a European."

"But what did the shah really mean?" I asked.

Prince Malkoun grinned, showing his white even teeth, and with a gargle made the sign of a knife drawn across his throat.

MEANINGS OF DREAMS.

What Scientific Analysis of Slumber Discloses May Disclose.

Scientific dream interpretation helps us to see ourselves as we really are, gives us intimate glimpses of the subconscious as well as conscious desires, fears and modes of thinking that enter into the making of our character and the shaping of our conduct, according to H. Addington Bruce in the Mothers' Magazine.

The compilers of the gaudy little paper covered dream books once so much in vogue kept richly enough on the theory that dreams are symbolic and they erred by assuming that they are always symbolic of future events and that any particular dream, or part of it, always be interpreted as symbolic of the same kind of future event.

Those who expect modern science to provide them with a dream manual akin to the old-time books, so that every one may himself or herself interpret at a glance, are consequently doomed to disappointment. Accurate dream interpretation almost always means time and effort. But it is well worth the trouble it costs. All who would discover unsuspected weaknesses and defects in themselves, who would gain a maximum of health, happiness and efficiency through right living, will do well to seek to have their dreams analyzed.

And it is not only for the light it throws on one's nature and character that scientific dream interpretation is worth while. There are dreams which rightly interpreted throw light on the state of the dreamer's physical health, sometimes enabling action to be taken that will avert serious disease.

Vanished After Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"Brancton, Ont.—"When I wrote to you for help my action was mostly prompted by curiosity. I wondered if I, too, would benefit as others had done. It was the most profitable action I have ever taken, I hearstily assure you, for I am glad to say that I am relieved of most of my sufferings. I have taken six boxes of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Purifier, and I can honestly say I have never been so well before. I had suffered from pains and other troubles since I was fifteen years old, and during the 'Great War' period I worked on munitions for two years, and, in the heavy lifting which my work called for, I strained myself, causing pelvic inflammation from which I have suffered untold agony, and I often had to give up and go to bed. I had doctored for several years without getting permanent relief, when I started to take your medicine."—Mrs. GOLDWIN MISENER, Brancton, Ont.

A BRIDAL RECEPTION.

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. J. E. Miller, in honor of one of Wilton's highly esteemed young brides, nee Gwenn Redden, who recently became the bride of Mr. Kenneth Babcock, son of Wilton's most popular young men. Among those who were invited to enjoy the hospitality of the hostess were a number of the immediate lady friends of the bride, also mothers of the bride and groom.

From three until five p.m. music, both vocal and instrumental, was enjoyed by all, after which all repaired to the dining room, where a delightful buffet luncheon prepared by the hostess was awaiting them. The beautifully garnished plates laden with chicken, salad and jellies were served. After the tea was poured by the hostess, ice cream and cake completed a modern and elaborate lunch.

Upon re-entering the living room all were taken by surprise, as quite unknown to the bride and several of the guests there suspending from the archway hung in splendour a basket beautifully decorated with pink crepe paper and long flowing pink crepe ribbons, filled with gifts from her many friends. Can one imagine the expression of appreciation on the bride's face as the basket was lowered into her arms.

After expressing gratitude to Mrs. Miller and her many young friends for their beautiful gifts, all departed to their homes, feeling grateful to their hostess for the pleasant afternoon spent in honor of the occasion.

The following are the gifts presented on the 22nd May:—

Miss Gladys Wallace, vase; Mrs. Fromens Mills, mustard dish and toothpick holder; Miss Kathleen Parrott, cambiole yoke; Mrs. J. E. Miller, pin cushion; Miss Charlotte Hamilton, sugar and cream set; Mrs. A. W. STRATAGEMS OF WAR.

Clever Tricks by Which Two Chileas Warships Were Sunk.

Between the years 1879 and 1884 the republics of Peru and Chile were at war, and, although the Peruvians were eventually discomfited, they displayed great adroitness in naval matters. On one occasion they succeeded in sinking two Chilean warships, their clever strategy being thus related by Stephen Coleridge in his memoirs:

"Soon after the Chilean fleet had settled down to the blockade of Callao there appeared in the bay one morning a large barge of fruit that had obviously gone adrift from the shore. The Peruvians put out in boats and steam launches to bring the barge back, and the Chileans, seeing what was happening, also sent out pinnaces and boats to intercept and capture the drifting barge. A fierce fusillade between the hostile boats followed, and several men were killed or wounded. At length the Peruvians drew off and left the barge in the hands of the triumphant Chileans, who towed it off amid the cheers of their shipmates, who had watched the fight with keen interest.

"They brought the barge alongside one of the big men-of-war and quickly sent the cargo of luscious fruit from up the side in baskets. When about half the cargo had been taken on board a terrific explosion shook the bay, and an enormous hole appeared in the side of the great ship which sank instantly with all hands. By an arrangement of springs and balances a huge charge of dynamite in the bottom of the barge was ignited when a certain amount of the weight of the cargo was removed. Although the Peruvians had waged the fight for the possession of the barge with fierce persistence, they had never intended to be successful.

"A few weeks later a large man-of-war was sent up the coast to capture anything worth having at Huacho. On the appearance of the vessel the inhabitants drew their boats far inland and, taking all their valuables, fled into the interior. One boat, a new one, larger than the others, they hauled some little way up the beach and then abandoned.

"After pillaging the place the Chileans looked at the boat, which was entirely empty. The Peruvians had removed oars, sails, mast and even the rowlocks. The Chileans looked it over to be sure that there was no dynamite in it and then towed it over to their vessel. The captain had the davits run out and ropes put round the seats at the bow and the stern. Then he ordered his men to haul away.

"It was the last order he ever gave, for the moments the ropes tightened the ship was blown to pieces and disappeared in seventy fathoms of water. A false bottom had concealed a tremendous charge of dynamite that was arranged to ignite when any upward force was applied to any of the seats. The inhabitants of the town, who had watched their stratagem destroy a great man-of-war without the smallest risk to themselves, returned hilariously to their houses with songs and dances."

Sun Drunkenness.

To become sun drunk is a condition into which any one may fall in the tropics. Exposure to the sun's rays will reduce a man to a condition almost exactly resembling drunkenness. He staggers about and is usually compelled to lie down and "sleep it off." Sun drunkenness is sometimes accompanied by nausea. Another curious fact in connection with life in the tropics, where the sun rises at the same time all the year round, is that if you do not get up before sunrise you do not feel well all day. You feel heavy, out of sorts and sickish.

Complicated, but Easy.

"How do you get your husband to do what he doesn't want to do when you want him to do it?"

"That's easy. I make a big fuss over something he has already done which I didn't want him to do or I remind him of something which I have done which he wanted me to do and I didn't want to do and soon he is doing what I want him to do just to distract he had wanted to do it all along."

THE HOLLYHOCK.

A Flower That is Intertwined With Our Colonial History.

The hollyhock gets its name from two words that indicate its origin in the Holy Land and its membership in the mallow family. But apparently it was long in Europe before it flung its cheerful banners to the air in Palestine.

Wherever its first home was, it has become thoroughly acclimated in New England. We think of it as a characteristic New England flower. It permeates our colonial history almost back to the days of Governor Bradford and Roger Williams. It is forever peering out of the pages of New England fiction and poetry. There is no flower that more completely embodies the spirit of our eighteenth century repose.

Some of the old colonial blossoms are shy and modest, but the hollyhock has the courage of its convictions. It knows its beauty, as it should, and has no mind to hide it under a bushel or beneath a hedgerow. It is the province of loveliness to display itself, not unwillingly, but with a due sense of its worth. And the hollyhock, the stateliest of our "old fashioned" flowers, aspires unabashed.

In two books of "popular quotations" there is no reference to the hollyhock, though the holly has its fair share of space. But it can afford to be thus neglected.

FAMILIAR PHRASES.

A Few of the Many Gems We Get From Alexander Pope.

With the exception of Shakespeare, Pope is the author of more familiar phrases than any other writer of modern times. Here are a few of his gems:

"Shoot folly as she flies." "Hope springs eternal in the human breast." "Man never is but always to be blessed." "Whatever is is right." "The proper study of mankind is man." "Grows with his growth and strength grows with his strength." "Order is heaven's first law." "Worth makes the man and want of it the fellow." "Honor and shame from no condition rise; act well your part—there all the honor lies." "An honest man's the noblest work of God." "Thou wert my guide, philosopher and friend." "Woman's at best a contradiction still." "Just as the twig is bent the tree's inclined." "Who shall decide when doctors disagree?" "A little learning is a dangerous thing." "To err is human, to forgive divine." "Beauty draws us with a single hair." "Fools rush in where angels fear to tread." "Damn with faint praise." "The many headed monster."

The Blow on the Jaw.

A man struck with any degree of force upon the mental area of the jaw, although he may be in perfect physical condition, instantly collapses and falls to the ground, says a medical journal. The attitude assumed in unconsciousness is the same as in a father's dead to the ground, says a medical journal. The attitude assumed in unconsciousness is the same as in a father's death, whether it be instaneous or delayed some minutes, is most characteristic. He squirms about, raises his head and rolls his eyes in an attempt to locate himself. He tries to get on his side and elbow; he endeavors to rise upon his hands and knees. If he reaches his feet he staggers like a drunken man. The blow is practically never fatal, the most exactly resembling death is overexcited; the pulse and respiration are normal; the pupils are normal; he is not bendable, no rigidity, no cold extremities, no pallor—none of the ordinary signs of shock or concussion.

How to Be Happy.

There are two ways of being happy. We may either diminish our wants or augment our means. Either will do. The result is the same, and it is for each man to decide for himself and do that which happens to be the easier. If you are idle or sick or poor, however much it may be to diminish your wants, it will be harder to augment your means. If you are active and prosperous or young or rich, perhaps it may be easier for, you to augment your means than to diminish your wants. But if you are both rich and poor, both at the same time, young or old, rich or poor, sick or well, and if you are very wise you will do both in such a way as to augment the general happiness of society.—Benjamin Franklin.

A Celebrated Suicide.

Haydon, the celebrated historical painter and writer, at a time in his life when he was overcome by debt, disappointment and ingratitude, laid down the brush with which he was at work upon his last great effort, "Alfred and the Trial by Jury," wrote with a steady hand, "Stretch me no longer upon the rough cord," and then was a pistol shot put an end to his unhappy existence.

Dressing the Pillow.

A little child, not three years old, was sleepy, and his mother carried him to his crib; but the pillows had been removed by the maid for the laundry. And the child, looking up beseechingly into his mother's face, said pleadingly, "Please put a shirt on my pillow."

Remembered Too Well.

Howard—Did your aunt remember you in her will? Henry—She sure did. Directed her executors to collect all the loans she had made me.—Puck.

Holding His Own.

"Stinger, isn't he?"

"You've said it. Why, he holds fast to everything he gets his clutches on and even holds down his dinner."

Public opinion, though often formed upon a wrong basis, yet generally has a strong underlying sense of justice.—Abraham Lincoln.

LETTER OF CONDOLENCE

Deseronto, Ont.,
June 23rd, 1924.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moon,
Deseronto, Ont.

Dear Friends,—At a regular meeting of Albert L. O. L., the Secretary was requested by members of the above named Lodge, to tender a letter of sincere sympathy to Mr. and Mrs. Moon and family, in the loss of their dear son, Wilbert J. Moon, and our deeply esteemed brother.

We fully realize that no words of ours can be of any avail to remove the bitter trial that you have been called upon to pass through, but our prayer is that the very blessed Master Himself may be your strength and stay and a very blessed help in this your time of sorrow. We trust that it will be some consolation to you to know also that the Members of Albert L. O. L. No. 1375, sympathize with you and your family in this your sad bereavement. Our prayer is that the Great Grand Master Himself may place to the lips of each of you the alleviating cup of his own consolation; and speak the peace that He alone can speak to your grief-stricken souls.

Signed on behalf of the Lodge.
GEORGE C. JOYCE,
27a Secretary.

Dr. H. A. Powell to Speak.
Dr. H. A. Powell, K.C., has accepted the invitation of the New Brunswick Historical Society to speak as the representative of that body at Fort Cumberland, N.S., July 16th. The occasion will be the unveiling of the tablet, which has been erected by the Historic Sites Commission, to preserve the record of the historic sites of Fort Cumberland, Fort Menkton and Fort Lawrence. The late Pte. W. E. Powell was a nephew of Dr. Powell.

If one be troubled with corns, he will find in Holloway's Corn Remover an application that will entirely relieve suffering.

Jack—Lend me $10, old man. I promise you on the word of a gentleman to pay it back to-morrow.
Sprat — Bring the gentleman around and let me see him.

CHAUTAUQUA BEGINS JULY 31st.

To the Editor:

The community spirit in Napanee has grown noticeably and Chautauqua in my opinion has exerted a wonderful influence in this direction. When our citizens can forget the picayune things of this life and get the spirit of brotherhood which is breathed from the Chautauqua associations they must necessarily grow in spirit as well as in knowledge and new and higher ideals take shape. Minds are either was empty or filled with a lower conception of life and where there was danger of contraction of the spirit Chautauqua opened the way for larger development giving a new outlook and view point not only on material things, but on spiritual things imparting to the aesthetic tastes the flavor of a more highly cultured atmosphere. These things are all worth while and it would be an irreparable evile loss were Chautauqua to be discontinued.

Personally I believe Chautauqua has too firm a hold upon the thoughts of our people and the Chautauqua managements has upheld its high standards too surely for its discontinuance. I feel sure that Chautauqua has confidence in the people of our community and our community has confidence in Chautauqua. It is a fond hope that this mutual confidence will continue and Chautauqua again come to us to be the delight that it has been in the years past.

Let us all follow the "get together" spirit and get the best out of the Chautauqua week. It will help to put us in right shape for "Old Boys' Reunion".

U. M. WILSON.

He was a very patient and long-suffering young man, but when at last his betrothed arrived at the corner where they had arranged to meet, he ventured a remonstrance. After the kiss he said: "Where, you are late."

"Only a few minutes," she protested in an injured tone. "I said I'd be here at 7 o'clock, and it's only 20 past now."

"Oh," sighed the young mac, "then you must have mistaken the day! I've been waiting here since last night!"

NAPANEE DISTRICT BOYS' CAMP

With the flag fluttering vigorously in the breeze, and the ground covered with tents, the Boys' Camp at Switzer's Landing, on Varty Lake, had by Wednesday become a busy place.

The day was not to begin for programme until the bugle sounded at 6 a.m., but whether because of the recuperating effect of going to bed at 9.30 the night before, or because of the superabundant vigor of the kind of boys who are chosen for camp life, daylight had not much more than begun to break anyway. Some were before some of the tents began to show signs of life; here and there a hearty laugh was heard, heads were thrust out to see what kind of day it was going to be, and shortly after sunrise it was evident that the camp was up for the day. Sixty-four boys from nine to twenty years of age were registered with the supervisors of the camp, with more still to come.

After setting up exercises and the morning dip in the lake, the impressive ceremony of raising the flag was performed, led by Capt. Babcock, the flag being hauled up into place and "Smoken" by Jack Ebret, of the Bugle, worth group.

While the boys stood in the circle around the flag, morning chapel was conducted by Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, and immediately afterwards all went to breakfast.

Camp duties, tidying tents, tent inspection, practical work followed. Revds. A. J. Terrill and R. J. Merriam directed the laying out of the programme for the day. The first of four talks to the boys on the fourfold life was given on "The Physical Life of a Boy" by Rev. Geo. Nickle.

Instruction on special lines of preparation for badge work was then given, on Electricity, with special reference to the radio, by Jack Metzler; on Life Saving, by Rev. Mr. Merriam; on Bird Life, by Rev. W. H. Clarke, the camp secretary, and on Astronomy, by Rev. Mr. Anderson.

Dinner was followed by a rest period, and the organization of the boys into five groups for daily Bible study, —these groups of Trail Rangers and two Tuxis Squares, each organized with a full set of officers elected from amongst themselves, with advice of the ministers acting as mentor and teacher in each group; a leaders' council, recreation games, nature study hikes and swimming filled up the remainder hours until supper time. Three swims a day under careful supervision are provided for the boys.

The lowering and folding of the flag was observed in the usual impressive and fitting manner, by method of the Boy Scouts, the boy who held the rope on the flag being a few earnest words and suggesting a hymn to be sung together, and Mr. Coleman offered a closing prayer.

Camp Notes.

Wednesday there was a keenly contested baseball game, Jack Metzler's Tuxis Square, "The Baker's Dirty Dozen", challenged Captain Babcock's Square, "The Crows" to a 5-innings game after supper. With the score 1 all, the game was played two innings overtime, and ended a draw on account of darkness. There will be a play-off later.

Wednesday afternoon, Captain Babcock and Jack Metzler visited the Presbyterian picnic across at Galbraith's grove. Many of the parents of the boys spent over parents' day, and incidentally gave them a very friendly reception—including refreshments.

All the Napanee boys from the Church of England and the Methodist Church have their meals together, at a table next to Captain Babcock's. Napanee Presbyterian boys at the West end of the camp.

NEWBURGH

James MacCaughn, M.P.P., tells us that we are to have a plebiscite submitted on the liquor question before October 31st. Well, James, perhaps is right, but if he is wrong it won't be the first time he has missed the mark. Anyway we have been expecting that a vote of the people would be taken on the question. That was the pledge the present Premier gave during the election campaign, and we would not expect him to break his word even to please the temperance people. What have they to fear from a contest of that kind ? It would mean a tremendous turn over in sentiment to change the present law and in the event of such a turn over, what would we get in its place? With the example of Quebec and British Columbia before us we surely would not want Government ownership, where the brewers and distillers are the real owners and controllers and the Government is the underpaid bartender, and where, especially in British Columbia, the sales are divided fifty fifty with the bootleggers who are selling in defiance of all law. And yet we are told that prohibition defies illicit stills are selling in defiance of the law. Let us look at that question. We venture the assertion that there was more stuff made and sold for whiskey under license than there is to-day, only it was then made on the premises on which it was retailed, out of water and chemicals rather than by distillation. There was also more whiskey sold then in defiance of the law than all the bootleggers are selling to-day in this Province. What about the law against selling on Sunday, selling after eleven o'clock every night except Saturday and on that night not after seven o'clock ? Was this law kept ? Not by any means, but thousands of gallons of liquor were sold in defiance of the laws regulating its sale. There is nothing to fear from a vote on this question from the prohibition standpoint, if people use their common sense, as I stated in a former correspondence, and not be carried away by scratch arguments. When the law is enforced as we pretty well know it, and that is the way we want it, and if the present degree of inforcement is maintained we are pretty well off and economic waste and social degredation will be at a minimum.

It would be a confirmed grouch that would complain of the weather we are having now. Sunshine and showers are just what their beneficial effect on the growing crops.

Miss Lena Madden has returned home from visiting friends and sister in Rochester.

LENNOX WOMAN'S INSTITUTE

The annual District meeting of the Lennox Woman's Institute met in the form of a picnic at Bath, on June 30th.

The Institute is greatly indebted to Mr. Fred Franklin, for the use of his camping grounds on the Bay shore, about one mile east of the village.

The attendance was not as great as last year, but all branches were represented.

Shortly after twelve a tasty lunch was enjoyed, after which the work of the year was reviewed in the form of reports from the different branches and the district secretary.

The outstanding feature of the day was the address given by Miss Emily Guest, of Toronto, her topic being "How to make an efficient study of yourself and your community". Miss Guest is a most forceful speaker, and left with us many helpful suggestions for our work in the coming years.

The election of officers took place next, resulting as follows:—

President—Mrs. W. L. Haight, R.N.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. C. F. Allison.
2nd Vice Pres.—Mrs. James Miller.
Secty. and Treas. — Mrs. A. P. Young.

The Vice President of the Federation, Mrs. C. F. Allison, and Mrs. W. L. Haight, our District President, were voted as representatives to Ottawa in the Fall.

After lively sports and distributing of prizes, the meeting was brought to a close with the National Anthem, and the crowd dispersed to their different homes, hoping to meet with a larger crowd next year.

HOTTEST PLACE ON EARTH.

The Thermometer Is a Very Poor Indicator.

Discussing the hottest place on earth, a "Returned Exile" writes: When travellers from the deserts of Sindh, the banks of the Zambesi, and the back blocks of Queensland began to compare thermometer readings it is probable that none will yield pride of place until the highest figures known to meteorological science have been reached and surpassed.

In India, Jacobabad has an evil reputation, but there the retired Indian colonel is beaten on his own ground, as I can claim to have spent a fortnight at Shikarpur in June, the hottest month of 1905, one of the worst years on record.

Shikarpur is not many miles from Jacobabad, and, having no garrison, has not acquired similar fame, but is even more sultry, being surrounded by trees which keep off the breeze that might otherwise bring a breath of early morning coolness from the desert.

When I was there the mercury on several occasions touched 128 degrees in the shade, and for more than ten days on end never fell below 109 degrees at any moment of the day or night.

Contrary to popular belief, the most intense heat is not to be found near the Equator, and often outside the tropics altogether. The highest reading in my experience—131 degrees—was taken in Manchuria, but that was in a railway carriage between Port Arthur and Harbin, and would not be accepted as "official."

Further north still, at Blagovestchenak in Siberia, where the thermometer in winter falls to 60 degrees below zero, extreme heat is common in the summer, but only for brief periods.

In the southern hemisphere readings of 110 degrees and 115 degrees are frequently reported from Western Australia, and Northern Queensland, Burke and Townsville being notorious in this respect.

But so far as human comfort is concerned, the thermometer is a very poor indicator, and the figures are hardly worth arguing about. In the sticky heat of large cities in July it is possible to be almost melted at 90 degrees, while 110 degrees in the dry Sahara is perfectly bearable.

To vary an old saying, "A woman is as cool as she looks, and a man as hot as he feels."

Least Said, Soonest Mended.

Mr. Brown was calling on an old friend; but, unfortunately, Mr. Brown was one of those people who, with the best intentions in the world, always manage to say the wrong thing.

"I declare," he remarked to his friend's wife, "it quite cures me of home-sickness to drop in and see a little of your home-life."

A stony stare from the lady soon made him realize that he had said the wrong thing again.

"Er—er not that your home life is anything but," he continued—"er—er—that is to say, that it makes me all the fonder of my own home, or rather that the — as someone once said a hair of the dog that bit you—which isn't, of course, what I mean. But when a man is lonely he can enjoy the society of almost anybody!"

"Sir!" broke in the lady angrily.

"I mean," floundered Mr. Brown, "that, be it ever so humble—er—no, no, yours is not that—but there's no place like one's own—but I mean—well I must be going! Good-day!"

That One Went, Too!

The Hughes' household was one procession of cooks. One after the entered the kitchen, and the next they went out by the door. None of them seemed to have the slightest knowledge of how to boil an egg. A new "treasure" had just arrived, and Mr. and Mrs. Hughes sat down to breakfast on the morning after her arrival, with hope in their hearts. If Haggle's cooking was anything like her looks, then it would indeed be good.

But, alas, when the bacon was placed on the table Mrs. Hughes was only to take one look at it to see that it was burnt to a cinder.

"Dear," said the wife to her husband, "the bacon is all burnt again! I'm afraid you will have to be satisfied with a kiss for breakfast this morning!"

"All right!" responded the husband gruffly. "Call her in!"

Just Like a Man!

Mr. Younghusband had not found life a path of roses since he had led his chosen to the marriage altar. He was always trying to please his wife, but somehow he never could succeed.

One evening, on arriving home, he said to her: "Well, Hilda, you can't guess what I've been doing to-day."

"Making a fool of yourself, as usual," replied the loving Hilda, ungraciously.

"That's as you look at it, dear. But I have done something really good. I've insured my life."

"Well," was the snappy reply, "I always knew you were mean! Insured your life, indeed! Always looking after yourself first!"

Sea Jewels.

Visitors can be seen roaming the English sea coast for valuable stones. The sea collects the jetsam of ages and specimens of every geological formation. Among others found are cornelians, chalcedonys, amethysts, agates, onyxes, and pieces of jasper. The "Elie ruby" is a garnet found to the eastward of Elie Harbor, on the coast of Fife. Other parts of the coast have their special jewels. Onyx can be found almost anywhere. As for pearls, it has been stated that they have been found in cockles at Conway.

CAPTAIN KIDD'S GOLD

WAS BURIED IN THE SHEEPSCOT RIVER IN 1700.

Great-grandson of Kidd's Lieutenant Now Comes Forward With Maps and Plans, and Another Expedition Will Try and Locate Hidden Treasure.

The patenting of a grappling device seems an unromantic transaction, but it hides one of the most romantic quests of modern times. It means a determined effort to locate the secret hiding-place of Capt. Kidd's buried treasure of gold, which he hid snugly somewhere in the Sheepscot river in 1700—the year before he was captured by a British frigate, immediately after he had pirated a rich Indian clipper and was making the captain and crew walk the plank.

Before the gallant captain was turned at Execution Dock he confessed that his vast treasure of gold was still safely hidden. Being told by the Ordinary (or chaplain) that he should reveal the location, Capt. Kidd remained silent for a few moments and then broke out: "But no! Let those find it that have the secret!" Immediately afterwards he was hanged.

Now there has come upon the scene a very old man who declares that he is ready to dig up the gold. He has credentials—unusual ones; and plans as well.

For years he has been laboring at a grappling device, which he declares is absolutely necessary to secure the treasure of golden bars which he hid-den beneath the ice in the bed of the turbulent Sheepscot river.

It is said that, being hard pressed by a pursuing frigate, Capt. Kidd ran his black pirate craft up the river, and sunk his bars in the bed of the stream, intending to return and collect them. He was cheated by fate. The secret of the hiding-place was confided to his lieutenant in piracy, one Jeremiah Trash, a tough old sea-dog who had mutinied on board one of the King's ships, deserted, and taken service with Kidd.

Capt. Moses King, "ninety years young," as he describes himself, is a great-grandson of Trash. He claims to have in his possession the original maps and plans made by Kidd and handed to his lieutenant. King was bred and born at Wiscasset, on the river, and came across the plans some time ago, although he had always been a tradition in the family that Kidd's treasure charts were somewhere stored away. While examining an old bureau, he found the papers in a secret drawer. From this it would appear that the gold bars are concealed in two vast chests sunk deep in the bed of the stream.

How King got funds to begin his search afresh and got his grappling apparatus patented is in itself a romance.

A banker living in the neighborhood of the home of old man King met him at dinner one night. The financier was all ears, and

The simple, sure way to keep that schoolgirl complexion

Youthful complexions are becoming the rule—even in middle life and later years. For millions now follow a simple rule—a method you, too, may easily employ.

Do this at night

Cleanse the skin regularly, authorities say, to keep your complexion lovely, radiant, youthful. But beware of harsh cleansing methods. They injure skin.

Wash thoroughly with Palmolive Soap—each night before retiring. Rub the creamy, foamy lather well into the tiny pores. Rinse — and repeat the washing. Then rinse again.

Then—if skin is dry—apply a little cold cream. That is all. Skin so cared for is not injured by cosmetics, by wind and sun, or by dirt.

The simple, correct way

You cannot find a more effective beauty treatment. Because Palmolive Soap is blended of rare palm and olive oils—famous for mild but thorough cleansing qualities since the days of Cleopatra. And it is inexpensive.

All dealers carry Palmolive Soap. Try it for just one week. See how it does improve your skin. Note well the name and wrapper. Palmolive is never sold unwrapped.

Costs so little that you may enjoy it for the bath also.

Prolific Alligators.

Since alligator skins are valuable and much in demand for leather goods, the extermination of the alligator should be a profitable business when one takes into consideration how prolific they are.—The female alligator lays from 40 to 60 eggs in as many minutes during the months of June and July. She scoops a hole in the sand or mud with her forefeet and in this she deposits the eggs. Then she throws the earth back into the hole with her tail. Ninety-five per cent. of the eggs are fertile and hatch out 60 days later under normal conditions. The young alligators hatch out and immediately seek shallow streams, being practically self-sustaining from the time they are incubated. The male alligators will eat their young if they can locate them. The fact that the youngsters hide in little, shallow pools proves an effective safeguard, as the adults rarely enter such places.

Proved It by the Waiter.

They tell an amusing story concerning a man who recently paid a visit to Paris. He took his wife with him, and, as neither of them had been to the French capital before, they promised themselves a good time. They began by treating themselves to a good dinner. Towards the close of the meal, he was telling his wife that her French pronunciation was all wrong, and that she shouldn't say "merci" as if it was our English word "mercy." "Now, I'll give that waiter ten francs," he told her, and you listen carefully." He slipped the man a ten-franc note, and the reply was, "Thanks, very much, sir."

In-I-Go Jones.

The curious story of the tramp who succeeded in spending two evenings in the apartments reserved for royalties—a victim Paris has a habit of heralding.

In the early years of Queen Victoria's reign much trouble was caused to the Palace officials by a boy named Jones, who, in some unexplained way, was able several times to gain access to the private apartments at Buckingham Palace, and was more than once found concealed under a sofa.

He became quite famous, and was nicknamed in some way or the period "In-I-Go Jones."

HOUSES UNDER THE SEA.

Marvels of Architecture Built by Certain Fish.

That spring is a season of almost as much domestic hurry and worry in the depths of ocean and river as it is on dry land is a fact that few people, other than zoologists, fully realize.

With the approach of the spawning season many kinds of fish set about the all-important task of putting their houses in order for the coming of their young, while others proceed to build new structures with an infinite little effort or marvellous cunning. Some tiny architects the lamprey is one of the most skilful. It lives, in turn, in both fresh water and the sea, and having chosen a suitable nesting site it clears away accumulated stones and rubbish by doubling it itself up like a spring and then suddenly unrolling. Many people alike take a hand in this task, the pair the builder devoting themselves to raising a pile of stones three feet in height and often as much in diameter.

Many of the stones thus used are so big as to make us wonder how so small a creature could have moved them into place. The means by which the feat is accomplished is indeed one of the marvels of nature. The lamprey locates its breeding place near a strong current. Selecting a large stone aperture, the brain fish wriggles beneath it and moves it so that the smooth or curved side is uppermost. To this surface the fish attaches itself by its mouth, which is a curious sucker-like aperture. It then raises its tail like a rudder, and by vigorously "back-watering" lifts the stone into the current, which sweeps it gently downstream. The lamprey guides the stone to the nest ing place and finally lowers it into position.

The common "tiddler," or stickleback, is a most skilful home-builder. In appearance the nest, which is very small, is like that of the field-mouse, and it is usually supported by the stems of water plants. Another fish, the black-nosed dace, clears a nesting spot on the bed of a stream in readiness for the female's eggs. As soon as these have been laid, a pile of small stones is placed on them, and a second layer of eggs deposited on top of the stones. More stones are brought to cover the eggs, until the whole heap reaches a height of a foot or more.

Yet another housing expert among fish is the antennarius—it boasts no English name—which is found in the Sargasso Sea. The top of the nest is flat, and on it the fish lays a batch of eggs, afterwards covering them with a kind of moss. In time the eggs hatch and the nest becomes a floating nursery, in which the young fish spend their early days, safe from marauders. When the parent fish deems it safe to trust to a fresh feeding ground it attaches itself to the frame of the nest and swims off, trailing its home behind it.

The sunfish, another nest-builder, are troubled with what may be called a marine cuckoo—the pirate perch. This fish, which is either male or female capable of making a nest of its own, waits until the sunfish have completed their nest and then turns them out, installing itself in their place. Its eggs are frequently laid among those of the original occupants. These, however, are not disturbed and hatch out in due course.

One can rest we must mention, although there are many others formed by fish. The black goby forms a home for its eggs like a ball. This is constructed of pieces of weed which are interwoven and bound together, the eggs being placed inside. As is often the case the male builds the nest, and after the eggs have been deposited takes it in turn to guard it.

He was a very patient and long-suffering young man, but when at last his betrothed arrived at the corner where they had arranged to meet he ventured a remonstrance. After the kiss he said: "Darling, you are late."

"Only a few minutes," she protested in an injured tone. "I said I'd be here at 7 o'clock, and it's only 20 past now."

"Oh," sighed the young man, "then you must have mistaken the day! I've been waiting here since last night!"

Invited for the week-end

—by Long Distance

It was Tuesday afternoon in the country. Hospitable Mrs. Martin seemed disappointed. The week had flipped away before she knew it. No one had been invited up for the week-end and there wasn't time in which to write.

And then she thought of the telephone — Long Distance! What an inspiration! In twenty minutes she knew the Smarts would come — delighted to — and what train they would be on. Splendid! — and she had ordered some extra supplies from her grocer in town to be shipped by express that night!

What a pleasant week-end she will have — thanks to Long Distance!

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of Sidney Samuel Wakelin, who departed this life June 30th, 1920.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears of sorrow often flow;
Memory keeps our loved one near us,
Whom God called four years ago.
Though his loving voice is silent,
And his true heart ceased to beat;
Yet me miss his well known footsteps,
And his face we used to greet.

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad but loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Aleta, Mrs. Russell Holland, Yarker, who entered into rest July 11th, 1923. "She is not dead but sleepeth".
When her life was at its brightest,
Youthful bloom and happy home,
Jesus bid her come to Heaven,
Sadly leaving us alone.
Hark ! I hear the angels singing,
And Aleta's voice I hear;
She is happy with her Saviour,
Who on earth she loved so dear.
Her cheering word and happy smile,
Her kindly deeds and helping hand,
We never, never can forget,
Until we meet in that Heavenly land.
Dearly loved by Mother, Father and Brothers. 28ap

ACCIDENTS IN THE YEAR

AUTOMOBILES THE CAUSE OF OF MOST DEATHS.

Gruff King Winter, Pitiless With Colds and Chilblains, But He Curbs Auto—Home Is Dangerous Place to Live In—Fish Bones Make Trouble.

During which month of the year may most accidents to human limbs and bodies be expected?

The answer is, July or August, which two months share the doubtful honor of being the most dangerous month of the year. March is a good second.

According to the returns of practically all the big accident insurance companies, the good old summer time is the period most prolific of accidents. This fact should help to reconcile us to some of the disadvantages of winter. Baseball, tennis, fishing, camping, boating, swimming and picnicking are more dangerous in the aggregate than are the more strenuous sports of tobogganing, skiing, hockey and snowballing. If King Winter is less considerate of our internal organs during his reign, causing colds, grippes, chilblains and chaps, he is at least more kindly to our external members, and our bodies as a whole, than is "genial" summer.

It is unfair, however, to blame the open spaces and their lure to summer sports for darkening that season with a larger proportion of accidents than is experienced during the winter months. Undoubtedly many mishaps occur which are incidental to the pursuit of pleasure in various forms by those on vacation, but well at the head of the list of things causing accidents stands that modern Juggernaut, the automobile.

"The stunning thing about accident statistics at the present time is that, aside from occupational accidents, by far the greater number of casualties are caused by automobiles," said a well-known Toronto insurance man. The opinion of this authority is confirmed by all companies dealing in accident insurance.

"For quite a number of years," he continued, "the cause 'at home' led all other causes except 'occupational,' but now 'automobiles' leads them all, and 'at home' takes second place. And yet it is less than twenty years ago that insurance authorities ridiculed the idea that automobile hazards would ever amount to anything!"

The hazards of home are many. Occupational risks whilst at work in a quarry, for example, or a factory, or the street, or even in warehouse or store, may be expected with certainty and should be borne with philosophy. Plus (if one has been wise) the consolation of a promptly met claim for compensation. But in the home one becomes naturally indifferent to lurking danger, and this indifference is one explanation why so many mishaps occur there. Accidents in the home are generally the result of trifling causes. They begin with the doorstep and continue with an upturned corner of the rug in the hall.

Imperfectly tacked down carpets and linoleums cause the downfall of many. The stairs provide as many hazards as there are steps, to which the bannisters contribute a risk of their own. Worn sash cords are constantly transforming otherwise innocent and harmless windows into clumsy guillotines that make savage attempts to amputate fingers and thumbs. Table and chair legs have an uncanny way of tripping up the unwary. Chairs, in fact, have a reputation not much brighter than that enjoyed by automobiles. Both their backs and legs have a habit of collapsing which is comedy to a few but tragedy to one. Electric light connections are apt to short-circuit and send the careless hurtling backwards over the table or ironing board. The cooking range presents its hourly dangers of burning or scalding, or both. A piece of soap on the kitchen floor has caused many a hurried and ungraceful fight to bruises, cuts and contusions, and to lowly situations from which, nevertheless, a splendid panorama of the starry heavens is revealed. As a process for barking shins, few exercises beat getting in and out of bed, and a carelessly latched cellar door has precipitated countless lumbers into the depths with energy and despatch.

Altogether the home is a decidedly dangerous place to be in. Even at table one is not immune. Soup is apt to gurgle down the wrong channel, and fish bones have a tendency to go where they have no business. Refrain from the delightful but reprehensible practice of drinking from a saucer in to sustain a scalded tongue, and to dignify the knife by pressing it to a function as, by no means similar embarrassment. On the whole, it does seem worth considering whether it would not be wise to quitting home and sitting on a timefuse in a quarry, or playing at being a traffic cop in front of a careering automobile.

The Little Hitch.

Young Mr. Saddleby had come to "ask father."

Now father was a hard-headed business man who had made his way up in the world, and Saddleby was rather doubtful as to whether he would give his consent to an alliance with his daughter.

"Sir," he began nervously, "I have come to ask for the hand of your daughter in marriage. I think I already possess her heart."

"He, yer do, do yer?" asked father, truculently. "Ow much are yer worth?"

"Five thousand a year, but——" replied the young man, when he was interrupted.

"Ho, well, I sees no objection——"

"But—but," went on Saddleby, more nervously than ever, "I don't get it!"

IF LOVERS TOLD THE TRUTH.

Honesty Before Marriage Makes for Happiness.

The young man who tells a girl that she is the most beautiful creature in the world, and that she has eyes like violets, and that she is so different from all other women, doesn't believe a word of what he is saying, writes Dorothy Dix, in Tit-Bits.

He has seen dozens of prettier girls, and she is twin sister to a score of other girls he knows, but he knows it makes a hit with her to make her believe that she has hypnotised him. So she marries him under the deluded belief that she has cast a spell over him that makes him see her as she would like to be, instead of as she is.

Before marriage men are reckless about the way they spend money on a girl. They lavish presents on her. They ride her around in taxis. They take her to restaurants. Often they spend far more than they can afford. Always they are liberal and generous, with the result that after marriage many a woman gets the shock of her life by finding that she has married a man who does not intend to spend a penny unnecessarily.

Probably no man ever made an honest marriage proposal to a girl.

He never says, "Mary, I have got a mean and cantankerous disposition. I am selfish and stingy and only moderately trustworthy. I don't make much money and have no brilliant prospects, and if you marry me you'll have to put up with my crankiness, and work hard, and wear shabby clothes."

No; he paints a wonderful picture of love and devotion, and rose-covered cottages, and billing and cooing, and that is what entrances the poor girl.

Nor are women any more honest with men. Why, many a man has never really seen the real woman he marries until the honeymoon begins to wane, she takes off her hand-made complexion, and he finds that the face that launched a thousand ships for him is often enough to stop the clock.

Also, he finds out about the same time that the matrimonial bargain he has got is not what he thought. He had been led to believe, for one thing, that the girl he led to the altar looked upon him as an oracle, and asked nothing better of fate than to sit at his feet and burn incense before him.

Likewise, the girl had "sold" herself to him, commercially speaking, by being so sweet and amiable that butter wouldn't melt in her mouth, and by looking so soft and pliable that he could mould her to his taste.

But before he has been married a month he has found out that she had a unsuspected temper concealed about her person; that she is as set in her ways as a piece of granite, and that, so far from thinging him perfection, she has set out to change everything about him, from his politics and religion to his necktie.

Certainly no other one thing in the world would do so much to make happy marriages as for men and women to be honest each with the other before marriage. But there would be mighty few marriages if they knew beforehand what they were getting!

How Dogs Got Their Names.

The derivation of dogs' names recently formed the subject of an interesting discourse by a well-known dog fancier. The pointer, it seems, was so called because the original breed of this type came from Spain. The Blenheim spaniel got his from Blenheim Palace, where this dog first won popularity in the time of the great Duke of Marlborough. In the same way the King Charles spaniel takes its name to the Merry Monarch. Fox terriers did not gain their name from a likeness to the fox, but from the fact that formerly they were used in hunting foxes. Many years ago they were set by their masters after the fox's burrow to draw and kill their quarry. It was in those days a saying that a good terrier never came out of burrow without a fox. He either brought out the prey dead or never came out alive himself. The bulldog used to drive cattle, and was trained to meet the rushes of his enormous charges by gripping them in their most vulnerable spot—the nose. Thus in time he became known as the bulldog. The dachshund is a German dog, and, as his name indicates when translated, was used for hunting badgers; hence his name, badger dog. Among hunters in Germany this breed is still popular, although they are now too delicate to such a ferocious fighter as a badger.

Seven Wonderful Epigrams.

Here are a few choice epigrams from English literature well worthy of a place in the book of memory. (I). Cowper sweet illusions—like effects of color that we know to be made up of tints that please the eye. (II.) Pope the triumph of machinery is when man wonders at his own works. (III.) Her soul is silly, but her body's wise. (IV.) Oh, be swift to love, make haste to be kind. (V.) The world is full of willing people; a few willing to work, and the rest willing to let them. (VI.) The true way to be a wise man is to hear, see, and bear much mind. (VII.) To know what you prefer, instead of humbly saying Amen to what the world tells you you ought to prefer, is to have kept your soul afire.

Tamerlane.

Tamerlane or Timour, who lived from 1335 to 1405, was one of the most celebrated of Oriental conquerors. He overran Persia, Tartary, Hindostan, his conquests extending from the River Volga in Russia to the Persian Gulf, and from the River Ganges in India to the shores of the Mediterranean and Sea. It was only want of shipping that prevented him from crossing into Europe. He died just as he was making vast preparations for the invasion of China. No conquerors were ever attended with greater cruelty, devastation, and waste of life.

A Power of its Own.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil has a subtle power of its own. All who have used it know this and keep it in the house as a valuable liniment available. Its uses are innumerable and for many years it has been prized as the leading liniment for man and beast.

—A delightful garden party under the auspices of the Mission Circle of Grace Church, was held Tuesday night on the spacious grounds of Mr. T. Anderson, South Napanee. The lawn was beautifully decorated and brightly illuminated, while a delightful programme of the grounds there were fish ponds, candy booths, etc. Owing to the extremely warm weather, there was a fairly good attendance. A program, consisting of orchestra selections, readings, vocal and instrumental solos, was given and these were much appreciated by those present. A goodly sum was realized on behalf of the Mission Circle.

Armored Railway Car.

To foil banditti and prevent the hold-up of railway trains a young Mexican engineer has invented an armored railway car. The car is of steel construction, all vulnerable parts being protected to resist a Mauser bullet from short range. The protective parts are high enough all round to enable a man to stand up inside without being exposed. Fore and aft are small towers, with machine guns mounted on gyrator tables, these guns being capable of firing up to 600 shots a minute, and they are kept cool by a specially installed water system. This railway "tank" has a capacity for thirty men, all of whom can use rifles through conveniently placed holes in the armor plating, and all the crew can sleep in the car. It is fitted with a 60-horsepower motor, which enables it to attain a speed of forty kilometers an hour in either direction, while it can be attached with equal convenience to passenger or freight trains. Beneath the car is a large gasoline tank, also protected from rifle fire. There is further a wireless outfit attached, the total weight of the car and armament being approximately eleven tons.

Schooner On Iceberg.

A steamer was rounding Cape Horn recently when the captain saw a gigantic iceberg floating in the water, and on it was a large three-masted schooner with its boats still in position, but apparently no one was on board. It was impossible to get near enough to it to see its name, and what had happened to its crew remains a mystery.

Wrote Report on Officer's Back.

T. P. O'Connor, M.P., the veteran of the English press and politics, made the following statement at his recent seventy-fifth birthday party:

"I have had to write the report of an inquest on the back of a policeman, and a report of the execution of Henry Wainwright on the palm of my hand!"

It was not Mr. O'Connor, however, but another member of the profession who once noted a string of anecdotes on his shirt-cuff, and forgot to use the copy before the shirt was sent to the wash.

He wired:

"Did I send anecdotes with this week's laundry?"

The reply came:

"Regret anecdotes were washed away at once. Please don't send any more."

The Gastronomy Test.

"Mussolini, the Italian dictator," said an olive-oil importer, "has always been a fire-eater. Once he was travelling in Switzerland—this was in the days before the World War—and at the table-d'hote in an Interlaken hotel a German fellow-traveller said to him genially: 'It is easy enough, sir, to see that you are an Italian.' 'Yes?' said Mussolini with a frown. 'How so?' 'Because,' the German father takes a back, explained—'because you eat so much macaroni.' Mussolini turned dark red with fury. 'And it's easy enough,' he roared, 'to see that you're a German!' 'Yes?' said the poor German, trying to smile. 'Because why?' 'Because,' roared Mussolini, 'you eat so much of everything!'"

TAMWORTH

(For last week.)

Dave Fuller, of Bancroft, was in town on Tuesday last.—R. H. Hall and family have moved to Kingston.—There are a large number of American tourists boarding at Mrs. O'Neil's, and fishing on the lakes.—Sam White and family and A. B. Carscallen and family are camping at Horse Shoe Lake, near Arden.

"Cabin" Indians.

The Iroquois regarded themselves as superior among all other Indians. They were particularly proud of their cabins, and were known by other tribes as "Cabin" Indians. Even when speaking part of the white man's home was to carry the portable meaning of a cabin and put them together.

These dwellings were constructed somewhat on the principle of a modern apartment house, with accommodations for from five to twenty families, sometimes exceeding 500 feet. Interestingly, on the three sides of the compartments on either side and in front of the door, bunks were placed on the ground on a low platform, the younger members of the family sleeping on an upper tier. For privacy, such as it was, strips of bark or skin were hung between the families. At the end of the family, some of them were meticulously covered with bark, and the others were covered with strips of skins.

Potato and Adam.

In England in the first efforts to promote the cultivation of the potato it was found necessary to offer a premium to induce the poor. The latter leader, William Cobbett, said, "Nobody would eat potatoes if they were forced to. But we can teach 'cuttle foods'." In 1736 a premium was offered for the tastiest potatoes into Scotland, but they were denounced from the pulpit as tare introducers. Nevertheless, they were not mentioned in the Bible, and must be for Christians, and the Irish were the first to take to them. The name of Adam's tale. Tawy were accused of causing leprosy and fever.

Cattle Shows for China.

Dried milk shows a great supply sought among the poorer classes in South China, where many thousand tons are consumed annually. The demand for cattle liniments has exceeded its domestic production, and Hong Kong dealers and importers of this article are now looking to America for supplies. There are usually imported in bags containing 500 to 600 pounds. Cattle shows are also used in China for the manufacture of glue.

Appropriateness In Dress

It is a well established custom to instruct the business girl on the importance of being appropriately dressed.

There is probably not a housekeeper, of average intelligence, who has not cast the stone of criticism at the overdressed girls who are now in the ranks of trade; while we have all admired the good taste of the neatly tailored, trimly shod young women, who, we have noticed, are more apt to succeed than their more perfectly dressed sisters. Women, in all walks of life, admit the importance of being appropriately dressed at public functions. It is the brave woman who would defy the established canons of attire at an evening reception in a short skirt and smock or who would don her market-ing in a velvet dress.

That many employers of women prefer a uniform dress for their employes is an indication of the importance that the business man attaches to this question. In department stores, for instance, and restaurants, require the same employes to appear in a certain color and style of costume, and woe is it to that girl who is ordered to the desk in organdie the consternation we should feel if a professional nurse, in the midst of a critical illness, appeared in the patient's room in anything save the regulation white uniform with the white headed cap of her profession.

In the home too, those of us who employ domestic help make reasonable and appropriateness of dress in our requirements, and the first requisite of their conduct. If a maid's uniform is a badge of servitude, it is unfortunate; but if it is required because, owing to its appropriateness it is an aid to more thoroughly and quickly organize the conserv

Life In 20,000 B.C.

Nothing is more wonderful than the wide and various knowledge of prehistoric man which modern archaeology has given us in the last few years. Implements made of flint have been found dating back over 20,000 years, in certain gravels of the Somme.

In Everyday Life in the Stone Age, by Marjorie and C. H. B. Quennell, the reader is told very clearly and simply how man lived in the ages before history began, and how he enjoyed himself.

In those very far-off days England was connected to Europe by a watershed of dry land where the Straits of Dover are now. There was an isthmus across the Mediterranean at Gibraltar, and another south of Sicily. This explains the hippopotamus having been in England; he did not have to swim there but just walked.

The first known Englishman was the Piltdown man, so called from part of a skull found at Piltdown, in Sussex. In those days man cannot have had a very easy existence. One of his enemies must have been the sabre-toothed tiger, a very fierce animal, whose bones have been found in various parts of the country.

A portrait of the Piltdown man has been reconstructed from the fragment of skull that was found.

"The brain capacity is about equal to the smaller human brain of to-day. The skull is extraordinarily thick. The Piltdown man could, and probably did, butt a rival away. He was probably right-handed.

"To die a pit would not have been beyond the wit of prehistoric man, and stakes for it could have been sharpened and the points hardened by fire. Such a pit would have been the beginning in a long battle between brain and mere bulk. This would have been one way in which prehistoric man obtained the meat that he needed for his food. He was, of course, as carnivorous as his foe, the tiger."

A little while ago the world was startled by the discovery of some wonderful colored drawings in a cave at Altamira, in Spain. These are supposed to have been done 22,000 years ago.

This shows that prehistoric man had developed an art. The drawings and paintings are of wild animals, bulls, bison, deer, and horses, many of them life size. They cannot be seen without a light, and a light must also have been used when they were executed.

The appearance of such animals as the musk-ox and the Arctic hare in this ancient picture gallery shows that the climate, in those days, must have been much colder than it is to-day. This is explained by scientists in the following manner:—

We are told that if water wants a fall of about five degrees centigrade (nine degrees Fahrenheit) below the mean annual temperature of Europe to have all the hardships of the glacial periods back again, or that a rise of four or five degrees would cause all the glaciers in Switzerland to disappear.

Ancient Onomatopoeia.

Parents and others trying to impress on youngsters that "bow-wow," represents a dog will be interested to learn that the theory of onomatopoeia —the foundation of words to imitate the sound of a thing—which they are using, has an application to the pronunciation of ancient Egyptian words. A great difficulty, then as now, students are facing to-day in this connection, is the fact that though the consonants of such words are written, the vowels are quite indefinite. It seems to have been established, however, that the name in the old Egyptian tongue or cat is "mau," for dog, "bow-wow," for ram, "ba," and for donkey, "l-aw." The definite establishment of these pronunciations, from the sounds that are being imitated, is said to have furnished a valuable clue to other pronunciations and may do much toward solving the entire" problem.—Christian Science Monitor.

Still Between the Posts.

Tom Clay, a famous English footballer, tells a story of a game played between two village teams, the Slocum Weeds and the Puddleton Thugs. Ten minutes after the kick-off a fog began to settle, and as it soon became impossible to see more than a yard or two the two captains and the referee decided to abandon the match. The rivals accordingly adjourned to the nearest place of refreshment and there discussed the interrupted game. Suddenly someone inquired for the Slocum goalkeeper. Where was he? As he was not present a search party braved the fog and groped its way back to the field of play. They discovered a watery eyed "goalie" still between the posts, peering anxiously into the dense mist and shouting encouragingly: "Go it, Slocum. Give 'em socks!"

Bone Grafting.

Sir William MacEwen told the Royal Society of Medicine recently of the case of a boy whose humerus was entirely gone, and his mother wanted the arm amputated because she said it was worse than useless as the boy "had to use the other arm to look after it." Six wedges from six limbs of three different people were taken and introduced into the boy's arm. They all grew, and the boy grew so well that he fought with another boy and broke the arm.

Too Much For Him.

Doctor: "What! your dyspepsia no better? Did you follow my advice and drink hot water one hour before breakfast?"

Patient: "I did my best, but I couldn't keep it up more than ten minutes."

TICKLISH WIRELESS "WHYS."

How Can We Account For Freak Effects.

The greatest "Why" in wireless still awaits a satisfactory answer, writes A. R. Burrows in London Tit-Bits. Who will provide it?

A friend of mine, who is so methodical in his business arrangements that he manages to find important reasons why he should be in the South of France during the winter months, writes from Arcachon of his wireless experiences on the Cote d'Argent. He has been listening on a frame aerial with five valves to the broadcasting stations of Britain, France, and Belgium, and reports on their respective strengths as follows: Glasgow 12, Brussels 12, Bournemouth 10, Paris (Posts and Telegraphs) 10, London 8, Radiola 8, Birmingham 7. Cardiff, usually the strongest at the point of observation, was not obtainable during his period of observation.

From another source, equally reliable, comes the news that on the election night in November it was possible to follow clearly, on a ship off Algiers, the declaration of the polling results from the B.B.C. stations, yet the ship was fitted only with a crystal receiver.

A third observation of recent date is also worthy of notice. A skilled experimenter was watching the "fading" of signals from a distant broadcasting station. He was tuned sharply to the wave-length of that station. He noticed that when the telephony faded away the signals of a distant ship on a much higher wave-length came up loud and sharp; when these strange signals disappeared, the telephony returned loud and strong.

We are told by the theorists that wireless waves travelling through the other of space are made to follow the curvature of the earth by a series of bounds and rebounds between the earth and a reflecting blanket of rarefied material above our atmosphere, known as the Heavyside layer.

This blanket is believed to be intact during total darkness, but to be broken up by sunlight. So it happens that wireless signals travel much greater distances by night than by day.

But how can one account for the freak effects above mentioned, and many others equally mystifying? Why should Glasgow "come home" on the Cote d'Argent, leaving Birmingham and London more than a length behind? Why should Algiers be loudest of all at this point on one night and inaudible another night?

The theorist, in his anxiety to support the Heavyside layer idea, answers that the Heavyside layer is not regular in surface like a well-ironed linen collar; it is ever-varying in form, and therefore produces ever-varying effects. To secure constancy we shall require some scientific equivalent for the old lady whose mission was to sweep the cobwebs off the skies, or a form of etheric steam-roller.

But while these freak effects are highly irregular in their appearance in some areas they are regular in appearing in others. Why?

Umbrella Tassels as Talismans.

Three people out of five have a secret belief in charms or mascots. The other two persons usually profess to laugh at any superstition of this sort, yet over and over again the sceptic has been noticed carrying with her about him some object which is said to be just as much a charm against evil as the buckle bone, the heath, or the swastika.

For instance, the horse-shoe tie-pin is purely an emblem of luck, but oddly enough the pin is usually wrongly made. The little horse shoe is set on the pin so that the ends point downwards, whereas for luck's sake the shoe should be worn points up.

A man was jeering at a friend because he wore a ring, and the friend stone set in it. "Then why do you carry a charm against lightning?" retorted the other, and pointed to the umbrella which the scornful person was carrying. "Where—what?" demanded the latter. "The tassels of your umbrella are shaped like acorns," was the reply. "The oak was sacred to the god of thunder, and in the old days the acorn was seen as a protection against lightning."

The handle of a woman's umbrella is often in the form of a glass ball with colored spiral streaks. Although she does not know it, this is also a charm. It is a witch ball, a very old protection against sorcery.

The writer has also been given, who themselves had no belief in charms, wearing charms upon their watch guards. For instance, the coral hand of Naples, supposed to be a protection against the evil eye; a pre-stone pig, one of the best known of reputed luck bringers; or a piece of Maundy money.—Tit-Bits.

Strange Buddhistic Belief.

Buddhism, like a number of other eastern beliefs teaches that all persons have astral bodies. The gifted seer can, at will, transfer his body wherever he so desires by the dissolution and reassembling of atomic particles. There was another belief of the ancient Egyptians—that regarding the Ushabti figures of Osiris. He was the great Egyptian god of the Under World, and the judge of the dead. The development of this idea came to a belief that it was possible to transmit by magical incantations the forces and qualities of any living creature to a figure made in its image.

Going Strong.

As the dancer took his fair partner down to supper, she seemed to hypnotize the waiter told to serve them, for he seemed incapable of taking his eyes off her.

At last the dancer could stand it no longer. "I say, my man," he observed, "what makes you stare so rudely at this lady?"

"It ain't rudeness, sir, believe me, it ain't," returned the waiter. "It's genuine admiration. This is the fifth time she's been down to supper tonight."

WEALTHY MEN AS PAUPERS.

Millionaires Who Have Led Lives of Seclusion.

Mr. Joseph Treeman Mills, the multi-millionaire of Stockgrove, near Leighton Buzzard, England, who wore patched clothes and turned his back on cigarettes and beer because he considered them costly luxuries, is the latest of a long list of ultra-rich men who have led lives of misery.

It is not long since Sir Henry Delves Broughton, a baronet, whose real estates yielded a revenue of £40,000 a year, ended his days in a small attic in the Waterloo road. For many years he had never crossed the threshold of his hermitage, and had found his principal pleasure in papering his walls over and over again with pictures cut from the illustrated papers. His Spartan meals were always placed outside his door, and no one was allowed to enter his room.

Still more eccentric was Mr. Samuel Dunlap, an octogenarian millionaire. During forty years this owner of millions had only purchased one suit of clothes. Once a month his housekeeper, Mrs. Baldon, cut his hair, and she had orders to stuff mattresses with his locks!

When his frock-coat became frayed and green, Mrs. Baldon cut off its tails and converted them into a jacket; while her master would never have his shoes blacked, or his clothes brushed for fear of wearing them out.

A recluse of a different type was A. Bayard Brown, the mysterious millionaire who for more than twenty years led a solitary life in his palace, did 800-ton steam yacht, moored off Brichtlingsea, flinging his money with lavish hand to the hundreds of "cadgers" whose boats swarmed daily round his vessel.

When Mr. Solodovnikoco, the richest man in Russia, died shortly before the war, leaving his many millions for charitable purposes, it was stated that he had lived for many years in a dilapidated two-roomed hovel, surrounded by rotting furniture and without servant or companion. During the day he wore a tattered dressing-gown almost as old as himself, and, with an income of at least £500,000 a year, he grudged the spending of even a pound a week.

M. Paul Colasson, one of France's wealthiest men, lived for twenty-seven years exclusively on eggs and bread, supplied to him twice a week by an old servant, the only human being he ever consented to see. Until he had reached middle age M. Colasson led the life of a rich and fashionable man; but when his nephew, a boy of fourteen, to whom he was devotedly attached, was burnt to death at a fancy dress ball, he shut himself up in his palace and spent the rest of his life as a miserly recluse.

After James Tyson, the Australian squatter, had amassed several millions, he still dressed shabbily and ate plainly as when he could not afford a sovereign. His dress was a shabby suit of ready-made clothes, his watch-chain was a piece of string, and his food precisely the same as when he was plying a scythe on a farm. It was his boast that never during his long life had he entered a theatre or public-house, worn a white tie, a glove, or washed himself with soap.

Umbrellas Were Ludicrous.

A fair damsel of Windsor, Connecticut, walked forth one sunny day in the early years of the nineteenth above her haughty head an umbrella that had been brought to her from the West Indies. The good townspeople, shocked and dismayed at such frivolity, throughout about her, open-mouthed, and to show their disapproval, hoisted their large sieves on long wooden handles, and followed her with ridiculous, mincing steps.

In 1797 there was but one umbrella in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and the owner of it made many a proud penny renting it out by the hour to cautious persons who happened to be caught out in the rain. The person who umbrellas were so slow to become generally adopted probably was because people of means did not travel on foot, so had not great need of umbrellas, and those without means did not possess clothing so fine that it must be protected from the rain.

Women carried umbrellas long before men would deign to adopt them. It was considered unmanly, and rather below the dignity of the hardy man to go about under the shelter of a flimsy umbrella.

Cool Impertinence.

A certain Scotsman travelling in a smoking compartment the other day, and at a certain station a foreigner got into the carriage, and took his seat opposite to him. When the train had started, the foreigner, noticing the other's havana, inquired if he could oblige him with a cigar. The Englishman, quite enraged at the request, reluctantly pulled out his case, and saw with disgust the other select the best cigar he could find, and, producing a match from his pocket and lighting it. After taking a few puffs, he turned to the astonished foreigner, beaming at his companion through his spectacles, continued affably, "I would not half droubled you, but I had a match in mein bocket, mein dear, and did not know as I had." Conversation flagged considerably for the remainder of the journey.

Aye, No Poot.

An American and a Scotsman were having a discussion on success in life. Said the former: "Success is easier than most people think. Why, when I was a young man I knew a youth who got a job in a big city hotel, and it wasn't long before he owned the whole place." The Scotsman sagely nodded his head. "Aye, no doot," he said, "but even then they've invented cash registers."

Sheep Are Popular.

Sheep seem to be more in favour at the present time than some other classes of live stock. A number of farmers intend increasing the size of their flocks. Wool prices are satisfactory and lambs have sold well this spring. Farmers who have recently installed modern cement dipping tanks are Cyrus Miller, Geo. W. Lucas, and Alva Emberley. Demonstrations in sheep dipping were conducted by E. D. McGreer, of the Dominion Live Stock Branch, and J. Laughland, Agricultural Representative.

WILSON AND HIS BARBER.

Woodrow Found to Have Been "Human" Person.

Woodrow Wilson is found to have been a "human" person, after all. It is his barber who tells it. In a barber shop on Nassau street, Washington, is a portrait which hundreds have come to gaze upon, not because it is a likeness of Wilson, but because of the inscription underneath, which reads:

"To my old friend, Will Durner, affectionately, Woodrow Wilson. March 12, 1922."

Durner was his barber.

"He had a tender spot on his jaw, which usually bled profusely when ever he shaved himself; and I had the same sort of luck," said Durner. "But he never complained about it. The Saturday night before his inauguration he came into the shop for a moment, and said:

"'Will, I propose that you and I break a couple of rules, though if you don't care to, I will not insist. The fact is that I need a haircut, and I have had not time recently. I must have my hair cut before I go to Washington.'

"On Sunday afternoon, therefore, after the Wilson family had finished luncheon, Durner appeared at the house, and trimmed the Presidential locks. Wilson commenting on the weather and its vagaries, and humorously bemoaning the fact that he had led Durner to break two rules, one not to labor on the Sabbath, and the other not to work after hours.

"When he visited Princeton thereafter he made it a point to come and shake hands with Durner, leaving his bodyguard outside.

"'I'll say he was human,' says Durner.

Trees That Play Tricks.

Nature certainly has a sense of humor at times, and has often been known to play wonderful tricks with trees.

Evidently the long neck of the giraffe struck her as a joke that would bear repeating, for she has copied it almost to perfection in Key West, Florida. There, in what is known as Maloney's Garden, is to be seen the giraffe-tree, a date-palm grafted on to a fig-tree.

The graft has taken place about five feet from the ground, and in order to support it the fig-tree has flung several roots across and around it. The date-palm has curved downwards and upwards until it presents a faithful copy of a giraffe's neck, at the top of which shoot out the orthodox leaves, corresponding on its left with those of the fig-tree.

The Siamese Twins offered nature a chance too good to be lost, and she has reproduced them many a time in the tree family. There was a tree of this kind at Paignton, in Devon, England, and in the United States there are two splendid specimens.

At Sterling, in Massachusetts, two great oaks are solidly joined by a transversal branch or trunk a yard long and as thick as a man's body; while in New York State there are two ash-trees joined by a thick branch which connites their trunks (distant one from the other more than twenty feet) at a considerable height from the ground.

Some years ago nature discovered a disused quarantine chimney in Slam. Very soon a green branch was seen peering out of the top of the chimney, and it rapidly became a bouquet of greenery. The whole thing looked like an immense flower-vase, but it is more than likely that by this time the roots inside the chimney have burst the brickwork, and that the "vase" has crumbled away.

SHELLFISH SHELLS ITS SHELL.

Crab Always Becoming Too Big For Its Clothes.

The growing crab or lobster is always getting into physiological difficulties—it is always becoming too big for its clothes.

Hence the necessity of moulting. A spurt of growth takes place immediately after the casting of the old article, before the new one has had time to harden.

The moulting of the cuticle is very horouchsuing, writes Prof. Thomson. The muscles of the limbs have to be drawn out of their encasements, and the tendons, which are non-living strips of chitin, have to be left behind. The covering of the eye has to come off and the lining of the ear has to be surrendered.

The elaborate mill or gizzard inside the animal arises in development as an infolding of the outer skin, and it follows that its cuticular lining, with grinding teeth and slitting bristles, has also to be relinquished. As a matter of fact, the lining of the gizzard breaks down and is ejected with the skeleton, whereas in the latter they are inside.

The skeleton of a backboned animal is a living-growing skeleton; that of a crab or lobster, beetle or scorpion, is non-living and non-growing. Yet if any animal have "growing pains," the moulters must surely have them.

Another aspect of the case is the parlous state of the animal just after moulting. It is soft like wet cloth, and at the mercy of its enemies. Naturally enough it retires from public life at this time and makes the moulting a private affair as possible. It is safe to say that very few people in Britain have ever seen a lobster moult. And apart from these risks, what a state the creature is in! It has lost its covering of the eye, the lining of the ear, and the tendons of its muscles. It has dismantled its gizzard and given away its jaws. To stand on its own legs is out of the question; it lies low and says nothing.

The ghost or moult is soon washed away and broken against the rocks. We find its minute fragments in the sand. The flabby crab, unable to move or eat, grows at the expense of animal starch and other stores which were accumulated in its body before the moulting began.

But the growth must be rapid, for the skin soon begins to secrete a new armor of chitin and of lime.

Presentations for Week of July 11th to 17th

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER," that classic of humor and drama, contains a scene of infinite pathos and one which has brought tears to many eyes. The setting is Wasserbauer's Cafe, which is patronized by many persons of Russian ancestry. Also a good Comedy.

Saturday, July 12th, show will run continuous from 12 o'clock.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

They're all in BUSTER KEATON'S big feature of 7 reels, "OUR HOSPITALITY." They filled Buster with chicken in the pantry and then tried to fill him with buckshot in the back yard. Was that hospitality?

Also a Special 2-reel Comedy.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

BIG DOUBLE SHOW—Two Features and a Good Comedy.

Donnegan, the red-headed hero of "THE VAGABOND TRAIL," had a temper to match his hair, but there is nothing temperamental about CHARLIE JONES, who plays the role.

Also another good feature, of special interest to parents and their children. Should a young man or a girl disobey the wishes of the parents in matters of love? Can a mother and father bring happiness by commanding their children to give up their hearts before? This question is vitally answered in "EAST SIDE, WEST SIDE."

THE BOYS' CAMP

When the Boys' Camp, which has been held at Varty Lake, came to an end on Wednesday, the feeling among the boys was that the time spent under canvas had been all too short. And yet it was as long as those in charge of it cared to be away from their work and perhaps as long as it was advisable for most of the boys themselves.

The idea of the camp was to give the boys of the County a ten days' outing, which combined with it a helpful holiday and as well a good deal of information and instruction in many branches of knowledge which it is almost impossible to get under any other circumstances. From seven in the morning until nine-thirty at night the programme of work and play for the boys was carefully worked out and adhered to as strictly as occasion would permit. The study and identification of birds and trees of the district, instruction in swimming and life saving, camp craft and instruction in the preparation and care of tents, and of camp meals formed part of the programme. The religious side was not neglected, as a period of Bible study under a capable group leader, was held daily. Baseball, running, jumping and other forms of track events, met the athletic side of the boy's nature.

On the closing afternoon a track meet was held, to which the public was invited, and a large number of people from various parts of the County were present. And though the rain interfered somewhat, yet all the events were run off with the precision, were well contested, and enjoyed both by the spectators and the contestants. The rain did not interfere with the swimming tests which continued to hold the centre of interest right up to the last minute. For the results, one cannot but place the value of such a camp. That ten boys who had never been able to swim a stroke before, turned during the two weeks, shows that at least in this sphere the work was not in vain. Boys from the town rubbed shoulders and matched wits and limbs with the boys from the country, which was of undoubted value, friendships were made which will not be easily broken. And the leaders learned some things. They learned that a boys' camp can be run successfully in this district, and that it has the backing of the public. They also learned that it can be run more economically if the food is purchased by a central board than if some bring their own food in baskets, and they propose to recommend alone that line for the guidance of future leaders.

The total weekend expense of the camp was in the neighborhood of $115.00, of this the contributions and accounts for about $90.00, leaving the rest to be met by interested parties. A strict account of all receipts was kept and an audited account will be presented in due time.

THE LATE A. S. KIMMERLY

Death came suddenly on Monday afternoon last to one of Napanee's most successful business men and representative citizens, in the person of Amos Scott Kimmerly, who was stricken at his home with heart failure.

Deceased was in his 66th year. He was born in Richmond Township, but had lived practically all his life in Napanee, where for the past forty years he had been engaged in business, as grocer and flour and feed dealer, carrying on an extensive trade. Three months ago his health failed him, and since that time he had been confined to the house, although able to be around and take daily walks in the garden.

The funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were conducted at the house by the Rev. Mr. Tanton and the Masonic ritual, which deceased was a member. A large number of citizens paid tribute to the memory of deceased as a worthy citizen of the town, after which burial took place in Riverview cemetery.

The subject of this sketch was talented as few men are. In his younger days he was a noted local athlete, and in the 80's when track and field sports were the main features at celebrations in Napanee and towns adjacent Amos Kimmerly carried off the bulk of the prizes.

As a rifle shot he ranked with the most skilled marksmen in Canada. In 1885-86-87 he was on the Wimbledon and Bisley teams that went to England from Canada to try competition at the target with other marksmen in the British Empire. He won numerous prizes, and one year was awarded the Prince of Wales' Grand Prize. This prize was personally presented by the Prince of Wales (afterwards King Edward VII.)

As a musician, the late A. S. Kimmerly's talents as a violinist and cornet soloist, was well known to the people of the town and county. His connection with the Napanee Band covered a period of forty years.

In affairs of the town, up to a few years ago, he took a prominent part, and for eight years was a member of the Town Council, finally being elected Mayor by the largest majority ever given a candidate for that office in Napanee. He was Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee when Napanee established its own electric light plant, and to the efforts of deceased was largely due the effective lighting system installed at that time.

In business those who had dealings with him respected him for his straightforward business—his word was as good as his bond.

In 1871 deceased married Mary J. Simmons, who, with two sons and two daughters also surviving are one son, Arthur, of Napanee, and Edith, being associated with him in business.

The deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved widow, son and sisters.

LATE MRS. JAMES REID

The sudden death on Friday last of Mrs. James Reid, of John St., came as a shock to the community. Mrs. Reid had been in ill health for a number of weeks, but had improved sufficiently to be around the house again, and it was hoped that she had recovered completely, when the end came in an altogether unexpected manner.

Mrs. Reid, formerly Miss Elizabeth Hutchison, was the youngest daughter of the late James Harkness, of Sheffield. Only one of the large family now remains, Miss Fannie Harkness, of Renfrew. In January, 1877, Miss Harkness was married by Rev. Mr. Schanzell, to Mr. James Reid, and they immediately took up housekeeping in Camden on the Lake Road, a mile East of Centreville, where they continued to reside until their removal to Napanee in 1909, when Mr. Reid was appointed County Registrar.

Mr. Reid was for many years a prominent figure in Municipal and Provincial politics, and represented the constituency in the Ontario House from 1890 until 1905. And during all that long period he was elected by the four elections and the worry contingent on his public position, Mrs. Reid was a real helpmeet to her husband, and by her encouragement, assistance and ready thoughtfulness served the community in a very real though inconspicuous manner.

Of late years the family residence has been prevented by taking an active interest in public affairs, and in the affairs of the Church. But in the home and in the neighborhood she still retained her unselfish helpfulness, and will be greatly missed by all who knew her. Bereaved by her husband who survives, and who throughout their married life had looked so much to her for help and advice, and by her son, Stanley, the present Registrar of the County.

The funeral was held from her late home on John St., on Sunday afternoon. Service was conducted by the Pastor of St. Andrews' Church, of which Mrs. Reid had been a member since her residence here. The many floral tokens and the large and representative gathering of her attendance were a fitting testimony to the esteem in which she was held by the public. The sympathy of the community goes out to the family in their bereavement.

NEWBURGH

How much we are dependant on the weather; how many conversations are introduced with it as the subject. We talk about its cold, its heart, its brightness, its dullness, its rain, and its dryness. The weather supplies many of our needs, not the least is furnishing us with a subject of conversation. In this regard it relieves what sometimes might be an embarrassing situation; it helps us to attain common ground. We can talk about how it effects our rheumatic joints, how it effects the crops, our sports, our social gatherings and divine worship, and there is not anything that it effects more than the last named. What a boon the weather is to the bashful swain who seeks converse with his lady love. It is such an ever present perpetual thing. Baseball and hockey and things of that kind will come and go, but the weather goes on forever. Then we talk about the opportunity of appearing wise with regard to its changes. It is a dull day when there are none to tell us what the weather is going to be, and all kinds of signs are quoted in proof of their prognostications, which puts us in mind of the old school days when we recited

"Hark how the chairs and tables crack,
Old Betty's joints are on the rack,
My dog's to altered in his taste
Quits mutton bones on grass to feast."

The weather in Canada furnishes such a variety that life can never be monotonous.

The School Board met in regular monthly session on Monday night. There was a rather heavy docket of business. The question of re-roofing the school building and the re-roofing of three teachers, two in the High School and one in the Public School, Mr. Andrews, Principal of the High School; Miss Crough, Science teacher, and Miss Bowen, of the Public School, are not expected back after the holidays.

Mr. Geo. Stone, who has been living with his aunt, Mrs. Ferris, is, we understand, about to set up an establishment of his own.

Three flower thieves, who have been operating in the South end of the village, would have reaped a larger harvest in Selby's gardens, were we told are whole gardens of stone that have sprung up from grass roots. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ash, of Toronto, were visitors in Newburgh and Wilton over the week end. Mr. and Mrs. Ash are old residents of Newburgh.

Miss Lela Loucks, of Kingston, is spending holidays with her mother here.

Mrs. Sam Galbraith, of Lindsay, was calling on friends here on Monday.

Rev. Roy Wartman and family have gone to Sydenham Lake to spend a couple of weeks. Mr. Wartman's many friends hope they will be taken by Mr. Richardson, of Yarker, during his absence.

MORVEN

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur McKnight, of Selby, visited Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Lake on Sunday last.—Rev. W. R. Merrick spent a few days at the Boys' Camp at Varty Lake.—Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Beck, of the South end of Lake, spent Sunday in town, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Knight.—Mr. and Mrs. John Millan, of Napanee Mills and Miss N. Richardson spent the week end at Mr. Alex. Millar's.—Mrs. Dempsey, who has been suffering from an attack of pleurisy, is much improved.—The strawberry festival was a grand success, the proceeds amounting to $111.60.—Our Sunday night service was well attended. Among the congregation were several visitors from each of the following places: Napanee, Newburgh, Odessa, Switzerville, Fourth Line and Wilton.—The League meetings are withdrawn for the summer.—The funeral of the late LeRoy Smith, which took place from the Wesley Church on Sunday last, was largely attended. The service was in charge of the Rev. A. J. Terrill, who gave a very impressive sermon, while the Rev. W. R. Merrick spoke a few words of comfort and love for the deceased, including in his remarks a memorial for the sister, Mrs. S. Smith, a favorite selection of the two departed, entitled "That Beautiful Land". The family pew, from which five members have passed into the Great Beyond during the past six years, was draped in mourning. At the close of the service, the Masonic Order took charge and the remains were laid away in the family plot.

OBITUARY

Miss Martha Johnson.

Death came very suddenly to Miss Martha Johnson, on July 8th, 1924, at her home, half mile West of Camden East, where she lived alone. She was found dead on the floor about 10 o'clock, by a friend who often called on her. She had been in very poor health for the past year. She was a maiden lady, aged about 68 years, very highly respected and loved by a host of friends. Her trouble was the cause of her death. The funeral was held on July 9th, at 3 o'clock, from her residence, her Pastor, Rev. Mr. Nickle, of Newburgh, officiating. Mr. Nickle visited her regularly during her illness, she not being able to attend church. She was a Methodist in religion. She leaves to mourn her loss, one sister, Mrs. Charles, of Morven, and several nieces. The remains were laid in the family plot in Camden East burying ground beside her parents and relatives who predeceased her. A large crowd attended the funeral.

The Glorious Twelfth

Napanee and district Orangemen, with their wives and families, numbering about 10,000, staged the largest glorious twelfth celebration in the history of Napanee, on Saturday last, in the Driving Park. The lodges formed at the Armories and paraded to the Driving Park, headed by their bands.

Thousands lined the street and traffic was paralyzed through the central portion of the town for over an hour, while the members passed through. The parade was headed by the Belleville Highland Band with their bagpipes.

Addresses were given and the sports, baseball game, etc., were run off in the Park.

The Procession.

The following were the lodges in the procession:

Selby L.O.L. No. 2281 Selby;

J. A. Cooper, Camden East, ran an exhibition 100 yards dash at the Orange celebration in the Driving Park, on Saturday last. He established, we believe, a new local record by covering the distance in the splendid time of 10-3/5ths seconds or 2-5ths of a second worse than the Canadian record for the distance. His father, Mr. Thos. Cooper, acts as trainer.

ANDERSON

The strawberry social which was held at Andersen Church, on Tuesday evening, was a decided success. The Brooks family, of Bath, and Miss Milling, of Morven, gave the programme, which was very much enjoyed by all present. A great number from around here attended the 12th of July celebration in Napanee, on Saturday.—Mr. and Mrs. Garand and Mrs. R. Card and Master Douglas McBride were callers at Mr. J. Parks' on Monday evening. — Little Miss Alice Parks had the misfortune of getting her foot badly crushed on Monday evening by getting it caught in a bicycle wheel. Dr. Scatter was summoned and dressed the wound, which is doing nicely at present.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Armour, Mrs. E. Carscallen, of Deseronto, and Mrs. Ferguson, of Bracebridge, spent Friday at J. A. Armour's.—Mrs. Agnes Hawley at J. W. Galt's, Richmond, on Sunday afternoon.—Mr. A. Cawie, Perth, N.Y., who has been visiting at Mr. Conger's, left on Friday last for Belleville. WEDDING BELLS.

Miller—Vandervoort.

A wedding of much local interest owing to the position of the parties was celebrated at high noon on Thursday, July 10th, at the residence of Mrs. James Willis, on Concession 6, Ernestown, when her daughter, Miss Harriet Elizabeth, was united in marriage to Mr. Charles W. Vandervoort, of Napanee, Sheriff of the Counties of Lennox and Addington. Rev. M. R. Merrick, Methodist Pastor, performed the ceremony. The bride was given away by her brother, Mr. Harvey C. Miller.

Mrs. Fred Cliff played the wedding march and Mrs. Herb File contributed a wedding solo. The bride was charming in a costume of tan georgette over old rose satin and carried a bouquet of roses and maiden hair ferns. Miss Dorothy Cliff of Kingston carried a basket of white roses. After the ceremony the guests partook of a daintily prepared luncheon, the Sheriff and his bride leaving during the afternoon on a wedding tour by automobile in which they will visit a number of the principal cities and places of the country.

"Ah," said the elderly tramp, giving his brimless hat a twirl, "education is a wonderful thing in one line of business."

"Why, whatever good would education be to us chaps?" asked the second road walker.

"I'll tell you," said the elderly tramp. "I was in Willesden one morning and knocked at the door of a tidy little villa. When the lady of the house came out to see who it was I quoted a little Shakespeare."

"Well ?"

"An' she replied with a little bacon."

A HUMORIST'S STORIES

AMUSING MEMORIES OF SOME FAMOUS PEOPLE.

Writer Tells Why Disraeli's Clothes Were Ill-fitting—Spanish Circus Rider With Cockney Accent—Forget Valuable Diamond—Soldier's Sarcasm.

One night King Edward (then Prince of Wales) attended a certain circus in Paris, and after the show inspected the stables. While his party was there, a bareback rider—described on the program as "Señorita Chiquita Alvarez, from Madrid"—passed on her way to her dressing-room, and seeing the prince was an Englishman, but, of course, not recognizing him, said, casually, with a very un-Castilian accent, "Bilmey, ain't it 'ot!"

The above is told in "Uncensored Recollections" (Nash and Grayson), the annonymous author of which also relates the following :—

Once the author asked Disraeli's (Lord Beaconsfield) tailor how it was he made his illustratious patron such ill-fitting clothes. "It isn't our fault," he replied; "we can't help it. Lady Beaconsfield always receives me alone; chooses herself the material and colors; then calls Mr. Disraeli in, who never opens his lips and goes out the moment we've taken his measurements; and then, when he's gone, Lady Beaconsfield always impresses on me not to pay any attention to the way Mr. Disraeli stoops, as she says, he doesn't always stoop, but to make the coat as if for a young man who stands upright! No wonder the clothes don't fit him!"

The old Duchesse de Duras once asked Montrond, the famous French wit: "In your opinion, what animal the most closely resembles man?"

Montrond reflected for a minute and then replied gravely, "The English,mn, Duchesse."

Charles Lever, the author, was asked by a certain host what he thought of the sherry, and replied that he "judged sherry by the odor, the color, and taste. Holding his glass aloft, he said: 'The color is good'; then, smelling it, said: 'The odor is —ahem—far from unpleasant.' He tasted it, hurriedly put the glass down, and said: "Would you kindly pass me the port?"

There was much laughter, and after it subsided the host urged the guest to tell him what was wrong with the sherry. "Well," said Lever, who had already had more than sufficient wine, "if you must know, colonel, that sherry tastes as if it had been drunk before!"

"Prince!" Anatole Demidoff, who owned the famous Sancy diamond, left the gem when he died to his nephew Paul, who used to walk about with it loose in his pocket as if it were merely a cigarette-case. One day he went to a friend's apartment and left all his valuables, including the diamond, as he was going to spend a night in the underworld of Paris.

These things, with the exception of the diamond, were made up into a parcel, which was given to Paul Demidoff's servant when he called next day; but the diamond was left to remain in the safe where it had been placed.

A week passed and no one called for the diamond. At last a minute person with whom the diamond had been left met Paul and remarked : "I suppose you noticed, Paul, I didn't send you back quite everything the other day? When are you going to send for it?"

Demidoff looked surprised for a moment, then exclaimed: "Send? you who have got my ticket for the Dog and Duck? Thank heaven! I thought I'd lost it."

"On another occasion," the author writes, "I was with that very harmless physician, Oscar Clayton, whose adoration of titles from King to Knight was famous, when Sir William (Gordon-Cumming) came in very hot and very cross. He was in the Scots Guards, and had been on duty all day at the Palace. Hanged if I don't check it," he exclaimed, 'thanking about there all day like an errand-boy!' Here Sir Oscar broke in: 'Been at the Palace, have you? Did you see my brougham at the door?' 'No,' said Cumming, 'Why? Were any of the servants ill?' "

Whence Came Spats.

Spats, were originally called "spatterdashes" and had their origin many years ago when men either wore riding boots or low shoes and stockings. The spatterdashes protected the legs and ankles from the mud which flew all too freely from passing feet and vehicles. With the adoption of trousers the spatterdash was cut down so as to shield the boot only instead of the whole stockinged leg. The original article still survives in the conservative gaiter of bishops, deans and archdeacons, all clerical dress being slow to change. The modern popularity of spats is largely due to the hero-worship of some years ago of the England prince of fashion, whose whim, of course, wore spats as part of their official uniform.

Vagaries of Hydrangeas.

Scientists have only recently discovered why the beautiful hydrangea changes its color in different localities. This nursery bath delusion, for many years, and at last has been found through tests to be due to acid in the soil. Some varieties of the plant bear pink flowers one season and blue the next. Often opposite shades appear in those growing within a few feet of each other. Explorers found a species of the growth in China that had blue blossoms, but when these were reset in France they produced pink petals. In Holland it was formerly rare to find blue ones, while in Germany they were either blue or some tint of red. It is said that with the recent discovery hydrangeas of any desired tint can be grown by simply treating the soil.

Know What He Was Up Against.

Lord Reading—better known to fame as Sir Rufus Isaaks—recently told the story of his first brief. He had been retained to defend a man, a street trader, who had been summoned for selling bad figs. Mr. Isaacs, as he then was, expatiated at length on the quality of the fruit, and in this he was, as was only natural, backed up by his client. Presently the magistrate intervened. "Had either of them tasted the fruit?" he asked. They both confessed that they had not. Whereupon the magistrate suggested that either the defendant or his counsel should eat some in court. Mr. Isaacs turned to his client: "Go on," he whispered; "eat one or two." "What will happen if I don't?" whispered the other in reply. "You'll lose the case." "All right," answered the defendant resignedly, "then I'll lose it."

Easier.

Private William Jenks wanted to slip out of barracks after hours so that he could have a few words with his girl before he left for another part of the country on the following morning.

Before he went he called round to see the sentry on duty so that he could find out the password, and, if possible, fix things up so that he would be able to get in again all right on his return.

"Well," replied the sentry, "I'll be off duty when you come back so I'll tell you the password. It's 'Idiosyncrasy.' "

"Idio what?"

"Idiosyncrasy."

Jenks scratched his head and then said slowly:

"Don't bother. I'll stay in barracks."

Costly Lessons.

The lesson of state-operated business in the United States is in exact accord with the similar experience obtained in Britain when during the war our Government departments embarked on vast trading schemes. In the majority of cases our officials bought at high prices and sold at higher prices with a total disregard for the consumer. Government coal and Government bacon will long be remembered for their badness. Business is not quite the simple matter that it seems to some amateurs, and of all people politicians appear worst qualified for its conduct. They live in an imaginary world, whereas the business man is up against realities. —London Daily Mail.

After all sorts of hints, which showed clearly that he might be of some use in the diplomatic service later on, Johnny had succeeded in extracting a dime from his indulgent mother. He failed to thank her, however, and she was annoyed at his display of bad manners.

"Johnny, you are most forgetful," she said. "I have given you a dime and you are simply rude. What do you say when you get something?"

"I can't say," was the reply.

"You can't say ? What do I say to daddy when he gives me money ?"

"Is that all?" quoted the knowing child.

GERMANY MAY ADOPT THE DOLLAR COINAGE

The dollar an international coin ? The proposal of the Federal Reserve Board that Germany adopt the dollar basis has stirred opposition in Europe. Bankers there argue against introducing an American coin. But the dollar is, oddly enough, not an American coin; it is a German coin. That is, speaking historically. In the same sense, it is a Spanish coin, and, further, it has made the nearest approach to universal money that the world has known. The story of the dollar is a tale of many times and many lands. Dollars were first minted before Columbus had raised the money to fit out his ships to cross the Atlantic. Quite possibly, when he did raise that money, dollars were included in the contents of the sack. The Chinese trader in Canton knew and handled the big silver cartwheels before the Pilgrims had sighted Plymouth Rock. Dollars were 300 years old when Congress adopted them for the national currency of the young United States, 138 years ago, says the New York Times.

Birthplace of the Dollar.

Germany might well readopt the dollar as hers originally one of her own native products. Joachimsthal, the coin's birthplace, lay for many centuries within the German Empire. To-day Joachimsthal is no longer German. It passed from Germany to Austria more than a century ago, and it became in 1918 a part of the new nation of Czecho-Slovakia. It is a little old Bohemian hill town a few miles northeast of Carlsbad and a short distance from the Saxon frontier. The inhabitants of the place used, in the Middle Ages, to enrich their lords and masters by mining silver and nickel from the depths of the Erzebirge. The feudal lord of the valley about 1486 was a certain Count Schlick. Being supplied with silver bullion from his own mines, he coined money on his own account. Having some distinctly modern ideas, he believed in what people to-day call a standardized product. When he minted a batch of coins, he did not vary the composition of the metal that went into them. Though there might be many broken pewter spoons in the castle scullery, he put an honest amount of silver into every coin. The Count had the further happy idea of turning out a bigger silver coin than most of the other potentates then were striking.

The Dollar Spreads.

The huge resulting demand must have found the Count wide awake and ready to do business, for in a few years his silver pieces, bearing a likeness of their maker charging in full armor on a caparisoned steed, began to pervade all the markets of Europe. They lost their name in their travels, however, and found a short-er one. People came to call them "joachimsthalers", and then simply "thalers". These became "daleru" in parts of the Low Countries, "doldres" in Antwerp, and in Spain "dollres". Thus our dollar derives its name from the German word, "thall", meaning "valley" or "dale", or "dell" and having no particular significance whatever. There was no effective trademark law to protect the name. Before long other owners of money began to pay tribute to the dollar's popularity by turning out dollars of their own. One of these competitors had a peculiar and unprecedented distinction. He was the Spanish monarch, he had acquired in Peru and Mexico the richest silver mines that the world had ever known. The Spanish colonial mints began coining dollars of unrivalled size, just to coin silver pieces resembling the joachimsthaler in weight and shape. These were the pieces of eight, famous in popular with the freebooters who later preyed on the Spanish silver fleet. They had about the same quantity of silver as that maintained by the United States silver dollar until after the last war. Their name indicated that they were worth eight Spanish reals. For years, they were usually called pesos in Spanish lands. But elsewhere the name of the dollar clung to them.

Spanish Dollars.

The Spanish peso or dollar went everywhere. It worked its way into the English colonies of North America. These suffered from an insufficiency of currency, a great that in Virginia, for example, tobacco by the pound was used in place of cash. Spain, meanwhile, was turning leave a seemingly endless supply of coined silver, and this reached the moneyless portions of the New World. The English colonies, on account of their connection with the Mother Country, reckoned their finances in pounds and shillings. As a traveller in Connecticut remarked, as early as 1704, that Spanish dollars were commonly used for considerable payments in cash. When Congress issued its paper currency to meet the needs of the revolutionary War, it issued notes in denominations of the Spanish dollar. Spain thus supplied the standard coin of our first national currency. American continental currency, equal to grief after the Revolution, but the habit of the dollar grew more firmly fixed. Even so, the pound and the shilling remained the lawful money of Connecticut until 1796, seventy years after the adoption of the Constitution and the institution of Federal dollar coinage. The rivalry between sterling and the dollar ran high, but in the end the dollar won. It owed its success partly to the anti-English sentiment that followed the War of Independence.

Various Names.

Under various names in a number of countries the Spanish dollar or peso has survived the fall of the Spanish Empire. Many of these countries have, like the United States, provided against the depreciation of silver by changing to the gold basis. The pesos of Argentina and Venezuela and the gourde of Haiti have a value of 96½ cents in our money. The Uruguayan peso is worth $1.03⅓. Canada's dollar has the same value as the American. So has that of Newfoundland, though until recently it was worth a cent and a half more. Perhaps the most curious dollar of the lot, on account of its remote home, is the talari of Abyssinia. It preserves a modified form of the name that originated in Joachimsthal, and is worth about 97 cents.

H. M. CHURCH "VERNON."

Warship Was Used As a Place of Worship.

The Bishop of Winchester recently dedicated as a church, at the Gun Wharf at Portsmouth, "a portion of the new naval establishment known as H.M.S. Vernon."

The altar-posts of this little edifice are actually wrought from the capstan-bars of the original Vernon, and thereby hangs this tale of the sea.

Edward Vernon, known in later life as "Old Grog" because he was the first to introduce the grog ration into the Royal Navy, was born in Westminster in 1684, and educated at Westminster School under the celebrated Dr. Busby. So keen was he on a naval career that his schoolfellows nicknamed him "Admiral Vernon." He got his wish, for we find him at sea a lad under Admiral Hopson in the Torbay.

At eighteen he nearly lost his life in the burning of the French and Spanish galleons in Vigo Bay. A fireship ran down on the Torbay, which must have been destroyed but for the happy chance that the fireship was a merchantman laden with naval stores, which suffocated the flames!

Promotion was quick for Vernon, and the treaty of Utrecht in 1713 found him a captain. He was then elected M.P. for Penrhyn, and, with George II. on the throne and Walpole Prime Minister, he bitterly opposed the latter's policy of peace. War broke out again in 1739.

Now, Vernon had been heard to boast that he would reduce the Spanish West Indian strongholds of Porto Bello with no more than six sail-of-the-line. (It was a sore subject, Admiral Horler and three thousand British sailors having perished from disease in 1727 without so clear the place.)

Walpole determined to take him at his word, and appointed him Admiral of the Blue and Commander-in-Chief in the West Indies. With his flag in the Burford, he accordingly sailed from Jamaica with only six cruisers and the frigate Sheerness.

At the head of this small squadron, Vernon actually compelled the surrender of the Spanish garrison, shipping, and so on, in a single day, and with a total loss to himself of twenty killed and wounded!—of which casualties eight were in the fireship, the Burford.

One of his ships, the Hampton Court, fired four hundred shots in twenty-five minutes—not such bad "going" for the days of muzzle-loading cannon. The date was November 21st, 1739. Vernon, the hero of the hour, was thanked by both Houses of Parliament and voted the Freedom of London.

A year later we find Edward Vernon in command of a great fleet of thirty-one sail ("by far the most powerful that had ever sailed the American seas") for the reduction of the rest of the Spanish-American colonies.

Thanks, however, to vexatious delays, resultant disease, and the incompetence of Gen. Wentworth, commanding the expeditionary force, this enterprise came to nought. The chief leaders were recalled in 1742, but, says a famous naval writer, "then the sole command had been in Vernon's hands, the whole of the Spanish possessions in the West Indies must have been conquered." He died in retirement in 1757.

At the Crossroads of the Pacific.

"The Hawaiian Islands, the crossroads of the Pacific, are the most isolated inhabited islands in the world, more than 2,000 miles from their nearest neighbor, California," writes Gilbert Grosvenor in the National Geographic Magazine.

The peoples who occupied these islands for untold centuries before the first white man came there to be called, because of their daring ventures at sea, the Vikings of the Pacific. They went to sea "in canoes hollowed out of single logs by tools cunningly made of rock and hard lava. They had no metals. Some of the canoes made on the islands were seventy feet long and could carry fifty or more men. The giant koa trees from which they were fashioned were cut high up on the mountains, painfully and laboriously, with stone axes and then, with rope made of vines, dragged shoreward by hundreds of willing hands.

"It is believed the Polynesian race, to which the Hawaiians belong, originated in India. Their voyages across the pathless seas rival those of the Vikings. With no compass to assist them and with only the stars and sun to guide them, they broke through the skyline to journey 2,000, 3,000 miles in their frail but unsinkable craft."

While Europe Used Rushes.

While the Boers of European residents were covered with mats of matting, as a means of adding to warmth and comfort, carpets were in common use in China, India and Egypt. The first carpets were in reality rugs to sit upon, taking the place of chairs. In Homer's time, either plain or embroidered carpets were spread before the feet of the guests in Greek houses. Later on rich and gay carpets were imported to Greece from Babylon. These carpets had raised figures of men and animals and were made in gorgeous colors. In later Roman times carpets were imported from the Orient.

Paper Durable.

Paper, when tightly compressed, is wonderfully durable. The wheels of a Pullman car are made of this material. The body of each wheel is a block of paper about four inches thick. Around this is a steel rim, and it is this, of course, which comes in contact with the rails. The sides are covered with circular iron plates, bolted on.

Fall of Ancient Rome.

The crucial point in the history of Rome occurred in the thirty years following the year 275 B.C. Her aggressive policy in the Mediterranean brought her face to face with Carthage, and, under their military genius, Hannibal, the Carthegenians threatened the very existence of Rome itself. Carthage, however, was finally burned to the ground. By 133 B.C., Rome had conquered Macedonia and Asia Minor. At this point began the decline of Rome as a republic. A series of bitter civil wars contributed the governing power in the hands of a few leaders, and in 48 B.C. Julius Caesar was created Imperator. With Caesar the republic and Rome's Augustan Age came to an end. Under the republic the power of Rome had been extended from Arabia to Great Britain, and from Spain to Armenia. In 27 B.C., Octvius became Emperor of Rome, under the title of Augustus. His immediate successors added slightly to Roman territory, but under their administration decline, caused possibly by dissensions in various parts of the empire, began. From A.D. 180 to 284 Rome grew gradually weaker. In the latter year Diocletian re-established the empire, and for over 100 years these reforms delayed the inevitable disruption, but in 395 the empire separated into two divisions—the Eastern, or Byzantine, and the Western—and in 476 the Western, or Roman, Empire, was finally overthrown, and Odoacar, a German, became King of Italy.

Balkan Men Wear Skirts.

The natives of Transylvania wear a very distinctive costume. The men cling tenaciously to the skirt, which is part of their national garb and have resisted all attempts of the Roumanians to deprive them of their hand-embroidered shirtwaists and lace-trimmed petticoats. They declare that trousers and coats are unsightly as well as unsanitary and unbecoming, and they have given notice to the Roumanian authorities that they will brook no interference with their traditional habits of dress.

In this part of the Balkans the garment of the women is no less distinctive than that of the men. Well-to-do native girls wear garments made of solid gold coins over rich lace embroidery. The coins are handed down to them as heirlooms in each generation the generation, the number and weight of the gold pieces being a sure sign to the outside world of the degree of opulence of the wearer and an ever-present incentive to the neighboring swains to marry her.

Prepared,

Entering a bar in Montmartre, a Parisian came upon a heated argument between the bartender and a customer.

The latter was holding a counterfeit 10-franc note in his hand and gesticulating wildly.

"You have given me this fake note," he shouted, "and I want good money for it, or I'll have you arrested."

But the bartender was imperturbable. He simply pointed to a sign behind him, which read:

"We do not take back counterfeit money."

MAGIC OF THE MALAYS.

Black Art Is Largely Practiced By Native Doctors.

The black art is largely practiced among the Malays. Indeed, it is an accomplishment of which they are very proud.

So highly do the natives of Perak revere the necromancer, or bomor, that many are willing to make great sacrifices and to undergo great suffering in order to acquire proficiency.

Self-immolation is required of all those who seek to practice the art; some live the life of a recluse, others leave their homes only at night. Not though the uninitiated may run shoulders with a bomor without knowing it, the latter's eye can read a single him out.

The range of the bomor's practice is wide, for he is considered to have power to do anything, from curing a fever to making a man mad; but it is as a doctor that his services are generally enlisted.

Perhaps a boy falls into a bog while playing in the fields, and, after he has been rescued, shows symptoms of fever. The bomor is hastily sent for.

After diagnosing the case, he calls for a candle, a plate of betel-leaf, betel-nut, and lime. He lights the candle, after fixing it firmly to the plate, and gazes at it with moving lips.

In a few minutes he turns to the family and says that the boy's spirit has fled. Calling for a pail of water, he chants over it, and then says that if the boy is bathed with it he will recover. Having then prepared a talisman for the boy to wear, he leaves the house.

It may happen, perhaps, that one of the children cries at night. Although this is probably due to indigestion, the mother suspects some evil spirit. The bomor's services are again enlisted, and he confirms her opinion.

Calling for betel-leaf and ginger, he chews them and blows some of the mixture over the child's body. Then, still chewing, he retreats to the door, where he ejects the remainder of the mixture and quickly closes the door. This has blown the spirit away; it then only remains to guard the child with some talisman.

To clear a haunted house the bomor holds a seance. Chanting before a candle, he slowly loses consciousness, and then, while in a trance and roaring like a lion, he goes chasing round the house until he falls in a faint at the door. This shows that the house has been cleared.

From such seances cats and dogs are generally excluded—in case the bomor should eat them while he is in his trance. Were he to do so he would become a tiger or some other wild beast!

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of my wife, Mrs. Russell Holland, who departed this life July 11th, 1923.

Feeding the Shark-God.

Shark worshippers on the Island of Savo, an extinct volcano of the Solomon group, have made man-eaters of their finny deity by casting their dead into the sea. The dread and awe of the natives for their voracious shark-god is such that cases have been known where an incautious native swimmer, attacked and wounded by a shark, has managed to struggle to the rocky beach, only to be pushed back again into the sea by his superstitious friends. One man was attacked by a shark, and in spite of a severed left arm managed to reach the shore, whereupon he was promptly pushed back again by some natives. The shark, having swallowed his arm, proceeded to detach his right leg, but again, incredible as it may seem, he struggled ashore. This time his friends evidently decided that a wing and a leg was not an unreasonable offering to make, and they allowed him to crawl up the beach into safety. Even more remarkable is the fact that in spite of his terrible wounds the man is well on his way to recovery.

The Winner.

There was a good attendance at the annual dinner of "The Old Sports Club." The chairman announced that he was going to introduce a novel competition.

"A handsome gold watch will be presented to the member who succeeds in telling the biggest fib," he said.

All sorts of strange and wildly improbable yarns were told, and at last it was the turn for Porkins, a man with a mania for fishing.

"I am afraid that I must decline to enter this contest," he said.

"On what grounds?" came a chorus of voices.

"On principle," replied Porkins, proudly. "I never tell lies!"

The chairman handed him the watch.

"You've won," he said.—Tit-Bits.

A KING SENT TO COVENTRY.

How Nobility Boycotted Spanish Court With Success.

It is interesting to recall that a Court was once boycotted with complete success, not by sturdy Republicans, but by blue-blooded aristocrats.

The place was Spain, and the time was the early seventies of the last century. Isabella II. had been bundled off the throne and over the frontier because of her levity. The second son of King Victor Emmanuel, Amadeo, Duke of Aosta, consented, after much persuasion, to become King of Spain in her place.

He meant well. No country ever had a more conscientious ruler. But he was, though he did not know it, the nominee of a faction; and that faction did not include the old families and the leaders of society.

All these were friends of the frivolous Isabella; and they swore a solemn oath that, as they were not powerful enough to drive Amadeo out, they would freeze him out by a campaign of slights and insults.

The trouble began because Amadeo's political supporters, though not "in society," insisted upon being asked to his parties. As soon as they received their invitations (writes Francis Gribble in John o' London's Weekly) the aristocracy gave the King to understand that they really could not frequent a palace in which they would be expected to associate with people of that sort. Parties, however, had still to be given, and the royal reception rooms had, somehow or other, to be filled.

As they could not be filled with dukes and duchesses, they had to be filled with butchers, and bakers, and candlestick-makers and their ladies. These, unfortunately, knew neither how to behave nor how to dress at drawing rooms and levees; and the climax was reached when one of the butchers—or perhaps it was one of the bakers or candlestick-makers—bought a new boiled shirt to wear when attending the ceremony to which he had been bidden.

It was a beautiful boiled shirt—the best that money could buy. It was delivered in a beautiful box; and the box was embellished with a beautiful pink paper frill.

Unhappily, the purchaser did not understand that the paper frill was intended only to adorn the box. He imagined it to be an integral part of the shirt, added to it to enable the wearer to make a braver show. He put it on together with the shirt; and he was still wearing it, together with the shirt, when he made his bow to the King.

That was one of the stories which delighted Isabella in her exile. She was even more delighted with the story of the unsuccessful attempt of Amadeo's Queen to conciliate feminine opinion by reviving an old Spanish fashion.

Her majesty caused it to be announced that, on a certain festive day, she proposed to wear that beautiful old Spanish garment, the white lace mantilla. Her expectation was that all her subjects would be pleased, and that everybody who was anybody in Madrid would follow her example.

But that was not what befell. On the contrary, the scions of the aristocracy realized that Queen Maria Victoria had delivered herself into their hands. They bought up all the white lace mantillas to be found in the shops. They collected all the notorious women of Madrid, attired them in these white lace mantillas, and sent them to the Prado in carriages; while all the fashionable women by common consent wore black.

Many other annoying things had happened; but the incident of the lace mantillas seems to have been the last straw. It decided Amadeo to abdicate; but even the announcement of that decision brought no revival of politeness.

On the day of the King's departure there was no guard of honor either in the streets or at the railway station —only a few police-constables to make sure that he really went. No special train was provided, and the party was crowded into an ordinary first-class carriage.

Increase Diamond's Brilliancy.

The scintillating brilliance of diamonds is to be increased fourfold, and stones lessened in cost, if the invention of two Antwerp gem cutters is perfected. Working in a gloomy, poorly equipped shop, these men, whose names have not been revealed, suddenly decided that progress in their art had not kept pace with other industrial science. After six months' research, often working till nearly daybreak, they found a method of cutting and polishing diamonds which gives 145 reflections, instead of the usual 175, besides yielding a fire that had not been obtained since the days of ancient Egypt. Moreover, under this process, the rough stone loses almost nothing in its cutting and the smallest chips may be made to glow as brightly as any princely gift of several carats.

They Love Catnip.

We have all heard that cats like catnip. It remained for government scientists to apply this knowledge practically to the big cats. They found the hunting of mountain lions and bobcats with dogs and guns to prevent destruction of western cattle was an expensive proposition. Then they thought of catnip. Large quantities of this aromatic herb were raised. From this, chemists extracted the oil which gives it its odor. Now it is no longer necessary to look up the lions, they walk right into traps scented with catnip oil.

Ruthenians.

Ruthenians is the name given to "Little Russian" Christians, who formerly lived in Eastern Austria and Southeastern Poland. They use the Greek liturgy, translated into Old Slavonic, but at the same time profess obedience to the pope in some matters. They are descendants of converts from the Russian church. They have a married secular clergy, and follows the rules of St. Basil.

OSHEA.

Was Outstanding Figure In the Old Old Testament.

A young man of the family of Joseph, Oshea or Hosea by name, was evidently an outstanding figure among the Israelites, Moses led out of the land of Egypt. Moses attached him to his own familiar circle, as a personal attendant, and as such he accompanied him up Mount Sinai, when the organization of the Israelites into a church and nation was under way, and Moses was seeking Divine help for that momentous task.

At the time when a hostile army of Amalekites attacked the people at Rephidim, an oasis in the wilderness, it was this same young man who led the forces of Israel to successful combat against them.

Some years later he and eleven others were sent into the Promised Land to find out the military situation and the commercial prospects in that country. On this occasion his name was changed from Oshea, or "Salvation," to Jehoshua, or "Salvation of the Lord." This was shortened to Joshua, of which Hebrew name Jesus is the Greek form, as New Testament students will remember from Herb. iv., 8. "For if Jesus had given them rest, etc."

Joshua and his friend Caleb (or The Dog, as his name runs in Hebrew), were the only spies to bring back a good report of the Promised Land, expressing confidence in the power of Jehovah to enable Israel to conquer it. The people gave themselves up to despair upon receiving the bad report of the ten, and the result was a turning back to the desert and a wandering from camping spot to camping spot for thirty-six weary years. In that period, all the people who were of mature age on leaving Egypt, excepting only Joshua and Caleb, died.

When the Israelites, hardened and disciplined by long experience in the Arabian desert, had made their way into the Land of Gilead and the other countries on the east side of Jordan, and had by military prowess taken and occupied them, they were at last encouraged to believe it was intended by Divine Providence to believe that they really should enter and occupy the Promised Land.

Moses, now a very old man, although still still stalwart and of keen vision, was given a divine premonition of approaching death. He was not, after all, to lead his people across Jordan. To Joshua, his field commander of forces, was committed by him the leadership of the Israelites after he should have finished his course. A committee was appointed to divide the Promised Land among the tribes, and Joshua and Eleazar the High Priest, son of his brother Aaron were to be at the head of it.

The loss of the aged Moses, who had succeeded, after incredible difficulties, in bringing Israel and its now well-trained formidable armies all the way from Egypt by forty years of travelling to the confines of their new country, must have appeared irreparable to Joshua and his people. That historical book which bears his name, and may have been, in part at least, dictated by him, tells us that at this juncture Joshua received a special assurance from heaven that Jehovah, who had been with Moseth and stay of Moses, would in like manner be with him to ensure his success. "Only be thou strong and very courageous," was the divine message. Stout-hearted courage and careful wisdom, were Joshua's characteristics. We never read of personal failure, or of frailty on his part. A good, valiant, God-fearing soldier and commander, he came as a good example of the truth that God never lacks a man to carry on His own work.

Once, to encourage his people to completa a victory, he called for a lengthening of the hours of daylight, and in some way, which he considered miraculous, the boon was granted. Joshua, or some contemporary historian, simply records the fact: "And there was no day like that before it or after it, that the Lord hearkened unto the voice of a man; for the Lord fought for Israel." Thus did Joshua ascribe to God all the glory of his victory. So, did Queen Elizabeth, when her fleets had defeated the great Spanish Armada, inscribe upon the medal commemorating the victory: "He blew with His winds and scattered them!"

According to a later writer, who recalls a prophetical saying of Joshua not recorded in the Scriptures, he solemnly accursed the site of Jericho, the first of the Canaanitish cities to be taken, and foretold that whoever should rebuild the city should lose his first born as he laid the foundation, and his other youngest son as he finished the walls and set up the gates in it. Which things actually came to pass many years after, as recorded in 1 Kings, xvii., 34.

Joshua conquered the Land of Canaan for his people after long warfare, reimposed the liturgical and moral laws making the nation the church, or visible representation of the one true God, saw Israel settled in its own good land, and then retired to his own obscure estate in a rocky, hilly country, a poor, but exceedingly valiable and valiant simple-hearted man.

While he was carrying on his great military work, the Pharaoh in Egypt is sai dto have been called Tutankhamen, whose sarcophagus-chamber has just been opened. No man knows where Joshua's body was buried, but the precious gold and furnishings of the Egyptian tomb have momentarily recalled the name of one, once a great king, who lived and died, Joshua's name "liveth for evermore. And a little girl, "it's a true child." A small boy in the back row saw by the teacher's frown that the answer was wrong. "Please, ma'am," he shouted, "it's a woe lassie!"

ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

Was Not a Modernist—Believed In a Personal God.

Abraham Lincoln was not a modernist in religion, nor was he a fundamentalist. He has been called a mystic, in the sense that he felt a communion between his spirit and a personal God, and this God-consciousness was evident in the spoken expression of his thoughts. Regular membership in some established church, however, did not appeal to him. President Lincoln once said:

"When any church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification for membership the Saviour's condensed statement of the substance of both law and Gospel 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy mind and thy neighbor as thyself,' that church will I join with all my heart and with all my soul."

Henry C. Whitney, author of "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln," says this:

"Mr. Lincoln's early religious views conformed not to dogmas and creeds, but to the religion of humanity. Of Sabbaths, when his partners would be at church, he would hold a simple religious service at home, and would enforce upon the small children the duty of kindness toward all animate objects. As he grew to manhood his practical mind discarded all conventional matters appertaining to religion and boldly took issue with every artificial barrier, mediator or approach which lay between his Maker and man."

The God in whom Lincoln believed and with whom he communed was a very personal God. Mr. Whitney writes:

"Although in apparent opposition to his tendencies to fatalism, he yet believed in the direct intervention of God in our national affairs, and he frequently used to ask Him in a direct manly way to grant this boon, avert that disaster or advise him what to do in a given contingency."

His skepticism appears to have been an impatience with, and dislike of, the rabbitries of creeds and dogmas, and no doubt that was the reason he had found in those who, insisted on the importance of these things a harshness of character and lack of human sympathy which were the faults he most abhorred.

"Intelligence, patriotism, Christianity and a firm reliance on Him who has ever stood forward in this favored land are still competent to and just, in the best way, all our present difficulty," and in the closing sentence of his first message to Congress, he writes:

"Without guile and with pure purpose let us renew our trust in God and go forward without fear and with manly hearts."

Among the Ancient Pueblos.

The great tribal dances of the Northern Indians have almost vanished from the plains, and those which remain have become perverted under the demands of white civilization.

But in northern New Mexico still exist an independent people, the agricultural Pueblos, occupying their ancient community houses, tilling their ancient fields and worshiping after their ancient customs. Taos, the northernmost of the Pueblos and considered one of the most picturesque Indian settlements in all the Western country, is but little far from the Colorado-New Mexico line.

Taos was built by Pueblo Indians, and some of its houses were standing and inhabited before America was discovered by Columbus. The Pueblo was visited as far back as 1540 by the Spanish explorer, Hernando de Alvarado, of Coronado's army. It was made a Spanish mission, given a priest and christened San Geronimo de Taos (Jerome) as early as 1617, and since those dates has changed little.

Annually at Taos, on Sept. 30, the 600 inhabitants of the town celebrate their most important of their tribal feasts and dances—the festival of San Geronimo—and, dedicated, ostensibly, to their patron saint, but really a thanksgiving to the sun-god for the harvest.

This festival, so old that the patriarchs of the pueblo know not its beginning, is the most famous of the Pueblos, by Apaches and Navajos.

Why He Had to Smoke.

The visitor sniffed.

"Excuse me, dear," she said, "but what a smell of smoke there is in this room. You surely don't allow husband to smoke in the drawing-room?"

"Well, not as a rule," replied her hostess; "but this morning—"

"My dear," exclaimed the visitor, "you should never make exceptions in cases like this, and if you'd only Freddie never smokes in our drawing room."

"Yes," began the young wife, "but—"

"Nonsense, darling! There are no 'buts' at all! In the first place, it's for the sake of discipline. In the second, the ashes ruin one's carpets."

"I quite agree," exclaimed the lecturer's one.

"But this morning my husband simply had to smoke."

"Indeed!" said the visitor. "And why?"

"Because his coat was on fire!"—Tit-Bits.

Stilling Salt.

Salt, as one of the essentials of human diet, and as a food that adds a value almost inconceivable to as modern, science can now prove it readily and cheaply, but in the old days it was only obtainable in certain places, and was therefore rare and costly. Wages, indeed, were once paid partly in salt. Salt held a considerable place in many of the religions of antiquity, as being the means by which food could be preserved, and so the symbol of incorruption. In this way it was generally regarded as one of the best offerings to the gods, and so to still the devil was equivalent to risking their displeasure.

Unsolved Mysteries

Most of us remember the disaster which befell the Canadian liner Empress of Ireland—how she was rammed in collision in the St. Lawrence river.

When the vessel was about to leave Quebec on what proved to be her last voyage, the ship's cat came hurrying down the gangway, carrying her kittens in her mouth. Efforts were made to get her to return, but although up to that time she had never left the vessel, even when in port, nothing would persuade her to go back. She was allowed to take up her quarters in a shed, and consequently escaped with her life.

"Just coincidence!" says the sceptic. Perhaps it was, yet it is by no means the only incident of a similar kind which might be related, and, in any case, the fact that animals have certain senses that we do not possess is beyond doubt.

What man would ever have across an ocean or even out of sight of land without a compass? Yet a cuckoo five months old finds its way from Britain to mid-Africa without a guide. Fish find their way through the uncharted depths of the sea. Birds rings come down the East Coast year after year along exactly the same route, and eels migrate in a like fashion.

Salmon look at the salmon which are spawned in a certain river, and at two years of age go down to the sea. Such a salmon may spend two or three years in salt water far from the mouth of its native river, yet when the time comes for it to breed, with infallible instinct it returns to the same river and forces on, for hundreds or even thousands of miles up-stream.

Man spends millions of pounds every year in attempts—usually very poor attempts—to forecast the weather. Yet many other creatures have a perfect knowledge of weather conditions not merely for a few hours ahead, but for days or even weeks.

The dabchick, which builds its floating nest at the river's edge, is never caught by flood. The bird appears to know beforehand just how high the river will rise, and makes the nesting period.

On a cloudless day bird nests have been seen to come out of their nests, carrying their eggs, and migrate to higher ground. Particularly heavy rain flooded the old nests, but the wise nests were safe from the floods.

Trout stop feeding many hours before rain, often before the barometer shows any indication of coming storm. Their perfect instinct in this respect has been known to generations of anglers.

Speaking of insects, here is a case of a fly which knows that it will only have a degree of knowledge which is not possessed by man. A liner, the Datael Castle, left Cape Town some years ago on her way to Liverpool, and when well out to sea it was found that a swarm of bees had hidden in the cargo. These rose and settled on a ventilator, and one of the handy men fixed up a rough hive in which the swarm took up their abode.

A week later, early one morning, the swarm left the hive, rose into the air, and winged their course due east. At the time the ship was passing the Cape Verde Islands, but these were not within sight when the bees left the ship. Yet in some mysterious way the insects knew that land was within flying distance and they sought for it unerringly across miles of salt water.

Pioneer of the Trams.

It is claimed that the first public road tramway ran from Wandsworth to Croydon, with an extension to Merstham. It passed through Mitcham, where it is recalled by names like Tramway Path and Tramway Terrace, while parts of a main street are still referred to by old inhabitants as the Iron Road.

The tramway bloopers were of stone, some of which are now set up in gardens, while in the Star Inn, at Hooley, is a fender made of a section of the wheel of one of the trucks.

This primitive tramway cost £60,000 to construct, and was used for the transport of coal, lime, building stone, fuller's earth, hearthstone, sand, and the like. It had a very narrow gauge, and the trucks were drawn along by a team of horses, sometimes associated, as on old canals, with mules and donkeys.

The modern railway front Croydon to Wimbledon runs on part of the old tramway, which was built in 1803. The company that owned it was not dissolved until 1846.—Tit-Bits.

Wasn't Foreman Then.

The Cockney foreman had come across Murphy slacking and smoking on his job, and spoke his mind thus:

"Look 'ere, Murphy. This isn't a contrack job,'an' it ought ter 'ave been finished by now. Jest you shove that pipe away an' get on wiv yer work, else it will be the sack for yours."

"Well, gaffer," said Murphy, deliberately, "yer know best. You've built in a day."

"Don't want none o' yer back answers," said the foreman; he paused, and then added: "Slides, I wasn't the foreman on that job, neither."

The World's Loss.

"Can anyone," the professor asked, addressing his students, "tell me what electricity is?" A student's hand went up and the youth was invited to expound. He flounder in his explanation, came to a stand, and said that he had known the day before, but had forgotten. "Gentlemen," remarked the professor, drily, "this is the saddest day of my life. You are before you the only man on earth who has ever known what electricity was, and he has forgotten."

SALMON'S WONDERFUL SECRET.

Return to River That Gave Them Birth.

One of nature's greatest mysteries was unfolded a few days ago in the upper reaches of Great Britain's largest rivers.

Hundreds of thousands of salmon, urged by instinct to complete the season's spawning, deposited their eggs in the small troughs, known as redds, which they had dug with fresh-fed movements of their bodies, afterwards covering the eggs up to be hatched two and a half months later.

While the mother salmon is laying the eggs, the male keeps watch by her side, in readiness to drive off marauders in search of food. He also fertilizes the eggs after they have been deposited by the female in the spawning bed.

By the time the spawning is over, father and mother salmon are a sorry sight. Their scales have lost their lustre; their bodies are terribly thin, their fins and tails, worn by contact with the river bed, are bedraggled.

They remain in the river a few months to recuperate. Then they begin their way back to the sea, where two or three years before they sported as smolts—one of the several names given to the salmon at various stages in its development.

Meanwhile, from the pink pea-like eggs in the river gravel are hatched the young fish, known as alevin—tiny silvery creatures that subsist for some weeks on the contents of the yolk-sac attached to the underpart of their bodies. This sac lasts about two months, at the end of which period, the little fish is roughly an inch long, and is then ready and capable of finding its own food.

Next comes the parr stage, known in rafted a parr, a name by which it will be known for the next one or two years of its life—years spent in the depths of the river, gorging itself on a diet of water snails, grubs, beetles, flies, and worms.

But while the sprightly young fish grows rapidly at first, quickly attaining a length of seven or eight inches, it acquires no suggestion of the bulk and shape of the mature salmon. A sojourn in the ocean is necessary to bring about this change.

So it comes about that at the end of its first or second year the smolt, as it is now known, drops down-stream on its long journey to the sea. Day after day it swims on, sometimes moving forward with a sudden and prolonged access of energy, and again simply waiting for a while in a warm and sunny spot. Sometimes caution offers itself in the shape of an angler's fly.

Finally, all being well, the young fish reaches the salt-water area, near the mouth of the river, and its movements become less spasmodic while it accommodates itself to the new conditions.

Although it has been definitely ascertained that a year later the fish, then to be termed grilse, will return to the river, little is known of their existence in the ocean. It is believed by some authorities that they keep in shoals, cruising round the coasts in search of food. One of the points to clear up in this period of its life the young salmon is known to undergo a change in which the fish betake themselves to the deeps, while the latest theory is that they follow the herring shoals. The feeding been shown that the growing salmon feeds entirely on these fish.

But of the great return to the rivers there is no doubt. Most wonderful of all is the fact that, according to a long series of observation, the salmon return to the same rivers that gave them birth years previously, there to hand on their heritage of life to the next generation.

No Man's Island.

A house, consisting of one room, which stands in two states, three counties, and four towns at one and the same time, is the proud possession of a dance-hall proprietor in the United States. This unique building stands on a tiny island on the borders of Vermont and New Hampshire.

Although the building was once used as a dwelling-house, it is now given up entirely to dancing. Standing in the middle of the dance floor, the visitor finds himself in the two different places at once. Beneath his feet is the boundary-point of the boundaries of the two states, of the counties of Grafton, Caledonia, and Orange, and of four towns, Riverside, Newbury, Bath, and Haverhill.

Locally the place is known as "No Man's Island," and is very popular as a summer dancing pavilion. But it is not to be confused with another of the centre of the little island, and it seems likely that before long it will have a way right through both floor and house. Meantime, the proprietor thanks his lucky stars that only one of the towns, Haverhill, sends along the rate collector.

A Sagacious Hen.

A certain well-known sporting peer had been relating some stories with regard to his hunting experiences, and one of the company suggested that as they were so highly colored he might be unable on a future occasion to repeat them in the same words. "Not by a long way," was the smile, "I admit that some of them were rather tall yarns. I outdid the wandering hen." A hen out to see the world, and met a crow in a distant wood. Said the crow—"Are you not afraid, without good wings, of losing your way in all this tangle?" "Afraid!" said the hen, "not a bit. 'Every yard or two I lay an egg by which to guide myself back!'"

Grapefruit.

One housewife cuts the grapefruit in half the night before it is to be used, and into each half of the fruit she pours a tablespoonful of honey. She says this is beyond the power of any family pronounce it a great improvement.

Has Life's Hard Knocks Taken the Fight Out of You

If You Are In Your Twenties or Your Sixties, Why Lag Behind Others? Your Housework a Burden—Your Job a Bore? Feel as Good, Look as Well and Be as Active as Nature Intended, Through New Natural Genuine Phospho-Cod Nerve, Blood and Body Building Tonic. That's Not Guesswork, But Judgment.

Weakness, Fatigue, Run Down, Coughs, Colds Mean Loss of Nerve Strength

Your brain is the central power house of your nervous system; thousands of nerves, the wires. They carry the messages — the energy. Your muscles do the work. But you are not one whit stronger than your nerves — they are the source of all your strength. Through overwork, worry, grief, colds, hardship and neglect you become generally run down, fail to get your regular sleep, find it hard to do your work, and are played out at night. Perhaps you're restless, irritable, nervous and fidgety over everything you do. Your internal organs seem to get out of gear, stomach fails to digest food forming gas and your heart palpitates. You have many little headaches sometimes like a band around your forehead, cramps in your neck or legs, are constipated. Food don't agree, wont assimilate, you have disagreeable feelings and weakness almost all over. You're so discouraged. Appears there's something wrong with the world — whereas, there's something the matter with you. You're one of those run-down, worn-out, tired, shattered nervepers, frazzled Americans!

When Using Phospho-Cod You Notice—

First your appetite improves — Food smells and tastes good — Next you sleep better, awake refreshed, strengthened — If you had a cough or cold this soon disappears — Digestion is toned — Gas and bloating stops — Tissues nourished — There's pink in your cheeks — Soon you're in the pink of condition and the whole world looks rosy!

Put Pink In Your Cheeks; Get In the Pink of Condition Through Phospho-Cod Nerve Blood and Body Building Tonic—Nature's Best Assistant.

Laugh and the world laughs with you, weep and you can enjoy "the blues" all by your lonesome. If you are a woman you no doubt sometimes feel like crying over it and possibly do occasionally. If you're a man you generally swear or at least feel like it. You say "nothing I take seems to help me — if I could only get something to brace me up." You must remember building health and strength is a natural process. In Phospho-Cod has been brought together a vital combination of elements needed to assist perfect nutrition and create a superior building tonic containing the vital hypophosphites of Lime — Manganese — Potassium — Sodium — Quinine and Strychnia which supply required mineral salts for nerve bone and other body structure. Phospho-Cod also contains the essential valuable soluble extractives of Cod Livers prepared in such a manner as to be palatant in taste and entirely free from the offensive odor and disagreeable taste usually present in Cod Liver preparations. These nutritive elements are next combined with the Extracts of Malt, Wild Cherries and Blood Root to which are then added Pure Cane Sugar, Pepsin and delicious appetizing rich Port Wine. This new and original formula represents a most effective pleasant palatable Nerve and System Builder of the highest pharmaceutical standard of excellence, strength, purity and accuracy possible. A product which is being rapidly adopted and prescribed by representative physicians everywhere, because of its reliability, efficacy and safety.

WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS

Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous state and always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. A friend recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt strength and healthiness for me and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have so many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other odd jobs. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs LOUIS F. ELSASSER, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

Another Nervous Woman Finds Relief

Port Huron, Michigan.—"I suffered for two years with pains in my side, and if I worked very much I was nervous and just sat tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I was sleepy all the day and didn't feel like doing anything, and was so nervous I would bite my fingernails. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me so much that I soon felt fine."—Mrs. CHARLES BEELER, 503-14th St., Port Huron, Mich.

Women who suffer from any feminine ailment should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. C

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Mr. A. O. Norton, the millionaire Jack Manufacturer, of Boston, who recently died, was a great "booster" for Zutoo Tablets.

He suffered from headaches from childhood and when he found Zutoo Tablets stopped these headaches in a few minutes and left no bad effect, he began recommending them to his family and friends.

In an unsolicited letter, Mr. Norton says in closing:

"My family use them when ever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

NEW ELECTORAL MAP OF CANADA BROUGHT BEFORE PARLIAMENT

Under Redistribution Toronto Gets Three New Seats, Manitoba Two, Alberta Four, Saskatchewan Five and B. C. One—Nova Scotia Loses One.

The new seats in Ontario embrace North Temiskaming, Kenora-Rainy River, three more in the City of Toronto and one in the County of Essex. The six seats which disappear are Dufferin, added to Simcoe; East Peterboro to Hastings; Lennox and Addington, divided between Prince Edward and Frontenac, half going to either of these counties; North Ontario to Muskoka and the Union of the Elgins, East and West. Stormont and Glengarry, which heretofore have been one constituency, have been separated. Each will now have a member. Dundas will be merged with Grenville. There are some slight changes in the map elsewhere throughout the province, affecting Kent, Lambton and Hamilton boundaries to a slight degree.

SCRUB ANIMALS UNPROFITABLE

Dairy cows are the chief revenue producers in the district surrounding Napanee and some excellent cows are to be seen here, but a census taken recently shows that over fifty per cent. of the bulls kept in one Township are grades. The following results of fifteen years experimental work at Iowa Experimental Station shows the importance of a pure bred sire. Average production of sixteen lactations of three scrub cows was 5,688 pounds of milk and 175.3 pounds of butter fat. Average production of fifteen lactations of three daughters, first cross of pure bred Holstein Bull was 6,517 pounds of milk and 276.7 pounds of butterfat. Average production of sixteen lactations of six granddaughters, second cross of Purebred Holstein Bull was 10,325 pounds of milk and 399.48 pounds of butter fat. A good individual with a good pedigree is the kind to use. Banishing the scrub means money to anyone who keeps cattle, puts the owner in a better frame of mind and removes the cause of sore eyes which results from looking at mongrel, slab sided, narrow chested animals in the barnyard. Pedigree alone is not sufficient, but pedigree and desirable conformation go together. The constant improvement of grade herds by the use of a pure bred sire of one breed is greatly to the advantage of those engaged in dairying. Agricultural Representative, J. Laughland, will assist farmers in getting stock to improve their herds.

It was a blank and stormy night, and Sandy had gone to bed early. He had not been dozing ere he was awakened by a loud and persistent tat-a-tat at the door. Climbing sleepily out of bed, he went to the window, threw it up, and inquired in a sleepy voice: "Wha's there?"

"I'm cold and hungry, guv-nor, an' I ain't had a meal for a week," came a plaintive voice from below. "Will yer gimme, twenty-five cents for a bed?"

"Hadd on a meenit till I come doon an' see it," was Sandy's cautious reply.

"Well, my boy," was the reply "you insisted on taking the town apart."

HELD TO RANSOM.

Instances When Britons Were Victims of Bandits.

The dramatic case reported from China, of armed bandits forcibly seizing peaceful travellers and holding them to ransom, finds a number of parallels in the past.

As a general rule, the scenes of these daring exploits have been the remoter portions of Europe; but Asia Minor, North Africa and certain of the South American Republics have also earned an unenviable notoriety in this respect, writes Horace Wyndham in Chambers' Journal.

Turkey has a very unsavory reputation for such outrages, which appear to be committed there almost with impunity. At any rate, it is very seldom that anyone is brought to book.

In 1896an instance occurred near Smyrna, when an English officer, Brig.-Gen. Marriott, was waylaid by brigands, who demanded £15,000. "and no questions asked," for releasing him. By good luck, the captive managed to make his predicament known to the authorities.

The latter acted promptly and, throwing a strong cordon of troops round the band, compelled the whole gang to surrender. But, as a preliminary, the military had to guarantee that the chief should not be arrested.

When a sufficiently large ransom is put u pthe victims of such outrages are, as a rule, given their liberty at once; and even when the cash transaction is not completed, the usual custom among the bandit fraternity is to set them free after an interval of suspense.

Most of the recent cases of holding British subjects to ransom have occurred in Morocco, where life is always wild and lawless.

A distinguished victim of unwelcome attentions of this sort was Kaid Sir Harry MacLean, who was carried off by a party of Moors in July, 1907. What made the exploit all the more daring was that Sir Harry happened to be the commander-in-chief of the Sultan's bodyguard. Still, this did not avail him much, as he was kept a close prisoner for seven months.

Raisuli, the head of the Riff tribe, who brought off the capture, was something of a profiteer in the bandit world, as he demanded £5,000 down, and £15,000 to follow, as a suitable ransom.

After a good deal of haggling, the British Government agreed to pay this, but only on the understanding that the Sultan himself would refund it. This undertaking, it is interesting to note, was honorably discharged by his Shereefian Majesty Mulai Hafid.

However, he doubtless got it back (and a bit more) from the rascally Raisuli, for the Moorish authorities treated the latter's every whim as only cash from their subjects.

Ski-ers Jump From Dizzy Heights.

What is classed as real sport, with a dash of adventure, is described by Stephen Lawford, writing from St. Moritz, Switzerland, as follows:

Imagine a snow road leading straight, white and smooth, down the steep-est part of the precipitous slope of a pine-dotted mountain side.

In the middle of this road the snow has been banked up to form a scarp, of which, as you look up at it, the nearer wall is practically perpendicular and several feet high. After this the track plunges downward more steeply than ever, ending hundreds of feet below in a wide open space.

All round the track and on the overlooking heights stands a gay-colored multitude—the skiers and the "schiebers," the sport-ers and the port drinkers of all nations. Above all the serenely indifferent, the mighty snow-crested Alps reached up to the glittering blue sky.

Hither up the steps a red-jersey-ed pigmy on skies climbs laboriously sideways and upward. Turning suddenly, the tiny figure straightens itself, and with the swoop of a swallow shoots downwards.

Just before he reaches the scarp the ski-jumper whirls his arms, crouches, and leaping up, launches himself into space.

For an astounding number of seconds he remains in the air. There is a gasp from the onlookers. Then a crack like a pistol shot rings through the frosty air as his skis strike the snow. He reels, recovers his balance, and dashes on with indescribable velocity. At the end of the run he juggles with his feet, turns completely around, and comes to a halt facing up the slope.

He is followed by others, representatives of many nations, each striving to hurl himself further than his rivals. Some, unable to recover the balance after landing, roll head over heels. Miraculously unhurt and with unbroken limbs they pick themselves up and clamber up the slope again.

Toad Sports Blood.

The so-called "horn-toad" of the Southwestern States, which is really a small lizard, has a habit of "spitting blood," as the boys of that region will tell one. But Prof. Vernon Baily, chief field naturalist of the U. S. Agricultural Department's biological survey, says the blood comes from, not from the creature's mouth, but from its eyes. The Mexican's call them "sacred toads," because they seem to spit out blood. This weapon, however, is more like shooting, or squirting, a fine stream of spray, sometimes to a distance of several feet.

CITY OF MYSTERY AND MIRTH.

"Magic" That Will Amuse Millions of People.

Why is it that calm, quiet people will go out of their way and pay to be scared? Nervous girls, middle-aged and portly men, and elderly spinsters who never cross a road without looking both ways, are unable to resist the lure of the show-men's "right" machines.

The secret lies in the fact that these instruments of frightfulness are absolutely safe, yet provide all the excitement of narrow escape from a nasty smash. Knowing that the greater the thrill the bigger the draw, the organizers of the pleasure park at the British Empire Exhibition have ransacked the world for novelties. By April something like a million pounds will have been spent on providing "all the fun of the fair" on forty-seven acres of ground.

The big thrills include two racing coasters, a giant switchback, a scenic railway, a mountain waterchute guaranteed to scare without peril, a "Whirl of the World," "Jack and Jill," and nearly a thousand sideshows.

"Jack and Jill" is a kind of moving staircase with chairs. You sit down and are taken to a good height, then deposited on a slope as slippery as ice. Down you fly at a speed that makes you gasp for breath.

The "Whirl of the World" provides bumps without bruises. A pavilion is being erected with a level floor once; and even when the cars that are let sixteen discs each 15 feet in circumference. These revolve in opposite directions at speeds varying from four to seven miles an hour. Small two-seater cars with four castors wheels will take the floor and be flung this way and that, according to the direction of the disc with which they come into contact. Between the two passengers in the car is a lever; pushed forward it exerts a downward pressure on the front wheels, causing it to grip the disc under it, so that if the disc is spinning to the left the car will go that way. Pulling the lever backward relieves the front wheel and engages that in the rear, which may be on a disc spinning to the right.

Pressure may be applied to the right and left wheels in the same way, so that the skill of the passenger manipulating the lever determines the length of time the car remains on the revolving discs and the variety and excitement of the ride. Forty cars may be on the floor at once; they will bump, of course, but the rules of the fun fair. Cars thrown off at either end arrive on "dead" ground. They are then conveyed by an endless belt to the starting-point.

The mountain water-chute is built on a base with a circumference of 150 feet, and rises to a height of 80 feet. Passengers sit in a boat which ascends a luminous lift shaft decorated with multi-colored lights. At the top the boat is ejected into the water-chute and dashes down at terrific speed.

The "Derby Race" will resemble an ordinary merry-go-round, with the difference that by means of a new mechanical device the horses will race. Moving in rows of five, they will draw ahead or fall behind each other as they make the circuit of the course.

The search for Aladdin's lamp in a globe 50 feet hith promises to be one of the most exciting shows in the park. Five pounds is concealed in the lamp, awaiting its discoverer. It is hidden somewhere in the cave, but although its seekers may see it, they may also find that, when they run towards it, the lamp rises into a grinning face or a castle wall. Caskets furnished with jewels and gold dissolve again before one's eyes.

Glass doors and windows, false and swaying walls, a sudden storm and blinding rain—which wets one not at all—a pit, a high bridge, all these bewilder the victims of the lamp. As many of the earth's wonders as possible are packed within this magic globe.

Sweden's Ancient Glory.

Cities of Southern Sweden were among the greatest commercial centres of the civilised world during the Middle Ages. Stockholm and Lund ranked with London and Paris. They flourished in the absence of the northern seas, and were the admiration of thousands of travellers and merchants who passed through them and trafficked with them. Later Sweden was the great military power of northern Europe. The ambassadors of the Swedish kings were received with the utmost deference in every court. Her soldiers won great battles and her generals, such as Gustavus Adolphus and Charles II. was untmportant and isolated in comparison with this northern kingdom which could pour forth armies of gigantic blond warriors headed by brave and astute generals. Sweden is to-day a peaceful kingdom. Even the secession of Norway was accomplished without bloodshed. Denmark once domineered and tyrannized over both kingdoms.

Preferred the Artillery.

"Bang!" went the rifles at the manoeuvres, "Oo!" screamed a pretty girl—a nice, decorous, surprised little scream. She stepped backwards into the arms of a young man.

"Oh!" she said blushing. "I was frightened by the rifles. I beg your pardon."

"Not at all," said the young man. "Let's go and watch the artillery."

Jews.

There is no difference between a Russian Jew and the "orthodox" Jew—except of course, in nationality. Russia was the first place the Jews migrated to when they were driven out of Palestine. From there they spread to Poland and eventually found their way all over Europe and the rest of the world.

Must Be Public.

"Are you in favor of women taking part in politics?"

"It's not right if you really want the affairs public."

IN MEMORIAM

It is with deep regret we record the death of George B. Allan, of Napanee. George was with us in 1922-23. He obtained the Book-keeping Diploma, and won the Gold Medal.

At the Memorial service held in the Chapel on Wednesday evening, April 30th, Mr. Sneiderve, Principal of the Commercial Department, paid the following beautiful tribute:—

I feel that I am unable to pay tribute to such a one as George Allan, not that I did not know George, not that I did not come in close touch with him, but that my knowledge of the English language is too limited to say what I feel that such a one as he deserves.

George Allan was born, I believe, in Scotland, came to this country when he was a very small boy, found himself located with good friends at Napanee, where he no doubt received his early training.

When the call came to fight for the Mother country, and for our own Country, George responded as a man. I understand from those who knew him even better than I, that when George enlisted, he was a good boy, while he was over in the trenches, and some of you know what that means, he was still a good boy, and when he came back, I know it, he was still a good boy.

What a glorious reputation, what a noble character a man must have to be able to keep up such a reputation.

George, as some of you know, was with us last year as a Commercial Student, George was with us last year as a gentleman, he was with us as a Real Man.

He was not a particularly bright scholar, but what he undertook to do he finished WELL. It was only necessary to see him to think he was a gentleman, and it was only necessary to meet him to know he was.

He won last year not only our Book-keeping Diploma, but also our Book-keeping Medal, and he has since made marked success with his work; but I believe God had a greater work for him and therefore called him. His call came suddenly, but his passing was without pain, as I understand, he died instantly.

I, with some of the students, attended his funeral, and it was clearly seen that he must have been held in the very highest respect in his home town. He was buried with full military honours.

Those of us who knew him may well take him as an example for his was a clean life, made possible by living close to God, and I believe that he to-day enjoys Eternal Rest and Happiness.—Albert College Times.

Dyeing Trees.

How would you like a glue forest? A number of German scientists have been experimenting with trees. They have discovered that they can transform trees in two nights, and can dye them red or blue or purple, simply by an aniline-dye injection. The scientist made a large tree a perfect blue with two ounces of aniline and 200 gallons of water. He vaccinated it so successfully that not only the boughs and leaves, but even the interior of the trunk assumed an azure hue. By this process of injection it may be possible to change a forest to any color desired. At present the colors of flowers are being changed by screening processes; and certain plants are having their growth promoted by violet rays and by the use of chloroform. Dutch bulbs have been retarded and made to bloom with greater lateness when the effect of the anaesthetic had worn off.

New French Consul-General.

Regis d'Arnould, Baron de Vitrolles, the newly-appointed Consul-General from France to Canada, has already had a distinguished career in the consular service of France. Commencing his career as French consular representative in Hamburg, Germany, he travelled a great deal in that country before being transferred to Cairo, Egypt.

Returning for a short time to Paris, at the outbreak of the late war, he found himself in Constantinople. He was then transferred to Athens, where he found it "a very difficult time for diplomacy." Finally he returned to Paris, where he enjoyed a period of comparative calm before accepting his present post.

As head of the foreign relations branch of the French Government's Chambre de Commerce, the Baron had much to do with the negotiations of the new trade treaty between France and Canada. In the latter connection he had frequent meetings with Canada's representatives, Hon. W. S. Fielding and Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

Accompanied the "Bored."

A Canadian divine who was stopping in Los Angeles went to church the first Sunday after his arrival and later expressed his opinion of the service. He had gone to worship his Maker, but to his surprise, was forced to sit through a long discussion of politics which was delivered under the guise of being a sermon. At the close of the "sermon," the minister announced that when the service was over, he would like to meet the board in the vestry. The Canadian divine, in company with several other solemn-looking gentlemen, proceeded to walk toward the vestry. The minister thinking there must be some mistake, tapped him gently on the shoulder and said: "I think you are mistaken, sir. This is a meeting of the board." "Well," replied the Canadian divine, "I have listened to your political views for more than an hour, and if anyone has been more bored than I have, I should like to meet him."

Deer Are Plentiful.

It is estimated that there are nearly 441,000 head of deer in the National Forests of the United States. The largest herds are found in the national forests of California, which shelter approximately 185,000 head. Oregon is next to California, with a total of 57,000, its largest herd being in the Santiam National Forest. Montana ranks third, with a total of 41,000 head, the largest single herd of which grazes in the Jefferson National Forest. Idaho is fourth, with a total of nearly 39,000. Arizona has 34,000 head of deer, 10,000 of which graze in the Kaibab National Forest alone. This forest contains the Grand Canyon National Forest Game Preserve, where hunting is not allowed.

Presentations for Week of July 18th to 24th

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

Lila Leslie, who plays an important role in "THE HUNTRESS," a First National Comedy-Drama, featuring Colleen Moore, was well known internationally as a stage actress before she deserted the footlights for the silver sheet. Miss Leslie's stage career covered appearances not only in this country, but also in England and Australia. Also a good Comedy.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

"ONLY A SHOP GIRL" is an old-fashioned name but the picture is far from being old-fashioned, even though the drama from which it was adapted, was written and staged twenty-five years ago. The problems of the working girl are old, old problems, and they never seem to be finally solved. However, we are assured by those who have seen it that "Only a Shop Girl" is going to be a hit, not merely because of its nine-star cast, but because it has a deep, dark mystery running through it, as well as fine comedy, thrilling action and dazzling scenic effects. Also a Special Comedy.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY.

"KENTUCKY DAYS", a romantic drama of the South and West of '49, starring Dustin Farnum. It is colorful, picturesque story with the typical Farnum virility and scores a bull's eye for entertainment. Also a two-reel Comedy.

OLD BOYS' RE-UNION NEWS

The committee in charge of the Napanee and Lennox and Addington Old Boys' Re-Union, which is to hold in conjunction with the Lennox Fall Fair on September 9, 10, 11, 12, are meeting with a splendid response from many old boys and old girls. Many interesting letters are being received by the Secretary, and the committee now feel assured that there will be a large number return to their former home for this occasion.

The committee have practically completed arrangements with one of Ontario's best bands to be here for the whole week, and further information that will be given as to this matter in next week's news.

It is impossible to publish all letters received from old friends, but one letter from Mr. John J. Sweeney, Esq., of Brooklyn, N.Y., is printed below, which speaks for itself and shows that while Mr. Sweeney is not sure that he can be with us, yet his heart is in the right place:

Brooklyn, N.Y.,
July 18th, 1924.

Mr. J. M. Simpson,
Secretary Old Boys' Re-Union,
Napanee, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—

Your circular announcement of the coming reunion of the Old Boys and Girls to be held in Napanee in September to hand and thank you for same. Knowing the generosity of the people in the old town, we are assured it is not an invitation to "come over empty handed" but a basket along.

It is with sorrow and regret I speak of the many old friends that have passed to their reward and it does look as if the town is very much depleted, but we must remember that Old Father Time has not overlooked the writer of these lines, and made many a dent and taken his toll, as in our case, I am the only Sweeney left to lift the finch basket along.

In this connection I feel like a really deserter and have no claim to be heard and glory that I have been to the unselfish citizens that remained at home and how long years to keep the right limbs and the hands free constantly burning in our dear old Napanee.

Enclosed find cheque for $100.00, which you will please add to the Entertainment Fund, and I trust little helps and am quite assured that you will give of the old boys and girls a royal good time.

It will give me great pleasure to greet old friends and to meet the old town again with the old boys and girls, but should I not be able to be there in person, I will be present to be there in spirit.

Wish best success for success in this most worthy object of old friendships and kindest regards to all my Napanee friends. I am,

Very truly yours,
JOHN J. SWEENEY.

KINGSFORD

Rev. Dr. Bidwell, Bishop of Kingston, visited this church on Tuesday morning and held confirmation service, which a goodly number attended. The Bishop delivered a splendid address. — Mr. Eugene McGinness, who lately returned from Muskoka, where he has been for the benefit of his health, passed away on Wednesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Henry Sexsmith. The funeral took place at Marysville and the remains were interred in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery. Deceased was formerly a resident of Lonsdale. Much sympathy is expressed. — Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Point Anne, were recent visitors at N. J. Hewitt's. — Miss Annie Sexsmith, of Camden, N.Y., is spending the holidays with her parents and friends. — Mr. Adam McAlister, of Calgary, also his niece, Marjory McAlister, of Toronto, are spending the holidays at J. McAlister's. — Mrs. W. Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. W. Barrett, Jas. Nalon and sister, Mrs. Lester, Joe and Alex. Sexsmith attended the funeral of the late G. A goodly sum was realized. — Early on the hours et Monday morning, July 14, a worthy citizen passed away in the person of George Sexsmith. He had been in impaired health for some time, yet death came with a suddenness that somewhat shocked the community. The large attendance at the funeral speaks volumes in terms of respect. In the death of Mr. Sexsmith the church has lost a warm-hearted and devoted worker and the community has lost a very thy example, brother and friend. The sympathy of a host of friends goes out to the sorrowing widow and children, sisters and brothers. The funeral cortege wended its way to Marysville R. C. Church, where deceased attended. Mass and the last impressive rites of the church were celebrated. After the service the remains were placed in the family plot at St. Mary's Church cemetery. — Mr. and Mrs. John Sexsmith, of Gosport, attended the funeral of his brother, the late Geo. Sexsmith.

DAVID NELSON PARKE

In the death of Mr. D. N. Parke, Napanee loses an aged and respected citizen, full of fifty years standing; and as well another of those links in the U. E. L. chain of which the district is so proud, has been severed.

The grandfather of Mr. Parke came over with the U. E. Loyalists, when that patriotic body left the United States, and accepted the uncertainty of a new and unknown country for the certainty of their settled homes in order to continue in the Empire. As one of the original settlers, he was given land grants on Hay Bay, part of which is still in the family, in the persons of A. C. Parke and C. B. Parke, cousins of the deceased. There on the homestead Nelson Parke spent his early days; as a young man he taught school in the district school.

When he married he moved to Napanee, and entered the employ of the Downey Company in charge of their grain business, which was at that time a flourishing phase of the life of the district. On the passing of the McKinley Act, which virtually killed the barley growing and shipping, Mr. Parke worked with the J. R. Bell Co., for a number of years, and remained with the local newspaper.

Mr. Parke, who was 87 years of age, came of strong and staunch stock. There were ten in his father's family, and until the last two years three of them were alive. But within that time they have passed away. Time has still four alive, two of whom are older than Mr. Parke, Mrs. Sarah Hawley, of Picton, and Mrs. Rebecca Ferguson, of Brockville, and two younger sisters, Mrs. Caswell Hawley, and Mrs. Alfred Parke, of Hay Bay.

Besides those three surviving sisters, he leaves a family of three daughters, Miss Hattie Parke, for a number of years, has been on the staff of the Napanee Public School, where she is a most valued member of the staff. Miss Parke was a life long Conservative in politics, and a member of Trinity Methodist Church. In her leisure she was a worthy representative of the Parke stock, as a wide and careful reader, he continued to keep his interest in literature and politics to the very last, and the knowledge of the European situation was the result of many of those years of reading.

For a long time Mr. Parke had been in failing health, and his friends read he had the news read to him that the night and he passed away during the night.

The end, which had been expected, came on Friday last, when he peacefully slept away. The funeral was held on Tuesday from his late home, the services of which Father Lennon, who for so long a valued employee, officiated. Mrs. Parke, his daughter, is deeply sympathized.

NEWBURGH

The Orangemen and their friends turned out in large numbers to patronize the lawn social on the 18th. The weather was ideal, the programme was good, and the receipts satisfactory.

Confirmation service was held in St. John's Church, on Sunday last, at which nine candidates presented themselves to receive the rite. Bishop Bidwell, who conducted the service, gave the candidates some wise counsel and advice. The services throughout were impressive and helpful.

It is hard to keep tab on the outgoings and doings of people during this holiday season, and perhaps it is just as well that people have a chance to slip around unnoticed once in a while.

A number of girls from here are attending the camp at Varty Lake, and from reports received, all are having a very pleasant time. It was a thoughtful and beneficial act to have these camps established for boys and girls, where they can have a good time under wise guidance and reasonable restraint.

Miss Emily Yeomans has gone for a few weeks to visit with friends in Toronto and vicinity.

We have arrived at a quiet time in the municipal campaign, but preparations are being made, and the campaign which is about to open will have some spacious and far-fetched arguments most of which will have the tendency to cover up the real issue.

It was unfortunate that the late Provincial Attorney, Hon. Mr. Raney, insisted on making this an issue in the last election, thereby forcing the present Premier to make the pledge he did. If that pledge had never been made, a vote on the question might have been postponed indefinitely and influences against the Government on the vote would have some value.

The next County Town is doing its share to keep up a frowsy. There is the Chautauqua, although getting a good start, is not having a little side. And the Old Boys' Re-Union, just a comfortable month while, and should create an interest in the whole county. It is a fine opportunity for a host of town and county people to say, "Well, my, this 'Bob McKraken' I haven't seen you for a long time. How's the wife?" Hurrah, boys, let us all go.

Two stylish Welsh ladies, one of them suffering in her countenance from the east wind, met on the platform of a village railway station.

"Do tell me, dear," asked the first, in a bitter sweet voice, "how you manage to get your nose that rich, red colour ?"

"Oy dear," was the reply, "its blushing with pride at not poking it self into other people's business."

A PLEASANT EVENT

An ice cream social, under the auspices of the A. O. T. S. Class of Grace Church Sunday School, was held on Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Loucks. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. A good programme of solos, duetts, and a number of speeches were enjoyed very much. Mr. Reg. Wiseman delighted all with his solo; also Mr. A. Smith with his cornet.

At this time Mr. and Mrs. A. Perry were called on for a dialogue. After getting their attention they were presented with a tray, and the following address, after which they responded, and wished every success to the A. O. T. S.

Dear Friends,—As you are about to leave us a little way, we feel we cannot let you go without trying to express our friendship and good will. You can only know our reluctance at letting you go by remembering in your own experience adding good-bye to some who had endeared themselves in a hundred ways to you. We shall miss you, dear friends, but we know it must be with you, an opportunity for further work and well doing. We know we shall not be forgotten, as we know we shall not forget you, but shall always think of you as belonging to us yet.

Will you accept this little token of our love and respect for you, and may God watch between you and us while we are absent one from the other is the prayer of your Class companion.

RIPENING CHEDDAR

Results of Nine Tests at the Agricultural College

Percentage of Shrinkage Under the Various Drinks—Cheese Often Kept Too Long In Curing-rooms—Sweet Clover Milk Will Make Good Cheese—Winter Lawn Protection.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The Dairy department of the Ontario Agricultural College made nine tests during the summer of 1922 in cheddar cheese curing. Four uniform cheese were used each week: One was placed in the curing-room directly from the press and allowed to remain there for one week, when it was removed to cold storage; one was put in cold storage at once from the press and allowed to remain there; one was put in the curing-room for three to six days, then paraffined and moved to cold storage; and one was allowed to remain in the curing-room during the whole of the ripening period. The chief objects of the experiment were to note differences in the losses of weight, and the effect upon quality of the cheese treated by these four methods. All the cheese were weighed when taken from the hoops and again at the end of one month. The cheese were scored when about six weeks old, and again about two months later.

Percentage of Shrinkage.

The average percentage of shrinkage was least for the cheese placed in the curing-room for one week, then moved to cold storage. Those paraffined and then moved to cold storage stand next; and the cold storage lots third. The greatest loss was in the lots allowed to remain in the curing-room for the full ripening period of one month. The average percentages of shrinkage were 1.98, 2.41, 2.86 and 4.42 respectively for the four lots. There was little difference in the average score of the cheese for the three lots in cold storage. Those placed in the curing-room for one week and then moved to a temperature of 40° F. scored highest; then the lots placed in storage at once; and next the lots paraffined and put in storage. The lots ripened for the full period in the curing-room were much poorer cheese at the end of the test. Unfortunately, much of the cheese of Ontario is ripened in an ordinary curing-room for too long a period.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

SWEET CLOVER MILK.

Interesting Experiments In Feeding Dairy Cows at the College—Milk From Feeding Sweet Clover Makes Satisfactory Cheese.

Investigations have been carried on by the Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College during the summers of 1922 and 1923 on the question of using milk produced by cows pasturing on sweet clover for cheese making. About half of the patrons supplying milk to the Dairy department of the College use sweet clover as a pasture crop, and the other half do not. The milk from each set of patrons was made up separately on five dates during June and July. There were seven lots of milk of 3,510 pounds, and the non-clover lots of 3,423 pounds. The average percentages of fat were 3.2 and 3.38, respectively. There with practically no difference in the qualities of the milk of both lots at the time of adding the rennet or when dipped. The losses of fat in whey averaged .18 and .21 per cent. respectively.

Proportion of Cheese to Milk.

The average yield of cheese per 1,000 pounds milk was 91.23 pounds for the sweet clover lots and 92.22 for the non-clover lots. The percentages of moisture in the green ripe cheese were practically the same. The average score of the cheese was the same for flavor in both lots. The average total score was 92.3 for the clover lots and 92.6 out of 100 for the non-clover cheese. There was nothing abnormal about the sweet clover lots of milk or cheese. The results are similar to those obtained during 1922. These two years' tests indicate that there is apparently no reason why cows fed or pastured on sweet clover should not produce satisfactory milk for the making of good cheddar cheese.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Protect the Lawn In Winter.

A well-beaten path made across the lawn in winter will probably work permanent damage. The grass may be killed and the soil so compacted that grass seed sown thereon the next season will not thrive. Such a path will generally be obvious for a number of years. A "cow path" is distinctly an unattractive feature on a lawn. The lawn slga of summer. "Keep off the Paths that are Making" may well be heeded throughout the year.

Another sin against a lawn is to flood it for the purpose of making a skating rink. A body of ice over the lawn in winter is almost certain to completely kill the grass. The grass will not tolerate for a long time a covering which precludes movement of air.

Young lawns should have a covering of snow. A wind-swept lawn, blown free of snow in winter, is likely to lose much of its young cover. Irish spread about tends to deflect the wind and holds the snow.

Select the bear for fall use before you are ready to use him. Get him accustomed to his surroundings and method of feeding and care. Never use a young boar until he is past ten months of age if you want large strong litters.

"A bird in the coop is worth two in the tree top."

Solution of Nicotine positively kills the green bugs that infest the rose bushes. Very inexpensive to use. For sale at Wallace's.

Hard and soft corns both yield to Holloway's Corn Remover, which is entirely safe to use, and certain and satisfactory in its action.

HIS AUNT THE SPUR.

Relative In Ontario Urged On the New Minister.

When Hon. E. J. McMurray, the new solicitor-general of Canada, was being sworn in at Winnipeg recently, he held in his hand a telegram which read as follows: "Do justice, love mercy and walk humbly. Keep your head level, and your feet on the straight path."

It was from his Aunt Susan down in Ontario, a maiden lady who had been an aunt in deed to him since he was a tall, raw-boned youth. As his friends gathered around him with their congratulations, the new solicitor-general proudly exhibited the telegram, and pledged himself to act on her advice.

In his youth he worked as a hired man for a Scotch farmer, when a row in going from tour in the morning until ten at night; but even as a farm laborer Ed. McMurray had a resolve to complete his public school course, and eventually become a lawyer. And it was this proud Aunt Sue who induced him finally to go to high school at St. Mary's, Ontario.

Through with high school, he was unable to take a course at Osgoode Hall, so "Mac" went west. Settling in Saskatchewan, he broke in broncos, ploughed, milled rows, anything for a living. Acquiring a little money, he went to Normal School at Regina, qualified as a teacher, and spent several years teaching in foreign settlements. In this way he made sufficient money to go to Winnipeg and study law.

Eventually he was called to the bar. He has been a successful lawyer, specializing in criminal law. Of twenty-six alleged murderers defended by him, not one went to the gallows. But the case which brought him most fame was the defense of the Winnipeg strike leaders.

Mr. McMurray was the first federal minister to take the oath of office in Winnipeg. It was found less expensive to send an officer from Ottawa than to have the new solicitor-general go east.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Two clitch Welsh ladies, one of them suffering in her countenance from the wind, met on the platform of a village railway station.

"Dy tell me, dear," said the first, in a bitter-sweet voice, "how you manage to get your nose that rich, red colour?"

"My dear," was the reply, "it's nothing with pride at not paying it out into other people's business."

A PLEASANT EVENT

An ice cream social, under the auspices of the A. O. T. S. Class of Grace Church Sunday School, was held on Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Loucks. A very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all. A good programme of solos, duetts, and a number of speeches were enjoyed very much. Mr. Reg. Wiseman delighted all with his solo; also Mr. A. Smith with his cornet.

At this time Mr. and Mrs. A. Perry were called on for a dialogue. After getting their attention they were presented with a tray, and the following address, after which they responded, and wished every success to the A. O. T. S.

Dear Friends,—As you are about to leave us a little way, we feel we cannot let you go without trying to express our friendship and goal will. You can only know our reluctance at letting you go by remembering in your own experience bidding good-bye to some who had endeared themselves to a hundred ways to you. We shall miss you, dear friends, but we know it must be with you, an opportunity for further work and well doing. We know we shall not be forgotten, as we know we shall not forget you, but shall always think of you as belonging to us yet.

Will you accept this little token of our love and respect for you, and may God watch between you and us while we are absent, one from the other is the prayer of your Class companions.

RIPENING CHEDDAR

Results of Nine Tests at the Agricultural College

Percentage of Shrinkage Under the Various Trials—Cheese Often Kept Too Long In Curing-rooms—Sweet Clover Milk Will Not Make Good Cheese—Winter Lawn Protection.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The Dairy department of the Ontario Agricultural College made nine tests during the summer of 1923 in cheddar cheese curing. Four uniform cheese were used each week. One was placed in the curing-room directly from the press and allowed to remain there for one week, when it was removed to cold storage; one was put in cold storage at once from the press and allowed to remain there; one was put in the curing-room for three to six days, then paraffined and moved to cold storage; and one was allowed to remain in the curing-room during the whole of the ripening period. The chief objects of the experiment were to note difference in the losses of weight, and the effect upon quality of the cheese treated by these four methods. All the cheese were weighed when taken from the hoops and again at the end of one month. The cheese were scored when about six weeks old, and again about two months later.

Percentage of Shrinkage.

The average percentage of shrinkage was least for the cheese placed in the curing-room for one week, then moved to cold storage. Those paraffined and then moved to cold storage stand next; and the cold storage lots third. The greatest loss was in the lots allowed to remain in the curing-room for the full ripening period of one month. The average percentages of shrinkage were 1.98, 2.41, 2.86 and 4.42 respectively for the four lots. There was little difference in the average score of the cheese for the three lots in cold storage. Those placed in the curing-room for one week and then moved to a temperature of 40° F. scored highest; then the lots placed in storage at once; and next the lots paraffined and put in storage. The lots ripened for the full period in the curing-room were inferior when checked at the end of the test. Unfortunately, much of the cheese of Ontario is ripened in an ordinary curing-room for too long a period.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

SWEET CLOVER MILK.

Interesting Experiments In Feeding Dairy Cows at the College—Milk From Feeding Sweet Clover Makes Satisfactory Cheese.

Investigations have been carried on by the Dairy Department of the Ontario Agricultural College during the summers of 1922 and 1923 on the question of using milk produced by cows pasturing on sweet clover for cheese making. About half of the patrons supplying milk to the Dairy Department of the College use sweet clover as a pasture crop, and the other half do not. The milk from each set of patrons was made up separately on five dates during June and July. The sweet clover lots of milk 3,514 pounds, and the non-clover lots 1,925 pounds. The average percentages of fat were 3.2 and 3.38, respectively. There was practically no difference in the acidities of the milk of both lots at the time of adding the rennet or when dipped. The losses of fat in the whey averaged 1.82 and .21 per cent. respectively.

Proportion of Cheese to Milk.

The average yield of cheese per 1,000 pounds milk was 91.23 pounds for the sweet clover lots and 92.23 for the non-clover lots. The percentages of moisture in the sweet clover cheese were practically the same. The average score of the cheese was the same for flavor in both lots. The average total score was 93.15 for the clover lots and 93.6 out of 100 for the non-clover cheese. There was nothing abnormal about the sweet clover lots of milk or cheese. The results are similar to those obtained during 1922. These two years' tests indicate that there is apparently no reason why cows fed or pastured on sweet clover should not produce satisfactory milk for the making of good cheddar cheese.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Protect the Lawn In Winter.

A well-beaten path made across the lawn in winter will probably work a permanent damage. The grass may be killed and the soil so compacted that grass cannot grow from the seed season will not thrive. Such a path will generally be obvious for a number of years. A "cow path" is distinctly an unattractive feature on a lawn. Two lines of stepping-stones, "Keep off the Paths that age May-ing" may well be heeded throughout the year.

Another sin against a lawn is to flood it for the purpose of making a skating rink. A body of ice over the lawn in winter is almost certain to completely kill the grass. The grass will not tolerate for a long time a covering which precludes movement of air.

Young lawns should have a covering of straw. A wind-swept lawn, bare of snow, is especially liable to lose much of its young clover. Brush spread about tends to deflect the wind and holds the snow.

Select the bear for fall use before you are ready to use him. Get him acclimated to your surroundings and habits. Very few dying get rare. Never use a young bear until he is past ten months of age if you want large results.

HIS AUNT THE SPUR.

Relative In Ontario Urged on the New Minister.

When Hon. E. J. McMurray, the new solicitor-general of Canada, was being sworn in at Winnipeg recently, he held in his hand a telegram which read as follows: "Do justice, love mercy and walk humbly. Keep your head level, and your feet on the straight path."

It was from his Aunt Susan down in Ontario, a maiden lady who had taken an interest in him when he was a tall, raw-boned youth. As his friends gathered around him with their congratulations, the new solicitor-general proudly exhibited the telegram, and pledged himself to act on her advice.

In his youth he worked as a hired man for a Scotch farmer, who kept him going from four in the morning until ten at night; but even as a farm laborer Ed. McMurray had a resolve to complete his public school course, and eventually become a lawyer. And it was this proud Aunt Sue who induced him finally to go to high school at St. Mary's, Ontario.

Through with high school, he was unable to take a course at Osgoode Hall, so "Mac" went west. Settling in Saskatchewan, he broke in broncos, stooked, milked cows, anything for a living. Acquiring a little money, he went to Normal School at Regina, qualified as a teacher, and spent several years teaching in foreign settlements. In this way he made sufficient money to go to Winnipeg and study law.

Eventually he was called to the bar. He has been a successful lawyer. He specialized in criminal law. Of twenty-six alleged murderers defended by him, but one went to the gallows. But the case which brought him most fame was the defense of the Winnipeg strike leaders.

Mr. McMurray was the first federal minister to take the oath of office in Winnipeg. It was found less expensive to send an officer from Ottawa than to have the new solicitor-general go east.—Toronto Star Weekly.

Louisville Melodrama

In Louisville, Kentucky, there has been unfolded to the police one of the most extraordinary cases of murderous mania in the annals of American crime. The principals are Richard Heaton, a busines man who was driven out of his mind by jealousy of his wife, and who sought to torture, dismember and murder William Gates, his former friend, who, at the last moment turned the tables on the murderer and escaped with his life, leaving his enemy dead.

Heaton and Gates were boyhood friends and later in life Gates was an employee of Heaton who had promoted. He was also best man at Heaton's wedding, the bride being Miss Mary Leahy Welden. The happiness that descended upon the young couple was marred by Heaton's jealousy. His wife was charming and he distrusted her, though there is no reason to suppose that she had committed any indiscretion. The probability is that soon after his marriage Heaton became insane, his mania taking the form of jealousy. He began to study books on hypnotism, in the belief that he might thus establish an ascendency over his wife that her love had been unable to give him. He tried to mesmerize her, but she remained immune, thus further increasing his suspicions. He accused her of intrigues with several men, and fell into fits of terrifying rage. She denied his charges, but he employed private detectives and is supposed to have spent $75,000 with them without results that pleased him. Tobacco men he suspected he became violent. Once he tied up a citizen to a tree and whipped him. His assistant in these outbreaks was his friend William Gates.

Then suddenly he became convinced that Gates was the real betrayer of his happiness, and he received upon a terrible vengeance. He telephoned his friend to meet him at the offices of Heaton and Fisher. In the evening Gates turned up, and as he entered the room was covered with a revolver in the hands of Heaton and handcuffed. A revolver was taken from Gates and then he was taken by Heaton and Cordell, a private detective, to a motor car driven by Boyde Conrad and thence to a vacant house, which Heaton had rented a couple of weeks earlier, as was afterwards discovered. The victim was carried to a bedroom, upon the floor of which was a mattress soaked down by spikes. Gates was thrown down on the mattress, his hands and feet being lashed to the spikes. Then the doctor came and the organist left Heaton and Gates alone.

The former then proceeded to open several packing boxes in the room and from them he removed and arrange in a methodical manner a complete surgical kit, composed of knives, needles, saws, bandages and operating gloves, even chloroform and a funnel for its administration. There was also an axe with a blade sharpened like a knife. Gates in horror saw from what use he was about to be done to him. He was to be the victim of surgery and torture at the hands of the madman, and if he should die in the course of the work then he was to be dismembered with the axe, and the fragments of his body wrapped up and carried away in the strong packing cases. He pleaded for mercy, but Heaton only smiled. He opened his chloroform and emptied some of it over Gates' nostrils. Gates held his breath as long as he could, then with a gasp exhaled his hoodloways, and began to moan to mutter. Heaton supposed that he was unconscious and removed the funnel, and Gates began to murmur with more coherence. He conveyed to Heaton that he had sent certain letters to his aunt in a nearby town, and that in the event of him not claiming them by a certain date she was to inform the police who were instructed to hunt up Heaton for explanation. The madman became alarmed at this information and went no further with his operation. Instead he left the room, and Gates was left alone to spend a tortured night.

Heaton reappeared the next day and made Gates eat a big meal on the phone and give the puzzled old lady instructions that the mythical letters were to be sent to Heaton. The execution was thus postponed until the maniac could receive them. The day passed, and the next day, with Gates spreadeagled and in agony. Then Mrs. Heaton suddenly appeared at the house, having been able to escape the guards thrown round her own home. Her husband kept her downstairs, while he stole up to have a precautionary look at his prisoner. Gates begged that he should be permitted to get up for but a moment. Otherwise, he said, he would pass out in a fit. Heaton, believing him to be helpless, cautiously untied his hands, but handcuffed them at the same time, and then freed his legs. Gates staggered about the room trying to restore his circulation. Then Heaton ordered him to the mattress again. Gates lay down, and his legs were fastened. Then the handcuffs were removed, and one hand was tied down again. But the other hand was free for an instant, and in that instant it darted to his vest pocket, where for years Gates had carried a small old-fashioned pistol. This he drew, and as Heaton made a move he shot him through the heart. Then, almost a maniac himself, Gates himself rushed down stairs and into the street. The coroner's jury dismissed him with a verdict of justifiable homicide.

What Chemical Experiments at the Agricultural College Show

Detecting Milk Adulations—Powdered Skimmilk—Milk In Breadmaking—Feeding Silage Before Milking—Milk Matters.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Detecting Milk Adulations.

The Chemistry department of the Ontario Agricultural College during the past year made a study of the freezing point of milk by means of the Hortvet Cryoscope, proving the apparatus to be absolutely reliable in detecting adulation of milk by adding water. The Hortvet Cryoscope having a scientifically accurate construction, now fills that much needed requirement of an official test for detecting added water in milk regardless of the breed of cows from which the milk may be obtained.

Powdered Skimmilk.

The comparative values of powdered skimmilk and powdered buttermilk were found to be about equal in experiments carried on at the College. The average total gains per pig were 121.6 pounds for those fed on the skimmilk powder and 122.8 pounds for those fed on buttermilk powder. Although the feeding value of these products is good, the market price for hogs and the high cost of the skimmilk and buttermilk powder makes its use prohibitive as live stock feed.

Milk In Breadmaking.

The Chemistry department has also studied experimentally the effect of whole milk, skimmed milk, condensed milk and milk powder in making bread. The whole milk naturally had some of the effects of fat, and the sweetened, condensed milk some of the effects of sugar, but, otherwise, milk will not replace sugar, malt or shortening in making bread. It has an influence all its own which none of these other constituents will produce. In conjunction with these other ingredients it does, however, influence the flavor of the bread, and improve the color of the crust. In fact it makes a richer loaf of bread, with greater moisture-retaining and higher food value properties.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

Feeding Silage Before Milking.

There is always a tendency that when green feed is given to cows shortly before milking that it will impart to the milk some odor, and possibly taste. This does not always follow, but it is not considered advisable to feed green fodder, silage, or other strong smelling feeds just before milking. When cows are turned into pasture in the spring there will be developed in their milk a particular odor that is often times quite disagreeable. Also cows turned on sweet clover, and particularly those pastured on tops or green rye, will impart to their milk a very strong odor, and possibly a flavor, unless they are taken from such pasture several hours before milking. Not only does the cow seem to pass on this undesirable odor through her blood to her milk, but where strong smelling silage is fed in the barn this odor is likely to be absorbed by the milk at the time of milking. For these reasons silage and other similar feeds are best fed after milking.

Who Is Kept?

We frequently hear dairymen say, "I keep ten cows," or "I keep eight cows." All too often they are much nearer the exact truth than they imagine. The statement should be reversed. Dairyman should ask themselves two questions, "How many cows are keeping me at a profit?" and "How many cows am I keeping at a loss?" There is not enough fun, amusement or excitement in caring for dairy cattle to pay too high for the privilege. The reason so many "boarder" cows are in the tie-ups of the barn is because few farmers know which cows are profitable and which are not. Milk scales, whitepaper, Babcock test reports and consumption necessary to keep tabs on production over a year's period are just as essential to profitable dairying as pitchforks and milk pails.

Milk Matters.

Nine and one-half pounds of milk are required to make one pound of timburger cheese.

Milk will take up impurities with more rapidity and hold on to them with greater tenacity than almost any other food product.

It is easier to keep milk clean by keeping the dirt out of it than it is to clean it after the dirt has contaminated it. A clean cow will stir far toward clean milk, and a few seconds spent in wiping the udder with a clean, damp cloth will prevent much future trouble.

Encouraging a cow to give milk with a milking stool is expensive to her owner. Exactly why a cow puts four or five per cent. of fat in her milk is still an unsolved problem, but the case with which she will take the fat out of her milk when the right provocation has been solved many times.

A Rhyme About Lime.

When in your garden soil of clay you walk with patience day by day, through twilight dusk or bright sunshine, to try to make the soil more fine; when though you scratch and hoe and thump, the soil will still proceed to "lump," and bake as hard as any brick, and make your peas and cabbage sick; my friend you then may know it's time to give that soil a dose of lime.

This way clever women resist the years

The simplest beauty secret known— but the most effective

Every day you see women well along in years, who still retain the charm of youthful, lovely skin. They are not unusually fortunate — just clever enough to resist the years!

● They know and follow a simple method, which you may employ as successfully as they do. This tells you how.

Authorities advise this

Cleanse the skin regularly, authorities say, to keep your complexion lovely, radiant, youthful. But beware of harsh cleansing methods. They injure skin.

Wash thoroughly with Palmolive Soap—each night before retiring. Rub the creamy, foaming lather well into the tiny pores. Rinse — and repeat the washing. Then rinse again.

Then—if skin is dry—apply a little cold cream. That is all. Skin so cared for is not injured by cosmetics, by wind and sun, or by dirt.

The simple, correct way

You cannot find a more effective beauty treatment. Because Palmolive Soap is blended of rare palm and olive oils famous for mild but thorough cleansing qualities since the days of Cleopatra. And it's inexpensive.

Be sure you get Palmolive Soap—which is never sold unwrapped. All dealers have it. Then try this method. Watch the improvement in your skin.

It is very economical. So let Palmolive do for your whole body what it does for the face.

CAVE MEN LIVED IN EGYPT.

First Remains Have Been Discovered on African Continent.

An archaeological find, which promises to be an event of the first magnitude, is reported from Egypt. The remains of cave men have been there, the first ever discovered on the African continent. The bones were found by Dr. D. E. Perry and reported by the British Royal Anthropological Institute. They were discovered near the town, Gaul-ed Quebir, on the east bank of the Nile in Upper Egypt.

The discovery opens a strange vista into the past of the dark continent. The bones are not those of people such as we know, but of men of a far lower type of the form of head and dull in mind. There are no cave men to-day. They are all extinct.

This newly discovered prehistoric race lived in the Pleistocene age, during or before the age of ice. At that time the lake of Egypt was much fresher than it is now and the Nile was considerably larger. Instead of the hippopotamus, crocodile, buffalo, beasts no longer found in northern Africa, there were many swamps, and the animals inhabiting them were those of both these countries. The bones of both these species have been found with those of the men.

There seems to have been quick friends in those days in Egypt, to which the prehistoric hunters would sometimes stick and drown. Many of their bones have been cut and the water oysters sticking to them, showing that they lay in the swamps where they perished for untold years.

Then, half a million years or more ago, Africa began to rise. The land of Egypt has been gradually elevated, but the Nile has worked vigorously to keep its channel clear. The river has cut a trench ten miles wide and 200 feet deep from one end of Egypt to the other since the cave men lived there and has transported many cubic miles of debris to the sea.

Too rapid a rise drained away the river has cut 200 feet below their level and has left them with dried mud banks, high and dry. At the same time the rainfall has failed, so that what were once green fields are now parched deserts.

Dr. Perry found the bones in a pit due by Egyptians of an early Pharoah's time. Some energetic person had scoured the desert for miles around and had gathered a great pile of bones together, to be burned as an offering to a grave. Some of the human skulls are well preserved and will greatly increase scientific knowledge of the races of men who made Egypt.

Oyster Cruelties.

Dr. Brander Matthews, the brilliant critic, said at a Brooklyn tea:

"The remarks of cave men are usually the briefest. You remember the story of the playwright who woke up the critic and said reproachfully:

"'Here I've been reading you my play in order to get your opinion, and you fall asleep.'

"But,' yawned the critic, 'sleep is an opinion.'

"A little girl at breakfast criticized her mother's cooking beautifully:

"'Oh, mamsey,' she said, 'you haven't burnt the oatmeal!'"

Little Lord Fauntleroy.

The news that Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett has taken a villa at Nikko, a summer resort in the hills 80 miles from Tokio, caused some anxiety for the safety of the writer of novelist among her many admirers. It was so long ago as 1886 that she made her great success with "Little Lord Fauntleroy." This novel, which was dramatized, brought its author over $100,000. Another play by Mrs. Burnett, "Esmeralda," ran for three years in America.

Life of Leisure.

"How did you spend the summer?"

"Mostly," replied Mr. Dustin Stax, "in listening to mother and the girls figure on where we'll spend the winter."

FEEDING MEAT BY-PRODUCTS IN HOPPERS TO HOGS

(Experimental Farms Note.)

The value of organic supplement for hog feeding has been demonstrated in a number of tests conducted during the past few years at the Dominion Experimental Farms.

In a feeding test conducted with four lots of Yorkshire hogs, two commercial tankages and a connecting meal were fed in self-feeding hoppers as supplements to the meal ration which in the basic tankage contained meal as well, while the remaining lot was used as a check in order to determine the economy of feeding these supplements and also the quantity which the hogs would consume.

The test commenced on January 9th, and continued for a period of 90 days. Each lot included seven pigs averaging from 44 to 54 pounds in weight. The meal ration for all lots consisted of ground oats, 2 parts; ground barley, 1 part; shorts, 1 part; middlings, 1 part; and linseed oil meal 3 per cent. The meal was fed as a mish slop in troughs. Each lot of hogs consumed 1710 pounds of 20% meal mixture and 3322 pounds skim-milk. Lot 1 was used as the check and did not receive meat by-products while lot 2 consumed 9.06 per cent. of tankage, lot 3, 14.1 per cent. of No. 2 tankage and Lot 4, 9.06 per cent. of meat meal.

Lot 1 made digtally the lowest gains as well as the most economical gains followed in turn by the lot on No. 1 tankage, the lot on No. 2 tankage and the lot on meat meal. The average daily gains per pig were 1.07 pounds, 1.65 pounds, 1.65 pounds and 1.69 pounds while the feed costs per pound of gain were 5.21 cents, 5.68 cents, 5.74 cents and 5.89 cents respectively.

The addition of the meat by-products increased the gains, but this increase was not sufficiently large to compensate for the increased cost of the ration.

The results further indicate that it is not economical to add as much as 10 per cent. of meat by-products to a well balanced meal and milk ration.

These results agree in principle with those of previous tests in that organic supplements increase the grains produced in a given period and show that it is not usually economical to supply these much in excess of 5 or 6 per cent. of the meal ration.

A youthful member of the club had been dining unwisely, and strolling unwisely into the smoking room he espied a certain member who was the pet aversion.

"I say—" he began, with all the candour that wine can impart, "I just looked in to tell you that you are a silly idiot."

The object of his wrath merely looked him up and down disgustedly.

"Go away," he said, shortly; "you're tipsy."

"Yes, I know I am," came the reply, "but to-morrow I'll be sober again, and you'll still be a silly idiot."

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.—At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

Two oldish Welsh ladies, one of them suffering in her countenance from the cruel wind, met on the platform of a village railway station.

"Dear me, Jane, dear," said the first, in a bitter-sweet voice, "how you manage to get your nose that rich, red color."

"My dear," was the reply, "its blowing with pride at not poking itself into other people's business."

SOME KICK!

A draft of Missouri mules had just arrived at the corral, and one new buck private made the common but sad mistake of approaching too near to the business end of one of them. His comrades caught him on the rebound, placed him on a stretcher and started him for the hospital.

On the way the invalid regained consciousness, gazed at the blue sky overhead, experienced the swaying motion as he was being carried along, and shakily lowered his hands over the sides, only to feel space.

"My gosh!" he groaned. "I ain't even hit the ground yet!"

AGRICULTURAL FAIRS

The Genesis of Agricultural Societies In Ontario

The First Association In Upper Canada—Birth of the Provincial Fair —Creation of the Department of Agriculture—Later Extension of Work.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The honor of holding the first Agricultural Fair in Canada falls to Windsor, N.S., in 1765, about 159 years ago, and soon other Agricultural Societies fell into line in Nova Scotia, including one at Halifax in 1789 and another in King's County. This latter is the only one of the old societies in the Maritime Provinces that has survived the present day. The prizes offered at Windsor were in goods and medals. To the persons bringing the greatest number of cattle were awarded three yards of English blue superfine broadcloth and a silver medal. For horses, a saddle, bridle, whip, spurs and a medal were the rewards, and a churn for the best cow, while for the best twelve pounds of butter or cheese the prize was six yards of ribbon and a medal.

The progress of organizing Agricultural Societies in a newly settled country was naturally slow at first; but it is worthy of mention that the first Province to introduce imported stock was New Brunswick, which brought over, in 1826, four Shorthorn bulls, which were recorded in the first volume of the English Herd Book. A provincial exhibition was held in Fredericton, N.B., in October, 1852. An Agricultural Society was organized in Montreal in 1788 and another in Quebec in 1789.

The First Society In Upper Canada.

Settlement in Ontario commenced in 1783, and in 1791 had progressed sufficiently along the Niagara river and peninsula to justify the formation of an Agricultural Society on October 28 of that year. This pioneer Ontario society had its headquarters at Niagara-on-the-Lake, then known at Newark. Governor Simcoe took a great interest in it and was its first president. The first efforts of its members were directed to the holding of monthly meetings to discuss agricultural questions, and an agricultural library was also established. The holding of an exhibition naturally followed.

Agricultural Societies gradually became organized all over Ontario, as settlement in the province progressed. In 1830, the Legislature passed regulations governing same and set apart grants. Eight hundred dollars was apportioned to each District Society to enable it to hold an exhibition in addition to the work it had previously undertaken.

An Agricultural Society for the County of York was organized in 1830. Seeds and implements were procured from the Old Country for members. A progressive member was sent to New York State who purchased four bulls for the use of the Society. Soon after an exhibition was held, and prizes were awarded for essays on agricultural subjects.

Birth of the Provincial Fair.

In 1845 a Provincial Association was formed, and in 1846 the first Provincial Fair was held in Toronto, out of which have grown the world-wide-known Canadian National Exhibition, the Western Fair and the Central Canada Exhibition.

The Provincial Association gradually became better organized and developed into the Agriculture and Arts Association, which did so much for the improvement of agriculture in the province in the earlier days. Among the many useful lines of work inaugurated were the establishment of the Veterinary College, the registering of pure bred stock, the awarding of prizes for the best kept farms and buildings and well cultivated fields, and, indirectly, the Agricultural College at Guelph.

Creation of Department of Agriculture.

Agriculture soon became such an important feature in Ontario that a Commissioner of Agriculture was appointed; and eventually the Provincial Government created a Department of Agriculture, thus recognizing this basic industry as of equal importance with those which came under the supervision of the other departments of the Government. Thus one of that little society organized in 1791 in old Niagara-on-the-Lake, with a score or less of competitors and a modest prize list of a few pounds, have developed not only the three great exhibitions in the province, but also the important Department of Agriculture with its numerous branches and with local representatives in every county and district, bringing information and assistance to farmers desirous of making use of it.

Later Extension of Work.

The three hundred and sixty Agricultural Societies in the Province of Ontario have made rapid progress of late years. In 1907 a new departure was inaugurated, and a grant was made by the Ontario Government for the holding of Standing Field Crop Competitions, each society selecting the desired kind of grain or other crop grown for seed.

With the exception of ten societies, which devote their energies wholly to the keeping and maintenance of pure-bred male animals for which they receive certain grants, all the societies hold fall fairs and exhibitions. Spring stock and seed shows are also conducted with great success.—J. Lockie Wilson, Supt. of Agricultural Association.

Before you can have real good hogs of any breed you must have a good hog mother and a good hog sire. The idea is to raise big litters that will grow rapidly and large and make the most pork for the least feed.

The Contractor: "Yes, I can save you a few thousand dollars in work and materials without spoiling the looks of the house, but it won't be fit to live in."

The Owner: "Hop to it. I'm not building it to live in. I'm building it to sell."

"An Evening in Hawaii" at Dominion Chautauqua

"An Evening in Hawaii," an original musical production to be given at the coming Dominion Chautauqua by Vierra's Hawaiians, instrumentalists and singers, portrays most vividly the music and customs of Hawaii.

With the aid of novel lighting and scenic effects and appropriate costuming, an atmosphere of artistic beauty and realism is secured. In this setting Vierra's Hawaiians play the instruments peculiar to Hawaii, among them the steel guitar. Most expressively they sing the songs that are a part of the true Hawaii.

TESLA'S LATEST.

Inventor and Radio Expert Breaks Silence of Years.

Nikola Tesla, inventor and pioneer in the radio field, broke a silence of years recently in announcing his perfection of transmitting power without wires. He said that it would be possible by this means to transmit power for the operation of ships and aircraft, illumination and machinery, to the greatest terrestrial distance with smaller losses than now obtained in relatively short metallic circuits.

His system comprises an electrical generator which delivers its energy into the earth, whence it can be "unlocked" by anyone having the proper electrical "key." He adduces reasons for believing that eventually wireless transmission will supplant cables:

It is well known that telephonic communication through Atlantic cables has been found impracticable, although their capacity is relatively small. But I made the marvellous discovery that the planet responded to the currents impressed upon it exactly as though it were completely insulated in space without any conducting envelope whatever. In other words, whatever be the electrical properties of the atmosphere at high altitudes, there was no heavyside layer, a name given to the outer gaseous envelope of the earth, supposed to be rendered conductive through ionization, caused by the sun's rays. This discovery showed that the most complex and rapid electrical oscillations —human speech and even power— could be transmitted through the earth far better than through any artificial cable or conductor. Experiment proved this to be exactly so.

When asked what would be the immediate application of wireless power he made this interesting reply:

I think that one of the most desirable uses of the power will be for the lighting of isolated homes by vacuum tubes, which will consume little or no energy. They require no connecting wire, and last indefinitely. My laboratories were usually lighted by lamps of this kind, and it was no inconvenience that a comparatively small amount of energy would be sufficient for the purpose. Of course, this is not, by far, the most valuable application. The operation of flying machines without fuel will be of over so much greater domestic and international importance.

Tesla is a Serbian by birth, and came to the United States in 1884. He is now a naturalized citizen.

How Rubber Is Collected.

Rubber arrives at the factories in different parts of the world in various forms. Plantation rubber is that which has been collected scientifically from cultivated trees; "native" rubber usually comes from the jungle.

Plantation rubber is clean, light in color, and, when seen in the creamy semi-transparent form known as "crepe," seems pretty enough to be used as material for a girl's summer frock.

Native rubber is almost black, as hard as iron, and contains a considerable amount of foreign matter. Twenty per cent. of dirt is the average amount extracted in the batch to which such rubber is subjected upon reaching the factory.

Although native rubber is so dirty, however, the way it is collected is very picturesque.

Having located and tapped his trees, the native puts utensils beneath the cuts (perhaps the cups, more likely gourds or coconuts), then makes a trail round with a bucket, emptying into this the milk-like substance which has run out from the trees.

This is known as latex and contains a certain amount of water.

As it is necessary to evaporate the water, the native builds a fire, then dips a stick into the latex and holds it in the smoke. As it dries, he redips, until the resulting lump of smoked rubber is some eight or twelve pounds in weight.

Another but rare method of collection is for the native to smear the latex upon his own body, and so carry it to camp, where he pulls it off in strips!

Small wonder that "native" rubber requires a considerable amount of washing and softening when it reaches a factory!

AMONG MONKEY-MEN

JOHNSON TELLS OF VISIT TO SOUTH SEA ISLANDS.

People of Lambumba Bay Had No Houses or Huts—Lived In Banyan Trees — Years Ago Many People Dwelt on This Island.

While on their exploring expedition in the South Sea Island, Harry Johnson and his wife met with some wonderful adventures and saw some strange people.

After thoroughly exploring Vao, Mr. Johnson and his party boarded Capt. Moran's vessel. What followed is told in his own words:

We set sail betimes and before long reached Lambumba Bay. Early next morning, we struck inland along a well beaten trail. We followed this trail all day, but saw no trace of the natives. Next day we took a second trail, which crossed the first. Again we met no one. But we found baskets hanging from a banyan and the embers of a fire, still alive under a blanket of ashes.

We did not get another glimpse of the natives till, when we returned to the Amour we saw footprints in the sand of the beach. And the two days we had left in charge said that a number of savages had inspected the vessel from a distance, disappearing into the jungle just before our arrival.

Early next morning, as we were eating breakfast, a native marched boldly down the beach and up to the ship's rail. We hailed him and bade him be "shackbirded" off to Queensland long before and had made his way back home after a year's absence. He knew all about the white man and his ways, he told us, and proved it by asking for tobacco.

But finally I succeeded in extracting from Nelli—so he called himself—an agreement to guide us to the headquarters of his tribe.

After a halt or so of trail, Nelli called a halt and disappeared into the depths of a banyan. Soon he returned, followed by three young savages and an old man, who was nearer to a monkey than any other human being I have ever seen—bright eyes peering out from a shock of woolly hair and enormous mouth discolored teeth as white and perfect as those of a dental advertisement. Skin creased with deep wrinkles; an alert, nervous, monkey-like expression; quick, sure, monkey-like movements.

The five savages sat and discussed us in their own language of growls and spitlike chattering. Then they came to examine the rifles carried by our party, but they kept well away from the muzzles and their guns out of their hands. One (Mr. Johnson's wife) more confident, explained to the savages the mysteries of her repeater. Then they focussed their attention on her. They felt her boots and examined admiringly. They fingered her blond hair and carefully touched her skin, giving strange lily-like whistles of awe.

After awhile about twenty natives came along the trail, and the explanation of us and our belongings began all over. One went among the newcomers with her knife, as a barber shops, and I set up my moving picture camera on a tripod, and began to turn the crank. Like Indians they sprang to their feet and ran to the banyan. They scampered up the tendrils like monkeys, and by the time I could follow them with the camera, I could see them peering from eye bore and there peering from the entrances.

Through Nelli we coaxed them back, and down they came, while I turned out one of the new reporters lever pot. One at once dubbed them the "monkey people." They had pronounced feet with the first toe separated from the other toes and turned in. They could grasp a branch with their feet as easily as I could with my hands.

By dint of many persuasions I won the confidence of the chief and, before the afternoon was over, I was calling him name, Weebang-ga-ar, and he a strange crony. He was covered with layer after layer of dirt. No one who has not been among these tribes can imagine a human being so filthy. His hair had never been combed or cut; it was matted with dirt and grease. His eyes were protruding and bloodshot and they never still. But, he proved to be a real chief, and his people looked up when he gave a command. He ordered them to do whatever I asked, and I made pictures all the afternoon.

That night we slept in the banyan, and next day Nella led us through the jungle to a clearing some five miles distant. There we found about two hundred men, women and children. All of them, save Wo-bang-an-ar, who had his fuzzy supplied to him by his subjects, looked thin and dirty. Some of the men wore the Big Number consume, some that of the Small Numbers. The women wore the usual Small Numbers dress of a few leaves. A few men carried old rifles, a few others had bows and arrows or clubs, but the majority were unarmed.

These people had no houses or huts. They lived in the banyans. Sometimes they put a few leaves over the protruding roots as a shelter from rain. Occasionally, they built against the great central trunk of the tree a rough leanto of stick and leaves. I picked up fragments of their history, which runs somewhat as follows:

Years ago there were many more people on the island than there are to-day. In the north and in the south there were great tribes, who were always at war with each other. Then the people who dwelt in the Isthmus, and destroyed their villages, killed their men and carried off their women. Finally the few that were left came to the mounds, living in trees, and depending for their food on wild fruits and nuts, for which they climbed like genuine animals, in the tops of trees, and an occasional bit of fish.

A No. 2A Brownie Camera costs only $2.60, and it takes wonderfully clear pictures. Don't start on your holidays without one. For sale in Napanee only at Wallace's.

EXHIBITION BUTTER

Preparing Butter for Showing at Fall Fairs

Clean Cows, Stables and Utensils—The Score Card—Keep Cream Cool —About Coloring — Have Neat Packages—Cause of Lump Jaw.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

During the next few weeks the fall fairs will be on all over the Province. This means that many of the people on our farms will be very busy preparing their exhibits.

Butter is one of the many things that will require attention, because every buttermaker wants to make a creditable showing.

Clean Cows, Stables and Utensils.

Have the stables, cows and all utensils clean, and do not feed the cows anything that might give an undesirable flavor to the butter. The judge will pay particular attention to the flavor, and it is given 45 out of the 100 points on the score card.

Churn the cream sweet, or with low acidity, as that is what is wanted by most judges.

Keep the cream cool and churn at a temperature low enough to have the butter in nice, firm granules in from twenty to twenty-five minutes. A fall will require a little more, as fairs is made from cream insufficiently ripened, and churned at too high a temperature. Because of this the body and flavor are the color pale, or, if the salt is unevenly distributed, the butter will be streaky.

Points on the Score Card.

All of these things are considered by the judge, as is shown by the score card, which read as follows:

Flavor	45
Texture	20
Incorporation of moisture	10
Color	10
Salt	5
Packing	10
Total	100

Keep the Cream Cool.

If the weather is warm, the ice supply should be used the water not cold enough to lower the cream to the required temperature, it would be well to get a piece of ice to cool the "exhibition" cream and the water used for washing the butter.

This butter will be firm enough to stand sufficient working, and it will have a waxy body and texture improved color and more even distribution of the salt.

About Coloring.

If it should be necessary to add a few drops of coloring to the cream before churning, be careful not to have it highly colored.

Do not wait until the morning of the fair to churn the cream. The butter will be in better condition and will score higher if it is made two or three days before. This will give it time to become "ripe" and the flavor of the butter and salt will be blended.

Have Neat Packages.

The package must be as neat and tidy as it possible to make them. Use a box or crock that looks new. A chipped or cracked crock will reduce the score under the heading of "packing."

When a person has made an effort to make a good product he has a feeling of satisfaction even thoughhe does not win a prize. There is always this fact to bear in mind—the prizes are few in number but the competitors are often many.—E. B. Millar, O. A. College, Guelph.

Cause of Lump Jaw.

Lump jaw is not a hereditary disease, nor is it directly contagious or "catching." It is caused by the invasion of a punctured wound, laceration or abrasion of the skin or mucous membrane of the mouth by the "ray fungus" (actinomyces). The disease technically is termed actinomycosis, from the fungus mentioned. In probably a majority of cases the disease is caused by the beards or awns of barley, rye, wheat or wild grasses, or the hulls of straw of grains, and possibly the stalks of fodders carrying the infective spores of the fungus into the tissues. When this fungus enters the tissues and an abscess, caused by the fungus, it contains canary-yellow, gritty particles which contain spores, and becomes setting onto grass, grain, etc., in time reinfect animals when wounds occur. Pus that comes from an animal that has a discharging actinomycotic sore or abscess should not graze with sound cattle, and had better be kept isolated. As some of the pus may also get on the hands of the attendant, a cow affected with a discharging diseased centre should not be used for milk production. It may be added that the meat of an affected animal is fit for use if slaughtering is done before emaciation is caused or sores formed and while the animal is otherwise in good condition and eating well. The same is true of milk. But if the lymph nodes become an open sore, neither flesh nor milk is fit for human food.

Grit for Hens.

Remember that the grit in the fowl's gizzard fulfils the same function that teeth do for animals and human beings. Unlike teeth, however, sand soon wears smooth with constant rubbing, and becomes unserviceable. Consequently the fowl's crop must be replenished frequently with fresh grit. In warm weather fowls secure a sufficient supply of grinding material from the ordinary range lot. For this reason we are apt to be a little negligent in providing the necessary grit under frozen conditions when it is most needed. It is essential that real sand or gravel be furnished, for which pearler shells and like substances are splendid sources of lime, necessary for egg production and for bone formation, but they do not serve the purpose of grinding the feed.

WHEN THE LEOPARD APPEARED.

Boy of Fifteen Shot Animal and Then Ran.

The following is an incident in the early life of Mr. J. Z. de Villiers, the first Burgomaster of Johannesburg, who held that position up to the time of the Anglo-Boer war. He was magistrate in the Free State, Swaziland and the Transvaal for many years. "Gravitas," who tells the story, vouches for its truth:

"It's dangerous going out alone," said my mother. "Why don't you ask one of your friends to accompany you?"

"I'm fifteen and no longer a baby," I replied. "I can look after myself and prefer to go alone."

My mother said nothing further and I proceeded with the cleaning of my shotgun. It was a Friday evening and as there would be no school on Saturday, I had made up my mind to go out hunting.

I rose early next morning with the intention of taking my departure, while the rest of the family were still in bed, but my mother was before me.

"Take care of yourself," said she with some show of anxiety, on seeing me.

"Oh, mother!" I replied sharply, "birds and hares won't eat me!"

"But leopards will," she added quietly. I laughed as I left the house for the idea of meeting a lion or even a leopard seemed absurd. These animals had not been seen for many years and were believed to be extinct in that part of the country where we were living. Besides, I was armed with my shotgun which, in my opinion, was a most effective weapon.

Not far from the house where I lived, my several hours' hunting and I reached and began to ascend after a few minutes' walk, heading for a spot where, I knew, I would find a great variety of birds; so absorbed was I in the anticipated destruction of the poor feathered creatures, that I did not notice that a heavy mist had gathered, until I came into violent contact with stunted trees.

The shock brought me back to realities and it was with a feeling of dismay that I realized I had lost my bearings and, on account of the density of the mist, could not tell where I was, but knowing that it would soon disperse, as it usually does in South Africa, I proceeded a little further and sat down to await developments.

I had scarcely done so, however, when I heard a sound behind me. I turned my head and saw something lying on a rock a little higher up on the mountain side. I could not discern what it was, but came to the conclusion that it was some animal which was watching me closely.

For a moment I was at a loss as to what I should do, then slowly and cautiously, scarce daring to breathe, I rose to my feet and faced it; but I confess that my hair was standing on end and cold shivers were running down my spine.

Whatever the thing was, it began to move and, scrambling down, raised my gun and discharged it full at the creature just as it sprang towards me. I ducked instinctively and the baby body of the animal just grazed my hat, knocking it off.

Terror stricken, I turned, flung away the gun and fled down the mountain side as fast as my feet could carry me, never once glancing back or stopping until, pale and breathless, I reached the door of my home.

That evening the native shepherd, returning with my father's sheep, discovered a dead leopard at the spot where I had met the surprise of my life.

New Deputy Minister of Defence.

George J. Desbarats, C.M.G., who has been named Deputy Minister of National Defence of Ottawa, succeeding Gen. Sir Eugene Fiset, has been forty-five years in the public service of the Dominion.

He was Deputy Minister of the Naval Service when the Borden Government amalgamating the Militia and Naval departments and Air Board in one department of defence was enacted in 1922. When the amalgamation became operative Mr. Desbarats became comptroller in the department. He was named acting Deputy Minister of Defence when Sir Eugene Fiset was obliged by ill-health to retire from that office, and has now been confirmed in the post of Deputy Minister.

A native of the city of Quebec, Mr. Desbarats was born on January 23, 1861, a son of the late George E. Desbarats and Lucienne Bosse. He received his education at Laval-sur-le-Lac and the Polytechnic School, Montreal, graduating with honors in 1879. He married, in 1894, Mary, daughter of Sir Richard Scott, of Ottawa. He was appointed a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1914.

LOOK FOR LUNGWORMS

An Annoying Disease Too Common Among Pigs

Nature and Development of the Ailment — Treatment — Preventive Measures—Autumn Cutting of Alfalfa—Harness and Belting.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Nature and Development of the Disease.

It is commonly known as lungworm disease, due to the presence of small thread-like worms in the air tubes of the lungs setting up pneumonia. The worm causing this disease is named the "Metastrongylus apri," and is also known as the "Strongylus paradoxus." These worms locate in the air tubes of the lungs, where they deposit their ova or eggs in great numbers. The ova as well as the embryos or young worms are then expelled from the air passages with the secretions and discharges from the nostrils, while some are coughed up and expelled from the mouth during spells of coughing, or else swallowed and expelled with the feces. This accounts for a widespread contamination of the floors of the pens and the ground in the lots and yards containing affected pigs. Small pools of water are also liable to become contaminated. In these different places the larvae develop and from time to time become more or less a menace. Infection usually takes place with feed and water in long troughs, lots and pens which have become contaminated by affected pigs. In turn the parasites invade the air passages of the infected pigs, and there reach sexual maturity setting up the disease in the lungs. Once a place becomes contaminated with these parasites, the infection remains dangerous for a long time, because the affected animals keep on burrowing and on account of the density of the mist, could not tell where I was, but knowing that it would soon disperse, as it usually does in South Africa, I proceeded a little further and sat down to await developments.

I had scarcely done so, however, when I heard a sound behind me. I turned my head and saw something lying on a rock a little higher up on the mountain side. I could not discern what it was, but came to the conclusion that it was some animal which was watching me closely.

For a moment I was at a loss as to what I should do, then slowly and cautiously, scarce daring to breathe, I rose to my feet and faced it; but I confess that my hair was standing on end and cold shivers were running down my spine.

You Can't Be Younger Than Your Nerves

That "Old-age Feeling" Comes From Tired, Starved, Frazzeled Nerves. Not Age.

You die when your nerves die. Time does not tell the story. You feel as old as your nerves. That tired, exhausted, fagged-out, feeling means a slowing up of your organs, stagnation of your circulation, gradual loss of nerve strength. If overwork, worry, grief or the strain of life sap your nerves, they lie down and make life miserable for you, because they are starved and frazzeled. They cry out in your sensative stomach—pain, indigestion, sick nausea, loss of appetite, gas, bloating. They draw on your willing heart for more strength—palpitation, faintness, shortness of breath, smothering sensations. They wrack your poor head to warn you—headaches, dizziness, depressed, restless, can't hold yourself, can't sleep. Aches, pains and queer feelings, with fanny names like —neurosis, neurasthenia, neuralgia and neuritis, prowl around. But it is your nerves. Pain is the cry of starved or injured nerves.

MOTHER OF TWIN BOYS

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieved Her of Inflammation and Great Weakness

West St. John, N. B.—"I was in a general run-down condition following the birth of my twin boys. I had a great deal of inflammation, with pains and weakness. Finally my doctor recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. He said that your medicine would be the only thing to build me up. I am sure he is right, for I am feeling much better and am gaining in weight. having gone down to ninety-three pounds. I was in bed for over a month, but am up again now. I have recommended the Vegetable Compound to my friends and give you permission to use my name."—Mrs. Elmer A. Bridges, 82 Rodney St., West St. John, N. B.

There are many women who find their household duties almost unbearable owing to some weakness or derangement. The trouble may be slight, or of long standing symptoms as dragging pains, weakness and a run-down feeling.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for such conditions. It has in many cases relieved this condition by removing the cause of them. Mrs. Ritchie's experience is but one of many.

ALONG THE CHINESE BRIDGES.

Somewhere In the Wilds of North China.

A small plateau in the early 5,000 feet high, is situated somewhere in the wilds of North China. It lies in the shadow of a vast range of hills affected with ormands, writes M.P.E. who has visited the spot.

They are proud of orthaved sea flelts or cropped cehimals, the sonn of a noted population, and they live from one year to the next on rice, also occasionally fortune smiles and a rich booty falls to them, perhaps in some foreigner wiongy they can rob son for a large sum or, more likely, a wealthy Chinese wayfarer, who is way to one of the small towns near the coast.

And so they amass sums of money which they hoard, for they are outlaws to the core. The good is generally never be used, but it is still a part of their lives.

Round their beds they wear yards of marvellous silk. They wear turbans of rich satin, or sashes of jade stone and pearls. Or they have a coat that would stock some shops with $100 evening dresses. Eventually it rots away, but they always have it more. They hang coral and jade round their necks.

The little town on the plain has a population mainly of poor laborers, who usually feed on rice, and the outgoods on their crops and herds.

The place is typical of China, a maze of little streets, some black place growths among the cabbage stalks, meadows of little mud houses, and found the corner a wonderful arch.

Below, two filthy beggars sit and shriek at the passers-by. Just beyond is a fruit stall. A toothless old woman sits behind the piles of golden pears and rosy persimmons—"fruit of heaven."

Other streets are full of restaurants, where there is a perpetual smell of fried food in the air.

Crowds congregate here every day —the tribesmen from the plain encrusted with mud from the rice fields, the shopkeeper, the shoemaker from the mud hut, and the dyer, his hands still blue, advertising his trade by the fact that his clothes rot and trousers are quite unfaded and of the brightest blue. They discuss the topics of the day over their bowls of streaming rice and opium pipes. Outside, the street is alive with a never-ending stream of men, women, and animals.

Round all this is a thick wall, which has twice saved the population from a combined attack from the hills.

While the rich retire shivering to their comfortless houses, built with an the centre of the town, the motley population of poor are up in arms at once. They defend their small, dark shops, full of bales of silk, a few pigs and chickens, and small stocks of fruit and vegetables. It all depends for their existence, miserable as it is.

Wireless Operates Clocks.

A clock that by means of wireless operated and successfully controls a number of other clocks has been invented by an American engineer. The invention is believed by experts who have examined it to be a success in a day when all public clocks will be controlled and synchronized by this method. One of the most wonderful clocks in the world is to be seen at Ellis Cathedral, and was made by a monk six hundred years ago. The clocks are indigented by the appearance of a monkey and armed figure on horseback. These meet in a kind of charge, the striking of their lances sounding the chimes for the hour. A clock without visible works is one of the wonders of Waterloo Station, London. It is controlled by electricity, which connects it with a master-clock.

Harness and Belting.

It is important to note that any leather improperly used, or neglected, will deteriorate rapidly. For example, belts for driving machinery often become impaired, if not used. Take every few years whether on straight drives or not, but when they are kept clean and oiled they will last ten to fifty years.

Apply the grease lightly to driving harness and more liberally to work harness. The exterior or oil should be rubbed thoroughly into the leather, while it is still damp from washing.

SUPERSTITIONS OF THE SEA.

From Time Immemorial Sea Birds Have Been Sacrosanct.

Many strange superstitions from the distant past are inherited by the sailor, and even in these modern days of steel and steam his outlook is still influenced by them.

From time immemorial sea birds have been regarded by sailors as sacrosanct. Who better than Coleridge's Ancient Mariner can show us how shot the albatross is well known.

But there are other superstitions concerning sea birds. Many sailors, for instance, believe that they are the wandering souls of evil-doers condemned to continual movement. Some believe they carry the souls of murderers of lost ships, plaintively crying in the still watches of the night until their bodies shall be carried to the land for Christian burial.

The small grey gulls which fly swiftly up and down the Bosphorus, near the Golden Horn, skimming close to the surface of the water without ever seeming to alight, are said by sailors to be the souls of wicked captains of ships removed to wander their till the Day of Judgment.

Rats foretell disaster by leaving an ill-fated ship just before she sails. They have often been seen invariably along the hawsers securing the ship to the wharf.

The possession of an infant's caul is regarded as a certain protection against drowning, and it is a fact of peculiarly significance that during the late war the price of caul's went up considerably.

At table if a glass tumbler is inadvertently struck, a sailor will instantly put out his hand to prevent it from ringing out and say "Save a drowning man."

Cats are lucky, especially black ones, but dogs are not always regarded with favor. Seats fishermen say that to mention the name of a dog will bring on a storm, and that the wind will come from the direction in which a dog points his nose when he bowls.

Icelandic fishermen regard it as unlucky to have a dog near their nets or boats, while in Cornwall corals are foretold by the appearance of a spectral dog.

Among Oriental Perfumes.

The Orient and perfumes are inseparably connected in the occidental mind. Travellers state that these perfumes in actuality are not always agreeable under too close contact.

The shops of the perfumers are always interesting, however, and one of the greatest are to be found in the "Mousky" quarter of Cairo. As one enter the slim, narrow alley-way, says a visitor, we are at once assailed by all the perfumes of the East; spices, ambergris and attar of roses predominating.

The scent shops themselves are merely holes in the wall, like small rooms with the front wall missing, raised two or three feet above the ground.

The shopkeeper squats inside the entrance of his shop, leisurely puffing his "narghili" and awaiting his customer. There is no fuss or hurry: all is calm, and dignified.

The shop we chose to visit is famous the world over for its perfumes and of amber-scented cigarettes.

We are now given some of the famous perfumed cigarettes to smoke, and our host produces some ambergris to show us.

A piece about the size of a tennis ball is worth $2,500. He tells us how every year he sends men to the coast of Zanzibar to find this amber-gris. Meanwhile, he is dabbing the various scents on our clothes for us to try. There are about a dozen different kinds, all in glass bottles. Some of the best known are jasmine, lotus, verbena, ambre, attar of roses, and one much favored by the Egyptian ladies, called "Harem."

They are by no means cheap—the smallest bottle, which is about three inches high, and two inches in circumference, costs $2.50. When our purchases are completed, we leave smelling like bouquets of flowers, and very highly scented ones at that.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

She: "And now, Charlie, I suppose you will have to speak to papa about this ?"

He: "Yes, dearest, I suppose I must." (After a pause). "Has your father got a telephone?"

Rub It In for Lame Back. — A brisk rubbing with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will relieve lame back. The skin will immediately absorb the oil and it will penetrate the tissues and bring speedy relief. Try it and be convinced. As the liniment sinks in, the pain comes out and there are ample grounds for saying that it is an excellent article.

The Contractor: "Yes, I can save you a few thousand dollars in work and materials without spoiling the looks of the house, but it won't be fit to live in.

The Owner: "Hop to it. I'm not building it to live in. I'm building it to sell."

It Will Prevent Ulcerated Throat.— At the first symptoms of sore throat, which presages ulceration and inflammation, take a spoonful of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Add a little sugar to it to make it palatable. It will allay the irritation and prevent the ulceration and swelling that are so painful. Those who were periodically subject to quinsy have thus made themselves immune to attack.

He had risked his life to rescue the girl from a watery grave, and, of course, her father was grateful.

"Young man," he said, "I can never thank you sufficiently for your heroic act. You incurred an awful risk in saving my only daughter."

"None whatever, sir," replied the amateur life saver; "I am already married."

Miller's Worm Powders act so thoroughly that stomachic and intestinal worms pass from the child without being noticed and without inconvenience to the sufferer. They are painless and perfect in action, and at all times will be found a healthy medicine, strengthening the infantile stomach and maintaining it in vigorous operation, so that besides being an effective vermifuge, they are tonical and health-giving in their effects.

A young lady of the flapper variety — recently visited Beethoven's house at Bonn with a party of tourists. Walking airily up to the great musician's piano she sat down and played a few bars of a popular waltz. Then she turned to the custodian and said: "I suppose you have a good many distinguished people here from time to time?"

"This is so," he replied. "Paderewski was in this room not so very long ago."

"And did he play on that piano?" asked the flapper.

"No," said the custodian, shaking his head. "He said he was not worthy enough to touch it."

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to irradicate except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has won the confidence of asthmatic victims from this source of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.

A woebegone-looking traveller reached the river-side and approached the old boatman who operated the ferry across the stream.

"Dad," he whined, "I'm broke, and I must get across the stream. Will you trust me for it ?"

"Fare's only twopence, mister," said the ferryman.

"I know it, but I haven't got a ha'penny," replied the traveller.

The old man took a puff at his pipe. "Mister," he said, "if you ain't got a ha'penny you won't be none the better off on the other side of the river than you are on this."

There was silence, save for the scratching of pens and the soft footfall of a watchful examiner, for an examination was in progress.

Suddenly the eye of the examiner caught a student who was studying his watch with more than usual interest.

"Mr. Smith," said the watcher, "I will have a look at your timepiece, if you please."

Smith seemed worried, but he handed over the watch. The other opened it and saw pasted across the dial a tiny slip of paper bearing the laconic legend, "Fooled."

Of course, Smith was allowed to resume his work, but the examiner kept his eye on the youth soon he thought fit to have another look at the watch.

But this time he did not go for the face. He opened the back instead. There, sure enough, was the name of a small folded paper. Examining it eagerly, he read: "Fooled again."

Unemployment Benefits.

Unemployed teachers will receive not less than £10 per week from the Educational Institute of Scotland. The scheme is to be run by a voluntary levy. At a meeting of the Educational Institute the council was instructed to prepare a scheme of unemployments benefits before the next annual meeting of the Institute.

DEFENDS HER HUSBAND

LENINE WAS TENDER HEARTED SAYS WIDOW.

Russian Dictator Loved His Enemies, and After He Had Bitterly Attacked Martov, His Friend, He Said: "It Hurts Me More Than Him."

I am asked to give an intimate life sketch of my husband and to do this in a limited space and so shortly after his death. It is a very difficult undertaking. Perhaps it is a very commonplace expression if I say that he was hated by his enemies and loved by those who knew him, but in all candidness I must admit that his enemies who did not know him had reason to hate him and his friends who knew him had reason to love him, says the widow of Russia's Dictator.

His own people during the terrible suffering and struggles of the last six years, not only learned to love him and trust him but even to obey him. This last, I know, often displeased my husband, for when his colleagues enunciated a new idea and propagated their theories in distant ends of Russia they always added that Lenine was in favor of it.

To analyze his greatness must be left to another era or perhaps another generation. His power in Russia was because of his strength and his unwavering integrity of purpose, and because he understood every thought of his people and believed in them and in their destiny. His people, in turn, understood his every movement, his every thought, and trusted that his every act was for their good.

The Russian peasant, heretofore, had been regarded as the heiot. He raised them from this state to the mass of common men.

Long before the revolution which replaced the Kerensky gesture, my husband perceived that if such a revolution should put the power into the hands of the working class the working class in an untodustrial country like Russia, being a small minority, must have a powerful ally, and that ally must be the peasantry.

In other countries the Socialists on coming into power sought such an ally among the middle classes, and they found it disastrous to their cause. Kerensky repeated the same mistake that had been found futile and disastrous by other nations, by enlisting the help of the so-called Russian Liberals, made up of nobility and near-nobility.

On the contrary, my husband not only brought about an alliance between the peasantry and the working class, but he understood the natural conflicts of interests between the two classes.

He saw that an upheaval must root out from its very foundation the ages-established bureaucratic, feudalistic nobility and their satellites, the middle classes; an upheaval that he felt could even bring about terrible bloodshed. I, who knew him, will say that he was very near heart-broken and the sorrows of his countrymen caused him great pain. It was against his very nature and tenderness to permit violence. It was here that his power to see the reality at the time, and grasp it unflinchingly and to pursue it unwaveringly came to his assistance. He never forgot his purpose, and it in obtaining his purpose such an upheaval was essential then an upheaval was permitted.

Turning to his early life. His father was a district director of schools in Astrakhan, where Kerensky's father was the headmaster of his school. His brother, Alexander, gave him his first revoluntiaary education. From him he received many books, among which was Karl Marx's "Capital." But Alexander himself was not a Marxian.

Early in 1900, when the social democracy of Russia declared its program, he took his stand with them and as a result was arrested. After many months of shifting from one prison to another he was finally exiled to Siberia.

It was he who organized the Russian society which took the name "The Union for the Deliverance of Workers." After a time he went back to Russia, but he decided that his usefulness for the cause was limited on account of the surveillance by the police of his every act.

Abroad, constantly changing his domicile, in France, Switzerland and England, he became closely allied with the Russian social democratic movement. He became allied with Plekhanov and a warm, intimate friendship grew between the two.

My husband held the friendship of his former collaborators almost sacred, and when the time came that he parted company with them I know he suffered great mental anguish for his personal relations he was very affectionate.

His was brief, so that at times he was misunderstood as being discourteous. But he often found it necessary to sacrifice courtesy to the interests of his cause.

I know that when a political reason was about to separate him from his friends and companions of olden days he would stay up nights grieving over it. And even when events forced him to denounce the political views of his former friends he had the same tender feeling for them.

On one occasion, when he had bitterly attacked Martov, he said to me, "It hurts me more than it will hurt Martov." (From 1898 to 1902, Martov was associated with Lenine in the Russia social democratic movement. Martov later became head of the Menshevika—the moderate Socialists.)

During my husband's illness, when his health was in a precarious condition, on my request the doctors informed all visitors not to mention Martov's death, which had taken place a few weeks before. For, knowing as I did what the degree of his affection for his political enemy was, I felt that the news would hurt him.—New York Tribune.

HENS AND EGG LAYING

A Melange About the Handling of Barnyard Poultry

How to Tell the Layers—Conditions Necessary for Production—High Egg-Yielding — Distribution of Eggs—More Poultry Points.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Can you tell which hens are laying without the use of trap nests? This is easy to determine if one will go to the trouble of handling each bird suspected of being a loafer. When a hen commences to lay, conditions in the organs concerned in reproduction are quite different from conditions observed during the period of idleness. When the ovary is dormant and no eggs are being produced the distance between the pelvic bones is small. The vent is dry, small, puckered, and, in yellow fleshed chickens, has a band of yellow pigment around the inside. When laying commences the pelvic bones become pliable and spread apart to permit the passage of the egg. The vent becomes larger and moist and the ring of yellow pigment disappears. A visit to the poultry house on an early winter evening and a half hour spent in going over the hens will be profitable.

Conditions Necessary for Production.

The experience of the Ontario Agricultural College Poultry department has been that a hen will not lay if not in good condition. She should be healthy, free from any disease, and show plenty of vigor and activity. The first pullets to lay in the fall have been the early maturing ones. The pullets that have developed slowly in body and feather have been just as slow in starting to lay. The results of liberal feeding and general good care have always been reflected in the pullet flock and a full egg basket during the period of early winter high prices.

High Egg Production.

The requirements for high egg production are clean, dry, comfortable houses, that are free from direct draughts over the birds, and that are well lighted. The feeding consists of a variety of grains, green feed, animal feed, grit and shell, which is clean, sweet and wholesome, and is given to the birds regularly, and in such quantities that they have all they want to eat before going to roost at night; that the supply of drinking material is clean and abundant; that the attendant is regular in his or her work, and is interested in the same; that the birds are bred from good laying ancestors, and that they are hatched at the proper season and well reared, and are free from disease.

Distribution of Eggs.

A study of the distribution of the egg production is interesting and important from the point of the annual returns from the birds. Egg prices rise and fall with the seasons, and usually the greatest profit is made where producers are most active in seasons of the year when prices are high. Pullets are the chief sources of egg supply in the fall, relatively; they require usually from six to seven months in which to mature. It is, therefore, possible to regulate their production in the fall months at least to some extent by regulating the time they will hatch in the spring.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

More Poultry Pointers.

Crows are more likely to molest the eggs from the late turkey nests if the nests are made at some distance from the buildings.

Be sure that the young growing chicks are well fed to promote growth and that they are given liberal range where there is abundance of green feed and also animal feed in the form of insects, worms, etc.

It is poor economy to keep more cockerels than will be needed for next year's breeding operations. If they are sold as soon as they are of broiler or fryer size a loss will be stopped and the pullets will do better without them.

Cold, damp, poorly lighted and ventilated poultry quarters favor the spread of such diseases as roup. Such contagious disease as these are difficult and sometimes impossible to control unless given attention in the early stages. Wherever preventive measures fail, separate sick birds from the flock as soon as there is evidence of disease and then obtain expert advice as to treatment.

If the chickens must be confined on account of bad weather, provide a good straw litter in which their grain feed may be scattered. This will give them exercise and keep them interested and healthy. Work for chickens that have been accustomed to free range are closely examined this frequently checks their development for the time being unless they are made contented in their new quarters. Provide green feed for them also.

Indian Runner ducks seem to have gone out of fashion, which is a pity, as they are excellent layers, and stand at the head table fowls. They are easily raised, do not make the disagreeable noises that other ducks do, and eat less than any other breed bred ducks. They thrive on coarse feed, and can be raised cheaply and safely, as a duck hatched usually means one raised to maturity.

Fire at Strathcona.
On Wednesday afternoon fire broke out in the baled paper in the yard of the Strathcona Paper Mills, at Strathcona. The fire was a fierce one and exceedingly hard to fight. Aid was asked from Napanee and the brigade went out in the evening, with the fire engine. The buildings were not damaged.

Family Picnic.
A very pleasant time was spent at the Napanee Driving Park, on Wednesday afternoon, when the different families of "Vines", to the number of forty, met for a re-union picnic. The afternoon was ideal and all enjoyed the time to the greatly. Supper was served at 6 o'clock, from a large table filled with everything that would tempt the appetite, when different ships were taken of the group. After supper a game of soft ball was played by the older members, while swings, races and other games were indulged in by the children until dark, when ice cream was served, and all went home feeling they had spent a most enjoyable afternoon. Relatives from out of town who were present were Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Fairbairn, Bow River, Southern Alberta; Mrs. George Vine and daughter, Hazel, Winnipeg; Miss Laura Vine, Toronto; Mrs. Lalonde, Toronto; Mrs. Frank Donaldson and two children, Helen and Billie, Peterboro', and Misses Ada and Mildred Sigsworth, Harrowsmith.

A. O. T. S. SOCIAL EVENING.
About forty members and friends of the A. O. T. S. (As One That Serves) Class of Grace Methodist Church met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lourcks, Thomas St. Owing to the warm weather most of the evening was spent on the spacious lawn, and everyone was delighted with vocal solos by Mr. Stalker, the A. O. T. S. class teacher, and by Mr. Reginald Wiseman, late of Albert College, Belleville, also a cornet solo by Mr. Smith. Mr. Wiseman gave other selections given by Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Paul, and speeches given by Messrs. Wiseman, Paul and Davis. The laughter caused by the games which followed showed what a congenial and jolly crowd had met.

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bonter were called to the front and presented with a beautiful mahogany tray, and address, expressing the deep regret of the class on losing such a splendid helper, and extending their best wishes for their future.

In a few well chosen words, Mr. Perry thanked the Class for their gift, and wished our new Class, the A. O. T. S., every success.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry left on Tuesday for Brighton, where Mr. Perry is employed by the C. N. R.

After a bountiful repast of ice cream and cake was served, the happy gathering dispersed, all agreeing that Mr. and Mrs. Lourcks make an ideal host and hostess.

Miss Paul led all the foreign students in her course, and stood eighth in the entire Sorbonne. Miss Paul is a daughter of Mr. A. E. Paul, Napanee.

OBJECTION TO SOFT COAL AT POSTOFFICE

The Napanee Postoffice and Customs building has been taking in a supply of soft coal for heating purposes during the coming winter, much to the disgust of residents in the vicinity. For the past two winters soft coal was used and the smoke stack belched forth, almost continuously, dense black clouds of soot-laden smoke, defacing the ground, the houses and also besmirching the clothing of pedestrians. The prospects for the ensuing winter is that the conditions will be as bad as in the past.

A petition to the Government will be sent from the citizens of Napanee asking that the building be heated with anthracite coal, or if soft coal be used, that the proper smoke-consuming device be put in operation so that this nuisance may cease.

Citizens desirous of signing the petition will find copies of same at The Napanee Beaver Office, The Napanee Express Office, the Bank of Montreal, Dominion Bank, Royal Bank and Standard Bank.

The farmer boys came into town
Away from their fields of hay.
The Gibbard boys sure turned them down,
And got I twas "our returning day".
The game was on a level field,
No hills, nor stones, nor valleys;
The Gibbard boys their fate did yield
And thus ran up their tallies.
Tae class of ball will always tell,
And this was no exception;
We hit the ball and hit it well.
The hay-tamers could not catch 'em

Adolphustown at Gibbard's

Once on a time, I read a rhyme
About a game of ball;
Adolphustown and Gibbards
Were the teams that caused it all.
Now on that day, the rhyme did say,
How they beat the Gibbard boys;
A lot of people were surprised
At such a lot of noise.
Now Wednesday, Adolphustown
They a-riding went,
And landed there in Napanee,
On beating Gibbards bent.
This time they found the Gibbard boys
Prepared to put them down;
The shouting now is Gibbards'
And not Adolphustown.

Sponge Farming.

Sponges are so essential to the daily toilet of so many people, that they now have to be sown like other plants. Before the war the best sponges came from the Mediterranean, the Sea of Marmora, and the coasts of Turkey in Asia. Fresh sponges look rather like meat when they are brought up, and are covered with a firm skin, in which little holes appear and disappear, apparently at the will of the animal. The interior of the sponge, very much like raw meat, is broken by numerous canals and hollows, which are filled with a viscous grey liquid known as "the milk." This "milk" must be pressed out at once, for it is the only part of the animal which holds real size. If it remains in the sponge the cleaning is specially hard.

The original sponge beds have been practically exhausted, and are now artificially extended. Sponges are cut in little pieces, attached i, means of wire to little pieces of cement, and lowered to the bed of the sea. After a period of about two years the sponge has grown to the usual commercial size; it is brought up and a fresh "seed" put in its place.

Different varieties of sponge grow at a different rate, and some need ten years to reach maturity.

Syrup from Sweet Potatoes.

Government experts are endeavoring to interest people in a plan to make a fine brown and highly palatable syrup out of sweet potatoes. There is said to be a great possibility, commercially, in this syrup, for it far outdoes the commercial syrups that are imitations of cane syrup. Plants are to be established throughout the Southern States where the sweet potato grows most abundantly, and it is thought that hundreds of bushels of small, undersized, unmarketable sweet potatoes can be used for syrup purposes. Heretofore they have been discarded as waste, or ploughed in to help fertilize the ground.

A Lobster's Walk.

Proof that a lobster is capable of travelling at least a mile a day under water has been established by a record of a certain lobster kept by the State Board of Fisheries and Game, Connecticut. In connection with its work of advancing the fishing and lobster industry in Long Island Sound the Board has undertaken to tag every ripe egg-bearing lobster released by its agents. A lobster released in Palmer's Grove, Noank, on July 14 was caught by Robert Hale on Watch Hill Reef, nine miles away, on July 22.

At the Gates.

An old negro, who lives near a small town, was asked about what denomination he belonged to. His answer was something like this:

"Bless you, chile, it's this way. There are three roads leading from here to the town—a straight road, a road that goes round in a sort of circle, and a road through the woods; but when I go there with a load of grain, they don't say, 'Uncle Moses, what road did you come by?' but 'Is your wheat good?'"

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"Men marry for companionship—and then play solitaire."

This cynical observation is vividly demonstrated in "THE AGE OF DESIRE," a First National picture produced by Frank Borzage. When the wife pleaded to be allowed to adopt a baby, her husband bluntly refused—and continued to deal out the cards. Also a good Comedy.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

A special Selected feature. MARY PICKFORD in "POLLYANNA," from Eleanor H. Porter's famous novel. And a 4-act Comedy by Catherine Chisholm Cushing. Also a special Comedy.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

JOHN GILBERT has finished work on a new picture at the William Fox Hollywood lot, in "JUST OFF BROADWAY," an adaptation by Frederic and Fanny Hatton of their well known stage play of that name. MARIAN NIXON, who just finished work as Charles Jones' leading lady in "Cupid's Fireman," will play opposite Mr. Gilbert.

Also a good Comedy.

NAPANEE DISTRICT GIRLS' CAMP

During the arrangements of the Boys' Camp it was decided that the girls would also have a camp. This camp was to be on the same grounds as the boys, and the same equipment used by the boys was to be used by the girls.

The success of the girls' camp must be given to the great efforts and self sacrifice of Mrs. Nickle, Miss Mills and Miss Marion Wales. The days were spent in the greatest interested, and preparing programmes, etc., for the coming camp, and selecting leaders, were days when knowledge were not spent in vain. They have seen the beginning of the girls' camp. They have been the founders, and we are certain that next year will see the camp twice the size as that of this year.

The idea of this camp was similiar to that of the boys, which gave you ten days of out-door life and fun. Not only fun but it was the idea of the Camp Mother and Camp Director that all there should go back to their homes knowing something about the same ideals as the Camp Fire Girls try to live up to and seek.

While there at camp all girls had instructions on Nature Study, by Miss Marion Wales. This study brings before the girls the one thing in life a many of us miss. They seek beauty. How can they seek beauty? Just this, that studying this wonderful subject you come in contact with God's work helps to bring fellowship and good-will into the camp.

We also saw the girls hard at work which we will call "service". As you all know at camp you have to have a number to volunteer to help to feed the rest, to clean up camp, etc. This work was not all easy, but every girl in camp did her share without a murmur on the part of any. When their turn came they went at their work with a smile. Miss Isabel Fisher had charge of any girl twice; it just seemed that the camp spirit came from the very first day of their camp days.

All the girls were trustworthy. The leaders knew that the girls were free to go to the camp rules to a girl. I do not believe there was one occasion when the Camp Mother had to discipline a girl while at camp. They were all covered on their honour at the beginning. They knew the Camp Mother trusted them and they were not going to fall down in that trust.

Not only did the girls receive instruction in Nature Study and Bible Studying, but also in Camping, First Aid and Camp Craft.

Swimming. The girls were up in swimming, all the swimming blocks were being used by the girls. In a day or so some girls were trying to swim without their blocks. Instructions were given at the Physical Drill period on how to swim, showing each of the different movements by hand and feet exercise. Then the swimming blocks were carried out in the water. Before leaving camp eight girls were able to take from twenty-five strokes to ten strokes alone. It means that they keep up their training at home they will be able to swim in three or four weeks.

Lectures in First Aid were short, because it is a subject that you can make too long for the young.

Camp Craft work consisted of the Axe lecture, Wood lecture, Hiking lecture and the Flag.

Several girls were trying hard to learn to play the bugle. But it seemed their time was spent so much on other things it was hard to get the time needed for bugling.

Just a word, now about the different group names.

The Camp group from Yarker, Moscow, and Desmoulli, under Mrs. Leonard, were called "The Twinkling Stars". Their group numbered 19 and 18, which were called Killarney Tent and Bow Drop Inn. A word here about the Star Twinkling Tent Director: "The pennant is awarded to Killarney Tent, Miss Yarker group, composed of girls from three different communities, with no opportunity for previous organized work together, they have measured up to our camp ideals, perhaps better than any other group in camp. Also it is worth mention that they stood third in the Field Day events."

The Camden East and Selby group had for their name "Knot-A-Grouch" but they changed it to Camden Camp, under the group leadership of Miss Willa Nickle. How could anyone grouch in her group when looking at her they always saw that pleasant smile of Willa's. They were housed in tent 8 "The Camel's Hump", tent 16 "Home Sweet Home", tent 17 "Wayside Inn".

The Newburgh group, under Miss Nickle and Miss Isobel Nickle, called themselves "The Everready", and sure enough they always were especially when cats were concerned. They lived in a district aimed by themselves, selecting tent 3 "Lonesome Valley", tent 4 "Stunga Inn", tent 12 'Shy Inn", and tent 22 "Let's Sleep". Ask Mildred Hill if she lived up to the name of tent 22?

The Tamworth group, under the leadership of Miss Wales, called themselves "The Indianola Group". This group were the musicians for the camp, hoaring themselves in tent 7 "Bird-a-Wee", and tent 6 "The Music Hall".

The Grace Methodist, or so widely known as "Bible Slingers", were under Miss Marion Wales. This group were never noisy, at least they say so themselves. The rest may think what they like, especially the tent two nights. They were in tent 13 "Inn-A-Minute", and tent 15 "Du-Kum Inn".

Trinity Methodists were called the "Top Notchers", and although they let Newburgh beat them the very first day for the pennant, they didn't do bad on the whole for only having five in their group, under Miss K. Daly. Our old friend, Chris., was with this group. This group were about the first to get settled down in their new homes, choosing tent 10 "Seldom Inn", and tent 11 "Crow's Nest".

We have not forgotten to mention tent 7, which housed the "Quriet Quartette, Miss Mills, Miss Daly, Miss Oliver and Miss Wilson. And tent No. 14, where the girls could go and talk all hours of the night, and still look upon the smiling faces of Mrs. Judson and Mrs. R. Smith.

Camp Routine.

At 7 a.m. the bugle awakened the girls from their peaceful slumbers. At 7.10 a.m., the setting up exercises were carried out. After these exercises any girl could go in swimming for a while.

At 7.50, flag raising and morning chapel. The flag raising was always a very solemn period. A girl from one of the groups broke the flag, while the rest stood at the salute and sang one verse and chorus of "O Canada". This was followed by prayers and Bible Reading, under Miss Wilson of Camden East.

Following the flag raising, the bugle sounded Cook House, and this call for breakfast was always responded to more quickly than the rising call.

Between 8.30 a.m. and 9.30 a.m. the girls laid out their blankets. It was amusing to watch the girls putting them out. They all had the camp spirit and were trying for the pennant. This meant that everything had to be in its place. You would see them folding and unfolding their blankets in order to get them perfect. They would be on their knees by their outfit, standing up and admiring their work; then see something wrong and down again on their knees to fix it. It took them all their spare time to get ready for tent inspection. Inside of their tents it was impossible to find a leaf or straw. The competition was very keen throughout the camp period.

At 9.30 a.m. they held their Bible Study in groups.

10 a.m. to 11 a.m. they had Nature Study and Camp Craft work. They worked these two lectures in by dividing the camp in A and B sections, and were lectured only for one-half hour each, then changing.

After 11 a.m. they could go swimming.

12.30 a.m., our good old friend, eat more.

From 1.30 p.m. to 2.30 p.m. all had to have a rest. While the girls were resting, the leaders meet for consultation of day's work.

2.30 p.m. to 4.30 p.m., lectures were on on First Aid, games, or hikes were taken.

Then at 4.30 a.m., all could cool off again in the lake.

Being hungry by this time we had our third meal of the day at 5.30 p.m.

Flag lowering took place at 6.25. In this the girls heard the whistle blow and then they stood to attention while the flag was lowered. After this they were at liberty to play tennis or baseball until camp fire time at 8 p.m.

The camp fire singing and talk was the one great thing of the camp. Around a great fire, with Marion leading us in the singing of "Quiet Da." "The Maple Leaf", "Three Crows", "Auld Lang Syne", "Lil Liza Jane", and many others. Also the skits and other amusements that were put on at the camp fire, made our camp fire hour and a half wonderful moments, and we will not forget them.

At 10 p.m. the welcomed notes of Lights Out were heard, and all tumbled into bed to have a dandy sleep.

Below will give you an idea of our camp life from our camp paper :—

RECEPTION TO MISS PAUL

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Paul presented an animated appearance on Monday evening, the occasion being the home-coming of their clever and talented daughter, Miss Muriel Paul, - from Europe, where she won fresh honors in the field of learning.

The spacious verandah was decorated with numerous colored electric lights interspersed with Union Jacks. Here the Mayor and members of the Council, together with friends and a number of invited guests, assembled to congratulate Miss Paul and welcome her home.

Mayor MacGregor, after referring to the honor Miss Paul had brought upon the Town of Napanee by surpassing all foreign students in French literature at the College of Preparation in Paris, read the following address :—

Napanee, July 28th, 1924.

Miss Muriel Paul,
Napanee, Ont.

It is with pleasure that we have read the notices in the Toronto press and other papers of your success with honour attained at the Sorbonne, so we were delighted, and felt that Napanee was very much honored in having one of its students amusing to watch the girls putting them out. They all had the camp spirit and were trying for the pennant. This meant that everything had to be in its place. You would see them folding and unfolding their blankets in order to get them perfect. They would be on their knees by their outfit, standing up and admiring their work; then see something wrong and down again on their knees to fix it. Flag lowering took place at 6.25. In this the girls heard the whistle blow and then they stood to attention while the flag was lowered. After this they were at liberty to play tennis or baseball until camp fire time at 8 p.m.

The camp fire singing and talk was the one great thing of the camp. Around a great fire, with Marion leading us in the singing of "Quiet Da." "The Maple Leaf", "Three Crows", "Auld Lang Syne", "Lil Liza Jane", and many others. Also the skits and other amusements that were put on at the camp fire, made our camp fire hour and a half wonderful moments, and we will not forget them.

At 10 p.m. the welcomed notes of Lights Out were heard, and all tumbled into bed to have a dandy sleep."

NEWBURGH

The farmers have been taking advantage of the fine weather for taking care of their hay, which is quite an abondant crop, in fact the prospects for a good crop all round, both of hay and grain, in this section is very encouraging. The products of the farm in Ontario are getting to be so varied and transportation is so assured that there is not anything short of great and general war, like the last, or some vast upheaval, that is going to cause a shortage of crops that will be seriously felt in this country. There is no reason to think that, with reasonable fiscal and tariff laws and a not too extravagant idea of living by its citizens, this country should not settle down to a comfortable and stable prosperity. Whether this prosperity works out for our ultimate good or not depends largely upon ourselves. In this connection there is a good chance to employ much sober thinking.

The Sunday School of the Co-Operative Church held a picnic at Galbraith's Point, on Varty Lake, on Tuesday. The day was all that could be desired and a large number took advantage of the outing. On the grounds all sorts of games were carried on, while boating and bathing were indulged in by all those who cared to them to that direction. Altogether the day was an enjoyable one and all came home comfortably tired and satisfied.

Mrs. Pilkey, Crookstown, Miss.; Mrs. Mounce, Toronto, and Mr. Mounce, Oshawa, are visitors with their father, Mr. and Mrs. Mounce, and their brother, Dr. Mounce.

Mr. Dare and Mrs. Martin, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., are spending the holidays at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Dunwoody.

Mrs. James Fairbairn and her daughter, of Desoronto, spent the week-end with Mr. Peter Fairbairn.

Mr. W. D. Black, M.P.P., spent a short time in the village on Tuesday. Unfortunately most of the citizens were at the picnic and failed to meet Mr. Black, who is always a welcome visitor in Newburgh.

STRATHCONA

"Sunshine and rain to ripen the golden grain." Crops are flourishing in our vicinity. Gardens are providing abundant tables. Berry patches are yielding luscious deserts. — We are all delighted to see the cheery face of Mr. Wm. Ballance once more on our street, although he always has two "reliables" with him. — Mrs. Jordan and daughter, and two grandchildren, of Toronto, who have been spending a week with Mrs. Frank Tompkins, returned home last Sunday. — The funeral of the late George Shorey was held in the Methodist Church on Wednesday afternoon. After several months of lingering illness he passed away away at Weston hospital on Tuesday night, 29th July. The sympathy of the village goes out to the bereaved family. — Last Wednesday a fire broke out in the stock of the Strathcona paper mill and a serious fire resulted. Without the prompt assistance of many hands and the water tanks from the south end the fire would have been uncontrollable, as there was a strong southwest wind blowing. The fire brigades from Newburgh and Napanee were both in attendance and prevented the fire from burning the mill.—Miss Kathleen Wilson, of Toronto Training School, Toronto, is holidaying at home. —Mission Circle will be held at the home of Mr. Jas. Wilson on Friday evening. All young people are cordially invited. — Mrs. N. G. Johnston and Misses Evelyn and Joy are spending a month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Finlay. — Mr. and Mrs. Fred Finlay have returned from Varty Camp, where they have been spending a fortnight.—Sunday School will be held at 2 p.m. on Sunday, as there is communion service in Newburgh in the morning. Boys and girls come and bring your parents. There's a class for every size and age.

MOSCOW

Mrs. F. Wartman, of Napanee, visited at Mrs. Robt. Asselstine's last week. — Mr. Malcolm Townsend has purchased a new car.—Mr. and Mrs. M. I. Huffman spent the week-end at camp with Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Wagar. — Miss Louise VanLuven is spending some holidays with her grandparents here.—The young people have been enjoying themselves at the Girls' Camp at Varty Lake. — Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Finlay visited at Mr. Laverne Huffman's on Sunday. — Mr. and Mrs. John Hambly called on friends here on Sunday.

NAPANEE DISTRICT GIRLS' CAMP

THURSDAY.

Editorial.

In this our first edition, which we have decided to call "The Varty Lake Knews", it is our intend to acquaint all the members of our camp with the purpose of this paper. We wish it to be a benefit and pleasure to the different groups of our camp.

We also wish to spread any interesting news pertaining to our camp life including passing it by word of mouth. Any contributions intended to print will be handed to us, to the editor of our paper. In order to do this we hope that wishes that the cub-reporter from each group will report by the thirteen—(oh, that terrible word "thirteen")— not later than the thirty p.m. Also we would like the thoughtful readers to understand that all items in this issue are handed by representatives from each group.

Camp Organization.

In the afternoon the advanced groups of girl campers arrived from Tamworth and Newburgh. The Napanee girls were well fixed for the occasion with time-finding ones that were otherwise engraved. There was confusion. Heard from Al. Wade "let us hope there will be no drowning. I have practised [illegible] ments of one of the benches [illegible] camp fire were enticing [illegible] singing "Fare Thee Well", [illegible] they could not sing a note [illegible] doubt due to the fact that their benches tipped over down the bank of the lake, taking all with it. Do you wonder at the high note?

No schedule was followed this morning except organizing groups. Our new arrivals to-day in camp were from Camden East, Selby and Dorland.

Our first assembling was around the flag pole, when we were very much impressed by the unique ceremony of raising the flag.

A storm threatened early in the morning, and the girls scrambled to get their bedding in, but it was not as bad as we anticipated.

Tent 10—"Seldom Inn"

Her hair is red, her nose is too,
She's quite a little, and Al too.

Tent 15—"Dukum Inn"

Last evening retiring from the camp fire "Percy" Taylor caused great excitement when she aroused the occupants by screaming "A toad on Aneta's cot". The scream of Miss Richardson drew Capt. Babcock to the rescue. He caught the toad bravely in his hand and threw it in the lake.

Owing to the argument over a test letter, it was necessary for Miss Smith to request them to be quiet. In the early hours of the morning they had to be asked for "less noise" again.

It is to be hoped that in the future they will not wake so soon in the morning, as they roused the whole camp.

Overheard by one of the occupants who were supposed to be asleep—Miss Burgess and Miss Richardson. "Too bad Horace and Ward have to leave, as the moon is swell to-night."

From Tent 13, when all got in bed. Blow, blow, blow ye winds,
But marry a wind did blow.
"Alas" said Red, "winds will no blow
So put out lantern low."

Tent 11—The Troublesome Trio of Crow's Nest, "Chris", Elsie and Kathleen.

The night was a regular terror.

The camp fire was burning low;
To say you were quiet is an error,
For a hunting we did go.

In snappy night-gowns and pyjamas,
On hands and knees we did crawl,
Carefully leaping the guy ropes
Lest we should stumble and fall.

In "Seldom Inn" candles were burning,
It sure was an interesting sight;
The tent flaps were closed to all visitors,
But we were prepared for a swift flight.

We'd had scant provisions for supper.
Our tummies were almost caved in;
To think of going to bed hungry,
Would seem to us a sin.

Our welcome assured, we were seated
And said, "Pass the sandwiches, please;
After having our fill we retreated,
"Terrified lest we should cause unease.

Back into our blankets we tumbled,
Stuffed and content we did snore;
But were awakened at five in the morning,
By chatterboxes next door.

FRIDAY.

Day's Activities.

At 2.30 yesterday afternoon we had a very instructive lecture on the Axe. This was followed by a hike to the near-by woods. Later in the afternoon, with the help of Mrs. Finlay, four baseball teams were organized, "The Lightnings", "The Pigmies", "The Midgets", and "The Naughty Nine".

Last night at the camp fire, after some delay, the "Ever-Readies" put on a very amusing skit. We pass some the title was "There Comes the Bride". They were rather handicapped on account of the wind, but they all did their parts exceedingly well.

"The Varty Lake News" was read, and all seemed to listen with interest. We look forward to the Camp Fire, but we feel that it would be made more profitable by better organization and order.

At the beginning of the Camp Fire the members of the "Whibangs" were increased and the whole camp has a total enrollment, up to date, of seventy-one.

Ten minutes after the bugle was blown quiet on time and there was a wild scramble to dress. At 9.10 our different classes were formed and then the dip. Later we had a Nature Study Class, and following that the morning group.

At 2.30 Nature Study Group A went on a hike with Captain Babcock and on the return trip the company was divided into two groups, each of which was to make their way back to camp without a guide, and both succeeded. Miss Marion Wales took group B. for her Nature Study on wood.

Tent 13, "Whizbangs"

Last night when three new members of our group arrived, we realized we were thirteen. Our leader is stationed in Tent 13, her birthday is on the thirteenth, and she was thirteenth at the dinner table. What are our chances for luck?

Heard at the Napanee table, "I'm sorry I'm eating like a pig, but I'm as hungry as a bear."

Tent 13.

Poor Chris. was terrified to-day when she found her borrowed toque had disappeared, but after a diligent search she found it in the owner's hands.

Two of the occupants in Tent 10 were seen to come out, pick up their luggage and very awkwardly back into their tent.

We're awfully glad we have a large supply of provisions since Capt. Babcock always seems ravenously hungry especially when he eats with a ladle, and his strong point is bread. All right, Harry, eat away; you're welcome!

Twinkling Stars.

Twinkling, twinkling, little stars,
How we wonder where you are.
Well, we have to hold our ears and close our eyes
For a cow-slop dinner
Makes the Whizbangs look wise.
Moo—moo—you should have seen their faces.

N.B.—The Whizbangs would like to say that it was real good cow-slop.

Poor little twinkling stars in their career seem to have a poor chance to make themselves heard sometimes, especially when the "Whizbangs" are uproariously calling "Pass the bread", or "Sit here by me, Bob". But it is noticed Bob, good naturedly, rescues shirts and towels which are apt to float out from the dock.

Knot-a-Grouch.

We hope the chatter-boxes in No. 16 will not mind a dip about 4.30 one of these fine mornings.

We have heard of serenades in the evening, but when they come in the still cool hours of the morning, we their neighbors, think it too much, especially when it is not the music of a guitar or violin in the hands of a musician, but the screeching and squaking of human beings who can't sing and never could.

Top Notchers—Tent 11.

The Troublesome Trio were glad to welcome a refill to their midnight lunch basket, when an additional crow flew into the nest. In the future they will call themselves the "Troublesome Quartette" of Crow's Nest.

Ever-Readies.

Marriages.—At V. S. G. C., by the Rev. A. D. A. Snickersnacker., Alfred Alfonso to Essie Samantha, both of Newburgh, in the presence of many sorrowing relatives.

Rev. Snickersnacker makes a special offer to the girls of the camp, of getting a new year's guarantee and special permancy for all jobs done during this week.

When you're passing down the line, Don't forget to see our sign,
V. S. G. C.
We're the tidiest you'll agree.

Should you wonder how 'twas done, How this mighty pennant won,
First the still till bustle soared,
Then arise with mighty board.

After breakfast's stowed away,
All then rush back to the fray,
Fold the blankets up with care,
Shake the ticks out in the air
And pile them straw up everywhere,
Till everything is spotless there;
This is how the laurel's won,
When you're in it every one.

A word of advice for the benefit of the other girls:—

"Don't carry four pails of water from the farm house only to spill it when you reach camp. If you want to throw water around, there's plenty in the lake.

We "peace in Indianola Camp—Tent 6. Members of the Indianola Camp were tranquilly slumbering in the rest hour, when they were suddenly awakened by a loud blast of our own bear bugle. But what was their surprise at opening their eyes to discover one of their tent-mates hovering over their heads with a pail of water.

Mrs. Nickle Writes:

"We don't want to blow our own horn too much, but we must express our views on one point—the camp spirit. It is good, getting better, and we'll try to make it the best. For examples of real "comparderie" spirit we consider the way girls from one tent helped those in another making beds on the opening night; the way the heads of the commissariat department jump to a single call for between three or four stoves, and lastly this expression from one of three girls as they are starting off to order the milk the first night at camp: "Oh! Is that your name, then we know your sister last year at school, so we'll all be friends."

We want to see this manifestation of thoughtfulness on every side, and girls—each of you, please are you thoughtful of others, and don't camp "after hours" at night and "before hours" in the morning? Are you?

Each and every one then, for the very best for the Varty Lake Girls' Camp.

Yours,
THE CAMP MOTHER.

—Editor.

SATURDAY.

Last night after tea "The Lightnings" put on a speedy baseball game with "The Midgets", coming off glorious victory, the score being 15-10. Chris. Taylor excelled herself by her marvelous playing, and several of the Midgets showed great promise.

At 8 p.m., all gathered around the Camp Fire, and the delightful evening, the moon shining gloriously over the water, along with better organization, made our fire side hour a profitable one. The "Whizbangs" put on a skit in pantomime, entitled "Wanted a Wife", which was followed by several songs from the Camp Fire Song Books, which were distributed among the girls. Rev. Mr. Terrill then gave a very instructive and uplifting talk, touching directly on camp life. The closing exercises were then conducted by Mr. Terrill, and all dispersed to their tents, evidently tired, for alas, there was no noise after lights out was sounded.

This morning the regular camp routine was followed. It is interesting to note that the competition in camp inspection is becoming very keen, the Tamworth girls receiving the pennant to-day.

This afternoon the Nature Study hikes were postponed as it was so warm, but we were favored with a very interesting and instructive lecture on "Life Saving" by Rev. Mr. Merriam. After some practical application on land the girls practised in the water.

Heard in camp.—That the mysterious safety pin in Tent 10 are gradually returning.

Kathleen—the victim for our life saving demonstration in the midst of the excitement—"Say, I'm lying on a stone."

In Tent 11.—"Don't come in just yet, we're passing candy and there is not enough to go around."

We believe Mr. Merriam was glad Miss Bell was here as a victim in the life saving exercises. After he told her to put her arm around his neck he turned to the audience and remarked, "It is often done".

Friday, July 18th.—Great amusement was afforded the people at Napanee table when it was learned that the expedition outside the camp by Mr. Terrill and Miss Mills alone. We wonder did they ask the camp mother's permission?.

We noticed in last night's Varty Lake news that the Yarker people referred to our delicious Irish Stew as cow-slop. We wonder what name they gave our delicious dark red strawberries so graciously donated for our tea last night.

Heard from our Camp Director again: "I wish Babcock were here to keep me company, I'm always the odd man at the table."

Once again—"If I had some bread I'd have a piece of bread and butter, if I had the butter."

One of the reasons for Chris.'s illness this morning was that in the morning mail there was no mail from Albert.

The skit in pantomine, entitled "Wanted a Wife", was most favourably rendered by the all star cast of "Whizbangs". His Royal Highness, the MAN of the play, was most severe in his criticism. Several of us thought we were quite eligible, but after the haughty rejection of so many of the fair sex, it seemed as though the favoured one would need the spirit of an Amazon to approach so exacting a gentleman. Let us hope first that when we reach "the uncertain age" we shall not be so hemish as the first applicant—nor would he choose the flapper.

The widow might have found it profitable to keep her "dependents" a secret.

As for the huge applicant, her energy might be spent in washing dishes rather than chewing gum. Somehow our student should be informed that managing a husband was not a matter for books.

Evidently, his Royal Highness, the MAN, was not looking for beauty and grace, or the society dame would have filled the bill.

To the sportsman—don't treat him so roughly.

The man must have been Irish for the Scotch made no impression. Unfortunate lady, however, might give some lessons on successful matrimony, and may it be known that the secret of it all is "feed the brute".

Last evening, Mr. Chase came, bringing to his daughter, Vera, about a bushel of oranges, from which she has supplied Tent 15 ever since. While talking Vera mentioned some oranges which her father sent to the hospital to her. Jean Burgess asked her why she didn't save them and bring them to camp. Vera answered, "I would, only it was forty miles away and they might have been slightly spoiled by now."

Bobby Root, owing to the large amount of bear's grease which was put on her hair, found it necessary to wash it (not that it needed it). So consequently she is afraid to go near her, as all were scalded.

Owing to the ill usage of the occupant of Tent 15, Claire Thompson has become thinner since last night.

Dorothy Richardson and Jean Burgess were unusually quiet last eve, probably on account of the numerous oranges they ate before retiring.

Miss Christobel Taylor wishes to extend her sincere thanks to those who kindly rendered aid during her illness this morning. Hoping you all will be ill some time, so I can repay you, I am

Yours truly,
Christobel Rachel Taylor.

The Quarrelsome Quartette report the following accidents on their arrival:—2 injured eyes, 1 cut finger, 1 hand containing twenty-two slivers, 1 cut foot, 1 strained ankle, 4 badly sunburned knees.

SUNDAY.

It was the best day to date. First and foremost, we didn't rise till 7.30. The flag was hoisted by Aileen Harrison, Tent 22. Then we breakfasted (?) very happily, for the announcement was made, "No tent inspection on Sunday." "Why isn't every day Sunday?" The leaders were good to us for they chose "Shady Nook", the coolest spot in camp for Morning Church. Our Camp Mother had charge of the service, and the Bible Study period, led by Miss Wilson, was most appreciative—the more so, since our position by the water was similar to the setting for the story—the Baptism of Christ. We were scarcely through with dinner when some visitors arrived, and it was a welcome sight when the said visitors brought with them some EATS. Some of these eats unfortunately must have been misdirected. Did you hear somebody whisper "A shwell cake in Stumble Inn?" And of course, you didn't see those luscious cherries. Perhaps someone of you that the "Knot a Grouchers" were a bit pious last evening? At any rate all this misdirected food that we ate lowered our supply of soda, salts and castor oil, and the mosquito camp requests that the girls eat with a little more discretion in future. Since it was so warm in the afternoon, we did not take our three-mile jaunt to Desmond church, but Mr. Merriam very kindly brought his service down to "Shady Nook," and told us the story of Ruth, in a most interesting style. We cooled off with a fifteen-minute dip and prepared for supper. Just after supper all girls stood at attention for flag lowering.

The evening's entertainment and camp fire was delightful. We had two hundred and twenty-five spectators, including our registration of seventy-one. Four girls from the Trinity C. G. I. T. group, with the leader, Miss Mills, initiated the Newburgh C. G. I. T. group, registered under the leadership of Mrs. Nickle. The service was very impressive and most pleasingly presented by the girls. The music was very sweet and made the more so by the accompaniment of Tamworth girls with their guitars. Mr. Metzler entertained us with a story and proved that even though we have graduated from the Kindergarten, a good story, cleverly told, has its appeal. Trinity girls then presented the hymn "My Faith Looks Up To Thee", in pantomine, in a most effective manner. Three numbers were interspersed with suitable music in sing-song style, and we closed the Camp Fire proper with the Mizpah Benediction.

But that fire was not all burned out, and the appeal of the slowly rising moon, those dying embers were too much for some dozens of our members who squatted about and told ghost stories which may account for the "nightmare" reported. At this point we would like to ask two questions, "Did you enjoy the camp fire last evening?" Then, "Did you carry water to help put it out?" Someone has to do that every night girls, you know.

Everyone sooner or later wended their way to their own tent, and responded to the sound of the bugle for "lights out" and "quiet".

MONDAY.

A Word of Appreciation From the Camp Director.

It is a matter of satisfaction to all concerned in the management of the camp that the girls are responding so splendidly to all suggestions. We appreciate the general feeling of helpfulness and good comradeship which is everywhere evident. The group which chose as their motto "Not-A-Grouch", seem to have ably expressed the whole camp feeling. The leaders do not claim to be infallible, the work is all new to them, and they need your help and co-operation to the fullest. Let each girl feel her individual responsibility in her group for conduct, appearance of her tent, and share in the whole camp program, and make this Varty Lake Girls' Camp the very best possible.

At 7 a.m. this morning we quickly realized that Harry had returned,—the blowing of the bugle no longer sounded like a cow,—and at 7.10 there was the setting up exercise.

The end of a perfect day was brought to a close for an inmate of Tent No. 22, when on poking her head in a tent down the line and noticing, as she thought, one of the girl's backs turned, bit her a whack. Much was chagrin when Miss Mills turned around. But she took it in good part, and said, "Come again". We will, but not with the same greeting.

Much amusement was afforded the rest of Tent No. 22 in rest period, when Hazel discovered a spider under her clothes. After much help on our part and wiggling on Hazel's, we captured the spider, much to Hazel's delight. Visitors, please do not bring spiders concealed in your clothing to Tent No. 22, as Hazel lives in horror of them.

Marjorie seems to have a mania for letting mice around in the night, and keens talking about it until we long for some. But hurrah, someone must have known Marjorie, for we had some lemon pie for dinner.

Tent No. 22 was favored this morning at 6 by the stampeding, or as Chris might term it, the flying of the cows by their owners. The member of the tent, Mildred Hill, being afraid they might get over the fence and into the provisions, locked herself and chased them away, going to sleep on the return trip and falling into bed.

The morning sun was shining o'er the lake,
When Mildred her lonely way did take,
Arrayed with arms of battle
To chase away the cattle.

Not a sound was heard the whole camp thro'
As she chased them away two by two;
She was brave, as she had a vision,
What it would be like if they got at the provisions;

Very few girls are taking the advantage of the early dip. We wonder why?

Owing to the excessive heat, most of the afternoon hikes were omitted, except our lecture on "First Aid" by Capt. Babcock. He seemed to find a very willing patient in Chris.

There was a large amount of stake driving on Monday, owing to the fact that Capt. Babcock was away.

The editor would like to know what young gentleman left his camera, for several special snapshots of Aileen Burgess alone.

We wonder why Marion has to stick her elbow in the butter? Do you suppose its for sunburn?

Heard—Marion to Chris., who is generally around at feeding time (like her father). "What are you doing here in our tent? Chris., "Asked me in for the evening." Marion, "Well you can go back again for we haven't any".

At song service Saturday night, our leader made a request and requested the singers to sing softly and they sang softly.

They say Chris. Taylor is an awful eater, but just wait, you haven't seen Miss Nickle and Aileen eat. Tent 7 the same as somebody evidently has who dropped a nut at the door?

Anxious Inquirers from Tent 7.—In what part of the human body is the brain located? One of our member's answer was, "In the throttle last night when she exclaimed, "Oh, I haven't the brains of a monkey." Aunt to a thousand church, but Mrs. Smith suddenly springing up, "Oh, I am sitting on them." Wonderful, isn't it, how some of us are minded?

Things We Would Like to Know.

How Mrs. Leonard, the leader of the "Twinkling Stars", always maintains that calm and collected spirit over the hot cook stove when preparing the noon-day meal?

Why Marion didn't get vaseline for first aid from Doctor before she was burned to a "frazzle"?

Lamp Burning 600 Years.

Baddesley Clinton is one of the beautiful ancient moated granges of England. It possesses a private chapel, where with one or two short periods of interruption, Mass has been said ever since the days of the Reformation. But the Roman Catholic traditions of another century remain, the chronicle of which have just been published are even more remarkable than those of Baddesley Clinton. At East Bergholt Hospital, near Abingdon, there is a private chapel in the grounds which has stood there from the 12th century. Here the Eyston family, who have a private entrance from the library of the house, have worshipped century after century; and it is accepted as an historical fact that the lamp before the altar has never ceased to burn for 600 years. No Protestant service has ever been held there, and it was felt quite intact by Cromwell's soldiery when they visited East Hendred.

Mah-Jong.

Although it has taken 2,000 years to reach London, Eng., this Chinese game is now being taken up with amazing rapidity. It is even publicly demonstrated every evening at the Vaudeville Theatre. Experts are advertising lessons at sixpence from £2 to £5 each, and the lessons are doing a large trade in playing sets. It is a scientific game of gamble—which one will tell you is played for nominal stakes or large sums can be won and lost. The Chinese played it centuries ago, that accounts for the picturesque names given to the players, for they take the names of the winds, east, west, north and south; and it also accounts for the gambling element. The old mandarins staked fortunes on the game; indeed, in the East it is regarded as such a gamble that the Japanese Government will not permit it in their country.

U. S. Makes Largest Lenses.

The largest lenses ever success fully constructed from domestic manufactured glass have been completed by the bureau of standards at Washington. Declared by expert examiners to be perfect, they measure 12 inches in diameter and have a focal length of 12 feet 3 inches.

An unusual feature of the completed work is that it forms what is known as an "achromatic combination," that of crown glass in one case and flint glass in the other is said to bring light of all colors to a common focal point, impossible in lenses made of one type of glass. The instrument will be used by the bureau for conducting intricate experiments in the science of optics.

Goats and Women.

According to the ancient records of York county, preserved in the courthouse at Alfred, Me., goats and women were not allowed on the isles of Shoals. One fisherman brought his wife there, at the same time importing some goats. Lengthy legal battles were waged concerning the matter. Finally it was settled that the goats must go but the wife could stay.

NAPANEE DISTRICT GIRLS' CAMP

Who told Nick, Chris, and Bill that they knew how to sound a bugle?

Why the arrival of a certain roadster in camp brought the smiles to the face of one who brilliantines her hair?

Why someone couldn't turn off the sun while we roll our blankets for tent inspection?

Why so many Napanee girls were late for breakfast this morning? Was it because so many hampers came in yesterday? Who said cherries? pie? jelly roll?

Maude Russell and Mary Scott are on the sick list. We all hope for a speedy recovery. The reasons are as follows:—1. Mary didn't get a letter from George, which was expected Saturday night. 2. Maude ate too much dinner.

The Napanee Tent at Mealtime.

The bugle sounds and with eager sounds,
We gather around the table;
The grub is passed, and each breaks fast,
And eats as much as she is able.
The chatter begins with the rattle of tins,
And shouts of "Hey, pass the butter,
Is there any more bread, are the waiters all dead?
Which makes the camp grandmother mutter.
"Please, a little less noise, you're worse than boys";
When Marion says to her neighbour,
"Don't watch what I eat, for I'm hollow to my feet,"
And to fill her up is hard labour.
Eileen, too, has a bottemless pit,
That takes oodles of grub to fill;
And Harry and Chris, with seldom a miss,
Are generally blamed for a spill.
Winnie and Ruth and others in turn,
Serve their hungry pals cheerfully and well;
And everyone eats with an appetite keen,
And remarks such as "Aint the grub swell?"
And everyone tries with all her might
To have a wonderful time;
We think we're succeeding if noise counts for anght,
And this is the end of our rhyme.

The terrible sounds which the camp have lately been listening to, come from Tent 6, but don't blame them, it wasn't their fault. Miss Bobbie Root has been attempting to learn to play the ukalele-banjo under the expert instruction of the whole camp orchestra. The task was difficult, but the result was worse. Even so she can now play "London's Burning".

The "Twinkling Stars" wish to offer an apology to the editors because they have contributed so little to our camp journal, but because there are so few in the group, there seems so little of interest to write.

The girls, next door to No. 18 all seemed to be wanting to see mamma last night. However, their calls for "ma" soon ceased when the bugle blew.

The ghost stories around the dying embers of the camp fire last night were very much appreciated. Two had Mettler and Gleeson were not in camp every night, as we seemed to sleep better after hearing these stories belng told.

The "Twinkling Stars" are delighted in having their leader, Mrs. Leonard, back again, after a day's absence.

Fresh supplies were brought, in camp yesterday and were sorely needed. Much of the eats have disappeared already.

Chris. Taylor and Babcock gave a very impressive lecture on hugging this afternoon. When Bab thanked her she at once declared the pleasure was all hers.

We notice some extra flies at Whizzanes' table since Mrs. Smith was wishing for a fly-swat, and Mrs. Judson was thinking she never saw so few flies.

We would like to extend our sincere sympathy to Miss Emberly, of No. 16, she has received but one letter this week.

We are of the opinion that these hot days the "freezer" in the Newburgh tents might spread around for the benefit of all.

Tent 2 "cried wolf"—Elsie, "I'm not going to kiss anyone else to-day" Voices, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow."

Can you imagine—,

Mrs. Nickle being cross,

Chris. having enough to eat,

Elsie with her mouth shut,

Evelyn's getting the permanent,

Al. Wales without colour in her cheeks,

Eileen Harrison seeing a boy and not winking at him,

Harry cutting short Willa's swimming lesson.

TUESDAY NIGHT.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Wartman gave us a real good talk for girls. It was certainly most appropriate for our camp and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. After this talk she demonstrated the proper way of making a hospital bed. Under the circumstances it was wonderfully done although she feared to disgrace her calling, and we wish to thank Mrs. Wartman for her help and instructions.

It was exceedingly warm yesterday and our dip in the afternoon was certainly refreshing.

After tea we had our usual camp fire. This was followed by motion pictures of many beautiful Canadian places. We wish to express our appreciation to Mr. Laughland for the pictures, after which we all retired.

We awoke this morning to find one of our members ill. Evidently the heat of yesterday and the swimming combined was too much for Jean, but we hope for a speedy recovery, and from the doctor's report we feel assured hat it will be soon.

Our Bible Study period this morning was held in one group, under the leadership of Rev. Mr. Merrick, choosing Corinthians 12, last verse, "Covet earnestly the best things" as his text. Then the camp divided into their respective groups, A, group going with Miss Marion Wales for the Nature Study period; B, group with Mrs. Wartman. The rain, however, interrupted the lectures and neither one was completed.

Just at this time Mary Scott had the misfortune to fall and break her arm. Harry very skilfully set it, and put her arm in a sling. Later, Mary went home with Dr. Mounce, of Newburgh.

We were all exceedingly busy this afternoon getting autographs of all the girls and leaders.

Heard — Elsie, calling Edith, "Where are you Edith?" Edith, helping Willa Nickle up, "Oh, I'm right here picking up a nickle."

Unfortunate Chris.

This highly esteemed but most unfortunate member of our camp, reports the following painful sprains and breaks, one arm broken in two places, one leg broken in two places, one dislocated jaw (poor Chris.), one broken collar bone, one dislocated hip and a sprained ankle. Fortunately, she has come through them all and is apparently as well as ever. We marvel at her wonderful physicel endurance.

Cyclone Strikes Vicinity of Varty Lake.

Special cable to Varty Lake Knews

The inmates of V. L. G. C. were honor stricken when they beheld threatening clouds which they realized would bring a storm. Suddenly the storm broke. The wind swept through the camp, the rain came down in barrels full, the tents leaked like sieves. All was excitement when we heard that one inmate had been violently thrown forward, breaking her arm; another was made to suffer severe pains in her head; still one more was enduring great pain from eating so quickly, on account of the approaching storm. Efficient life saving was executed by Capt. Babcock and Nurse Wartman during the time of stress, and because of this the loss of lives were few. We cannot exactly estimate the loss in dollars, but we may say, it was rather small.

From Knick-A-Grouch Tent, — The sensible speech, "Now friend, before you go, don't leave us yet."

We hope no one was surprised when our table bench broke down tonight, and "Mc" Babcock came to our timely rescue. The heavyweight of Knot-A-Grouch, in the person of Willa Nickle, was getting on it. You have heard of a poor prune, but we have a poor cherry at our table. At supper she was served up to a huge dish of cherry juice with one lone cherry floating in the midst thereof.

Jessie will talk. There is no getting her stopped. She has to have her eyes propped open with a tooth pick, and her ears with a clarion before that valuable person will hold her tongue.

A new remedy for foot trouble has been tried out by Clara Emberley. At supper she literally bathed her feet in orange marmalade.

Even in memory of Jean Paul, the patient, and Ruth Graham, the dandy nurse:—

Alas! alack!
Two crows have flown!
Two birds have left the nest!
Poor Jean went in the water cold,
And now must take a rest.

So Ruth went out on service bent,
To nurse the moaning sicky
All night she stood beside the bed,
Or sat upon the tick.

And now those crows went to their rest
And went for those who'd left the tent;
For one had gone to take a rest,
And one on service bent.

Hatel, Tent 22, has a complaint to enter. She isn't sick; she knows better than to eat too much, but she objects when her tent mother, Mother Hill, shears from 1.30 till 4.30 in the afternoon.

Misfortunes.

We speak of misfortunes, but what could be expected? The Camden East group admitted a guest last evening that made "12" at their table. At first the girls thought "13" was their lucky number, when they saw it. L. G. C. pennant on their tent after inspection; but now they wonder, since one of their group has left camp with a broken arm. Oh, yes, and their bench was broken. We are very sorry the accident occurred and extend sympathy to Sister Mary Scott, hoping she will soon be wholly recovered.

Sister Jean Paul is ill. Sister Paul is like all other truly great people, she has fallen down on her strongest point—too much swim; but here's to a hurry up recovery.

Notice—Mrs. Wartman writes her view of the casualties up to date. A word of warning would not be out of order. Girls, please confine your eating to the meal hall, and not get your digestive process out of order and upset the order of the camp.

WEDNESDAY

A Word of Appreciation

We, the girls of this camp, realize that our camp days are drawing to a close. They have indeed been very happy days, and already we are anxiously looking forward to a camp next year. In a sense the success of this undertaking has been due to the whole-hearted co-operation of the girls, but even more so to the efficient leadership of Camp Director Miss Mills. She has given her every minute towards planning for our dimp and carrying out these plans. Then we have had an invaluable co-worker in the person of Mrs. Nickle. To her we looked for motherly advice and found an inexhaustible supply.

Our friend Capt. Babcock has been mentioned before, and we find that to these three we owe a debt of gratitude rather hard to repay. Suffice it to say that we extend to them our sincere thanks.

Then, girls, what could we have done without Mrs. Judson, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Leonard, who unselfishly left their homes and gave us the entire week.

These few words express the feeling of every girl in the camp, and we hope you will accept them in the same spirit in which they are given.

(Signed) THE CAMP GIRLS.

Day's Programme

Yesterday's rest period was spent in preparing our stunts for the camp-fire performance, and directly after we divided into our A and B groups. A going with Harry Babcock for a lecture on fractures, B with Mrs. Wartman, the camp nurse. Everyone took advantage of the swimming hour in the afternoon to cool off. After tea, as usual, we all made a grand show towards the travelling stove which comes in every evening and is well patronized.

At 8 p.m. the camp fire began, each tent giving a stunt, and afterwards Mr. Neal came to us on choosing our life work. Then a presentation was made to Capt. Babcock. When the camp fire was put out we all went to our respective tents, where there was a great deal of work cleaning up after the stunts.

The morning programme was, in a general sense, carried on as usual, with the exception of the nature study classes. It was exceedingly warm, and besides many were preparing to take their departures, so there was much to do in the way of taking down tents, burning straw and gathering up luggage. It seemed to be a sort of finishing-up day all around. At the Napanee table, although there seemed to be lots of everything except bread, we were told that a meal was made up of the odds and ends. Bread seemed to be scarce at all the tables and poor Harry was forced to pin a sign on his chest requesting bread. Finally Yarker took compassion on him and presented him with a piece of bread.

This afternoon the sports began at 3.30. The first thing on the programme was a skipping contest by Willa Nickle, Miss Mills and Mrs. Smith. It's rather hard to say who was the winner, but we might add that Mrs. Smith broke up the contest.

Napanee was short of bread this morning, so Capt. Babcock came over and ate at Newburgh's table, with the result that there was no bread in the whole camp for dinner.

Newburgh's Attitude at Breaking Up

Pound, pound, pound,
On the tent pegs all day long;
And I would that my tongue could utter
The sorrow I feel at that song.

And the stately cars go on
To the garage over the hill,
But, oh for a sight of our friends that are gone,
And the sound of their voices shrill.

Oh, sad for the ones that are left;
There has come an end to their play.
Our hearts go out to those who have gone,
Sorrowing on their way.

Sniff, sniff, sniff,
In our hankies down by the sea;
But tender thoughts of the days that are past
Will often come back to me.

The world's greatest circus was begun with a sing-song by the audience. Miss Mills, camp director, called for the events, the first of which was given by Newburgh (Tent 4), who, dressed in rain capes and military hats, sang an original motion song—"Eat When You Are Hungry, Drink When You Are Dry"—to a familiar tune.

Tamworth (Tent 5-6) cleverly acted an amusing pantomime, one of the girls taking the part of an audacious coquette who entertained in one evening four different suitors. When the first appeared he was well received, but as the second was announced suitor No. 1 was transformed into a hat rack by having a raincoat thrown over his extended hands. Suitor No. 3 arrived and No. 2 had to assume the character of a table and hold his rival's gift of flowers. When the fourth arrived the third was forced into the position of an arm chair.

But she who grasps for too much loses all, and love was climbed to hate in the hearts of the suitors.

The Whiz Bangs entertained us next by their interpretation of the nursery rhyme, "The Old Woman Who Lived in the Shoe." The poor old lady certainly endured much. The many, many children were utterly incorrigible, prancing and sassing her to their heart's content.

From Tent 11 came the "Gold Dust Twins. They skipped around in an airy fashion and sang brightly.

Camden East's Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Prof. Will Nickleson, rendered several selections. Susie, the tattest girl alive, and the thinnest girl entertained us.

Two of the Yarker and Desmond group sang "Darling, I am Growing Old," in costume.

Kathleen Robinson, in costume, danced an Irish jig, accompanied by Capt. Babcock on the wind instrument and drum.

Jiggs and Maggie, tight rope walking, a pantomime by Desmond and Yarker, "Rock of Ages," were other pleasing features.

Girls, we Newburgh group have tried to keep this "squabble" from getting around camp, because we didn't like to spoil the reputation of the Camp Mother. But, honest, she and Mother Hill have never been able to agree at the table. They sit side by side at the table and always fight over elbow room. However, the matter was amicably settled at supper. In closing we might add that each had enormous suppers, so are happy. Now watch them smile!

The "Twinkling Stars" are all regretting having to leave camp tonight, and all express their appreciation of the friendship, unity and co-operation of the other groups.

The camp has been thoroughly enjoyed by all, and we hope that a permanent Girls' Camp will be formed to continue for a week or more at Varty Lake every summer. We are certain that every girl will go home feeling that she has learned a great deal during the week at this camp.

The "Twinkling Stars" were all rejoicing after tent inspection this morning when they looked at Killarney Tent with its brilliant pennant, attracting the attention of the morning workers.

We say good bye and good luck to the Girls' Camp till 1925.

A PLEASING EVENT AT AMHERST ISLAND

On June 30th, the students of Stella Continuation School and the many friends of Miss Olive Salsbury, Camden East, who has faithfully worked as principal of S. C. S. for the past three years, gathered together and spent an enjoyable afternoon at Stella Point, which lovely spot Mr. Sutherland kindly granted to the students for this purpose. During the afternoon, an interesting game of baseball took place between Bath and Stella students, the score being 23-17, in favour of Stella. Miss Salsbury was one of the most interested spectators as baseball has always been one of her favourite sports.

A most dainty luncheon was now served under the shady trees and on the cozy verandah of Mrs. Earle, a "good friend", to which the visiting team was cordially invited. After luncheon, Rev. Mr. McCree, as chairman, gave an interesting speech, in which he tried to make Miss Salsbury understand the feeling and respect which her many Island friends held for her. Miss Blanche Richards, on behalf of the students, read the following address, after which Master Bruce Caughey presented Miss Salsbury with a handsome club bag.

To Miss Salsbury.—We, the students of Stella Continuation School, have gathered here this afternoon for the purpose of celebrating our first holiday with you, our teacher of the past three years. We are very sorry to hear that you are leaving us, and we would like you to try to realize how much we thank you for the interest you have taken, both in our studies and sports, and our pleasant school days during that time. We know that you have often been discouraged with us, but we know, too, that in these cases, your patience made us more ashamed than if you had punished us severely. We thank you for the way in which you have enjoyed being with us in all our games, and the fact that we have on hand at present a large amount of money for our baseball teams, our coming winter sports and our school in general. And we are asking you to accept this club bag as a slight token of our love and friendship; and we wish you every success in your new work and an enjoyable vacation.

Miss Salsbury gave a suitable response in which she expressed her thanks and the mutual bonds which would never enable her to forget her Stella friends.

A short sing song followed, after which the picnic reluctantly broke up, and farewell wishes were extended to Miss Salsbury.

HUMOR NON-EXISTENT

AMERICA AS A WHOLE 'A SERIOUS NATION.

Clash of Words and Ideas Rather Than Topsy-Turvydom of Genial Emotions Is Distinguishing Feature of American Fun—Nation Too Young to Laugh at Itself.

An English professional man, says Frank Dilnot, in the London Tatler, after a six months' stay in New York, was asked by one of a group of American friends for the outstanding difference between that city and London; and the Englishman, after a moment's reflection, replied, "Your slowness and your lack of humor."

When the American had recovered his breath, he requested explanations, which were given with a friendly frankness not entirely agreeable to the outspoken citizens of the great republic who had plastered round it pass over the Englishman's description of American leisureliness. "As regards humor," he said, "you enjoy a bright story, and now and again you generate one, but it will take you some time, possibly two or three centuries, before you reach the stage in which you can appreciate the subtle and distinctive humor of the English."

This was talking. My English friend lost an invitation to a bachelor dinner; he was subsequently described as both rude and stupid. Alas, that bluntness should carry so many penalties in this time-saving world. My friend admitted to me afterwards that, under an accumulation of exasperations, he had carried the war into the enemy's camp, and he had thought that a trifle of exaggeration would be specially effective. He had yet to learn that some Americans, like some Englishmen, have a special regard for modesty—in others.

There was excuse for the Englishman, for he had begun to suffer, as others had suffered before him, and many will suffer after him, from the national habits of America—about Britain. The popular view across the Atlantic is that all Englishmen drop their aitches, drink strong tea, bully their wives, and have no sense of humor. You are permitted to argue about parts of this creed, but if you begin a defence of English humor you are met with a smile of pitying broad-minded kindliness and pity. The absence of humor in an Englishman is one of the stock traditions of the United States. Stories by the score are told of the Englishman in search of the religion of every true American.

It was at a journalistic dinner in New York one night, and heard the audience roar with laughter at an after-dinner speech, that the idea first occurred to me. He said that Nat Goodwin, the American actor, playing there in one of the West End theatres, went to see in a stock of cigars from his native land. He bought 500 and got a leather pocket case, with 1,000 he would be given a gold fountain pen, and if he liked to lay in a really big stock of 5,000 he would be presented with a grand piano. Thereupon Nat Goodwin said to the manager of the cigar store, "If I smoked 5,000 of your cigars it is odds on that a piano I should want but a harp." He told this retort to an English friend whom he met later in the day, and the Englishman said, "How very funny," but showed no special enthusiasm.

Next day Nat Goodwin again encountered the Englishman, by this time was bubbling over. He clapped the actor on the back and said, "Do you know, it wasn't till I got to bed last night that I saw the point of your joke, and then I couldn't get to sleep for laughing at it. What you meant was that being an actor and travelling about a great deal, you couldn't take a grand piano with you, but you could carry a harp."

In the midst of the merriment that this story created, an English correspondent, who had resisted the word-jotting by my side, became restive, and insisted on uttering a few remarks. "I want to explain," he said, "that it is out of no lack of courtesy, from no want of effort, that we Englishmen do not laugh. I myself have sometimes tried for as long as twenty minutes to laugh at an American joke."

The two Englishmen I have quoted were a little severe, perhaps, but no one may withhold condemnation in view of the provocation. The fact is, that Americans have a great deal to which here and there approximates to the English type, but which, generally speaking, is nearer to wit than humor.

I remember seeing a screen drama in one of the big picture houses of New York in the course of which a young woman had to explain about her twelve-year-old sister. It was a pathetic parting. The elder girl laugh-ingly said, "Take care of her, and before I cloud up and rain," she said. The audience liked it very much indeed.

There are plenty of humorous people in America, as there are supposed to be among a population of 120,000,000, but America as a whole is a serious nation, and hence the subtle, irradiating, penetrating, humor which we know in England, is practically nonexistent.

A Holiday Disaster.

Two gentlemen were once travelling together through the mountains. Arrived at an inn, they ordered black-burn, went into the smoking-room, and returned in a few minutes, looking so depressed that the one asked:

"What's the matter, Joe?"

"Why, I've lost the better part of my baggage," said Blackburn, in heartfelt tones.

"Was it stolen, or did you leave it behind?"

"Worse than either—the cork came out!"

CENTURIES OLD.

Remains of Huron Warriors Unearthed at Orillia.

Scores of Orillia citizens visited the scene of discovery of the Indian skeletons, unearthed on the property of Mrs. Mary Milne. As many as thirty skeletons were uncovered. Several of these, especially the skulls, were remarkably well preserved in the white sandy soil acting as a preservative.

The scene of the disinterment is in the western suburbs of the town known as Mount Slaven and from the time of the earliest settlement was known as an ancient battle ground, it was, in fact, the scene of the massacre of many thousand Hurons by the invading Iroquois in March, 1649, when a large Huron village known to historians as Cahaigue, occupied this spot. Wagon loads of relics of aboriginal days have been unearthed at various times to be placed on exhibition in museums in various towns and cities in the Dominion and also in the United States.

Orillia has always been a mecca of summer excursionists and many of the visitors in past years went away loaded with relics picked up on the old battleground within a few inches of the surface, such as tomahawks, skinning stones, arrow heads, beads and wampum.

When the property was subdivided about 1887, by John McCosh and W. M. Harvey, both sides of many of the trees were cleared away and settlement began. At that time many skeletons were unearthed as well as implements of warfare and, at odd times since other traces of Indian occupation have been reported. On the very lot where these thirty skeletons were found a century-and-a-half years ago, a man named Harry Wiley, while digging a cellar, came upon eight complete skeletons and several fine specimens of Indian pottery, one of large size. This later found its way to the Normal School Museum, Toronto, through the medium of the late Dr. David Boyle.

There is no evidence that this spot was ever used as a burying ground within the past century and the remains just uncovered are without a doubt those of Huron warriors who perished in the great massacre. It is expected that as excavation proceeds other skeletons and relics may be brought to light. The Indian agent at Rama, the Ojibway Reserve, across the lake from Orillia, has been notified, and it is expected that the remains will be given decent sepulture.

Campaign for Winter Eggs.

The winter production of eggs in Canada is far short of what it should be. There are certain definite reasons for this and a remedy is easily available. G. R. Green, the district Agricultural Representative for Oxford county, along with his assistants, and with the help of Professor Graham, the poultry expert at the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, has started a campaign to stimulate winter production.

The campaign is being carried on through the 12 affiliated egg circles of Oxford county, which are operated on a co-operative basis and are having great success in their marketing activities. The campaign was started recently, when the equipment which has been prepared for demonstration purposes was placed in the Woodstock Egg Circle rooms. This equipment is being duplicated in each of the 12 circles, and if it is successful in interesting the farmers in securing more eggs per-hen the production will show a very material increase during the coming winter.

Winter production is determined by the care and feeding of the hens between October 15 and December 1. If the hens are given right feed, in right quantity, and a little more care during this period and throughout the winter, the farmers will get returns when the price of eggs is high.

Portable Wireless For Survey Parties

A small portable wireless set has been designed for the use of survey parties by the Canadian Signal Corps, directed by Lieut.-Col. E. Ryrie, and the set is to be given a thorough test by A. M. Narraway, controller of surveys, in a forthcoming trip of inspection throughout the Northwest. By the use of this set Mr. Narraway expects to be able to keep in touch with the broadcasting stations at Winnipeg, Calgary and Edmonton during all the period of his trip.

If the set proves successful, it is intended to equip all the survey parties with this instrument. They will by this means be able to receive communications from the main stations when otherwise out of touch with settlements. Instructions will be sent them by wireless by arranging for a definite hour each day when they must listen in. They will receive time signals from Arlington, D.C., and thus obtain the time of their watches and be able to establish their position exactly. Incidentally, the parties will be able to secure information and entertainment from the general broadcasting stations.

The apparatus is contained in a box 12 inches square. It has a range of from 200 to 21,000 miles or more. It is specially turned for 400 and 450 metres wave.

New Variety of Wheat.

Reward, a new wheat, a cross between Marquis and Prelude, made by the late Seager Wheeler, originated plots at the Dominion Experimental Farm at Indian Head this summer, according to N. D. MacKenzie, superintendent of the farm.

Reward gave a yield of 42 bushels an acre, which is considered an excellent showing under somewhat adverse conditions of wet weather and disease. Mr. MacKenzie said that the yield of wheat generally under field conditions was materially cut down this year by a new disease, Basal Glume rot, an affection which is attributable to the exceptionally wet weather. Under field conditions Marquis made the best showing with 32 bushels to the acre, though a number of fields gave very much reduced yields.

French Capital Creates New Record Over Credit Counters.

The difficulty recently experienced by Mme. Marcelle Koudenoff, of 25,000 francs having been stolen in Paris Opera, in repaying a loan of March, 1649, when a large Huron village known to historians as Cahaigue, occupied this spot. Wagon loads of relics of aboriginal days have been unearthed at various times to be placed on exhibition in museums in various towns and cities in the Dominion and also in the United States.

Royal Engineer and Stoker.

King Boris of Bulgaria is a most democratic monarch and free from anything approaching pomposity. Bulgarian papers recently published an interesting little illustrative incident. During the early part of the year a freight train, carrying lumber and bricks, pulled up in the station of Philippopolis. The crowd did not notice it; dimly clad engine driver and his stoker were busily engaged down from the engine of the freight train and went up to the station master to report that the train had arrived in good order. It transpired that the driver was King Boris, and the stoker, his younger brother, Cyril. The King and his brother had left Sofia for Philippopolis, but when his their train had been blocked at a station on the way by snow. While waiting for the line to be cleared, a freight train bound for Philippopolis came up. The King and his brother jumped on the footboard and one of them acting as the engine driver and the other as the stoker took the train safely to its destination.

Barrie vs. Kipling.

A good story is told of an encounter between Rudyard Kipling and Dr. Barrie, which took place when starting on a railway journey, and Kipling was in need of light literature. The time was short, and the racing round a corner he collided with Sir J. M. Barrie, armed with a sheaf of magazines. According to Barrie, Kipling seized the magazines, flung a sovereign at him and rushed away. Barrie told some of his friends that Kipling had not flung half enough, when this story was recently told to St. Andrews students, the audience were convulsed with laughter at Kipling indeed. In reply he assured the guests that he never robbed Barrie of a penny. "He is one of the few things that count for that to be possible," said Mr. Kipling.

PHARI-JONG.

Dirtiest Village In the World at Mt. Everest.

Phari-jong, where the Mount Everest expedition proposes to spend several weeks, is the filthiest village in the world, writes a correspondent from Yetung, Tibet.

Situated on a small knoll in the centre of the plain from which it takes its name and a few miles from the foot of Mt. Chomolhari, one of the most magnificent mountains in Tibet, Phari consists of a fortress, round which are huddled about 200 hovels in which the people live.

When the village was first built, at least 500 years ago, the houses were above ground, but owing to the prevalence of the prevalent practice of the inhabitants of using the front of their houses as a rubbish heap, the buildings are buried in mounds of filth, through which are cut passage ways to the road. The road level is nowadays in many places far above the roofs of the houses lining it.

The people never wash.

Phari is over 14,500 feet above sea level and is the highest continually inhabited place.

There is an excellent bungalow, maintained by the Government of India, for use by its officials stationed in Tibet. There is also a post and telegraph office, probably the highest in the world. From this news of the expedition will be sent out to the world.

Phari is one of the principal trade-marts of Tibet, being situated at the head of the Chumbi Valley, down which travels the bulk of the Tibetan exports, including the largest product of the country, wool.

The conditions under which the inhabitants live are very hard. No crops will ripen owing to the short-ness of the summer and also to the altitude. Because of the scarcity of fuel, most food is eaten raw. Dried mutton and barley flour, which is imported from Chumbi, form the principal articles of diet, washed down with the inevitable butter tea.

In winter the people combat the intense cold—the thermometer sometimes drops to 20 degrees F.—by donning more fur-lined clothing.

Cat Makes Few Errors.

Prof. Lebinay, of the Paris College of Psychology, who has made a careful study of cats, says that there are but two sorts of people in the world—those who like to pet every cat they see, and those who may have the same charitable feelings toward cats, yet are never quite comfortable in their presence.

It doesn't matter how rough a cat's fur is, or how rugged its ear, or how scrawny its tail, or how uncouth its manners, the first sort will always acclaim it a little at the point where its back is joined to the rest of the body, and both the cat and the person will go along feeling more cheerful. It is a fact that the most handsome and well-bred cat may be, the second sort will have nothing to do with it.

"Cats are perhaps the most mysterious of all animals. They are, says Prof. Lebinay, "very superficial; they are capricious and independent, suddenly abandoning what appeared to please them most, following those who flatter and caress them, only suddenly to turn away again. They are anarchists among animals. They make no concessions, never obey, and never yield in spite of the moment.

To me they are little less than divinities, little more than animals. Unlike my friend, Dr. Philippe Marechal, I do not subject my theories that animals are superior to man, but by instinct they make fewer mistakes than man in his reasoning and in his efforts. Generally speaking, we might train them as well—somewhat learning better to utilize their associations and ideas, making ourselves understood through visional means. What has been done with two could be done with them, raising them from the slaves to intelligent auxiliaries."

Deposed Caliph of Islam.

Crown Prince Abdul Medjid, who has been deposed from the high office of Caliph of Islam, for which he was elected in November, 1922, is a son of former Sultan Abdul Aziz, and a cousin of the deposed Sultan Mohammed VI., and is 56 years old.

He is described as learned in letters and literature, a patron of the arts, an accomplished painter and composer of music. As he has always been closely identified with the Nationalist movement, and is credited with a strong will, at the time of his election as Caliph, friends said he would prove the content to remain merely as religious head of Islam, but would insist upon exercising temporal power.

He has only one wife and has lived modestly and quietly, not minding, in spite of all, the loss of his high office. He has a daughter about 20 years old, the latter married to a daughter of Mohammed VI., the deposed Sultan.

In spite of the fact that this office is spiritual, the Caliphs of Islam have not always led a life of sacred security. Of the 90 men who have held the title, 26 have been deposed and 11; some have been merely deposed, others deposed and blinded, others deposed and then executed. The present Caliph was fortunate in being allowed to leave the country.

Pies That Made Town Famous.

The jolly old French town of Strasburg has been famous through all its manufacture of goose liver pies, the "pate de fois gras."

This delicacy is said to have been invented in the latter part of the eighteenth century by a famous chef, Clause, employed by the Marechal de Contades, one time Governor of Alsace. There are about twenty-five manufacturers in Strasburg.

HELP FOR YOUNG WOMEN

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E.Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 16 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This held me from my work (I help to run farm on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day, and at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I took it for I feel like a different person and that I don't have these troubles."—Mrs. OBDLIA HOLMBERG, Box 30, Viking, Alta.

Letters like this establish the record of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from pain and sickness that it gives to women.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

If you doubt that we have this Vegetable Compound will help you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Coboorg, Ontario, for Mrs. Pinkham's private text-book and learn more about it.

ENTERPRISE

A very pleasant gathering met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Wagar, to celebrate the 89th birthday of Mrs. Wagar's father, Mr. Chester Brown, of Napanee. There were present besides his wife, four daughters; three sons-in-law, one son and one daughter-in-law, six grand daughters, two grand sons, one great-granddaughter, and three great-grandsons, two nieces with husbands, one great-niece and nephew. The dining room was beautifully decorated, and a very sumptuous dinner was prepared by Mrs. Wagar's daughters. After dinner all gathered in the parlor to sing graises to the Great God of Heaven who had been so kind as to permit so many loved ones to be together once more on this his footstool, after which some left to attend the wedding of another nephew, Mr. Floyd Vanness, to Miss Edna McGee, in Trinity Church, Napanee; the rest staying and playing games on the lawn till late in the afternoon.

A Birthday Greeting to Chester W. Brown.

You're a spry young man, just eighty-nine;
Never knew anything quite so fine.
It's grand to be eighty-nine years young;
And that is why we have merrily sung.

"Mr. Brown is eighty-nine to-day,
No wonder we're taking time to play."
Your children and grandchildren gathered here,
And a few great-grandchildren, all so dear;

Many happy returns are wishing you,
And praying God that your skies keep blue;
And that joy from Heaven may fill your heart,
Till you reach the land where we never shall part.

To guard and guide and comfort and cheer."

BEEF, SCRAP VERSUS SKIM MILK FOR HENS

(Experimental Farms Note).

It is an accepted fact that hens must have some form of animal protein in their feeding ration and this is usually supplied by beef scrap. Two years ago an experiment was started at the Experimental Farm, Nappan, N.S., to determine the relative values of beef scrap and skim milk when added to the laying ration. Two pens were made up of ten birds each, as uniform in breeding, age and type as it was possible to select. The rations fed to each pen were alike and constant except that Pen 1 received beef scrap and Pen 2 skim milk. The results obtained show the possibilities there are of realizing good value for skim milk by feeding more of it to the hen.

The average production from the ten birds receiving beef scrap for the two six-months feeding periods (Nov. 1 to April 30 each year) was 615.6 eggs at a feed cost of $13.75 or 26.8 cents per dozen, leaving a profit over feed cost of 97.2 cents per bird. In Pen 2 the ten birds receiving skim milk over the same period had an average production of 699.5 eggs at a feed cost of $12.70 or 21.8 cents per dozen, leaving a profit over feed cost of $1.49 per bird.

By taking the average of two years it was found that 598.7 pounds skim milk valued at 29 cents per hundred and thus costing $1.29 gave greater returns than 39 pounds beef scrap at a market price of $7.24 per hundred, "thus costing $2.62. If, as believed at the Experimental Farm, the increase in production from the pens receiving milk can be attributed to the value of skim milk as a food for laying hens, it would only be fair to state that the farmer had received slightly better than one dollar per hundredweight for his skim milk when he marketed it through his eggs.

As this feeding test has only been carried on for two years, it does not permit our drawing definite conclusions yet. However, the results to date would lead one to believe that a part of the skim milk available on the farm can be very profitably marketed through the egg and would seem to be a more profitable proposition than paying $7 per hundred for beef scrap in order to supply the amount of protein so essential for profitable egg production,

W. W. Baird, Superintendent,
Experimental Farm,

"I'm afraid Johnny isn't trying enough," wrote an anxious mother to the teacher of her little boy.

"You are quite wrong, madam," wrote back the teacher. "I assure you Johnny is the most trying boy in the class."

It Has Many Qualities. — The man who possesses a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is armed against many ills. It will relieve a cough, break a cold, prevent sore throat; it will reduce the swelling from a sprain, relieve the most persistent sores; and will speedily heal cuts and contusions. It is a medicine chest in itself.

Johnny—Where are you going?

Tommy—Home. Don't you hear ma calling me?

"That's nothing. She's called you two or three times before."

"Yes, but she's not in the garden now, cutting a stick."

To Asthma Sufferers. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy comes like a helping hand to a sinking swimmer. It gives new life and hope—something he has come to believe impossible. Its benefit is too evident to be questioned —it is its own best argument—its own best advertisement. If you suffer from asthma get this time-tried remedy and find help like thousands of others.

Small Mary returned again and again to the swing on the public playground. At last the supervisor remarked, "I guess you don't have a chance to swing at home, do you, Mary?"

"Oh, yes ! I have a chance, but I haven't any swing."

A Corrector of Pulmonary Troubles —Many testimonials could be present ed showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is experience and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. It will allay inflammation in the bronchial tubes.

"Well, goodness, daddy !" exclaimed the little one, "what do you want for a penny ?"

There is nothing repulsive in Miller's Worm Powders, and they are as pleasant to take as sugar, so that few children will refuse them. SMILING COURTESY.

Something of Which There Is by No Means Enough in the World.

After war is abolished the great reform next in order will be that of instituting that of universal courtesy. This reform may be said to be on its feet, even at the present time, but it is wobbly legged and needs a great deal of encouragement.

We have some very courteous individuals in our midst, most of whom were born that way and who insist on staying that way despite all temptations to the contrary, but we have some who are almost hopeless.

Courtesy is just another name for unselfishness. The greedy, self centered individual is never courteous, no matter what kind of manners he displays in public. Courtesy does not reveal itself per se. It is not calculating. It acts out of the promptings of consideration for the just claims and rights of others, and in smaller matters at least it is even willing to make sacrifices. It is the sense of service revealed in action.

When you give your neighbor a smile instead of a frown you do him a real service, for you cause him to smile and be happy. It is courteous, therefore, to smile.

When you smother the needless word of criticism you save some one a pang. It is courteous, therefore, to control your tongue.

It doesn't matter very much at just what angle you tip your hat to a lady, although it is commendable to regard such points. The important thing is to look as though you were glad of the opportunity to tip it. That is the real courtesy.

If the world would start out to-day to follow two rules—smile and avoid mean gossip—it would be almost civilized at the end of a year.

The First Laugh Was the Last.

A personable young man with little baggage but a winning smile engaged two rooms and bath at one of the finest hotels in a western city. He spun a twenty dollar gold piece across the desk and said, "I'll stay that much anyhow, and when that's used up let me know." The room clerk smiled and turned the gold over to the cashier to be credited to the man's account. He fared sumptuously every day.

A bill for $198 was presented to the young man a week later. He frowned and handed it to the room clerk. "This is all wrong," he said. "You remember I paid you $20 in advance and said I'd take that much of your hospitality?"

"Yes, but that was only a joke," the clerk protested.

"I wasn't joking, and you can't get another cent out of me," said the personable young man. They sent for the proprietor, Colonel Sackett. He listened to the facts, glowered awhile, then broke into a genial grin and exclaimed, "I'll give you your money back and $5 receipt in full if you'll go over and play this trick on the — — House."

"Sorry, colonel," answered the young man, "but Mr. Blank of the — — House gave me a week's board to come over and play it here."

German Lance Heavy.

"Among the most interesting of the war trophies that have found their way over here," says the Manchester (Eng.) Guardian, "are some specimens of the German lance. It is not a wooden pole, but an eleven or twelve foot steel tube. It is very heavy, and at first seems quite unmanageable to a man of ordinary strength. But two-thirds of the way down from the head towards the butt is a wrapping of thick twin to give a grip. And if you hold there, and there only, you find that it is so evenly poised that, as one admiring observer remarked, you could write your name with it.

"There have been some descriptions of cases where these tubular lances have crumpled up in action like an overlong-reed mast on a racing yacht. Perhaps that may be accounted for by the peculiar shape of the head. There is no point or spear of any kind. Instead, there is a solid piece of iron shaped exactly like the end of a giant poker, square and quite blunt."

Her Memory All Right.

Mrs. Geddes had a new maid, and she found it necessary to repeat her instructions several times before Nora obeyed them. The mistress had told her repeatedly about the finger bowls, and one day when there were guests they were again forgotten.

"Now, Nora," said Mrs. Geddes, extremely exercised over the omission, "this is the sixth time I've had to tell you about the finger bowls. Didn't the cook want you last week for have them on the table?"

"No, mum," replied Nora; "her friends always washed their hands before they cum."

Mean.

Mr. Scribe is a great rusher after complimeats. Having given by request a reading from his own works to some ladies, he said afterward to one of them:

"Ah," replied the young woman, "but you had your revenge, Mr. Scribe! You made them think that we were compelled to listen."

Baked Apple Sauce.

Pare, core and quarter tart apples. Place in layers in a gallon stone jar, sprinkling each layer with sugar, using about two cups of sugar in all. Cover and bake in a very slow oven for several hours. It will be better if baked all day. When thoroughly cooked it will be rich red in color. This may be canned while hot.

Wears 32,000 Pearl Buttons on Suit.

"Spinitalitty" is a dull word to describe the world's "Pearly King" when he appears on a sunny day in his suit of 32,000 pearl buttons. It took two years to sew the buttons on his costume, for there are 2,000 on his high hat alone and 500 each on stick, spats and gloves. This particular pearly king has no less than six pearly costumes and six for his children, boasting altogether more than 1,000,000 buttons.

There are fifty odd pearly kings in London, but only one who claims 1,000,000 buttons. The idea, which originated fifty years ago, has a charitable as well as spectacular aim. For the pearly kings parade on Sundays and collect money for hospitals. Many pearly kings are horse dealers, and they have formed a society composed of costermongers, carters and window washers, called the North London Amalagamated Hospital Society.

It is believed the button wearing fad came from a navvy who used to wear a "flash" evening suit sparkling with buttons after a hard day's work. Any man can be a pearly king if he collects enough buttons.

Sudden Death.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. Wm. McMann, who has been the hostler at the Campbell House for some months, was stricken with heart failure and died before medical assistance could reach him. Mr. McMann had been about his duties as usual throughout the day, and went off in the evening to milk the cow which was pastured across the river. He had just started to milk when he was overcome. He was found a few moments later just where he fell. Dr. Cowan, the Coroner, was notified. After an examination he ordered the remains to be taken to Marten's Undertaking Establishment, and steps taken to notify the relatives of the deceased. Mr. McMann's home was formerly in Portsmouth.

WEDDING BELLS

Ballance—Stiles.

A pretty wedding took place in Trinity Church, Watertown, N.Y., on Wednesday, July 16th, 1924, it being the marriage of Esther, youngest daughter of Wm. and the late Mrs. Ballance, of Selby, Ont., to Carl Kenneth Stiles, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Stiles, of Watertown, N.Y. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Raynor, Rector of Trinity Church, in the presence of the immediate relatives. The bride was becomingly gowned in a maize georgette frock, with hat to match, and carried sunset roses and lilies of the valley. The bridesmaid, Miss Thelma Williams, of Watertown, was dressed in blue georgette and carried Ophelia roses. The best man was Mr. Eugene Powers also of Watertown. After a buffet luncheon served at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. G. C. Ballance, 205 Central St., the happy couple motored to Point Salubrius, where they are spending their honeymoon. The bride's many Napanee friends extend congratulations.

A PLEASANT EVENT

On Thursday, July 24th, a very enjoyable afternoon was spent at the old homestead, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Fitchett, Anderson, in honor of their golden wedding day. Those who enjoyed this occasion were their seven children, four sons and three daughters, seventeen grandchildren and one great-grandson, making four generations present. The afternoon passed very quickly in the recalling of many past memories of fifty years ago, which both bride and groom enjoyed relating, which was very interesting to all. Although the weather was showery, which proved some disappointment for the setting of tables on the lawn, especially to the children as well as some of the grown-ups, supper was served about five, from tables, which were laden with many appetizing good things and prettily decorated with mixed flowers, mostly roses, and in the centre was indeed a cake worthy of mention, being a story wedding cake, beautifully iced, and decorated with ribbon and hearts in an arch form, made by the bride for the occasion. The showers of rain only freshened the memories of those present of how this home had always been blessed with showers of blessing from our Heavenly Father in the smooth sailing of this wedded life with an unbroken family, which indeed is a great deal to be thankful for. Both Mr. and Mrs. Fitchett are still very active in doing their own necessary work. Although they retired from farming some years ago, they still retain their cosy home on the farm, the birthplace of the groom. Congratulations were received from Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Page, Toronto, and many others, who were unable to be present; also flowers, which spoke for the love in which they were given.

After the supper was served came an abundance of ice cream, made by Mr. Caton, Napanee, which received great praise, for it sure was up to the standard. The bride and groom were then taken by surprise, when they were asked to accept a filled envelope as a slight token of love from their children for them to choose what would please them best as a memory of the occasion, for which they could scarcely find words to express their thanks and good wishes to all. The party broke up, trusting that God may see fit to spare and keep them in comradeship together for many years yet.

SPARKS CIRCUS TO BE IN BELLEVILLE, ON FRIDAY AUGUST 1st.

Friday, August 1st, afternoon and evening, under huge masses of canvas, the finest circus ever made by the ingenuity and courage of men, will parade and show in Belleville, to make the young folks happy and the old folks young. The great parade is on Friday morning, at 10.30 o'clock. First of all, a real wild animal circus is a 1924 acquisition, having been imported from the world's greatest wild animal training quarters at Stellingen, Germany. Included in these displays will be found lions, tigers, leopards, polar and grizzly bears—even trained ostriches will be seen in addition to the Sparks group of sixteen "Rotation" horses, the two elephant herds, fancy gaited and posing horses, the Sibh County Pig Circus, Captain Tiebor's seals, and hosts of others of a novel nature. The circus proper opens with an elaborately staged spectacle, "Echoes from the Reign of King Tut", in which all of the animals, performers, premier dancers and a large chorus participate. As a fitting finish to the all-feature performance, a genuine English Fox Hunt, introducing real Irish-bred high jumpers, broad jumpers, and perfectly schooled fox-hounds, will replace the old-time and very dangerous chariot races usually to be found with other circuses.

Don't forget the date, Belleville, Friday, August 1st.

Presentations for Week of Aug. 1st to 7th

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"ANNA CHRISTIE," whose story has been adapted for the screen by Thomas H. Ince from Eugene O'Neill's stage drama, which was a sensation of two continents and won the 1922 Pulitzer prize for the best American drama of the year, stands out boldly as the most unconventional heroine ever brought to the silver sheet. The picture is one of the greatest artistic triumphs of the season. It is crammed with powerful, unconventional situations which have been handled with the delicate touch of genius. Also a 2-reel Comedy.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

The season's most gripping drama produced by Henry Kolker, "I WILL REPAY," starring Flora Le Breton Homes, Herbert and Pedro De Cordoba. Don't fail to see the sword fight for a girl, and see if the one she loves wins or is killed. This is a special in 7 parts.

Also a special 2-reel Comedy.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

Why go to Egypt when the desert and its whirling bands of Bedouins beneath the Pyramids can be shown to you on the screen in "THE SHEPHERD KING." Wm. Fox sent Director Gordon Edwards with a company of technical assistants to Egypt and the Holy Land to film the famous stage play by Wright Lorimer and Arnold Reeves. Violet Merserau has the leading feminine role. Also a good Comedy.

NEWBURGH

(For last week).

The cool nights that have prevailed during the summer did much to induce sleep, which brings up the question, on which there is considerable difference of opinion, as to the proper time to get up in the morning. Of course there are different reasons why people should get out of bed at different times, but all the same it would seem that there should be some approximate standard as to the time one should leave his virtuous couch. It was once the fortune of the writer to spend a time in a farm house during the long days in June. Information came out that the farmer had been unable to find his cows in the morning, as it was not quite clear, and only for the help of his dog he would have had to wait until daylight. Upon inquiry as to why he got out so early he said that one of his neighbors had been bragging that he had his milk on the stand before anyone in the neighborhood; therefore this man's spirited little wife and daughter were called out of bed and dragged themselves to the milking yard about four o'clock in order to call the windy neighbor's bluff. Incidentally we might mention that the daughter in question got a job in a munition factory during the war and has since married a grocer, who, we understand, allows her to sleep until six a.m. The Newburgh correspondent has not had any experience in this matter that would justify him in giving an opinion, but surely some of the many correspondents of The Beaver can give us some expert information that will lead to a wise conclusion on this important subject.

The vacancies on the High and Public School staffs have been filled, and everything points to the coming year as being one of activity in the old school.

Miss Baker, of Toronto, has been holidaying with her sister, Mrs. J. W. Courtney, in the Courtney home.

Mr. and Mrs. Warner, of Kingston, visited Mr. and Mrs. Quail one day this week.

Mr. M. Vandervoort made a visit to Montreal on business.

Mr. Geo. Fairbairn, wife and family, of Potsdam, N.Y., are visiting his brother, Mr. Peter Fairbairn.

Mr. T. W. and Miss Bella Dunwoody, of Tyendinaga, spent Friday last with their uncle and aunt, T. A. and Mrs. Dunwoody.

Mrs. Earle Kulpack and family, of Kingston, are holidaying with Mrs. Kulpack's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rodgers.

Mr. Adams, of Ottawa, made a flying visit with his brother, Mr. W. W. Adams, one day this week.

The communion service on Sunday was well attended, but judging from the attendance at the Quarterly Board meeting the church is one institution that is expected to run itself.

Mr. R. T. Andrews made a flying visit to the village on Monday.

Mr. Geo. B. Paul, Mrs. Shier and family paid a visit to Northbrook on Saturday.

THOS. J. NAYLOR DIED SUDDENLY

Thomas J. Naylor, Reeve of Deseronto for ten years, from 1912 to 1921, died suddenly before 7 o'clock Monday morning in the garden of his home, of neuralgia of the heart. His death was unexpected and came as a distinct shock to his many friends in Deseronto and in all parts of the county.

Mr. Naylor had been ill since a week ago last Monday and had been doctoring for his heart. On Sunday he felt improved and on Monday morning he got up early and dressed and went out into the yard at the rear of his home. Death was almost instantaneous. Mr. Naylor was known in all parts for his connection with the theatrical business. He took up the first "Uncle Tom's Cabin" production when it offered to come through these parts and was all his life interested in the progress of the theatre. For years he operated the Naylor Theatre at Deseronto.

Thomas Naylor was one of the most popular of the municipal representatives that Deseronto has sent to the County Council. He was a member of practically every committee of the county body and would have been Warden had he returned to the County Council in January, 1922. He sat in the County Council for ten years, from 1912 to 1921. He was 56 years of age and was interested in sporting and was a judge last year at the L.Y.R.A. events in Big Bay. Had health permitted he would have gone to the L.Y.R.A. races last week at Sodus Point. Fraternally he was a member of the Masonic Order, the Orange Order and of the I.O.O.F.

He leaves his wife, one son and one daughter. He was a Conservative in politics. The funeral took place on Wednesday afternoon at Deseronto.

Mrs. Naylor is a daughter of Mrs. John Coates, and Mr. and Mrs. Naylor's many Napanee friends will regret to hear of his sudden passing.

RECEPTION AND PRESENTATION

On Thursday evening, August 7th, at the home of H. C. W. Miller, a very pleasant and interesting evening was spent by the numerous friends of Sheriff and Mrs. C. W. Vandervoort.

The friends of Switzerville, to the number of about eighty, gathered at the beautiful home of the bride's brother, and the house and spacious lawns were overflowing with the merrymakers till after midnight.

During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Vandervoort were presented with a beautiful walnut dinner wagon of elaborate design, as a slight token of the esteem held for them by their friends and neighbors with a few well chosen words for their future happiness, the Sheriff replying in his usual jovial manner.

Bounteous refreshments were served in the beautiful parlours and on the lawn, and after music and games, the jolly party broke up, wishing the Sheriff and his bride every happiness in their new home in Napanee.

Struck by Train.

B. Sager, Shannonville, farmer, was painfully injured Thursday morning, when he was struck by C.N.R. passenger train No. 29, Toronto-Montreal express, at the railway crossing two and a half miles east of Thurlow station, and evidently suffered a fracture of the left leg and the cattle as the train approached. He had apparently cleared the track, but just as the engine passed to pass, he stepped back, and the corner of the engine bumped him off the track into the ditch. Engineer Nelson A. Patterson, Belleville, immediately stopped the train, and with the fireman, Herbert Norton, hurried the man aboard. The train then proceeded to a point directly behind the Belleville General Hospital, and the man was carried through the back yard from the tracks to the hospital. In twenty minutes from the time Sager was struck he was in the hospital. Dr. M. E. Branscombe was immediately summoned and attended the injured man. When called Friday morning at the hospital, Dr. Branscombe stated that Sager was resting very comfortably. "He is suffering from severe concussion," he explained, "but examinations made reveal no broken bones."

Microscopic Writing.

Different people have different hobbies. Some people don't think much of a man or woman minus a hobby. A man named Rispin, who makes his home in Derbyshire, England, has made a hobby of minute writing and seeing how much he can write in the smallest space. He uses ordinary ink and stopping pens, and some of his cleverest efforts is compressed writing include: The Lord's Prayer eight times in one page of paper 4½ inches long that can be passed through the eye of an ordinary sewing needle; the first chapter of Genesis (more than 800 words) on a piece of paper the size of a postage stamp; and a report of the Charlesworth conspiracy case (about 9,000 words) on a postcard. Mr. Rispin regards the writing of the 9,000 words of the Charlesworth case report as his masterpiece. It took him thirty-two hours.

"Made In Ireland."

Deants in Eirin is not underatood by United States glorious eutherities. Therefore these authorities have pointed out to the Free State Government that the United States Tarif Act requires exports to be marked in English. The Free State Governmenl have in consequence notified Irish exporters to reqire stamping marks "Deants in Eirin" and substitute the English equivalent, "Made in Ireland."

MAN WHO SAVED AN ISLAND.

Notable Example of What a White Man Can Do.

From a position of starvation and misery to one of affluence, the natives of an island of the Torres Straits have been raised by the initiative and enterprise of one white man, Mr. F. W. Walker, managing director of the Papuan Industries.

The story of this notable example of what the white man can do for the backward native races of the British Empire was detailed by Mr. Walker in a paper given before the Royal Societies of Arts meeting in London.

When a missioner for the London Missionary Society some years ago, Mr. Walker came across these wretched natives, and, instead of applying for Government relief, as is usually done in such circumstances, "I offered to buy a boat for them out of my own money, and give them a chance to work, and thus enable them to provide for themselves and their wives and families, instead of always depending upon the Government for dules of food. They very eagerly accepted my offer, and worked with such energy that within eighteen months they not only provided for their own requirements, but they paid off the whole cost of the boat.

"The late Mr. John Douglas, a former Premier of Queensland, who held the office of Government Resident for the North at the time was so pleased with this experiment that he arranged for the whole of the working of this boat to be dealt with through his office. When it proved such a great success, he started other boats, and when the Papuan Industries, Limited, arrived on the scene conditions were ripe for further developments.

"At the present time there is a fleet of 26 native-owned boats at work, of an average value of $2,000 per boat, making a total value of over $50,000 for the fleet, all of which is owned and has been paid for by the natives out of their own earnings."

In one year 180,000 worth of produce was collected. Everything is done on a strictly business basis. All the marine produce is sold in Thursday Island by public tender, under the supervision of the Protector of Aboriginals.

Five per cent. is banked by the Government as an island fund for "lean times," and each man is rewarded according to the work he has done. The Government auditor supervises the books.

Under these conditions, explained Mr. Walker, the natives are working with surprising energy, are generously contribute to their churches, and their physique and character is improving.

Spain's Great Development.

At the present time Spain is making the greatest effort to develop her mineral resources and industries that she has made for over three hundred years.

The south-eastern part of the peninsula, where she grows her oranges, depends entirely for its fertility upon artificial irrigation. Yet the works on which she relies for this irrigation were constructed four hundred years ago.

The system is, of course, crude and inadequate for these days, and it has long been recognised by enlightened Spaniards that if Spain is to develop her wealth she must have an up-to-date irrigation system for her dry provinces.

It was therefore decided some time ago to establish a safe one. This is begun by building four reservoirs, which should have a total storage capacity of 46,000,000 million gallons. Now two of the reservoirs are already finished, while the other two are being constructed.

Part of the district to be served by this irrigation system is above the level of the river and reservoirs, and an extensive pumping plant has been put in hand. The water is raised 221 feet, and then flows for seven miles through a concrete canal, when it is pumped up another 21 feet. It flows for some miles through a second canal and reaches a third pumping station, and continues in the same way, partly by canal and partly by tunnel, to a fifth pumping station, the total lift being 267 feet.

It is a very remarkable system, one of the finest to be found in Europe, and if Spain can develop her natural resources on these lines she may yet become a rich country.

Rejuvenation.

That blood transfusion means rejuvenation is a theory advanced by Dr. H. Jaworski in a communique to the Society of Medical Practitioners. The operation, as described by Jaworski, is exceedingly simple and has been performed, he declares, in many experiments. The extraction of blood from the donor is painless, as is its injection in the veins of the patient, and the amount of blood transfused is surprisingly small—the results depending on the quality of the new blood rather than the quantity. The blood must be studied and used to this end a careful test must be made. A comparatively small dose, and the vigorous blood will permit a regeneration of the cells of the patient's age stamp; and a report of the operation have worn away, it is a simple matter to repeat it. Jaworski calls the operation a "marriage of bloods."

No Escape.

Shrieks and yells of the most appalling type were issuing from the little cottage, and quite a crowd had collected. Presently, clothed in the full majesty and dignity of the law, a policeman came striding onto the scene.

"Now then," he cried gruffly, "what is all this about?"

"Please, sir," spoke up a small boy, "that's only my brother. He's crying because mama's eyesight ain't very good, and she's dead, sir."

A ghastly series of shrieks, interrupted the explanation.

"Constable, you be a very feeling little fellow," remarked the officer, wiping away a furtive tear.

"Yes, sir, he is. You see, ma's mending his trousers, and he's got them on."

THE GIRLS' CAMP

Some very nice things have been said about the Girls' Camp at Varty Lake, but we feel that a few words of appreciation should be added for those who stayed with it till the last minute, and unselfishly helped break up. A lot of hard work was necessary in taking down and packing the tents, emptying garbage cans, piling lumber, tables, benches, baggage, etc., ready for loading the trucks, and finally in lifting the same onto the trucks. Rev. Mr. Nickle and Rev. Mrs. Clarke and Bill Judson arrived early Thursday morning and very kindly assisted Mr. Babcock and the Newbargh and Napanee girls who were left, in these final tasks.

We know that some of the girls had chances to go home on Wednesday, and we extend our heartiest thanks to those who remained and gave of their best to the hard unpleasant part of camp as cheerfully as they entered into its joys.

TAMWORTH WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The monthly meeting of the Women's Institute, of Tamworth, was held in the Town Hall, on Friday, June 27th. At the conclusion of the regular business, Miss Iva M. Langton delivered a splendid address on "Keeping Fit" and "The Institute as a Factor in the Community". Her remarks were very interesting and her helpful suggestions in Institute work was much appreciated by all the ladies present. Her address was interspersed by community singing.

Although little has been heard of the doings of our Institute, we are a real live wire; at present we are making special efforts in beautifying the town, and the interest has become so keen that the enthusiasm of our members has been communicated to a few of the prominent men to the extent that they are levelling the ground around the Memorial monument, building a cement foundation for the machine guns and planting trees, hoping in the future to have a nice park, which our village may be proud of.

A beautiful lunch was served, consisting of cake, sandwiches and lemonade, which brought a pleasant afternoon to a close.

A RUBBER-BUNNING ROMANCE.

How a Great British Industry Was Founded.

"The first actual seeds of the rubber tree to be brought to Britain from South American were loaded by stealth in a small steamer under the nose of a gunboat which would have blown us out of the water had her commander suspected what we were doing!"

Sir Henry Wickham, the veteran explorer and pioneer of the rubber-planting industry, who celebrated his eighteith birthday recently, thus summarized the climax in a series of hazardous adventures which ended in the establishment of one of the greatest and most important industries in the world—the rubber industry, without which present-day motoring would be impossible.

Not one person in ten realizes today that rubber tyres were unknown and unthought of fifty years ago—or that in 1770 rubber itself was regarded as such a curiosity that a square half-inch was sold for 75 cents.

Though rubber, one of the staple industries of the world, was discovered more than four hundred years ago, Sir Henry Wickham was the first man to bring back from the virgin forests the actual seeds of the rubber tree.

Rubber had previously been secured from tapping trees haphazard in the depths of the jungle. Sir Henry Wickham made it possible to cultivate it like so many rows of cabbages. But for his enterprise rubber tyres, and in consequence motoring, would never have been possible.

Sir Henry Wickham, with flowing white cavalry moustache and huge, square shoulders, is a most picturesque figure. "My working acquaintance with the tropical American rubber forest trees stretches back into the 'sixties," he said, "but I was, at that time, as one before my time —as one crying in the wilderness. Dead weight of inertia, not to say opposition prevailed. The idea of cultivating a 'jungle forest tree' was looked on as not less than visionary. Fortunately Sir Joseph Hooker, of Kew, had for some time been trying to introduce the tree to the Government of India.

"A commission was then granted to me by the Indian Government for the introduction of the tree which produced the true rubber of commerce. I had meantime, however, turned to planting on my own account near Santarem.

"Then occurred one of those chances which a man has to take at top tide or lose for ever. The startling news came that the Amazonees, the first of the new line of steamships from Liverpool, had been abandoned left on the captain's hands without a stick of cargo for the return journey.

"I determined to plunge for it. I had no cash on hand, but the soul was even then ripening on the trees in the high forest. I knew, however, that the captain was in a fix, so I wrote to him boldly chartering the ship on behalf of the Government.

"There was no time to lose. Hurriedly I took an Indian canoe, and then, leaving it, made for the high forest. Working with as many Indians as I could assemble, I daily ranged the forest, packing on our backs as heavy baskets of seed as we could carry. I was working against time, and the rendezvous with the steamship Amazonees was almost on top of me. But finally we started away down stream and met the steamer.

"June, 1876, was a time of commotion at Kew. A fortnight later the glasshouses showed 7,000 new of young plants. Discussion followed at the India Office about their disposal. First Burma was suggested, but finally the seedlings were sent to Ceylon. And that is how it began."

Wealth From Waste.

There are enormous sources of wealth in the by-products of almost every industry, though few people realize this or the extent to which such potential wealth is actually utilized.

Take, for example, wool. The grease and dirt which are washed out of this are full of potash and potash salts. In the wool-scouring factories of France and Belgium these "by-products" are extracted from the water in which the wool is washed and produce profits running into thousands of dollars.

Coal-tar products, too, are perfect gold mines in the matter of by-products. Bones, blood, grease, hair, fat are turned out transformed into useful articles by chemical and other processes.

Talking of gold mines, one of the most important of the chemical by-products of the slaughter-house, cyanide of potassium, is actually used in mining to take the gold out of ground quartz.

Words We Have Clipped.

A few years ago a music-hall comedian made a great hit by clipping familiar words, and we still hear him imitated in colloquial conversation. People say "impos" for impossible, "bis" for business, and "pash" for passion.

But such clipped words are not destined to appear in any dictionary, and we must go back much farther in the history of words to find that when we say, "He led the van," we mean the "vanguard"; when we speak of a pair of van horses, we mean "caravan"; when we retire to the "drawing-room," we ought to say the withdrawing-room; when we talk of a "hobby" we refer to riding a "hobby-horse"; when we talk of sport we mean "disport," or "tending" we mean "attending," or a "cute" lawyer we mean acute, and of a "still" we mean a distillery.

So Romantic.

Mary: "'E's so romantic! Whenever 'e speaks to me 'e starts, 'Fair lady.'"

Bert: "Oh, that's force of 'abit. 'E used to be a bus conductor."

Not Coming, But Here.

Makes Breathing Easy.—The constriction of the air passages and the struggle for breath, too familiar evidence of astmmatic trouble, cannot daunt Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. This is the famous remedy which is known far and wide for its complete effectiveness even under very severe conditions. It is no untried, experimental preparation, but one with many years of strong service behind it. Buy it from your nearest dealer.

BOUGHT AND PAID FOR

A New England horse dealer sold a horse to an expressman who returned in a day or two saying he was not quite satisfied with his deal. Being asked the reason for his dissatisfaction, he replied, "There's only one thing I don't like about this mare. She won't hold up her head."

"Oh, that's only her silly pride," explained the horse dealer, "she will when she's fully paid for."

IN MEMORIAM.

In sad and loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mrs. John Simmons, Camden East, who departed this life August 6th, 1921.

Just three years ago since grandmother
Left this world of toil and care,
Some day in the unknown future
We shall join dear grandmother there,
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore,
Till God called her home to suffer no more ;
Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days.
In our hearts thy memory lingers,
As dawns another year,
In the lonely hours of thinking,
Oftimes you seem very near.
Sadly missed by her grandchildren.
Mr. and Mrs. Roy Samson.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, James McKittrick, who passed away August 16th, 1921.

From our happy home and circle,
God has taken one we loved,
Bore away from sin and sorrow
To a better home above.
The day brings back our memories
To our dear one gone to rest,
There is no link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
His Loving Wife and Children.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear father, Alvin Irvine Allison, who died August 2nd, 1923.

CONWAY WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The July meeting took place on July 8th, at the home of Mrs. Edward Cooper, Conway. Following the opening ode and the Lord's Prayer, Rev. Mr. Neal gave an address, entitled "Prayers." Also Mrs. A. P. Young gave an interesting and instructive address on "Simple desserts for warm weather". The next item of interest was the reading of current events by Mrs. J. Young. The Secretary gave the minutes of June meeting, then a vote of thanks was given to Mr. Neal for his splendid address. The meeting closed with the National Anthem, and the hostess served a dainty lunch to the large number of ladies and visitors present.

The August meeting of Conway Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. J. Spearing, and took the form of an open air picnic on the lawn. About twenty-five ladies gathered for this meeting. Mrs. Spearing, who is President, opened the meeting as usual with the opening ode, followed by the Lord's Prayer. The committee, who were appointed to canvass for new members, were not all present, but those who were present reported a good showing of new members.

Then the serving of a lunch was discussed for the rural school fair, at Sillsville. It was decided to hold a booth by the Conway's Women's Institute, and sell well filled lunch boxes to all those present who were looking for something good to eat. Also to serve lemonade. In the matter of prizes, it must not be forgotten that the Conway Women's Institute is giving the following prizes at this School Fair:

1. $3.00 in cash for best writing.
2. $3.00 in cash for the best speech in the Public Speaking Contest, the speech to last not longer than five minutes.
3. $3.00 in cash for the best sight reading.

These prizes include pupils of all ages and in all classes, but only in those schools in which the Conway Women's Institute is interested.

Following the discussion of the School Fair lunch, Mrs. J. C. Pickett read a card of thanks to the Institute for the gift of beautiful cut flowers sent to her sister, Mrs. Archie Brown, during her recent illness.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

All gathered around to partake of the goodies. Cloths were spread on the ground and everyone did justice to the ample supply provided by the members.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. N. Galt, and the members hope to have a lady present who will give a temperance address. This meeting will be held on September 9th.

COLEBROOK

The Village of Colebrook was visited by a disastrous fire on August 3rd, started from spontaneous combustion in one of Mr. T. Keyes' barns adjoining drive house and house, burning three barns and house, on which he only had small insurance. The few people that were on the scene worked faithfully in trying to save the stuff, and got out most of his household effects and some of the goods. Fred Garrison was first to see it and made the alarm. As soon as he did Mr. Keyes ran to his telephone to call for help, but as Central was locked up, could not get any assistance, and as John Curle was visiting Mr. Ball, he jumped in his car and went to Yarker to get what help he could. Mr. Ball, who has been living next door to Mr. Keyes for only a couple of months, was the loser of his barn and house. There was no insurance on his barn nor house contents, and as he had just purchased the house from Mr. Kitchen, he only had the insurance transferred to him as Mr. Kitchen had had it, but was going to get his contents insured when it ran out. They worked faithfully and got out nearly all the contents. Thirteen cord of hard stovewood was burned in the woodshed, and all the cooking utensils and dishes in the kitchen cupboard, but all were lucky to get out safe. Miss Anna Grey lost her barn and contents, on which was a small insurance. The fire caught on several roofs in the vilage. The Kingston Fire Brigade came, but the fire was almost under control, as someone thoughtfully broke in the telephone office and got a message through. Mr. Keyes has been very poorly since the fire from the shock. We hope to see he and Mr. Ball build again on their nice lots, as Mr. Keyes kept an up-to-date store for the farmers.—Mr. and Mrs. W. Shangraw motored to the Sand Banks on Sunday last.—A number of the villagers took in the camp meeting at Godfrey, on Sunday.—Mr. Ira Salisbury was at Varty camp, but was sent for when the fire broke out, to come and look after his own valuable buildings.—Mr. Jim Varty's house was greatly scorched, and windows broken by the heat.—Mrs. Edgar Walker and Mrs. N. Boyce gave the firemen their supper.—Colebrook is at a great loss, but it might have been worse had the wind been high.—Rev. Mr. McKenzie dismissed the Methodist church when the fire alarm was given, and he worked faithfully in helping to fight the fire.

Stinson, is sporting a new car.—Mr. and Mrs. Asselstine, of Windsor, spent a few days with his father, Mr. Oscar Asselstine.

TAMWORTH

Funeral was held on Sunday and interment made in the Methodist cemetery.—Mrs. C. Wells died on Tuesday morning last. Funeral held on Thursday, from her son's home, L. 2 W. Wells.—Mr. R. Carscallen has returned home, much improved in health.—Rev. Dr. Albert Moore will preach at the 8th Concession, Napanee, at 2.30 p.m. Sunday next.—A. Douglass and wife, Mrs. Fennerty and Miss Summerville, of Buffalo, are visiting at L. P. Wells'.—Mrs. Byron and her sister, with their daughters and their children, of Owasso, Mich., are visiting at John Hinch's.—There was a very large turnout to see the ball game on Wednesday, between Tamworth boys and Gibbards, Napanee. There were about one-thousand on the grounds, with about fifty cars that conveyed them here. The score was 3-6 in favor of Tamworth. Big cheers for Tamworth.—An A 1 motor boat for sale. TURKISH HAREM.

Is Composed of All Females of a Family.

"Polgamy was all right in Turkey when four wives or so meant four tillers of the soil, but not when they buy clothes in Paris."

So commends Miss Grace Ellison, a charming young Englishwoman who is now visiting this continent after an extended sojourn in Turkey, speaking of the changing order of things in that country.

Miss Ellison is the author of "An English Woman in a Turkish Harem," and has a book just published "An English Woman in Angora." She has spent thirteen years among "fettered" Turkish women, and what she has to say of the changed aspect of Turkish life in general is in the nature of a revelation.

"I'm afraid people have a wrong idea of what a Turkish harem really is," began Miss Ellison. "Harem comes from the Arabic, meaning 'a sacred place.' In Turkey the woman is held sacred, so aeharem is simply the woman's quarters in a house. It is a place for unprotected females. The wife of the Turk—and the average Turk nowadays has no more than one—with his aunts, sisters, cousins, children and all the female servants are quartered in the harem. No man dares enter its sacred precincts. The day when a Turk had a string of wives has passed for good. Indeed he is very much insulted if you intimate that he has more than one wife. One man I knew had ninety women in his harem. But that didn't mean ninety wives. He did have three successive wives—which by the way isn't so unusual these days—but the ninety were made up of children and relations and servants.

"Of course, up to some years ago the Turkish women were terribly boxed up. No woman was ever seen in public with her husband. Once a prince was seen with his wife, but it created such a disturbance that no one else ever tried it. But in this day when the Turkish woman no longer wears a veil over her face and goes to college in Constantinople, the Turks get infuriated when you criticise their customs of years ago.

"You see, the harem arrangement comes down from Mohammed and of course anything he said is law; because a Turk's religion is part of his daily life. Mohammed believed that it was better to care for several women moderately than for one woman luxuriously.

"The Turkish women have lifted their veils, but still cover their beautiful hair. They follow the example of the old prophets. They think the hair head is too intimate. It is just like the Japanese women blackening their teeth to appear less attractive to men. This custom of covering the head is like our custom of never entering a church without some covering on the head.

"Every Turkish woman I have met has been most charming, though always reticent. She is more cultured than educated, but in the last few years she has become very responsive to education. The college at Constantinople is crowded with eager young women learning the English language. Halide Edib is the Turkey's representative woman writer. She speaks several foreign languages, writes in English and is a brilliant conversationalist. She is now touring America, lecturing on the Turkish question.

"So many people, the British Consul at-Smyrna included, couldn't understand how an unconverted white man could penetrate Turkey. All the British could say when I told him was, 'What will become of you? How will you get home safe?' While I was in Constantinople I married a Turkish foreigner, looking at me intently. My hair was curly then and I wore it well over my ears. Finally the man came over to me and said, 'So your ears are pierced, too.' I was found out then. He thought I was wearing my hair puffed out at the sides to cover the places where the rings were before my Turkish 'friends' had lopped them off. I had to show them to him to convince him that I was still all there."

"Howlers."

Some "howlers" perpetrated by English school boys:—

In 1620 the Pilgrims crossed the ocean, which is known as the Pilgrims' Progress.

Queen Elizabeth rode through Coventry with nothing on, and Raliegh offered her his cloak.

Doldrums are army rations of spirits.

Charles I. was going to marry the Infanta of Spain. He went to see her and Shakespeare came to see her again.

Account of the Feudal System: William the Conquerer was thrown from his horse and wounded in the feudal system, and died of it.

The phrase, "Conspicuous by its absence," was used by Tacitus, the Roman historian.

Q. Where do we find mangoes? A. Where women grow.

"Flance" means a bottle or flask. When the Italian glassblowers do'ected Rave to Rave was they were blowing they made an ordinary bottle but they called it "flance" for short.

The words "Emerald Isle," as applied to Ireland, were first used by Dr. Drennan in a poem entitled "Erin."

In Holland people made the most of water power to drive their wind-mills.

A Faded Photograph.

A faded photograph showing a bridal party in their wedding outfit and bearing a hardly decipherable subject. According to Mexican law the marriage certificate upon which Mr. and Mrs. Daniel McGee of Hartford, were permitted to enter the United States when they arrived on the Mexican-American liner Yoro from Central American ports.

McGee, a construction engineer, was married a month ago in Costa Rica to Miss Amy Lefrane, a British subject. According to Mexican wedding certificates are 50c issued in Costa Rica, but a record is kept for official use.

THE MAN IN THE MOON.

One of the Oldest Superstitution In the World.

We all feel very wise nowadays about the moon, and smile indulgently as we relate tales of its lonely old male inhabitant to the young.

Our wisdom, based as it is upon maps and photographs and scientific theories, is however, of very recent origin, says Tit-Bits. The moon for generations was the greatest mystery of mankind—more even than the sun. When Galileo, in 1609, first turned his telescope upon the moon, it created throughout Europe a much greater sensation than did Copernicus when he discovered America.

Till then the scientific men had believed in Aristotle's theory, that the moon is a perfectly smooth and round body, its markings being the continents of the world, reflected as in a mirror.

Everyone else explained the mysterious marks with myths. There is nothing more remarkable in history than the strange resemblances which exist between the explanations given by different races.

Almost all of them interpreted the marks as being a man carrying a bundle of wood. Furthermore, they all seemed to regard him as one who, on account of a crime, was condemned to eternal isolation on the moon. He was, indeed, a horrible example to young and old alike.

In European countries the story generally had a so-called Biblical significance. In England, it was Moses who found a man gathering sticks on the Sabbath, and expelled him to the moon. The reference seems to be to a passage in the fifteenth book of Numbers, but the resemblance is only slight.

In France, the man in the moon is one other than Judas Iscariot, and the wood a load which he must always carry as a punishment.

The earliest English record appears in the writings of a St. Albans monk. It is a slight variation of the usual theme:—

A rustic in the moon,
Whose burden weighs him down.
This changeless truth reveals,
He profits not who steals.

The Teutonic version dealt with a peasant who was reprimanded by an angel for gathering faggots on a Sunday. He replied, "Sunday on earth, or Monday in heaven, it is all the same to me." For this, he was sent to an eternal moon-day in heaven.

A unique version is the Scandinavian. It attracted the attention of the late Rev. Baring-Gould, who traced it to its origin: In Norway, not only was there a man in the moon, but some other of the marks were deciphered as a woman. Their names were respectively Hjuki (pronounced Juki) and Bil.

The myth is that Hjuki disappeared, or was stolen by Bil. When the moon was in this phase, there was supposed to be much rain. In our nursery rhyme, Hjuki becomes Jack, Bil becomes Jill, and the rain is nothing more than the upsetting of a pail of water.

In certain races the man in the moon, far from being a criminal, is a being who, on account of great wisdom, was transferred to the moon, from which he could see all.

To the Chinese he is Yue-tsze, who arranges all marriages. The medicine men of the old Red Indian tribes reserved their power by departing into the middle of a lake and holding consultation with the man in the moon.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Customer (after long waiting) :—Waiter, have you ever been to the Zoo?

Waiter :—"No, sir."

"Well, you ought to go. You would enjoy seeing the lobsters white past."

Tommy had had three pieces of cake and wanted a fourth. "Have you had enough, sonny?" asked his mother, "what happened to the little boy who ate too much cake?" The sent off Mary.

"That wasn't because he ate too much cake," said Tommy. "That was because there wasn't enough boy."

Auntie had come to stay, and little Mary, with some pride, was showing a jumper she had knitted herself. "And see the little piece make this all by herself?" asked auntie.

"Nearly, auntie—all but the bottom and the little piece make this all by herself?" asked auntie.

"Nearly, auntie—all but the bottom and part of the sleeves," corrected Mary with much honesty.

The worms that infest children from their birth are of two kinds, those that find lodgement in the stomach and those that are found in the intestines. The latter are the most destructive as they sap the life blood of the victim and if not immediately dislodged will work havoc therein. Miller's Worm Powders dislodge both kinds and while expelling them from the system serve to repair the damage they have caused.

Marjorie, aged six, shocked her mother by picking up the saucer in which she had left her cereal, turning it upside down and licking it vigorously with her little pink tongue.

"Why, Marjorie, I observed her mother, "What disgraceful manners! Whom have you ever seen doing that?"

"Dops," said Marjorie curtly.

A Household Medicine.—They that are acquainted with the sterling properties of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the treatment of many ailments would not be without it in the house. It is truly a household medicine and for it is effective in dealing with many ordinary complaints of the household and neighbors. Keep it at hand, as the call for it may come most unexpectedly.

A soldier was put on guard for the first time. He was told to challenge all the sentries that came near.

"Halt!" he cried in a threatening tone.

"Who are you ?"

"The officer of the day," was the reply.

The officer advanced, but before he had gone a dozen steps the sentry again cried "Halt!"

"This is the second time you have halted me," cried the officer. "What are you going to do next?"

"I'm going to stand still what I am going to do. My orders are to call 'Halt' three times and then shoot."

Easy Pickings.

An amazing story of a laborer's wife, who carried on a trading business with a draper to the extent of £4,750 was told in Dunfermline, Scotland, Sheriff Court when the woman was sentenced to prison on pleading guilty to charges of obtaining money by false pretences. She pretended to act as agent for the draper, and received goods on behalf of fictitious customers, appropriating the articles to her own use and failing to pay for them. Her story was that she had a daughter who was an heiress, having been left a large sum of money, and also that a wealthy friend from India was coming to reside with her.

A Story of Masonry

Recently there came from the press, under the sponsorship of the Supreme Council, Southern Jurisdiction United States, the seventh edition of "The Builders, a Story and Study of Masonry," by Joseph Fort Newton. Litt. D., of Iowa City and later of Iowa. If it may seem that nothing new can be written of so ancient an institution as Masonry, it might also seem that nothing interesting or inspiring could be said or written of many hackneyed old and never-ending search for a true conception of man's relationship to his fellow-men and to his Creator. It is because through understanding and inspiration a clearer and better vision is being gained that the student, building on the experiences of the past, both of success and failure is able to glimpse new light, hailed as a prophetic gleam of the effulgence which shall sometime dissipate the last vestige of the darkness of superstition and ignorance. The present volume reveals a deep and conscientious study of the legends, traditions and written record of the growth of Masonry from the days of civilization to the year in which it was compiled, says a reviewer in the Christian Science Monitor:

There is no dearth of material from which to draw, for since early in the eighteenth century both the champions and opponents of Masonry have written prolifically upon the subject. But the story of the survival and growth of the craft since the years even preceding the building of King Solomon's Temple, stripped of its fantastic and substantive prettations, is simple enough and convincing enough to hold the interest of the student as well as the novice. As one reads it is made plain that the ancient builders, who worked with stone and mortar, laying of their plane upon the trestle board and the triangle, squares and circles, surely gained a conception of the high mystical significance of these tools. To them it was revealed that man's real home was not built with bricks and stone, but is a "house not built with hands." Of this house the author says:—

"Slowly its rises, fashioned of the thoughts, hopes, prayers, dreams and righteous acts of devout and true men; built of their best and truest truth, their love of God, and their loyalty to one another. They are at work when the Masons, laying aside their stones, became workmen of another kind. They have been more than lore, but using truths for tools and dreams for designs, uplifting such a temple as Plato planned of decorating with his visions of the august allegiance of the soul to God."

At first reading one fact must inevitably be impressed. It is that Dr. Newton, apparently with conscious freedom, discusses quite fully what, to the initiate and to the world at large, Masons have been long regarded as the "secrets" of Masonry. But as Masonry has been before more than by lore, but using truths for tools and dreams for designs, uplifting such a temple as Plato planned of decorating with his visions of the august allegiance of the soul to God."

"There is a common notion that Masonry is a secret society, and this idea is due to the care with which it used in its initiations, and the signs and grips by which its members are known to each other. Thus it has come to pass that the main aims of the order are assumed to be a secret policy of teaching, whereas its one great secret is that it has no secret. When all men practice the simple precepts, the innocent secrets of Masonry will be laid bare, its mission accomplished, and its labor done.

Dr. Newton observes that there are no more valid arguments against a great-spirited social Justice than this—that men will not. "Indolence, ingnuity, greed, injustice, meanness of spirit, the aggressiveness of selfishness, and above all, jealousy—these are the real obstacles that thwart the nobler aspiration of humanity."

Of the "mystic ceremonies" to which reference has been made, Dr. Newton has endeavored, and quite satisfactorily, to answer for himself and for the members of the craft, as to what they mean, and why they are. He says:

"When he can look out over the rivers, the hills, and the far horizon with a new understanding of his own littleness in the vast scheme of things, and yet have faith, hope and courage to believe that he is made and, and into the face of the most forlorn fellow-man and see something beyond sin. When he knows how to pray, how to love, how to hope. When he has kept faith with himself, with his fellow-man, with his God; in his hand a sword for evil, in his heart a bit of a song — glad to live, but not afraid to die! Such a man has found the only real secret of Masonry, and the one that it is trying to give to all the world."

A witness, a young woman, was being examined in court.

"How old are you?" counsel asked her.

The young woman hesitated.

"Don't hesitate," said counsel, "every second makes it worse, you know."

GOING BACK TO EDEN.

People Who Want to Lead Primitive Lives.

A curious family was discovered on the outskirts of the Mississippi Jungle the other day. It was composed of a real-life "Tarzan," his wife and their baby girl.

The man had lived alone in the woods until he was over forty, when he found the woman who became his wife caught in a bear trap.

This modern Adam and Eve continued their queer life together for years. They lived on roots, wild fruit, and game. Their adventures included fights with wild beasts. They were only driven back to civilization for a time by heavy floods which made their jungle house uninhabitable.

Several couples, of late, have tried to live an absolutely simple life. As an experiment, a married couple went to live on a deserted island off the coast of Scotland.

They purposely deprived themselves of all civilized implements and their home was a cave. The experiment was a failure and each was glad to get back to powder-puffs and pipes.

Another married couple achieved fame in America by going into the woods to live just like Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden. They selected a piece of virgin wilderness, into which they plunged without clothes, although they made scanty use of apparel from tree bark and skins. Their food was composed of fish and small game which they caught with primitive snares. The experiment failed, however, through the couple's quarrelling, and ended in the divorce courts.

Cases of similar men leading primitive lives are fairly common. Perhaps the most romantic of these "wild" men is a British descendant of one of the Bounty mutineers. He divider his time between several lonely Pacific islets and "shuns all human society. Some of these islets are many miles apart, and, as he has no boat, it is believed that he swims every bit of the way when "flitting."

An American Indian boy, only nineyears old, recently distinguished himself by leaving school and plunging into the wilderness. He had no supplies of any kind, but for seventeen days he supported himself by shooting small game with his bow and arrows, which he made for himself.

There is at least one case of a white woman renouncing civilization. This was an English girl who emigrated to Australia and took a situation as cook on a farm in the bush. There she met her future husband. He was a full-blooded aborigine belonging to one of the most primitive races in the world.

The couple married and went to live in the bush, where the woman has become aboriginal in everything but color. She declares herself perfectly happy.

From time to time the sweet "Admittee" has appeared which holds that salvation lies in shunning civilization and living just as Adam did.

Meaning of Hara-Kari.

When a Japanese citizen committed suicide the other day near the United States Embassy in Tokio it looked to Western eyes like a mere bit of foolishness. It had, however, a definite purpose, a protest against Japanese could make against the recent Washington bill which practically Japanese from entering the United States.

The suicide, or hara-kiri, carried out after the ancient manner of the Samurai, is reported to have written a profound sensation through Japan. "He met his death like an ancient warrior," the Tokio chief of police is quoted as saying. "He will probably receive the honors due to a soldier who died on the battlefield."

Hara-kiri, or, as the Japanese prefer to call it, Seppuku, is not technically suicide, but it has a significance, in Japanese eyes, entirely different from that of suicide in Western countries. It rests upon a sense of honor and loyalty so profound that the individual life is held to count for nothing.

"Seppuku," said Baron Suyematsu, writing some years ago, "was in the feudal period an honorable method of committing suicide. It was unknown to the Japanese of ancient days and was a custom which grew with the ace of chivalry."

Inazo Nitobe, in "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," testifies to the same effect. "Death involving a question of honor," he says, "was considered by Bushido as a key to the solution of many complex problems. Seppuku was not a mere suicidal process. It was an institution legal and ceremonial. An invention of the Middle Ages, a process by which warriors could expiate their crimes, apologize for errors or save friends, or prove their sincerity. When enforced as a legal punishment it was performed with due ceremony. It was a refinement of self-destruction, and none could perform it without the utmost coolness of temper and composure of demeanor."

Makes a Difference.

It is told of Charles Brookfield, the well-known playwright and actor, that he once took a company to Australia, and the venture not having the success he anticipated, lost a lot of money over it. On his return he walked into the Green Room Club. There he met Gen. Grosamith, and began to tell him of his losses. "Can't understand it," said "G.G." "You people take out thousands of pounds' worth of scenery, trainloads of artists, spend money like water, and come back and say, 'It hasn't paid.' Look at me—I take nothing to America with me but a dress suit, and come back having made ten thousand pounds!" "Very likely!" retorted Brookfield, somewhat nettled. "But, remember, George: Everybody doesn't look so darned funny in a dress suit as you do!"

LADIES OUTSTRIP MEN

WOMEN OF CONGO TAKE ACTIVE PART IN GOVERNMENT.

They Have a Suffrage Movement of Their Own — Some Tribes Have Women Rulers—Are Discouraging Harems and Polygamy.

That the Colonel's Lady and Judy O'Grady are sisters under the skin, no matter what color the skin may be, is demonstrated in the reports that "this freedom" and "self-expression" have stirred the women in darkest Africa, where men are men —and most of them heathen.

"The slogan of the women is 'Me or the other woman, no longer me and the other woman' as the answer to husbands. Woman along the Belgian Congo to-day have an active voice in the Government. They have a large department of their own. Women rulers of large tribes are not unusual. They are called Mundelenesses, and their word is law. They are not only the better half, but better than half, in the scheme of thing. The women, with their new ideas, are discounting harems and polygamy." Such is the report brought back from the heart of Africa by Mrs. John A. Springer, who, as missionary from the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, has spent the last twenty years in Africa.

Mrs. Springer's adventures in the Congo regions would read well in any book dealing with the thrills of Africa, she has trekked about 20,000 miles. She was the first white woman to cross Africa, traversing it from east to west in 1906. Ten years later she made an extensive trip to the Congo River, which was then still unexplored, traveling into the jungle 900 miles beyond the railroad. In this trip she was entertained by three savage kings—Kabonge, Mukombo Mukombo and Mirasa Yamba XIV.—all noted for their cannibalism. She was the only white woman they had ever seen.

The missionary has used many strange methods of locomotion in her African journeyings. She has ridden the jungle paths on a bicycle, on a donkey, and once was then still unexplored, traveling into the jungle 900 miles beyond the railroad. In this trip she was entertained by three savage kings—Kabonge, Mukombo Mukombo and Mirasa Yamba XIV.—all noted for their cannibalism. She was the only white woman they had ever seen.

The missionary has used many strange methods of locomotion in her African journeyings. She has ridden the jungle paths on a bicycle, on a donkey, and once was then a pushcart, half wheelbarrow and half bicycle. She has been carried in a machilla, which is a swinging hammock on poles held by carriers. Fording to and fro near the mission station Mrs. Springer rides a temperamental mule. She is ready to start for America the mule ran away and the missionary had to walk thirty miles to get to the railroad station.

The advancement of the women of African tribes and remarkably, said Mrs. Springer in the New York Times, "they have moved far more rapidly than the men. Twenty years ago I found the women of my neighborhood little better than savages. But they have forged ahead and carried other elements of the community with them. Freedom and self-expression have become their birthright. Even the men are now consulted when it comes to choosing their husbands. Formerly girls were worth from $25 to $50 each, but nowadays one who has gone to school is worth $200. This is by reason of the money her suitor pays to her father for her hand.

"But the men don't put up with this system any longer. They are determined to have their wives' affections turn away from their kraals to the towns and go on their own. The women are independent after marriage, too. Recently a native said my husband a basket of peanuts. The next day he came back with the money, saying he wanted his peanuts back because his wife had not given him permission to sell them. No matter how downtrodden she may be she is never too downtrodden to have the last word. That is unless her tongue is cut out, which is still done to a wife when she is too talkative. Harems do not exist very widely any more except among chiefs, who have several hundred wives apiece. Formerly the natives had as many wives as they could afford, because this gave them practice in committing suicide. It was unknown to the Japanese of ancient days and was a custom which grew with the ace of chivalry."

Inazo Nitobe, in "Bushido, the Soul of Japan," testifies to the same effect. "Death involving a question of honor," he says, "was considered by Bushido as a key to the solution of many complex problems. Seppuku was not a mere suicidal process. It was an institution legal and ceremonial. An invention of the Middle Ages, a process by which warriors could expiate their crimes, apologize for errors or save friends, or prove their sincerity. THRILLS ON ALPINE PEAKS.

The Pope on His Mountaineering Adventures.

The Pope, as most people are no doubt aware, is a mountaineer of distinction; but the true nature of the remarkable and adventurous climbs which he has carried out in the Alps just been disclosed by the publication of a book, "Climbs on Alpine Peaks," by Father Unwin, in which his holiness relates some of his exploits.

On one occasion the Pope and his party had to spend two nights out on the mountains. The occasion was the ascent of Monte Rosa, in the Alps, from the Italian side.

On the journey up the mountainside one of the party lost his axe. He was afterwards obliged to use his hands on the cold rocks and the snow, with the result that his gloves were soon torn to pieces and his hands were so frostbitten that it was many months before he was cured.

After reaching the summit the climbers were forced to spend the night on a projecting rock, and the Pope declares:

"The spot where we were was not, indeed, one of the most comfortable. On the other hand, it was perfectly safe for anyone who was reasonably sure of himself, though it was extremely small. Anyone slitting down found his feet dangling in space; we had, however, every facility for stamping them, provided we were careful not to lose our balance. The cold was intense; without being able to reckon the exact degree, I may say that our coffee was frozen hard, and our wine and our eggs resembled it, in that they were neither respectively drinkable not eatable."

Before the party succeeded in reaching safety they had to spend the following night also on the mountain-side. The Pope, in his connection, declares that whole nights have been passed with impunity on the very summit of the Matterhorn, and even on Mont Blanc.

It was in the course of this expedition that they visited the cold-mines at Pestarena, which are worked by British capital.

"It is noteworthy," the author remarks, "how the English, with their practical ability and characteristic courage, contrive to employ profitably considerable capital in that outlying part of Italy. I say considerable capital, not only on account of the importance of the works, but also the number of men employed, but also to the praise of the English, be it said because of the liberality with which they ensure the safety of our workmen."

The Pope, by the way, when a small boy, first heard the English language spoken on the Alps, and the party consisted of a Church of England clergyman and his family. He was immediately fascinated with the sound of the strange language. He had just been reading Milton's Paradise Lost in an Italian version, and soon made up his mind to learn the English language. He has since read great masterpiece of literature in the original.

The author also describes his conquest of the Matterhorn and Mont Blanc, and adds that mountaineering is only beneficial, but under every question of prudence and of a due regard for love of nature and her most secret beauties.

Perhaps the most frequent complaint with mountaineers, especially is frost-bite, and the Pope gives the principal points of the treatment. Which, he says, is afterwards rubbing with snow and compresses of spirits of camphor, followed by rubbing with cotton-wool and linola-rubber.

Another form of treatment which is often adopted by doctors in Alpine centers, and which is usually successful, was seen by the Pope to effect a complete cure in the case of a friend, though it was applied after the days' delay and though the patient's condition was very serious. This treatment consists of continual compresses of spirits of camphor, as well as vasaline and balm of cold salt water.

Knotty Legal Problem.

A British lawyer in Brazil is trying to unravel a most unusual family tangle. A Brazilian multi-millionaire died and left his property to dollars to the first grandchild born in his family. The first to arrive were twins, and the matter now stands this. Two doctors, who were in attendance, disagree, one contending the mother is right, the other supporting the father. The final decision is to be left to the referee, who is now involved. If his decision is referred to, the matter will be kept out of the Brazilian courts, but there are few who believe that it will escape the lower feels dissatisfied in the future. The suggestions that the inheritance be divided equally between the twins is firmly refused by both parents.

Hospital for Animals.

The University of Philadelphia has a hospital fully equipped for the treatment of diseases of animals of all sizes. The operating table can handle horses and cattle. The patients are dieted and treated the same as human beings in their own hospitals. Only on a bigger scale. It takes a quart of chloroform to get a horse under, a sleep ready for an operation. Operations are not the only part of the hospital's work, for horses, cows, pigs, mules, and dogs are cared for influenza, faults of breathing, indigestion, nervous breakdown, skin affections, and get like ailments that afflict man. It is here that vivisection is made to be of use to the animals themselves, and it is said that through the knowledge thus acquired thousands of valuable animals have had their lives prolonged to their natural span instead of being destroyed after an accident.

Henry E. Buermeyer, who lived to be eighty-four years old, held more than 50 medals which he had won in athletic events.

Pains in Back and Legs Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Ford, Ontario.—"I had a nervous break-down, as it is called, with severe pains in my back and legs, and with fainting spells which left me very weak. I was nervous and could not sleep nor eat as I should and spent much time in bed. I was in this state, more or less, for over two years before I took E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me by my neighbor. Before I had taken five doses I was sitting up in bed, and when the first bottle was taken I was out of bed and able to walk around the house. Now I am entirely well and feel obliged to give some one to look after my home for me. I am also a mother of three children. I am now able to look after my household duties and have been

Save Fuel in Cooking

The illustration shows an interesting test you should try in your own kitchen. It proves the superiority of good enameled ware for cooking purposes. Take an SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan, and a sauce pan of equal size made of aluminum, tin or other metal. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Set both sauce pans over the fire. The water in the SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan will be boiling merrily in about five minutes, while the water in the all-metal sauce pan will come to the boil in about eight minutes—three minutes longer. Save fuel in cooking. Use

Wonderful Finds In Holy Lands

As a repository of ancient secrets the Holy Land is challenging Egypt for a share of world attention, for excavations at Beth Shean, fifty miles north of Jerusalem, have exposed five layers of earth, each of which contains relics of a separate civilization.

Five civilizations, one upon the other, have been laid bare to the eyes of the archaeologists as a result of the work done in the last two years by the University of Pennsylvania unit, under the direction of Dr. Clarence S. Fisher.

"There is every reason to believe that we shall be able to go back as far as the Stone Age," says Dr. Fisher, who has just returned to America from Palestine. "Layer by layer we shall trace each civilization. The hill where we have been digging occupies a peculiar position; it overlooks the whole surrounding country, and from earliest times was used as a habitation and a stronghold. Conqueror after conqueror planted his armies there. Past the hill runs the road where went all the travel from Syria and Mesopotamia to Egypt, following the River Jordan south toward Suez and the Nile. There is no other place that I know of where so many peoples, so many civilizations, passed at one time or another has passed through this Palestine gateway."

Commanding the Valley of Armageddon, the hill-site now giving up its hidden relics of Arabic, Byzantine, Roman, Greek and Egyptian occupation has long been a position against which hammered the forces of east and west. Here the Pharaohs of Egypt three thousand years ago garnered the fruits of their toiling Syrian vassals; here a thousand years later, David, the psalm singer vanquished the armies of Saul, and here, in 1918, Allenby's Britons routed the Turkish forces.

The site of Beth Shean or Beisan as the modern village is called, once formed part of the private property of the Sultan. Under the Law of Antiquities, passed in 1920, this region was opened up by the British administration to archaeological units, and it was at this time that the University of Pennsylvania sent its staff of workers under Dr. Fisher to explore it.

Dr. Fisher brought back, with other relics to be placed in the new wing of the Philadelphia Museum, a stele of Ramesses the Great, found in one of the rooms of the Egyptian fortress just unearthed at Beth Shean. This, in his opinion, is the most important find, as the writing on the eight-foot stone gives new light concerning the journeys of Ramesses and his son Merenptah from Egypt to their Syrian possessions. On the Ramesean stele are the words, "I used the Asiatics on the building of my city."

"These words," says Dr. Fisher, "refer to the city this Pharaoh built in Egypt, and are, I believe, the first reference to the Israelites found on any Egyptian document.

"Two steles, one of Seti I., the other of Ramses, were found side by side on heavy stone foundations in the Egyptian fortress that we are now excavating. The shape of the room had been changed to make a place for the Ramesean monument, which was evidently erected at a much later date. Both steles were about eight feet high and lay on their sides when found. The writing on the Seti stele was the usual laudatory eulogy to the great king, without reference to specific achievement, and the stone was similar to the other Seti ones found in Syria last year. These monuments were only placed to mark successful conquest or brave deeds, and where they are found it is certain some important event took place.

"The fortress shows marks of heavy fighting. Great conflict went on there. It is quite likely that here Saul and his army were defeated by David, although we have not yet found definite proof of it. It was the logical place for the armies to meet."

It was before 1918 that Dr. Fisher, studying the ground through the Near East for an excavating site that might throw the most light on early civilization, was attracted by the hill north of Jerusalem.

"We were unable to start, work until 1921, when Great Britain received a mandate over Palestine. The whole region had been owned by the Turks. In our two years of work we have found on this one site the remains of Arabic, Byzantine, Roman, Greek and Egyptian influences. A shaft sunk thirty-five feet the first year gives us some idea of what the hill will yield as it is leveled off. At the bottom of the shaft we found a Hyksos grave, containing the skeleton of a young woman. Since the Egyptians drove this people out of Egypt and up into Syria as early as 2,000 B.C., there should be other historical finds about this period.

Crime in Washington.

Prohibition has failed to put an end to crime in Washington, it is shown by statistics compiled by police officials.

The compilation of arrests on all charges from 1910 to 1923 also shows that, although Washington's population has increased only 22.17 per cent. since 1910, arrests in 1923 for serious crimes showed an increase of 107.17 per cent. over those in 1910. Crimes against morality increased, as did murder, manslaughter and thievery.

Arrests for violation of the prohibition laws themselves last year totalled 13,040. Arrests for drunkenness, which dropped considerably in 1918, have gone steadily upward since, then, and last year numbered 8,266, an increase of 121.50 per cent. over the arrests made in 1910.

TRAGIC RIVERS.

Some Have Caused the Death of Thousands.

The recent floods in France have brought to mind the ravages which, even in modern times, and in highly developed countries, can be wrought when a great river overflows its banks.

But the damage done by the Seine and other great French rivers on such occasions is not very considerable as compared with the havoc caused by other streams in similar circumstances.

The most tragical river in the world is the Hoang-ho, or Yellow river, which is known throughout the Celestial Empire as China's sorrow. Earthquakes and eruptions claim their victims in tens of thousands occasionally, but this river thinks nothing of drowning several millions of human beings in one fell flood.

Not many years ago, when the Hoang-ho devastated an area as large as England, its victims were estimated at ten millions. In historic times it has changed its mouth eleven times, and its present outlet is three hundred miles away from its former one.

Another river of tragedy is the Mississippi, which also has a tendency to alter its course and run amok across field and farm and city. In the great plain is very flat, and when it overflows it overflows a long way, carrying stock in vast numbers to feed the sharks in the Gulf of Mexico. As time goes on, its banks are being more and more strengthened; but when a big river takes matters into its own hands, human devices are apt to look foolish!

The Nile is a river of blessing, and a river of blight. If it comes up to scratch and does its duty it is worth tens of millions to Egypt and mankind; but if fails—as it has many times done in history—that failure means famine. Since Britain has come to the rescue, however, and built the Assuan Dam to conserve and regulate the water, so that the river does not wash the land away one year and leave it barren the next, the Nile has done nothing to justify its former sinister reputation. But in the past its failure to function normally has cost millions of lives.

To Pick Up Insect's Call.

An electrical adviser of the Westinghouse Electrical Company has invented a new microphone which will make audible sound waves that have never been heard before, in somewhat the same way that electro-magnetic light waves, which the eye never sees, are detected.

Some light waves are too short to be seen by the eye, and some sound waves are too short—and make too shrill a sound—to be heard by the ear. The squeak of a bat, though it can be heard by young people, can seldom be heard by people over forty because it is too shrill for them; but there are many other sounds, sounds made by insects, which are too shrill for anyone to hear.

The Westinghouse microphone, made by Dr. Phillips Thomas, is said to be able to make these very short sound waves audible.

The human ear cannot take in anything above 28,000 vibrations a second. Dogs can hear much higher notes than that: Sir Francis Galton had whistles made producing 84,000 vibrations a second, and used to walk through the streets of a town sounding his inaudible whistle to make the dogs turn round.

But there are other sounds besides these high sounds made by insects which are at present, perhaps, audible to insects alone. All our muscles—the muscles of the veins, the skin, the heart—are quietly thrilling or vibrating, and they do not cease when we sleep. But they are all thrilling at the very slow rate of only ten or twelve vibrations a second. The new microphone may help us to hear this curious hum of life.

Concessions in Russia.

The terms under which concessions are granted by the Soviet Government have not so far tempted the introduction on a large scale of foreign capital into Russia. The principle underlying the grant of these concessions seems to be to confine the activities of foreign groups to the more outlying parts of Russia.

The general basis of all concessions is the leasing of properties for a percentage of the gross output or turnover. A certain amount of capital is usually required to be invested in the concessions. Upon the expiration of the concession the property reverts to the state. The concessionaire is free to dispose of the products of the concession as he wishes, but in some cases the Government retains the right to purchase part of the output at prices mutually agreed upon. Russian labor legislation, social insurance and minimum wage schedules are binding on the concessionaire.

Upon the taking out of a concession a collective agreement has to be concluded with the trade union concerned to govern the conditions under which labor is to be employed on the concession. Concessions often take the form of mixed companies in which a state trust or Government department combines with a foreign group to form a company to operate a concession.

The foreign group supplies all or part of the capital, but the Russian institution retains a 50 per cent. interest in the company and the casting vote is with the chairman, who must be a Russian.—The Statist, London.

Why He Waited.

Bobby asked for a cent's worth of candy, and the proprietress, recognizing him as a neighbor's child, served him, and then handed his penny back. This was repeated for several mornings, the little fellow receiving both candy and penny. At last the proprietress thought it was getting a bit strong, so one morning she kept the penny. The little chap lingered around, and when asked why he waited, he replied: "I want my change."

STILL DEFY SPANIARDS

MOORS HAVE WAGED HOLY WAR FOR CENTURIES.

Desert Kings Still Follow In Steps of Their Ancestors — Determined to Keep Spaniards In Certain Limits In Morocco — Countless Expedition Sent Against Them.

Raisuli and Abd-el-Krim, unchallenged kings of the desert and the mountains that hem in the Spanish zone in Morocco, the two Moorish leaders whose fame has spread throughout Europe and Africa, are faithfully following in the steps of their ancestors.

For centuries Moors have waged a "Jehad," or Holy War, against the intruding infidels, and to-day the Spanish hold on the narrow strip of territory behind Melilla is less secure than ever before.

How seriously the position is regarded in official circles may be judged from the fact that there are well over 150,000 Spanish troops—well-armed and equipped for modern warfare—in the Melilla salient.

Raisuli is better known than Abd-el-Krim, as his warlike activities cover a much longer period.

He began life as a brigand — the family calling — and soon won for himself a great name as a daring plunger and a leader of men. Like all Moroccans, he is a crack shot, and audacious smuggler, a born bandit, and is as brave as a lion.

He laughed to scorn all the attempts made by the Spanish authorities to bring him to book for his lawlessness, and raided villages, convoys, and military outposts with unfailing regularity.

His predatory operations were assisted by the nature of the country, which consists of wide stretches of barren desert and lofty ranges of mountains, where none but the tribesmen can find their way. From these rocky fastnesses Raisuli led little armies to harry the Spanish garrisons and plunder the towns and hamlets, falsely secure in their proximity to the strongholds of Ceuta and Melilla.

There were arms and ammunition in plenty, for in his mountain strongholds at Tazerant in the Beni Aros mountains and the Fondak of Wadi Ras, Raisuli had gathered the spoil of many affrays with the Spaniards. Nor was he lacking in artillery, for his captures include several batteries of machine and field guns.

He met with immediate success, and soon his fame rang from the Atlas Mountains to the Pyrenees. Spanish mothers wishing to scold their children said: "Hush, or I shall give you to Raisuli!" Such was the dread of his name.

Countless expeditions were sent against him, but he bore a charmed life, and although his strongholds were captured and shelled to pieces, he always turned up again with increased prestige and power. So they had to retire to their base.

He and his men fought the flower of the Spanish army in pitched battles, and often gained victories. His personal bravery became a household word, and his power extended over the length and breadth of Morocco.

But several years of Raisuli quiet quieted down, and the Spanish military authorities, wishing to make peace with him, commenced friendly overtures. These bore good fruit, and Raisuli was acknowledged as a year and a complete pardon. It was hoped that this would see the end of the affair, and that the rebellious Moors would devote their energies to less warlike pursuits.

Raisuli gave out that he was retiring from active hostilities and declared that he would remain at peace in the mountains in a zone which the Spaniards promised not to violate.

It was hoped that he would intervene on behalf of Spain to stop the recent attack by the Riffs under Abd-el-Krim, by whom he is much respected, but up to the present he does not appear to have fulfilled expectations. If his name carried any passive, an attitude which is causing the Spanish authorities to have many anxious moments.

Abd-el-Krim has been somewhat overshadowed in the past, despite the fact that a few years ago he inflicted a crushing defeat on the Spaniards and captured hundreds of prisoners, whom he afterwards ransomed for £1,000,000. This sum was paid by Spain after long haggling.

Abd-el-Krim, at the beginning of his career, was more peaceably inclined than Raisuli, and for two years he was employed by a Spanish firm in Melilla. There he found "everything bad," and, disgusted with the treatment meted out to the Moors, fled to the mountains and joined in the war against the common enemy.

At the head of fanatical but well-trained bands of tribesmen, Abd-el-Krim would sweep down from the mountains and lay waste large areas of territory in the Spanish Protectorate. Then he would return to his home in a sheltered Atlas valley behind forbidding and almost impregnable crags.

His great success occurred in a short time ago, when he routed the Spaniards outside Melilla and almost drove them from the town.

It is now almost incredible that the Spanish army, with its tanks, machine guns, airplanes and heavy artillery, should not be able to wipe out its native opponents. Even the death-dealing inventions of modern science cannot cope with the bravery of the Moors, who are fighting not recklessly, but under the direction of a commander well versed in the art of war.

The struggle between Moor and Spaniard has lasted 1,500 years. It is destined to be interminable!

ONTARIO'S NEWEST CITY OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

Perhaps one of the most important events in the history of Oshawa took place the first four days of last week in the way of an Old Boys' Re-Union. Hundreds of Old Boys returned to the city for the occasion, and many and interesting were their comments as they spoke of the growth and development of the Baby City. Oshawa was not lacking in her welcome to her visitors. The streets and houses were decorated to the full with flags and bunting. But the most spectacular scene of all was the grand parade of Monday and Tuesday night, which took nearly two hours to pass a given point. It consisted of a display from every industry in the city, as well as many wholesale and retail concerns, headed by the largest automobile concern, the General Motors of Canada. The General Motors' exhibition consisted of over seventy cars of the firm, at the head of which was a massive float, representing fairyland and was made of masses of flowers with a large rainbow of flowers in the centre with African palms and ferns, and was cleverly planned both in color and from a standpoint of originality. The central figure in this sea of flowers was Miss Hazel Parks, of Napanee, who was chosen to represent the Corporation as a whole, in the roll of Queen of Fairyland, while all about her were the little daughters of the leading officials of the firm, as fairies, who represented the different branches of the firm, namely Cherrolet, Oakland, Olds, Cadillac, G. M. Truck, and Chevrolet. The last car in the exhibition was the finest built Cadillac sedan in which rode James Edward Bowe, "the Boxwell Baby", who won the first prize of the whole British Empire at the recent competition at Wembley.

Many other interesting features of the week were the motor cycle and excellent horse races, as well as the fireworks and Historical Pageant of Tuesday and Friday nights.

OBITUARY

Elizabeth Perkins.

On Friday, August 8th, 1924, Mrs. Elizabeth Perkins, aged 87 years, passed away in Kingston General Hospital, after an illness of several months. For many years she was a highly respected citizen of Napanee, and a faithful attendant of the Salvation Army. Nearly a year ago, owing to failing health, she went to reside in the Home for the Aged, Kingston. She leaves many friends in and around Napanee who cherish her memory as a true friend in all times of need. One sister, residing in Toronto, survives. The funeral, which was largely attended, was conducted from the Salvation Army on Sunday afternoon, thence to Riverview cemetery. The beautiful floral offerings were a tribute to the esteem in which she was held.

Oliver Crouse.

At the home of his son, at Oshawa, on July 22nd, 1924, Oliver Crouse passed peacefully away, after an illness of but a couple of weeks. He was in his 74th year, and was born in Hastings County. He spent his life in Hastings and Lennox County, until the past few years, owing to ill health, he had been with his son in Oshawa. The funeral took place on Thursday, July 24th, from his son's residence, and interment made at Union cemetery. Deceased leaves, besides his sorrowing wife, a family of ten children, five sons, George, 200 Court St., Oshawa; Samuel, California; Willoughby, Flint, Mich.; Lewis, Northport; Orval, Oshawa; and five daughters, Mrs. R. H. Cooke, Newburgh; Mrs. German, Northport; Mrs. White, Napanee; Mrs. B. McTaggart, Big River, Sask., and Miss Jessie, of Oshawa. His eldest son predeceased him two years ago. He also leaves three brothers, Daniel, Barre, Mich.; Philip, of Black Hall, Conn., and Charles, of Napanee.

Mrs. Sarah Fitchett Daly.

There passed to her eternal rest on July 22th, 1924, Mrs. Sarah Fitchett Daly, of New York City, N.Y., eldest daughter of John and Caroline Fenton Fitchett, of South Fredericksburgh, in the seventy-fifth year of her age. The remains of deceased were brought home for interment in the family plot at Sandhurst cemetery. The funeral service was private, only attended by the immediate relatives, and was held on Monday, August 4th, at St. Paul's Church, Sandhurst, at 10 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Pringle officiating. She leaves to mourn her loss three brothers, Ephraim Fitchett und John Nelson Fitchett, of Sillsville, and Hezekiah Fitchett, of Marlbank, Ont.

MAPLE LEAF INSTITUTE

The regular monthly meeting of the Maple Leaf Institute was held on Thursday, July 31st, at the Lutheran Church, a goodly number of members being present. After the usual business of the meeting, the year's work was discussed. The report of the district annual and Union picnic which was held on June 30th, at Frankford, grew was read by Mrs. John Chambers. The roll call was responded to by helpful ideas gleaned from the summer delegate's visit to us in June. The prizes were awarded in the Big Creek and Hawley schools as the pupil attaining the highest number of points in the test, which was put on last January, the teacher being the judge. The points were regularity, punctuality and tidiness of the scholars. Miss Mary Fisher won it in Big Creek school, and Master Fred Creighton in Hawley school, the first prize was an ever-sharp pencil and ribbon, and the second prize a fountain pen. These were given the two successful scholars on the last day of school. We are glad of such boys and girls to think they would take the pains in themselves to enter on this test. Hope they will not lose any of their merits in after years when there is no prize in view.

The next meeting will be a demonstration of housemaid's knee, each member bring a half dozen pieces of her own make at home. The roll call will be answered by a humorous story.

Presentations for Week of Aug. 15th to 21st

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

"PONJOLA" is a brilliant photoplay drama based on the story which ran serially in the Cosmopolitan magazine and later was for months one of the "six best sellers." It is a stirring, rapid fire romantic story of the Rhodesian gold fields.

It centres about the advedtures of a refined Englishwoman who, disgusted with her sex, masquerades as a man and endeavors to hide her identity among the hardened characters of the veldt.

Also a good Comedy.

MONDAY AND TUESDAY

A SPECIAL

Among the best pictures to be shown here this year is "THE BLIZZARD," produced by Fox from "The Story of a Country House," by Selma Lagerlof, Swedish author. The acting of Einar Hanson as the young musician caught in a reindeer stampede, and of Mary Johnson as the little girl of the wandering minstrel troupe, is superior in every respect. Also a good Comedy.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

ONE SHOW ONLY AT EIGHT O'CLOCK

A Ten-Reel Special. MARY PICKFORD in one of her latest, "LITTLE LORD FAUNTLEROY," with an all-star cast.

BASEBALL

TAMWORTH 8, GIBBARDS 5

In the play-off for the championship of the Lennox and Addington Baseball League at the Napanee Driving Park on Saturday afternoon last the boys from Tamworth won the right to enter the semi-finals in the intermediate series in the eastern district of the Ontario Baseball Amateur Association, and are to be congratulated on their baseball ability.

The game was attended by about seven hundred fans, who witnessed a good contest and certainly received their money's worth. Like the previous two contests—home and defeated games—between these two teams, the game was a pleasure to watch from a spectator's viewpoint, being unmarred at any time by unnecessary wrangling and the decisions of the umpire, Mr. Croft, of Picton, were not disputed in any instance.

Woodhouse started on the mound for Tamworth, but was taken out in the third innings after the Gibbard boys had connected for a single and three two-baggers in that frame. Up to that time he had been hit safely for five singles and four two-baggers. Keller relieved him, and pitched a splendid game throughout, Naphin, in the fourth innings, being the only batter to hit safely. The five runs gathered in by the locals were all secured off Woodhouse.

D. Fraser worked the whole game for Gibbards and while the game was lost, it certainly was not his fault, he only allowed six hits, and with good support would have made a better showing. However, to the victor belongs the spoils.

Tamworth started scoring in the first innings, one hit and two errors netting them three runs. In the second innings they again scored three times, two errors and a three-bagger by Galbraith telling the story.

Gilbards, in the third innings, made things look very interesting. With the score 6-1 against them they crossed the plate with four runs and they were then only one down. G. Johnston reached first on a hit, Naphin and D. Fraser each hit for two bases, Loucks out on first, Bentley hit for two bases, C. Fraser was caught by Ebert, Stinson reached first on an error, and H. Johnston out on first. From then on they were unable to score.

In the fifth innings Letch made the longest hit of the day, but he was thrown out at the plate in trying to stretch a three-bagger into a home run.

This is the first season for the Gibbard team in the league and they have made a splendid showing. The boys are all young and some of them new at the game. They should go a long way in baseball next season.

YARKER

Excitement ran high at Yarker on Tuesday of this week, when the Sydenham girls and the Wilton girls met in a game of softball. The Sydenham girls, however, were too fast for the Wilton girls, defeating them 14 to 4.—The Moscow baseball team lost to Wolfe Island last Saturday in a fast game played at Inverary. We understand the winners are playing Tamworth on Friday of this week at Wolfe Island.—There seems to be a great deal of sickness in our village at present. Four or five patients have been removed to Kingston General Hospital, while the others seem to be improving. — J. Tuepah and brother, Joe, have gone to Preston to undergo treatment for rheumatism.—Mrs. Mr. McKenzie has gone to his home, where he is enjoying three weeks' holidays.—Mr. White, our cheesemaker, had the misfortune to cut the ends off two of his fingers, while cutting curd at the factory.—Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Ferrier have gone to Ingersoll to spend their holidays.—Mrs. H. Walker is spending a couple of weeks in Detroit. — L. Ruttan is improving his house with a new porch.—Mrs. F. Harper, Ottawa, is visiting Mr. Harper for a few days at his camp. —The water in the river is getting very low, which, no doubt, is the cause of so much sickness.

NAPANEE FAIR AND OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

The Officers and Committees Appointed to Make the Event a Success

The time approaches for the occurrence of two great events here, rather, one might say, a great double event; the Napanee, Lennox and Addington Old Boys' Re-Union and the annual Lennox County Fair. The Re-Union is the first attempt at the kind here, yet everything points to the attempt being a credit to its sponsors. The fair, which has been under new management for a few years, has been getting better and better every year, and it is sure this year to be the best yet held.

All praise is due to the person who had the happy thought to make these two events synchronise, the citizens generally who have taken kindly to the idea will work and plan to make Sept. 9th to 12th, a most interesting and enjoyable time. The old boys and girls returning to the town and county will appreciate the efforts of the men and women behind the scheme to give their visitors a hearty and joyous welcome.

The following list of officers should be sufficient to guarantee the Re-Union being brought to a successful issue.

LETTER FROM ANOTHER "OLD BOY"

15 3rd Ave. E.
Vancouver, B.C.,
August 12th, 1924.

Mr. J. M. Simpson,
Secty. Old Boys' Re-Union,
Napanee, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Your circular announcement of the Re-Union of the Old Boys and Girls to be held in Napanee in September, to hand some little time ago. I am an old Napanee boy, having spent thirty-two years in the town, and I sure would like to be with you, but as far as I can see now, I feel sure I shall not be able to be there. You will find enclosed a small donation, $5.00, as I am proud to have the opportunity of putting my hand to the wheel in this good work.

I first struck Napanee the 1st of August, 1874, and thought then it was a fine town, and just when I had made up my mind to end my days there, I was called away. When I was there last May I was surprised and greatly pleased at the appearance of the town. I never saw it look so nice before, and I am sure that when the boys and girls come home in September, they will look with surprise. Trusting you will have fine weather, and one and all have a grand, jolly good time, with kindest and best to all my old friends in and around Napanee, I remain,

Sincerely yours,
JAS. A. GARRATT.

NEWBURGH

Through carelessness or stupidity, we failed to notice that there would be no issue of the Beaver on the 8th, so sent our budget on as usual, and it appeared a week late, and not wishing to be deprived of the holiday we let it go at that.

Naturally in a rushing town like ours, a lot of things have passed, beyond recall, so we will have to content ourselves with current events.

The one outstanding event this week is the death of Rev. Mr. Gandier. Mr. Gandier had been an invalid for over three years, being practically helpless the greater part of that time. While his wife family bore a share, the burden of his care fell on his youngest daughter, Lillith, who gave herself up to the performance of that duty.

Mr. Gandier spent thirty-eight years in the active ministry, nineteen years at Fort Coulouge, in Quebec, and nineteen years in Newburgh. During his student days he occupied some hard fields doing home mission work, and he and his faithful wife spent many strenuous days in pursuit of the work that lay very near their hearts. Those pioneer days brought much of trial and hardships, but they were faced with simple faith coupled with kindly sympathy and abounding hospitality for all. There has not been anyone within our knowledge who so well exemplified the model of Goldsmith's "Village Preacher", "a man he was to all the country dear, and passing rich at forty pounds a year".

Mr. McGillivery Aylesworth, barrister, of Toronto, and Mrs. Aylesworth have spent holidays with Mr. Aylesworth's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Aylesworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson, of Winnipeg, have been visiting Mr. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Bella Wilson, and other friends.

Mr. Robt. Dougan has gone to visit his daughter, Mrs. McCloud, in Winnipeg.

Mrs. Dunwoody and Miss Mitchell have gone to visit Miss Mitchell's sister, Mrs. Glen Stonehouse, and other friends in Minnesota.

Mr. Cyril Bowerman, inspector of lake vessels, at Detroit, visited his father, Mr. Daniel Bowerman, this week. The meeting between father and son was a very pleasant one, as they had not seen each other for years.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Madden and children, of Buffalo, motored from that city first of the week to visit Mr. Madden's mother and sister, Mrs. Alice Madden and Miss Lena. Their eldest daughter, Miss Hazel, will go home with them, after spending quite a long holiday with her grandmother and aunt.

Mr. Frank Breeze has his chopping mill in operation, and is turning out chop from alfalfa and other things which is altogether new in this locality.

The death occurred on Sunday afternoon of the twin son of Mr. and Mrs. Hodge, who was eight months old.

Rebekahs, Take Notice.

It is urgently requested that all members of Queen of Sheba Rebekah Lodge, No. 234, be present at the next meeting, Monday, August 25th. Important business.

Rec. Secretary.

TOWN COUNCIL

The regular meeting of the Council was held in the Council Chamber, on Monday night.

The members present were Reeve Graham, Councillors Burgess, Dunbar, Huffman, Jewell and Simpson.

Mayor MacGregor presided.

The Clerk read an acknowledgment from Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kimmerly, thanking the Council for the expression of sympathy in their late bereavement.

An agreement to rent the road roller to W. H. Harvey, Desoronto, was read. The rent is $5.00 per day, to cover a period of 80 days. It was signed by Mr. Harvey and the Corporation.

A communication was received from Mrs. W. W. Thompson, requesting assistance from Council. Referred to Poor and Sanitary Committee.

Communication from the Standard Paving Company, guaranteeing to repair the section of pavement on Dundas street, between Centre and John.

A delegation from the Old Boys' Re-Union Committee, waited on the Council.

Mr. R. R. White explained their object in coming before the Council. He said they were in need of financial assistance to make the event a successful one, and asked for a grant of $500.00.

Messrs. J. E. Robinson, J. L. Boyes, W. N. Doller and D. B. Wilson also spoke, urging the Town to assist the Committee financially.

Mr. J. L. Boyes said that Oshawa spent $1500.00 alone in decorations for their Old Boys' Re-Union, and that the Council was standing back of it. This showed a spirit of municipal patriotism. He said the Driving Park Association was lending every effort to make the affair a success, and he expected the Council to do their share, as it was something that every citizen was interested in.

Moved by Coun. Simpson, seconded by Coun. Jewell, that the Finance Committee be authorized to pay the Old Boys' Re-Union Committee a sum not exceeding $500.00, as required. Carried.

Mr. H. J. Fitzpatrick appeared before the Council and protested against what he thought an excessive assessment on the Paisley House.

He said he had spent considerable money since taking over the hotel himself in bringing it up to standard, and making it a first-class hostelry for the travelling public to stop at.

He said the assessment ($12000.00) was $200.00 more than he would sell it for, and asked the Council to place a reasonable assessment on the property.

It was decided to take favorable action in the matter.

Coun. Burgess, Chairman of Finance, submitted a report of the receipts and expenditure from January 1st to July 31st, as follows:

Revenue—Rents $87.90, License $560.00, Fines and Fees $250.50, Market $512.20, Taxes paid $297.53, Streets $1.50. Total $1589.63.

Coun. Jewell reported that the hand stand in Victoria Square Park was repainted, and he intended having the roof re-shingled.

In the matter of the defective sewer connection with Mr. F. F. Miller's property, a motion was made and carried to place it in the hands of the Street Committee, with power to act.

A By-law was passed, fixing the tax rate for 1924, at 30 mills on the dollar, scales at 5c. for less than 1000 lbs., and 1c. for 1000 lbs. or more.

JAVA'S BATIK WORKERS

NATIVES HAVE BEEN BATIKERS FOR CENTURIES.

With Them It is a Science, an Art, an Industry, a Religion, a Mystery, an Inheritance and a Treasure—Long Process, But When Completed Garment Will Last for Years for Festive Occasions.

The lovely batik work that finds uses in our blouses, hats, cushions, curtains and various house draperies, has become a craft among skilled workers in Canada. It is interesting to learn from Miss Minnie Frost, writing in "Asia," that natives of Java have been doing this lovely decorative work for centuries on centuries.

Japan and China like to embroider colors on materials; Sumatra dyes the threads and weaves them in; India stamps the material, and the South Sea Islands paint it. But with Japanese batik is a science, an art, an industry, a religion, a mystery, an inheritance and a treasure peculiar to that tropical island. Batik makers draw their design in hot wax on white cotton cloth and then color the uncovered parts of the pattern by dipping the waxed cloth again and again into vats of vegetable dye.

The Java batiker draws by letting the hot wax flow from the miniature spout of a small copper cup, or tjanting, which is fastened securely to one end of a short bamboo handle.

The Javanese batiker of modern times, no matter what her social station, insists on having only the very finest weave of English cotton. She wants a closely woven material on which she can write as if on paper, and on which the wax will form a superficial layer instead of penetrating between the threads. Having bought the goods, she tears them and hems the edges with a fine hem. She needs neither pattern nor scissors; then having hemmed the piece, she is ready to make it material or tjap.

The ripening process, which prepares the goods for absorbing the dyes, consists in soaking and drying it from five to ten times a day usually for a period of from six to twelve days. The dip used is a mixture of peanut oil or castor oil and lye made from the ashes of rice stubble. The treatment, which in one part of Java lasts as long as forty days, gives the pussy-willow velvety feeling of Java batiks and changes the original fabric, so that it no longer resembles calico but suggests the texture of silk, cotton and velvet combined. Now the batiker starches the cloth with sago, cassava or rice flour. Then she irons it and begins to lay out the design, using horizontal, vertical and diagonal guide lines applied with a stick, or merely following and crossing the goods as the pattern requires. If the design is to be repeated, the batiker, who has learned by heart, she hastes the new material on the old batik and by means of the light that shines through the two pieces of cloth or paper lays over her bamboo rod traces in wax the outline of the principal figures. The details she adds free-hand. When the drawing is complete on one side she turns the goods over and by means of the light shining through traces the design in wax on the reverse side. Thus there is no difference between the two sides.

The batik maker, even with steady application during the twelve light hours of a tropical day, must spend for many days on her pandan mat before he can hope to have the learning of fairly intricate design. Of course, she erases the pern and boils out the wax and re-waxes the pattern for every additional pure color.

In middle Java, where the most typical batiks are made, the dyeing process consists of three steps; the indigo bath, the soga bath for the warm-red brown colors and the cream tinting of the wax-free goods. The task of dyeing is as tedious a task as preparing the goods. It may take weeks. The result, however, is color that is everlasting.

Batik is a long process, but when it is finished the Javanese has a garment that after five years of constant wear will still be beautiful and, if donned only on festive days, will retain its magnificence for a lifetime. It is not unusual to see a Dutch girl in Java wearing a batik that, though it appears to be in its newborn glory, was worn by her mother and her grandmother before her!

Op Lipton's Houseboat.

The houseboat Killarney, which was used by Sir Thomas Lipton to house sailors and guard of honor for challenger, Shamrock, now is known as the "Killarney Apartments," says the New York Sun. At Jacob's famous yacht yard, City Island, it has done its bit to relieve the housing shortage, which has even extended to that remote section of the city. Two families have been living on board the Killarney and have been enjoying spacious quarters. The Killarney is about 75 feet long and 15 feet wide. Her upper deck is open except where the forward deckhouse stands, and forms an excellent playground for children.

A Gold-Plated Carriage.

Historians agree that the most valuable carriage in the world is one found in the palace of the Trianon at Versailles, that was built for Charles X of France, and under instructions to spare no pains or cost in making it fit for the regal and rather luxurious tastes that prevailed in those days, so from the tip of the pole to the hind wheels the carriage is plated with heavy gold decorations, the cost of construction then being in excess of $200,000. To-day it would be many times that sum.

ARISTOCRATS OF CRIME.

A "Fence" Runs Few Risks of Being Convicted.

The "fence"—the name by which the receiver of stolen property is known—is the aristocrat of the criminal world. If there were no "fences" there would be few thieves.

Sir Ernest Wild, K.C., once described a "fence" as a person who remained hidden in his den working like a spider in its web—running few risks and reaping most of the gains of the thief.

Most of the smart "fences" are known to the police, but the loyal support given them by those who take to them the plunder they secure makes it almost impossible for the smartest detectives to place them in the dock. For the criminal who gives a "fence" away is a marked man for the rest of his life. His name is never erased from a black list that circulates far and wide.

"Fences" are often captured are hard to convict—even when a crook turns "tall" it must be proved that stolen goods were purchased well knowing that they had been stolen. A "fence" can admit that a thief had told him that the goods had been stolen after payment had been made. The law in that respect is on their side.

Many "fences" begin life as active criminals, but soon found that work behind the scenes was safer and more profitable.

The thief who has not the confidence of a good "fence" spends most of his life in jail. Clever efforts to dispose of stolen property always lead to the dock.

There are many apparently respectable firms in dearly all the big cities of the world owned by "fences." They can buy their stock in the cheapest market. Expert hands can change the outward appearance of most articles so well that even the owners cannot recognize their own property. But where alteration means depreciation goods can be shifted abroad, for the ramifications of the receiving trade are world-wide.

The "good fence" is as loyal to the thief as the thief is loyal to him, and herein lies the secret of the safety with which the "fence" enriches himself without undue risk. Ways and means are free of looking after a thief's family when he fails by the way. When a "breadwinner" is in goal those dependent on him will not suffer, and a smart thief is sure of a cheery welcome when he returns to freedom.

"Fences" are singularly free from blackmail. The thief who shirks work and resorts to threats is soon taught a salutary lesson. His brother criminals insist on him playing the game!

Early Rising.

It is an interesting fact that the Bible narrative mentions early rising as a habit of several of its most prominent characters. Abraham, Jacob, Moses, Joshua, Gideon, Samuel, David —all are mentioned in connection with some event of importance where they rose early. With reversal of these characters the Jerusalem made by the biographer is of a personal, regular, fixed habit, not a rare occurrance, but an act repeated until it was a well known characteristic.

But in the case of Jesus Himself we find his Gospel biographers relate this habit as if it were a part of his plan of daily life.

Mark says that after a very busy night and wearying day in healing the sick, "in the morning a great while before day Jesus rose up and went out and prayed in a solitary place and there prayed." (1: 35.)

Luke says, speaking of Jesus' daily custom of public teaching in the temple, "And all the people came early in the morning to hear him." (21: 38.)

John relates the same early morning meetings in the temple courts as Jesus' habit his quiet retirement at evening to the Mount of Olives or to Bethany.

We have adopted a regular habit of night meetings, especially for evangelistic services.

But there is something distinctly different in a very early rising religious meeting, as has been felt by many young people in the days of sunrise meetings. And in the case of a single individual, experience is unanimous that habit such as Jesus had of rising early for prayer or devotion is a habit which yields wonderful results in the way of spiritual power.

It is possible that all churches now might, with great profit to ministers and people, inaugurate as many do already, early morning prayer and increase spiritual devotion and religious fervor.

Or have many of us become so habituated to night life and late rising that even Christians could not imitate their Lord by "rising early, a great while before day, to pray?"

Milk From Trees.

South America has a milk giving tree which is called the polo-de-vaca. The plant produces milk like that of a cow. It grows near the edge of rocks to the height of 100 feet, and has dry, leathery leaves. For several months of the year its foliage is not moistened by a single shower of rain. Its fruit appear enfolded in cups; but upon piercing its trunk, particularly at sunrise, there flows a rich white fluid, without odor, and of the taste and flavor of common milk. In the morning the natives visit it with bowls to carry home its milk for their children.

Rival Bards.

Dusty Rhodes, the poetical tramp, was at his usual game, and when he saw a smart old man he started to recite, "Oh, sir, you have a kindly heart, beneath your manner grand; you'll be a poor unfortunate held out a helping hand! I'm trying to get home again—to leave it cost me tears, to see my native land, to see my face for over twenty years." The kind old man replied: "Some sound advice I'll lend, so don't you start, but when you see your face for twenty years! Then go at once and wash it!"

Knew His Own Handwriting.

One of the best editorial stories ever told concerns Horace Greeley, editor of the New York Tribune, whose handwriting was so bad that only one compositor in the office could set up his copy. One day, while the super-compositor was out, a bird had flown into the office, walked into some printing ink, and then on to a number of loose sheets lying on the floor. "Why," said one of the printers, picking up a sheet, "this looks like the old man's writing." So saying, he fastened the sheets together and put them on the absent compositor's case. Presently the compositor came back and, with all eyes turned on him, picked up the sheets, and, to the amusement of the room, started setting up the supposed "copy." Presently, however, he jibbed at a word, and raised the man nearest him what it was. "How should I know?" was the reply. "You know that you alone can read the old man's writing. Better ask him." Reluctantly, the baffled compositor took the sheet to Greeley's sanctum. "Well," grunted the great man, "what is it?" It's this word, Mr. Greeley," Greeley snatched the sheet from the man's hand, looked at the alleged word, and threw himself back with a snort of disgust. "Why," he shouted, "any fool could see what it is! It's 'unconstitutional!'"

I Should Say So.

It was their honeymoon trip, and the first time they had ever been out of their native village. As they walked on the platform at the station for the guard to bundle their boxes out of the van, the young bride and bridegroom were manifestly embarrassed. Then an outside porter came up and asked: "Can I look after yer luggage for yer, mister?" The red blood mounted to the young bride's cheeks, and turning to her hubby she demanded: "Well, well, well! If ye ain't goin' to thrash him for refairin' to me like that, yo're no man, George!"

Playing Safe.

Two horse thieves were about to be hanged by a vigilance committee. The rope was swung from a bridge over a deep, swift river.

But the first horse thief got off. The noose slipped and he fell into the water and swam downstream to safety.

When the committee came to deal with the second horse thief he said cautiously, as they fixed the rope round his neck:

"For Pete's sake, gents, make sure o' the noose this time. I can't swim."

A classic essay, lately immortalised in type, is about frogs, and was written by a young Norwegian. The essay runs:

"What a wonderful bird the frog is! When he stand he sit, almost. When he hop he fly, almost. He ain't got no sense, hardly. He ain't got no tail hardly, either. When he sit he sit on what he ain't got, almost."

"What is an oyster?" the teacher asked a small boy. There was a doubtful pause, and finally came this hopeful answer:

"An oyster is a fish built like a nut, mine."

TWO BRITISH INVENTORS.

One Invented Loom and Other Dyes From Coal Tar.

Britain technicians recently celebrated the centenary of the death of Dr. Edmund Cartwright, the inventor of the power loom which began a revolution in textile manufacture. The story is one of the romances of industry. Dr. Cartwright was a Church of England clergyman living in an isolated country parish in Leicestershire. He wrote poetry, corresponded with literary men and made experiments in farming, but until he was 40 years of age showed no interest in mechanics. A chance visit to Derbyshire, where Arkwright had erected the first spinning factory, suggested to him the idea of the power loom. On his return home he devised, with the aid of the village carpenter and smith, a loom which could be driven by an animal. "As I had never before turned my thoughts to anything mechanical, either in theory or practice, nor had even seen a loom at work," he wrote, "you will readily believe that my first loom was a most rude piece of machinery." In 1785 he built a factory to utilize his invention, but some years afterward he had to surrender it to his creditors. Later he patented a woolcombing machine which effected large economies, but this was also a financial failure. He would have faced poverty—the fate of so many inventors—had not Parliament voted him in 1809 a gift of £10,000 as a reward for his contribution to British progress. With the money he bought a small farm in Kent, where he spent the rest of his days.

In Cartwright's case the economic benefits of his inventive genius went mainly to his own country, which got a long start in the textile trade. Great Britain was not so fortunate in another great branch of industry. Nearly seventy years ago a young British chemist, William Perkin, discovered a process of extracting dyes from coal tar, but it remained for German enterprise to exploit it. Germany capitalized British brains and built up her dye industry, which before the war almost dominated the world. Sir William Perkin died in 1907 full of years and honors, but the fruits of his discovery had their legend is where the Phoenix is described as an Indian bird which subsists on air for 500 years, after which, lading his wings with spices, he flies to Heliopolis, enters the temple there, and is burned to ashes on the altar. Next day the young phoenix is already feathered. On the third day his pinions are full grown, and he salutes the priest and flies away.

Workers Choose Woman Editor.

Another woman has quickly followed Miss Margaret Bondfield, first woman chairman of the general congress of the British trade unions, into important office within the councils of the British labor movement. Miss Barbara Wootton has been chosen editor of the Highway, the organ of the Workers' Educational Association.

She is a newcomer to the labor fold, having joined the staff of the joint research and information department of the trades union congress less than two years ago. Miss Wootton continues as lecturer in the department of social economics at Bedford College. She distinguished herself in that branch of learning at Girton and Cambridge, where she won awards never attained before or since by a student. Her papers on social legislation and unemployment insurance have been hailed as classic by the British association in the last two years.

Distinguished Military Officer.

Sir Edward Willis Duncan Ward, Bart., G.B.E., K.C.V.O., K.C.B., who has been made a peer of the United Kingdom, is a British officer possessing a distinguished record, who has had a varied army career.

Entering the British army in 1874, he served in various appointments in the Army Service Corps in the Soudan; in the Ashanti expedition; in Ireland, and in South Africa, becoming director of supplies of the South African Field Force in 1900.

He is a Scotchman by birth, having been born at Oban on December 17, 1853, a son of the late Capt. John Ward, R.N., and Mary Hope, daughter of the late John Bruce.

England Has Ice Cream Habit.

The ice cream habit has found lodgment in the British brain. One hears on all sides of the mushroom growth of many small ice cream parlors in English pleasure resorts and population centres. England now consumes 400,000 gallons of ice cream per year, which is about one twelve-hundredth of the amount consumed in the United States, the American total running about 500,000,000 gallons.

Counsel on both sides had been allowed fifteen minutes each for argument. Accordingly the counsel for the plaintiff took a long breath, pulled out his chest, and began: "At the fall of Babylon——"

"Just a minute," interposed the judge. "If you are going to start as far back as that, perhaps I had better allow you twenty minutes."

SAND STREET

(For last week).

There passed to the great beyond on Saturday morning, August 9th, a life-long resident of this place, Mrs. A. Robertson, in her 81st. year. Deceased had been in failing health for a couple of years, and the end was not unexpected. She leaves to mourn the loss of an affectionate mother and sister, one son, Mr. Archibald Robertson, of British Columbia, and four grandchildren, Mr. C. Robertson, Oshawa; Mr. J. Robertson, of Kingston; Mrs. O. Dafoe, of Saskatchewan, and Mrs. T. Walker, of Toronto; also two brothers and two sisters, Mr. Jos. Webb, of Virginia, U.S.A.; Robert Webb, of Tamworth; Mrs. T. Pickle, Frankford, and Mrs. W. Thompson, of Tamworth. The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon, and the remains laid to rest in the family plot at Beaver Lake. Harrad and family, of Aldershot, Ont., were renewing acquaintances in this vicinity last week.—Mr. H. McFarland, of Roblin, and friend, Miss R. M. Lee, of Smith Falls, spent a recent Sunday with Mr. J. H. Baker. —Mr. and Mrs. C. Wood spent the week end with friends at Fifth Lake. —Mr. E. Godfrey, of Arden, is helping Mr. T. Steele, in taking off his harvest.

The Oil for the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

"It's pretty tough," she said, "when one pays three shillings a pound for meat."

"It's tougher," replied the butcher, "when one pays two."

New Autumn Stocks are Arriving at Robinson's

Make Your Selections Early

New Autumn Coats Introduce Many Smart Novelties in Fabrics. The Silhouette Remains Straight and Slender

Our new Autumn Coats are here. They introduce a wonderful variety of new Coatings that are exceedingly rich in texture and color. Among the most prominent fabrics are those of deep "Pile" construction known as Kamel-Cloth, Combed Camel's Hair, Waved Teddy Bear, Jazz Tedelaine, Velva Suede, Bolivia, Voronbo, Crocodile and Marvella.

All shades in Browns, Navy, Black, Squirrel, Grey, are foremost colors in more elaborate wraps, while Turkestan and Lettuce Green have their own way in Sports models.

The medieval puffed sleeve appears again and again in the supple wraps of Suedene, Duvetyn, of Flamingo with its checks and bars of various patterns. Fur Collars rise up to meet the short-backed hat, and narrow strips of fur run round the sleeves, adorn the panels, finishes the bottom, create the cuffs, and even adorns the straight line of the closing.

Linings are important this season and are usually in soft durable Crepes that harmonize with the existing coat color.

We are opening the season with complete and extensive assortments. Prices range from $17.50 to $77.50.

We invite your early selection.

At Robinson's, you will see "Felt Hats" at their best. You'll see them varied in color, varied in ornamentation, varied in line, but always small in shape and snug-fitting.

Robinson's Millinery for Fall is "Better Than Ever".

New Autumn Dresses in Silk and Wool Are Arriving. The Pencil Silhouette Has Many Variations

Little change is noticed in the new Autumn Dress Silhouette. It prefers to remain straight, short and beltless. The "Tunic" is the one dominating feature. It varies in length from hip to hem of skirt and becomes the basic principle of dress in general.

Sleeves come very short or are very long. Necklines are round, bateau, oval or V shaped. "Lace" is considered one of the most important means of ornamentation. Pleated panels, tucks, buttons and scarfs also create interesting unique forms of decoration.

"In Silks", Satin Cantons, Georgette, Knitted Silks, Fleurella and Canton Crepe are fashionable fabrics.

"In Woollens", a new weave called Charmain divides honors with Twill Cord and Tricotine.

"In Colors", Navy, Black, Turkestan, Moss Green, Mocha, Praline, Quaker, Rust, Gobelin, Brown and Cocoa are outstanding.

After a summer of camp life or travelling, you will certainly need a new frock or two. We are splendidly prepared to serve you. Your early inspection is cordially invited.

A Very Stylish and Likable New Dress Fabric For Fall Will Be Lustrous Canton

The new colors are now in stock, Black, Navy, Whirlpool, Brown, Beige, Cocoa, Grey. Priced at $3.50 yard.

Each season there comes to the front one or more new fabrics which Fashion gives its fullest approval. Lustrous Canton is one of these. It has a rich Satin surface, and a fine Crepe back, and is especially adaptable for the new style of Dress in Vogue for Fall wear. It is a cloth easily worth $4.50 per yard, but owing to a fortunate purchase price, we are able to save our customers a dollar per yard. The rich colorings will merit your approval. LAUGHTER ON THE LINKS.

Caddies Always Have an Answer for Golfers.

It would probably be no easy matter to find two men who would agree as to which is the most amusing golf story, so large and varied is the stock and so divergent are men's tastes.

One day a golfer, more zealous than efficient, had played such havoc with the turf that his caddie exclaimed in disgust, "I suppose, sir, you don't know these links at all?"

"Oh, yes," was the reply," my grandfather was born here; in fact, he is buried here"—and he proceeded to cut another big divot.

Whereupon the caddie suggested, "Don't you think you'd better try a niblick, sir? You won't get deep enough to find your grandfather with that one."

The caddie is no respector of persons. When one enthusiastic, but inexpert, young lord had missed the ball with four clubs in succession, he turned in despair to his caddie, and asked, "What would you advise me to take next?"

"Tak' next!" was the disgusted answer. "I'm thinking ye'll better tak' the next train hame." And he did.

Mr. Hutchinson tells an amusing story of an Australian, playing on the St. Andrews links, who was cutting slices out of Scotland with every second swing of his club. His caddie looked on in grim silence as one large divot after another was lifted. Then, unable to stand it any longer, he asked, "Ye come fa Australia, don't ye, sir?"

"I do," answered the golfer, glaring at the boy. "What of that?"

"Oh," dryly remarked the caddie, "maybe I wranged ye. Nae doot ye are trying for a short cut home."

The caddie is usually much too familiar with strong language to resent it; in fact, he considers it a help rather than a hindrance to the game. This was the view of a lad who was accompanying a youthful parson on his first round of the links. At each foozled shot the cleric set his teeth grimly and grew more and more purple in the face. At last his companion's patience was exhausted.

"Oot wi' it, mon!" he exclaimed, half in command, half in entreaty; "oot wi' the swear, for ye'll never learn to play gowf if ye dinna."

A similar story is told of a Scottish minister whose ball found its way with exasperating frequency from one bunker into another, with results that threatened an apoplectic seizure. Not a word, however, escaped his lips until in despair he at last exclaimed, "It's nae gude, Donald! I'll hae to gie it up!"

"Gie what oop?" queried Donald, "the kirk or the gowf? Oh, mon, ye mauna think of desairtin' the gowf!"

When one man asked his caddie what he thought of the play of another member of the club, "Ca' him a gowfer!" was the scornful answer, "He's no muckle better than yersel'!"

Nor was another caddie less frank who, when his employer, after a good stroke, turned to him and said, "That was a good one, Jock!" answered, contemptuously, "Aye, it was no bad; but it's the fust shot ye've struck at a' three days."

Equally uncomplimentary was the French caddie of whom the following story is told. The boy's English vocabulary was limited to two words, which he had often heard but whose meaning he did not understand. One day an English golfer whose clubs he was carrying made a particularly fine shot, and turned to the boy, with pardonable vanity, for a word of praise. The caddie gave him a radiant smile as he uttered the only two English words he knew—"Beastly fluke!"

QUEER THINGS I'VE SOLD.

Reporter Chats With Britain's Oldest Auctioneer.

Who is Britain's oldest practising auctioneer? Mr. Henry Stevens, proprietor of the famous sale rooms in Covent Garden, which were established when George III. was on the throne, seems to have a well-founded claim to the distinction. He is in his eighty-first year, and recently celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of his first appearance in the rostrum.

"I have 'knocked down' an extraordinarily wide variety of articles in my time," the T.-B. man was told by Mr. Stevens, who conducts sales with the virility of most men of less than half his age. "To enumerate them would need many columns of print. Egyptian mummies, butterflies, stuffed birds, rare orchids and other plants, great auks' eggs, diamonds and every kind of precious stone, Roman vases, books, seeds, relics of ancient wars, heirlooms of all sorts, and, of course, pictures — this touches only the fringe of the remarkable range of items that have come under my hammer!

"One of the most curious things I ever 'put up' was Paul Kruger's tophat. Very old and greasy, it went for twenty-six guineas, the bidding being carried on to the accompaniment of satirical comments. Just before I knocked the hat down to the purchaser someone shouted: 'Is it hall-marked?' 'No,' I said, 'but it is Paul-marked!'

"Some years ago heavy consignments of seeds of the California tree came to this country, it being believed that this tree would yield valuable timber. Most of the Californian firs growing in Britain to-day passed, as seeds, through my hands, the first few packets retailing as much as thirty-two guineas an ounce. The experiment was not a success, and now I should be surprised to get thirty-two shillings an ounce for the seeds.

"It is my experience that anything out of the ordinary will command a ready sale at a satisfactory price. The cabbage butterfly is a fairly common insect, but not long ago I sold a specimen for over £30! Instead of having the usual markings this particular butterfly was all black.

"Owing to the fact that most of the great auks' eggs sent in London have passed through these sale-rooms I was once dubbed 'The Great Auk's Undertaker!' One of these cost me £310. In another case a country lad went to a local sale and bought for thirty-six shillings a box full of odds and ends. At the bottom of the box were two big eggs, which were brought to my father's notice. They proved to be auks' eggs, and we sold one for 280 guineas and the other for 180 guineas!

"On another occasion at a sale of white orchids I came to the last two lots, which were knocked down to a buyer for two shillings. Some months later this buyer turned up in the saleroom wearing a yellow flower in his buttonhole. 'What have you there?' I asked him, indicating the flower, which was new to me.

"'This,' was the reply, 'is the flower of one of the plants I bought here at the white orchid sale. I've just been offered fifty guineas for it.'

"The upshot was that I bought the root of the plant for £100 and later sold it for £165. The flower was the first yellow-white orchid ever seen in this country!"—Tit-Bits.

Why Sponges Cost More.

Natural sponge fields have been worked out and new sponge grounds to be cultivated in order to supply the world's demand. Sponges are cut in little pieces, attached by means of wire to fragments of cement and lowered to the bed of the sea. After a period of about two years the sponge has grown to the usual commercial size. It is brought up and a fresh seed put in its place. Different varieties of sponges grow at a different rate, and some need ten years to reach maturity. Before the war the best sponges came from the Mediterranean, the Sea of Marmora, and the coasts of Turkey in Asia. Fresh sponges look rather like meat when they are brought up, and are covered with a brown skin, in which little holes appear and disappear, apparently at the will of the animal. The interior of the sponge, very much like raw meat, is broken by numerous canals and tissues, which are filled with a viscous grey liquid known as "the milk." This "milk" must be pressed out at once, for it is the only part of the animal which holds real life. If it remains in the sponge the elasticity is speedily lost.

The Oil for the Farmer.—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the farm house will save many a journey for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature who suffer from pains and aches, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Smoke a cigaret in bed. Doze off and leave cigaret alight. It keeps the home fires burning.

Dr. Pillsbury is very moderate in his advice, he says. He only says:

"Oh, yes!"—replied old Gaunton Grimm. "If he does his best to keep himself out of trouble."

Husband—"My dear, these seeds you've ordered won't flower until the second summer."

Wife—"Do, that's quite all right. This is a lazy year's catalog."

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Remover is its strongest recommendation. It seldom fails.

"Last night," said his wife, acidly, "I happened to see you at your important meeting with your board of directors—and I think the hat she had on was a perfect horror."

The Poor Man's Friend—Put up in small bottles handy for easily portable and sold for a very small sum. Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil possesses powers in concentrated form. Its cheapness and the varied uses to which it can be put make it the poor man's friend. No dealer's stock is complete without it.

"Here's a threepenny piece," said a parson's wife to a tramp at her door, "Now, what are you going to do with it?"

"Well, mum," replied the hungry man, "if I buy a touring car I shan't have enough left to pay my chauffeur; if I purchase a steam yacht there won't be enough left to defray the cost of running it, hey; so I guess, mum, I'll get a schooner and handle it myself."

A Foe to Asthma. Give Asthma half a chance and it gains ground rapidly. But active it repeated treatments of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy and it will fall back even faster. There is no half way measure about this remedy. It goes right to work battles that are serious and it reaches the inmost breathing passages and there is no place for the trouble to lurk. Have it by you for ready use.

James, the butler, looked very worried, and Jeremy Jessop was anxious to learn the reason.

"What's the matter, James?" she asked.

"Well, it's like this, ma'am," James replied, "I've had a letter from the master instructing me to send on his drawing materials at once."

"Well, that is plain enough."

"Yes," admitted James, "so far; but I don't know whether to send his paint box and brushes, or his corkscrew."

With so thorough a preparation at hand as Miller's Worm Powders, the mother who allows her children to suffer from the ravages of worms is unwise and culpably careless. A child subjected to the attacks of worms is always unhealthy, and will be stunted in its growth. It is a powerful rot by owners. Father—"Oh, did he? But what about you?"

Poets of the Window-pane

Sir Walter Raleigh wrote on a glass window at the Inn:—

Fain would I climb, yet fear I to fall.

And the story goes that Queen Elizabeth turned it into a couplet by adding:—

If thy heart fails thee, climb not at all.

An anthology might be made of such trifles scratched upon window panes, and other impromptus; and it would be remarkable to observe how some of them soon destined for immortality, when the labored work of their writers has passed to the land of limbo.

There is the quatrain of that extraordinary person, Aaron Hill, whose greatest hope was to achieve literary fame. Born of a good family, he lived from 1685 to 1760, dying "in an evil minute of the earthquake" which shook London in that year, but he left many turgid tragedies.

Pope classed him among the flying-fishes, that now and then rise from the sea, only to drop to the bottom. He lost his property through gold-seeking schemes, but clung always to the hope of immortality to be gained by his writings:—

While from flies my writing prospects fly,
Fain would my mind's weak offspring claim to die.

And now as is remembered in a way he could have least expected, for of all his writings he is known by one little piece, scratched on a window in Scotland, the lines familiar to everybody, beginning "Tender-hearted stroked a nettle," and showing the wisdom of grasping such prickly customers like a man of mettle.

Well-remembered lines have been left carelessly by poets, scratched on doors, walls, or seats, or written in young ladies' albums. The poet Earl of Rochester wrote the following quatrain, according to tradition, on King Charles II.'s bed-chamber door:—

Here lies our sovereign lord and king,
Whose word no man relies on;
He never says a foolish thing,
Nor ever does a wise one.

To Wordsworth are credited these lines left upon a seat—and perhaps better left there:—

Pride,
However disguised in its own majesty,
Is littleness.

On the night before his execution Sir Walter Raleigh wrote the poem, "The Conclusion," which was found in his Bible in the Gate-House at Westminster, 1618:—

Even such is Time, that takes in trust
Our youth, our joys, our all we have,
And pays us but with earth and dust;
Who in the dark and silent grave,
When we have wander'd all our ways,
Shuts up the story of our days;
But from this earth, this grave, this dust,
My God shall raise me up I trust.

A neat impromptu couplet was Dr. Edward Young's on Hale, Death, and Immortality" fame. Seated at a table dinner, in the company of wits, he borrowed Lord Chesterfield's diamond-mounted pencil, and with the diamond scratched these lines upon a wine-glass:—

Accept a miracle, instead of wit—
See two dull lines with Stanhope's pencil writ.

We are not told that Burns carried a diamond-mounted pencil; but we have two records of verses written on inn windows. At an inn at Inveraray he wrote a skit on the bad accommodation by the Duke of Argyll, and wrote:—

Whoe'er he be that sojourns here,
I pity much his care,
Unless he come to wait upon
The Lord their God, his Grace.

There's nothing here but Highland pride,
And Highland sneh and hungers;
If Providence has sent me here,
'Twas surely in an anger.

The epigram scratched on the window of the inn at Garron was even more scathing; telling how he and his friend came not in search of wisdom.

But only, lest we gang to hell,
It may be nae surprise.

First American Ship.

The Griffin was the first known ship to be built in North America. Its keel was laid in the autumn in the ship- yard of Sieur de La Salle in 1679. The craft was a bark of sixty tons and the keel was laid in the water completed at the mouth of Cayuga Creek, not far from the site of the present city of Buffalo. It was armed with a battery of seven small cannon and was launched in August of that year bearing the device of an eagle. In August of the same year La Salle embarked with his colony and sailed for the western end of Lake Erie, thus inaugurating the Great Lakes commerce. In the meantime La Salle's brother-in-law, Chinking, him lost, were selling at a tremendous rate in commissions. To prevent this he loaded the ship with rich cargoes of furs and sent it back with orders to return immediately. He then explored the western country but on returning to Fort Frontenac, learned that the Griffin had been ship-wrecked.

A Scotsman's "Luggage."

When a Scotsman was fined at Willesden for being drunk, it was stated that he told the police he had been to London for a holiday, but the only luggage he brought with him was a bottle of whisky and two tumblers.

Prisoner was asked why he had brought that to assist. "Just for fear one would get broken," was the reply.

Like Father.

"My dear," said a young wife to her husband, "baby has been trying to talk again."

"What was he talking about?"

"I think it was something about politics. He started very calmly, but in a few minutes he was as angry and red in the face as he could be. It is wonderful how he takes after you."

Myra—"Father, why 'didn't you tell me you had had this rustic seat varnished? When Charlie Robinson and I met there he brought the new varnish all over his coat and trousers."

Father—"Oh, did he? But what about you?"

TRAGIC MYSTERY OF DEEP.

Mammoth Ocean Liners Are Easily Turned Over.

A modern mammoth ocean liner appears to the landsman to be the last how in solidity of construction. But seamen know better.

It is entirely probable that no storm that ever blow could by itself cause the foundering in mid-ocean of an Olympic or a Mauretania. But, on the other hand, vessels of this type, being built for speed, are made quite fragile in comparison with their vast bulk, and so are very susceptible to serious damage in case of a collision, whether with another ship, floating wreckage, or, worse still, with ice.

Take, for example, the case of the Titanic, the greatest ice tragedy in maritime history. Mathematical calculations have satisfied naval architects that the rent in her side made in striking the iceberg was never more than an inch or two wide, and in many places it can have been little more than an opening of the plates owing to the river having their heads shorn off as the berg scraped along her side.

But instead of the damage being confined to the filling of a single compartment it was spread over half, all, with the result that the biggest ship in the world foundered in mid-Atlantic in a few hours, with the most appalling death-roll of fifteen hundred and twelve, writes Harry A. Bowen, in "Ships for All."

There is good reason to believe, by the way, that the Titanic was not the first White Star Liner to fall a victim to the ice. For when the Naronic disappeared in the Atlantic in 1893 the only trace of her ever found was a boat whose falls had been cut away with every sign of frantic haste.

Yet, if she had sprung a leak there would certainly have been time to get the boats into the water without cutting the falls, while if the disaster had been due to a collision there would be the other ship to tell the tale.

Similarly, when the Inman Liner, City of Boston, disappeared while on a voyage from Halifax across the Atlantic, the only evidence of her fate was a bottle, washed up many months later, which confained a written message, almost gibberish, but containing the name of the ship and a reference to ice and sinking.

Quite frequently it has happend that a big passenger steamer has rolled over and gone down in a few minutes after a collision with a vessel only a fraction of her own size.

Such a case was that of the French liner La Bourgogne, which collided with the British sailing ship Cromartyshire in 1898, and sank.

Some cases of well-found ships disappearing in comparatively calm weather have been attributed to their being overwhelmed by waterspouts. The stoutest vessel, in such a case, would probably go down like a stone.

True, ships have been known to come through a waterspout and still be able to make port, as for instance her decks were swept bare. Several of her men went overboard, and of these were half full of water, but the third were literally squashed to a pulp by the sheer weight of the water.

Animals as Prophets.

The scenes of some animals are known to differ considerably from those of human beings.

For instance, a cuckoo, five months old, which had been taken miles from the place where it was hatched, can find its way, unaided, from England to Africa.

As all fishermen know, trout go off their feed before rain. They cannot see the sky, yet they know rain is advance when a change in the weather is coming.

Animals can tell in advance when a bad earthquake or volcanic eruption is about to occur. In Sicily dogs showed great uneasiness two days before the eruption of Etna. Cats carried their kittens away from houses, and hares seemed stupefied by fright.

Similar knowledge is also displayed by animals before the great Valparino earthquake of 1906, but in this case horses and cattle as well as dogs were desperately uneasy for twenty-four hours before the big shock. Dogs howled all night, and cattle lowed.

Before the Messina earthquake of January, 1915, dogs were found to be flying in flocks, evidently greatly disturbed, but it is as odd fact that there were no such signs before the sudden and dreadful earthquake which destroyed San Francisco.

One explanation of this sense possessed by dumb creatures may be that animals having finer powers of hearing than man, may detect underground rumblings or quiverings which man cannot sense. Or it may be that there is some electric tension which affects them. At any rate there is no doubt that they do know many hours beforehand when an earth convulsion is about to take place.

It Settled His Chances.

A young man, writing to his sweetheart, said, "I will write you darling, that you would not write me such long letters." Or he may bring an action for breach of promise against me the lawyers would copy the correspondence between us, and charge so much for every folio of seventy-two words. The shorter the letters the more we save from the lawyers." He never received a reply.

"Called."

An old lady said to her nephew, a poor preacher: "James, why did you enter the ministry?"

"Because I was called," he replied.

"James," said the old lady, anxiously, "are you sure it wasn't some other noise you heard?"

WHEN TIMES ARE HARD

HOW PEOPLE HAVE MADE ENDS MEET IN DAYS GONE BY.

Some of the Schemes Employed to Put to Rout the Wolf at the Door Have Served to Tide Over the Period of Stress, While Some Have Led to Fortune In After Years.

Many ways of making a living when times are hard have been adopted by men who refuse to sit idle when the factory gates are closed against them. We're some of these schemes tide over the bad period only, others have sat within them the germ of future fortune. Some methods employed are fakes, consequently their run is short. Want of capital prevents cramping disabilities, but this handicap has been overcome by a prodigious use of native talent and "stick-ability."

Oyster and clam shells collected from fish stores and baked in ovens and crushed fine for poultry grit, supplied the time and the profit of a blacksmith, during a spell of slack trade.

Making and selling gravy salt secured a competence for a tailor. He bought together quantities of salt, corn-flour, water, pepper and burnt sugar until the whole was a thick paste, then, cut into small pieces and wrapped in wax paper he sold them from door to door.

With her last few dollars a woman purchased calsomine and flannel. She made up a set of swadding clothes sold them, and continued the process. To-day that woman does an international trade.

An upholsterer asked a lady if she had any old chairs in the shed. Upon finding that such was the case and that a plush curtain had also been discarded, he persuaded the lady to allow him to recover the chairs with the old plush. Two hours later the man surprised the lady with the effects of his handiwork. She gave him a dollar. The same man on another occasion made a present to a lady lover for a parlor chair out of an old sheet. This man is earning a good livelihood this way.

A widow made and sold covers for brooms, made from tickings. This chair with the old plush. Two hours trade was brought to completion by dusting of the ceiling with dust clinging to the custer.

Fire-lighters made of sawdust and resin started one man on the way to fortune. Making a pan holder that can be adapted to many uses was successfully tried by a Toronto man who was formerly a painter. Pan holders, coathangers and tin clips have also been made by men who are twisters. Speaking of flower and fern baskets reminds us of the country.

Gathering ferns and trapping small fur-bearing animals such as muskrats, squirrels, etc., may be done on the outskirts of most cities but the returns from such industry are small.

Repairing discarded clocks, mending broken dishes and china with a solution made from celluloid, gum and a lime-rose powder for the door, locks and making keys have been tried and found useful means of keeping the wolf from the door. Cleaning cellars, beating rugs, cleaning and repairing chimneys, hoeing kindling wood, repairing fences, sodding lawns, moulding concrete blocks have proved profitable as employment when work was scarce and funds low.

Key tags are made with the aid of a small set of letter dies and blanks that can be purchased at the hardware store. A Montreal man has accumulated property by this means. Had stolen ejected into the runs of the rodents procures a living for another man in Montreal.

Soliciting business for lawyers and shoe repairers, collecting money due for doctors, repairing umbrellas, repolishing furniture, scraping old paint from floors, fixing window shades, wiring wooden chairs that have become loose in their joints, have been found to be worth while.

Hobbies have been turned into gain. A man who loved cats, for the same so capable of tending to their needs when they were sick, that she now practices as a physician. Doctors and poultry specialists are two more fields of endeavor who have profited by experience.

Show cards with movable letters for store windows can be made at home and bring in a profit.

Making pincushions in becoming naturalized citizens, selling homes made water filters, making dolls and teddy bears, patching leaky pots and kettles with the aid of a soldering iron and solder have been means of keeping together home, wife, family and soul, when the lack of steady employment has brought in the sting of poverty to the man.

Hundreds of men with the right of the gab" have tried street selling or "faking." Sometimes these stunts have been genuine and profitable.

The gyroscope top became famous after a Montreal man had demonstrated its amusing qualities on the streets.

The virtues of some collar buttons were unknown until men sold them at the street corners; but the lack of real originality in these has led to other means.

"Silver plating fluid," made from mercury and nitric acid is dangerous and useless, but has sometimes proved profitable as a fake. "Pharaoh Rays," made from tin pill boxes and a feather, fooled people and fed a fakir.

Chinese Beggars.

Beggars in China are taxed and have districts allotted to them in which to make appeals for charity.

Said a tramp to a lady at a house he called at, "I've asked at a dozen houses for money, and I've only got pennies."

"Have you ever thought of working for it, my man?" asked the lady.

"Yes, mum," replied the tramp. "I've got 'em through the alphabet, ain't got to 'W' yet."

FAMILY LIMIT OF THREE.

Woman With More Is Not 100 Per Cent. Mother.

As a 100 per cent. mother, the woman who has a family of six children is a failure, according to Dr. Dorothy Bocker, visiting neurologist of St. Mark's Hospital, New York city, who spoke at the closing day's session of the Middle Western Birth Control Conference.

"Large families are nice in the magazine stories of Christmas or Thanksgiving re-unions, but their annals are not so promising nor so jolly as chronicled by the social welfare worker," she said.

Dr. Bocker has compiled long tables of statistics from her own experience and a physician is bound by the conclusions which she presented.

In the first place, Dr. Bocker said, the normally healthy woman is capable of having just about three children without detriment to herself or to them.

"After the third child," said Dr. Bocker, the infant death rate increases alarmingly. The death rate among first children is high, shows a considerable decrease in the case of the second and remains steady for the third. After that there is a decidedly high infant mortality. Therefore a woman who has six or more children is a failure, as a mother because she is very likely to start the third term off with some physical handicap which will hold them down as long as they live.

"The same is a physical failure herself. Having a child is for a woman a greater ordeal than a prize fight for a man. Children are born casually with no thought of physical preparation for them, as there is for prize fighter trains for months and years for his battle."

Dr. Bocker concluded with a startling statement. "The lives of from three to four million unborn babies are sacrificed, in one way or another, every year from lack of birth control," she said.

"If we are to have a better race we must eliminate the dysgenic factors, such as insanity, feeble-mindedness, epilepsy, etc. These are just as likely to occur among those who do and the rich as among the poor of the slums. Money does not give people the right to bring defective into the world. It is all a question of racial stock. Only those of sound stock should be allowed to propagate."

Arbalestriers Were Popular.

The arbalest was one of the first machine guns known in warfare. It was a crossbow which was so strong that artificial means had to be adopted to draw back the cord. It could shoot, wicked quarrel, or arrow. Prior to the fourteenth century, all European armies had troops of arbalestriers. They were formed into confraternities, used as guards in the times of peace, and were given many privileges by way of encouraging them to greater skill in warfare. Some even had arbalestriers for hire; at first the French employed a body of these mercenaries. The Gascons and the men of Brabant were noted for their skill with the bow, and many towns of northern France maintained their own companies of arbalestriers who were called to occasional service under the powerful dukes when a quarrel was to be settled. Historical records an occasion when an English king borrowed the French arbalestriers for use in a war in which France was not concerned, and it is on record also that a company of English longbowmen served in the French forces of Richelieu at the siege of La Rochelle.

Insects Make Shellac.

The making of shellac dates back thousands of years and with few exceptions the process of production is said to be carried on in the same way as it was at the beginning. The industry depends on the life of a tiny insect known as the coccus lacca or "lracchardia lacca." It is said to be closely related to the common insects of every farmer, and takes shellac somewhat as the bee makes honey. The insect is cultivated extensively in Northern India. All kinds of trees are used as its abode. Each insect has a tiny lancet in its mouth with which it pierces the trees. After the sap has been sucked from the tree it is modified as it passes through the little body and finally excreted in the form of shellac. From a single incrustation of shellac is formed on the branches of the trees. The natives of India collect it by breaking off and gathering the encrusted branches. These branches are called "stick lac," which is the substance in its natural state.

Forestation In Palestine.

It is possible that the oaks of Palestine may be made to grow there as well known as the cedar of Lebanon, of biblical fame. Large numbers of trees are being planted throughout Palestine by the Jewish National Fund. In 1918 there were 50,000 trees in the country, and now there are 767,000. About 20,000 of these are fruit-bearing; the rest are forest trees. Some time ago a fund was started to establish a forest in memory of Theodore Herzl, founder of the Zionist movement, who predicted the creation of a new Jewish state. Instead of one forest, ten have been planted in his memory. Besides the new trees set out, by the fund, an old forest at Nahalal, fast dying out, has been cared for, and about 10,000 oaks have been restored to a healthy condition.

No Tax on Food.

Ronald McNeil, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, speaking at Tiverton, Eng., said that the Government had no intention of taxing the food of the people as some of the Liberal leaders alleged. The proposal to increase the existing duties on dried fruits from Turkey and Greece had produced a frantic effort by Sir John Simon to confuse the votes of women by talking of an imaginary increase in the cost of the currant bun. He described Sir John Simon's

Shelter Beneath Smoothest Tree in Thunderstorm

Continuous Trickle of Rain Acts As Lightning Conductor. — Trees to Avoid. — Oaks, Pines and Trees With Rugged Bark Usually Struck.

Recent thunderstorms have revived an interest in the question as to whether it is dangerous to shelter under trees in such storms. There is no doubt that trees, like other tall objects, attract lightning, particularly when they stand singly in fields or hedgerows. Some trees, however, are much more frequently struck than others, writes Professor J. E. Weiss in the London Daily News. The fact was known to the Ancients and it is recorded that the Roman Emperor Tiberius used to wear a wreath of laurels during thunderstorms, as it had been noticed that laurel trees were never struck by lightning.

To investigate the cause for this difference, careful experiments have been made into the relative electrical conductivity of the wood of various trees, and it was found that there was a considerable difference in this respect in the wood of the beech and of the oak, for instance.

Why any kind of wood should be a better conductor than another remained still to be solved. At first it was thought that this difference might be due to different amounts of water contained in the wood, as water is an excellent conductor of electricity. This, however, proved not to be the case, and on further investigation it was shown that in some cases trees contain a considerable amount of oil, stored as food reserve, in their wood, and oil being a bad conductor of electricity, these trees were rendered bad conductors. The beech and the laurel, which are so rarely struck, are oil-containing trees.

Question of Soil.

These investigations, made at the end of last century, have, however, not stood the test of further researches into the matter, and just before the war Professor Stahl, of Jena, after a very critical and experimental study of the problem, arrived at another conclusion. He considers the different liability of trees to attract lightning to be due to the varying water contents of the soil. If the trees are rooted in a stony and well-drained soil, they are less frequently injured by lightning than when growing in a clay soil, retentive of water, and as some kinds of trees favor a light while others prefer a heavy soil, we have at once an explanation why some trees are comparatively immune.

If trees are growing under the same soil conditions they would be equally attractive to lightning and presumably the taller of two trees would be struck whatever kind it might be. Yet the result might not be the same, for it might be more or less injured according to the conductivity of the electric current. If it were a perfect conductor it would be as little injured as a metallic lightning conductor when struck. Now Professor Stahl asserted from the experiments he made that if the tree is completely wet on the outside the electric "fluid", as it is sometimes called, is rapidly conducted down the outside of the tree with little or no injury to the same. In such cases the tree may be regarded as comparatively immune.

Trees With Smooth Bark.

Trees with a smooth bark belong to this category. Anyone who has noticed the branches and stem of a beech during a rainstorm will have seen the water trickling, or even running, down the stem in a regular stream. An oak, poplar or pine, on the other hand, with a rugged bark, is not easily wetted on the surface, and these trees, as they are not able to conduct the electricity away rapidly, are usually severely splintered.

If one is therefore to take shelter under a tree during a thunderstorm, it is well to choose one like a beech, with a smooth bark, which one will will act to some extent as a lightning conductor. One should, however, be careful not to lean against the trunk, but to stand, or better still, to lie as far away from it as possible, either on the leeward or dry side of the tree. Considering the evidence brought forward by Professor Stahl there is probably some truth in the German popular saying which may be adapted to English conditions by recommending that in a thunderstorm you should "seek the beech and shun the oak."

WAS FIRST TO FIND TOBACCO

Columbus Discovered Native Smoking Weed on His Arrival in Cuba.

When Columbus landed in Cuba in November, 1492, he was surprised to find natives "puffing smoke from their mouths and noses." Their crude cigars consisted of leaves of tobacco rolled within the sheaths of maize heads.

The discoverer of the new world was also the first man to take the old world to discover tobacco. Spaniards have introduced Paraguay, in 1597. were met by the natives, whose weapons were small tubes through which they squirted tobacco juice to blind the white men. One of the Spaniards, Gonzalo de Oviedo, sent back to Spain with some tobacco plants, which he cultivated. This was the first occasion on which tobacco was brought to Europe.

The origin of the word nicotine is interesting. In 1559 Jean Nicot, an ambassador to France, bought some tobacco seed at Lisbon from a Flemish captain just back from Florida. Nicot cultivated the plant and presented some specimens to Her Queen, Catherine de Medici. For some time the plant was known as "herbe de la reine" (the queen's plant), but this name, being too long, gave place to nicotina, which survives, among botanists to this day.

Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Francis Drake brought tobacco to England in 1586, but they were not the first to introduce it, although Sir Walter is generally given credit for having done more to popularize smoking at that time.—London Answers.

MOORISH ARCHITECTURE.

Alhambra Group Excell I n Design & Conception.

Four centuries have passed away since the Mohammedan power was driven out of Spain by the fall of the Moorish kingdom of Granada, in a famous war conducted with much spirit by Ferdinand and Isabella. In that long and memorable crusade of Christian against Moslem there were some episodes of terrible hatred. The fanatical Moorish armies perpetrated excesses which aroused all Christendom, and the Christian princes banded together resolved, at whatever cost, to expel the Moors. This was at last accomplished. Malaga and Granada, the strongholds of the Moorish Empire, were captured, and Boabdil, the last of the alien monarchs of the Crescent to rule in Western Europe, was deprived of his power and possessions and became a vassal of Spain. The story of the Moorish period of occupation is now only recalled by the magnificent architectural remains of that period that still exist in many localities in Granada. Nowhere in Europe are there any structures excelling in dignity of conception and extreme delicacy of treatment those found in the Alhambra group. Combining many of the features of Saracenic and Arabian architecture, the Moorish workmen wrought in a style which, though replete with ornament, was yet conspicuously graceful and straining, lacking the heaviness of the Gothic and the Roman, and retaining in a multiplied form something of the beauty of the Greek. In the remains of their mosques, tombs, and palaces, and even in many ruins of the wealthier class, this rich elaboration is still visible. Slender, graceful pillars topped by ornate capitals support the buildings, rising to delicately-formed arches, heavy with tracery that seems to the observer as fine as the filigree work of a silversmith.

Conscripted Labor.

Conscripted labor may be used in times of emergency, through the new "Foreign Assistance Law" just passed in the Protectorate of Iraq. The Bill enacts that the administrative official may be entitled to the full services of any labor or vehicles required for the purpose of the Government, and may be punished by imprisonment for a period not exceeding one month or a fine of £20. Every Shaikh or ruler who refuses to supply the necessary labor required from him shall be liable to imprisonment not exceeding six months' imprisonment or a fine not exceeding £500, or both imprisonment and fine.

THE CAUSE OF VOLCANOES

Rev. James Hutton, A.I.M.E.

We were informed, in our school readers of a few years ago, that a volcano is a burning mountain which ejects molten rock and ashes into the air, when in a state of eruption. Also the old books went on to say, "the volcano is connected with the interior of the earth which is in a liquid state and is the outlet for the molten rocks which constitute the earth's centre."

Let us, for a while, consider this hypothesis. The sun and the moon exert tremendous forces of attraction upon the earth. So much so that the waters which cover the face of the earth are set in motion and the familiar phenomena of the tides is produced. If the centre of the earth was in a liquid or gaseous condition such tides would also be set up therein and, it can easily be calculated, such tides would be of such intensity as to burst the earth's crust. A consideration of the Specific Gravity of the earth and of its crust further compels us to assert that the centre must be solid and not either liquid or gaseous.

If, then, the centre is solid, how do volcanoes occur ?

It has been noticed that, during an eruption hugh quantities of steam issue forth from the crater of the volcano. Sodium and Chlorine, which together make common salt, are found among the products of eruption. A study of the map shows that all active volcanoes exist within a reasonable distance of the seashore or of a water supply, consequently we must conclude that water has something to do with the matter.

As we descend into the earth's crust we find that there is a rise in temperature as we go down. At a depth of from twenty to thirty miles the temperature would be sufficiently great to melt the rocks in that vicinity, if it were not for the pressure of the rocks above. This tremendous pressure prevents the rocks from melting. The crust of the earth is constantly contracting, due to various influences, and consequently cracks often occur in it. Now, if a crack, say ten miles deep, occurred in the earth's crust, the pressure would be lessened considerably and at the twenty mile depth line the rocks would begin to melt and a hugh mass of molten rock would result. Under normal conditions the crack would fill up again and the molten rock would solidify, but, near the sea shore, sea water may sometimes percolate through the rocks and, eventually, reach the mass of molten rock. Here the water would be turned into steam and a great explosive force would result. The pressure of the steam under certain conditions, would be so great as to force a way, through planes of weakness in the rock strata to the surface. A vent, having thus been made the molten rocks, under steam pressure, would be ejected through the vent hole and out into the air and a volcano would result.

When the force of the eruption had spent itself the ejection of molten rock, ashes, steam, etc., would cease but the vent hole would remain full of molten rock and the cavity formed at the twenty mile depth line would fill with molten rock. So the volcano would remain quiet until sufficient water again percolated through the strata and caused a fresh eruption. Sometimes, however, the molten rock in the vent solidifys and, by subsequent earth movements, all cracks are closed up, thus restoring the required pressure at the depth line where the rocks were molten. Then, of course, such rocks would solidify and the volcano would become "dead."

Thus Providence, in a wonderful way, causes water to be the instrument in bringing into existence one of the most appalling catastrophies in nature, the eruption of a burning mountain.

JAMES HUTTON.

SIZE OF SKULL INCREASES.

As Knowledge Advances Skull Is Enlarged.

There is a remarkably large proportion of the highbrows among American women. Dr. Ales Hrdlicka, "physical anthropologist" of the Smithsonian Institute, declared in Washington recently that his measurements of the foreheads of over nineteen hundred men and women of American stock which has been in this country for from three to eight generations indicate that such is the case.

Taking the distance from the nasal depression to the hair line, he found that 3 per cent of the males and 11 per cent. of the females had low foreheads. The greater percentage of highbrows among women, Dr. Hrdlicka explained, is what is to be expected; as the female skull tends to develop less from its childhood characteristics. His figures further showed 88 percent. of the males and 81 per cent. of the females had foreheads of medium height. Most surprising to the scientist, however, was the fact that 2 per cent. of the men had high foreheads, while 6 per cent. of the women showed this development. In other races, he said, the proportion of women to men is about equal.

Although the persons examined were from the relatively cultured classes, and apparently possessed with fewer cultural advantages the differences would not be so great. Dr. Hrdlicka said that these figures indicate that females in the country stand relatively high in the progress of brain development. He attributed this to the educational advantages in the country.

The earlier Neanderthal cave men and earlier human, prehuman and pithecanthropoid ape skulls, however, show increasingly marked differences in the development of the frontal region of the skull. There are also sex, racial and age differences in the height, slope, breadth and the bulge of forehead in man to-day. The whites have the highest, broadest of head, however, is misleading, he said. Proportion of head size to breadth must be taken into consideration.

Although the brain is largely responsible for the shape of the skull, tiers are individual variations resembling the individual head shapes which are not due to low brain development.

Dr. Hrdlicka scored phrenologists and so-called character readers' predictions.

COURT OF ST. JAMES

MOST BRILLIANT SCENE IN THE WORLD.

Flashing Jewels of Women, Splendid Uniforms of Men Made Buckingham Palace Fairyland—Rigid Etiquette.

Just when rural England is a joy of green fields, snowy hawthorn and singing birds, the nobility and gentry leave their country estates and move into stuffy London houses. The court has come to town, and from the end of the first week in May until the last week in sultry July, the London social season drags on. The fashionable west end is a riot of entertainments. Chief among these functions are the several Drawing Rooms held at Buckingham Palace, where wives and daughters of the socially elect are presented to royalty. Every woman in the front rank of British society goes through this ceremony at least once in her life.

Presentation at the Court of St. James, which is the most beautiful and brilliant in the world, is hedged about with much ceremony and difficulty. Every presentee must be vouched for by some lady who has herself passed the magic portals. A mother on presentation, may present with her a daughter or a daughter-in-law only. Every lady should be accompanied by her husband, if she has one, who must also be in court dress though he gets his presentation at a male affair, known as a levee. In due course the applicant, who has carefully rehearsed the ceremony under instructions, receives a card of invitation from the Lord Chamberlain.

Any handsome evening dress is permissible. An elderly or delicate woman is allowed to wear a high necked dress. But all dresses must have certain prescribed trimmings. A court train hanging from the shoulders and lying on the floor exactly 18 inches, three small snowy plumes in the hair, and a white tulle veil fastened to the back of the head and reaching to the knees, are imperative. Long white gloves and a fan or bouquet complete the costume. The lady must arrive at the palace in a limousine with, besides a chauffeur, a footman. By 8.30 p.m., while summertime London is still bathed in broad daylight, a long line of cars moves slowly up the Mall towards the Palace gates. After a weary wait, the presentee's car reaches the palace doors and she steps out into a portal blazing with light. Meantime the card of invitation which she holds has been carefully scrutinized.

Inside the hall she mounts a broad flight of steps, carpeted with crimson, and flanked by gorgeous guardsmen in crimson and blue and burnished cuirasses. Flowers are everywhere, women in glittering jewels and lovely dresses, men in Windsor uniforms or in knee breeches, silk stockings and buckled coats. Naval and military officers in dress uniforms, set off with decorations. In Queen Victoria's day, ladies had to stand in line, sometimes for hours, before reaching the throne, but now her train held carefully over the left arm, sits on one of the long cushioned seats provided.

Promptly at 9.30 writes an American senator's wife, who also presented last year, in Good Housekeeping, the King in the uniform of admiral of the fleet, wearing the Order of the Garter and of the Bath; the Queen in beautiful flame-hued tulle, with tiara and other ornaments of pearls and diamonds, and the Order of the Garter, arrives, and the band played the National Anthem. The procession is then formed, headed by their Majesties and preceded by the Lord Chamberlain and other officials carrying their staffs and office and walking backwards. A procession is made through the state rooms to the throne room where the gentlemen-at-arms were grouped as a guard around the two thrones. Here the King and Queen took their places.

First came the presentation of the diplomatic corps and official people from the embassies and legations and from their Majesties in the throne room—a throng glittering with beautiful jewels and silver lace and with spangled tulle, with decorations and orders of every country. Then began the general presentation. Across the throne room with its tapestried walls of gold and white, its lines of crimson seats, walks the procession of ladies, first of another door and up a long parallel outside passage toward a door which opens on the two crimson-covered thrones.

As each lady emerges here, two gentlemen-in-waiting take the train from each other's arms—and she realizes that the presentation is over. She is now free to join her friends, to admire the magnificent scene in which she is participating and to enjoy the exquisite, substantial dinner supper which is now offering but delightful experience has given her an appetite.

His Sister.

When Jimmy takes her out to ride,
Each corner is a twister.
He drives so fast he makes her sigh
And keeps both hands upon the wheel—
The lady is his sister.

When Coins Wear Out.

It is surprising to know that a finger passing over a coin actually reduces the weight of it. A wonderful electrical instrument known as the induction balance proves this to be a fact. When coins rub against each other in people's pockets and purses, drop on a counter or on the ground, and so on, they really wear. If you "ring" a coin to test its genuineness, you remove some of the metal of which it is composed. The smaller the value of the coin, the greater the wear, as it is in use more constantly. Experiments show that in a hundred years in the British Mint £100 worth of half-crowns lose £12 11s. 8d. of their value. The same sum in shillings would decrease in value by £26 14s. 1d.; whereas sixpences to the value of £100 would be worth less than half what they were originally, losing metal to the value of £59 15s. 8d. The loss in coinage value in Great Britain is estimated at £11,000 annually. When coins become very much worn, they are withdrawn from circulation.

Farmerettes Journey Across Desert.

A woman farmer in a lonely part ofo South Africa, Mrs. Ida Francis, has just shown that a pluck and endurance British women settlers are not behind the men.

About two months ago a cyclone devastated her farm, which lies behind the western fringe of the desolate Kalahari Desert; and then came floods which destroyed the food and shelter for her cattle. The only way to save her animals was to drive them 400 miles across the desert to another farm, and this she did, unaided.

She found that many of the waterholes in the desert had dried up, and sometimes she and to ward off attacks by lions with her rifle; but she kept steadily on, and in the end brought nearly all her charges through safely.

Insurance Day Reach $75,000,000.

When by December all soldiers' insurance policies are in the hands of the applicants, it is estimated that the insurance will aggregate $75,000,000, for a total of 32,500 policies. In the last four weeks, ending September 1, during which the applications were accepted, there were 12,500 demands for policies, aggregating $22,000,000 worth of insurance. The demands were largely for policies of $1,000 and of $2,000.

It was said at the soldier's insurance division of the D. S. C. R. that 75 per cent. of the large batch of applications had already been approved, and the remainder would be handled within the next two weeks. In only a very few cases, it was said, were the applications being found not to come within the regulations. It is hoped that every policy will be issued within the present month. All policies will necessarily be dated as from September 1 af the latest.

The R. C. Picnic.

The picnic held in the Driving Park on Wednesday afternoon, by the congregation of St. Patrick's Church, despite the threatening weather, was a most successful affair. Athletic sports and ball games featured the afternoon's programme. The soft ball game between Tweed girls and girls of St. Patrick's Parish, resulted in a victory for Tweed by the score of 12-2. The game between the married men and the single men was a winner. The married men lost, but they are not discouraged. A bountiful dinner was served from 4 to 6 o'clock. In the evening a dance was held in the Armouries, and was well attended.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Sarah Ackerman.

It is with much regret and sorrow that we report the death of Mrs. Sarah Ackerman, of Camden, at the age of seventy-six years, wife of the late James Ackerman, which occurred on the morning of July 25th. She was a lady much loved and very highly respected by all who knew her. For years she has been a great sufferer, but all was borne patiently. She was ever ready to help anyone in need, a most interesting friend and neighbour, a member of the Methodist Church. The funeral service was conducted by her Pastor, Rev. T. H. P. Anderson, at Selby, on Sunday afternoon, July 27th. The deepest sympathy is extended to the bereaved family. She leaves to mourn her loss five children, Mrs. Frank Clark, of Manitoba; Rufus, of Napanee; Schuyler, of Leland, and Charlie and Augusta, at home. She was pre-deceased by her husband and two children some years ago, Bruce, of Saskatchewan, and Mrs. Peter Lawson, of Vancouver.

CLERGYMAN ATTACKS O. T. A.

The following letter appeared in The Globe this week:

To the Editor of The Globe,—I appeal to the people to demand a sane temperance law. The O. T. A., till lately ruthlessly enforced by gun play, is not a proper solution of the liquor question. The O. T. A. is not a law of the Medes and Persians which cannot be changed.

I respectfully submit the following problems to the prohibitionists:

1. Prove that the prohibition act known as the O. T. A. did not defeat the Hearst Government.

2. Prove that extravagance and the despicable tyrannical acts of the Raney-Spracklin enforcement squad did not defeat the U. F. O. Government.

3. Prove that, while the Bible teaches temperance in all things — condemns drunkenness as a terrible sin—it teaches prohibition.

4. Prove that the slogan, "Banish the bar and save the boy" is a success when the vast majority of the criminals in the United States and Canada are mere youths. Would it not do more to save the boy to have more religion in the home—lessons in honesty, purity, goodness and truth for boys and girls? Religion in the homes, good literature, good company and clean sports as a program for boys and girls—carefully and prayerfully carried out might lessen the number of candidates for prisons.

5. Prove that prohibition prohibits when there is less drunkenness in Roman Catholic Quebec than in Protestant Ontario with its O. T. A. The deadly home brew and bootlegging products are responsible for a lot of drunkenness.

6. Prove that the O. T. A. is not a wretched piece of class legislation. The rich man has his cellar stocked with all kinds of liquor, while the poor workingman has to be satisfied with his two per cent. The workingmen's petition for a more palatable beer was met by a prompt refusal. The workingmen used their ballots, when the chance came, to overthrow the modern Pharisees in Queen's Park. They will now demand a sane temperance law.

7. Prove that the framers of this infamous O. T. A. did not see its injustice when, in order to enforce it, they trampled under foot a principle of British justice.

8. The murderer, adulterer, burglar, hold-up man and swindler are innocent in the eyes of the law till convicted in open court before Judge and jury. The person charged with a breach of this infamous O. T. A. is guilty and has to prove his innocence. Magistrates who often have little knowledge of law are endowed with this act with infallibility. There was not till lately a chance to appeal from the decision of this Magistrate. The victim can be sentenced to jail for an indefinite time.

9. Prove that it is not a sin against charity to denounce all who fail to see the supposed benefits of the O. T. A.

A lot of men and women voted for the O. T. A. in order to give it a chance to make good. They will now vote for it to be repealed and replaced by a sane temperance law.

The prohibition leaders know this, and for that reason are frantic in their efforts against a plebiscite in October. They know what the people did in other Provinces with the so-called prohibition acts. They are afraid of the defeat of their precious O. T. A.

People should demand a sane temperance law; a law which will not make the members of an honorable profession harkeepers—a law which will allow the proper use of liquor to reasonable and responsible people; a law which will drive the bootlegger out of his wretched business. A sane temperance law, backed by an overwhelming majority of the people, can be respected and enforced by the regular officers of the law.

Yours for temperance in all things.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir,—In your issue of The Beaver, dated August 22nd, you printed a letter that had previously appeared in the Toronto Globe, written by Rev. J. W. Forster, of Kingston.

Mr. Forster has asked proof for his problems that he has submitted to the prohibitionists of Ontario. Although he has asked proof for his questions, he has not proven that the O. T. A. is a menace to the people of Ontario.

I will try and answer Mr. Forster's questions to the best of my ability.

1. I do not believe that the O. T. A. was the cause of the defeat of the Hearst Government. It was the desire for a change and the unrest which followed the Great War. If it did cause the defeat of the Hearst Government, it was an honorable defeat.

2. Why did the people of Ontario put in office a second Government that would enforce the O. T. A., when that was the ground that the Hearst Government was defeated on, as Mr. Forster would have us believe ?

3. Mr. Forster needs to study his Bible and he will find proof for this question. "Woe unto him that riseth up early in the morning that he may follow strong drink."

4. Banish the bar and save the boy. Arrests for drunkenness decreased in Toronto by 66 per cent. from 1914 to 1921. I am quite sure that by giving the boy free access to strong drink would not produce such results. The O. T. A. is not hindering the teaching of religion, but is helping its progress.

5. Mr. Forster has stated that there is less drunkenness in Roman Catholic districts than in Protestant Ontario. This statement Mr. Forster cannot prove. There may be fewer arrests, but there is more drunkenness. I visited Quebec in 1923, and I can truthfully say that I saw more liquor and drunkenness in one hour in that province than I have saw in two years in Ontario.

6. The O. T. A. is not a wretched piece of legislation when it has benefited hundreds of working men and their families by providing food and clothing for them when the same money would have been spent for drink if it were procurable.

7. I do not believe that the framers of the O. T. A. ever saw any injustice by enforcing it. Nor can Mr. Forster or any one else truthfully say that they trampled under foot a principle of British justice.

8. The man who is under the influence of liquor would not have been arrested if he had been sober, while the bootlegger stands on the same footing as any other criminal. Therefore, justice is meted out to all.

9. Jesus criticised the people that were buying and selling in the temple because it was a sin. So I cannot see why it would be a sin to criticize those who are opposed to the O. T. A. if they should consider it a sin).

Only one arrest was made for drunkenness at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto, in an attendance of 1,372,500 people. These figures clearly prove that the O. T. A. has borne fruit.

The General Secretary of the Neighborhood Workers' Association, Toronto, a family welfare organization, gives the following figures in his annual reports :—In 1919, nine cases of need were due to intemperance, amounting to 1.17 per cent. of all cases. In 1920, the percentage was 1.27 per cent., whereas in 1921 and 1922 the percentage was .08 of cases of need. Previous to Prohibition, in 15 to 18 per cent. of families, the cause of poverty could be traced to intemperance. In the report this statement is made, "before prohibition came into effect, not only was intemperance a problem in itself but a factor in most of the other problems. To-day intemperance is practically a negligible quantity, as a cause of poverty."

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, in advance, I remain

Yours for faith in the O. T. A.,
EDGAR DREW,

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir,—Arrangements are being made to publish a "Book of Remembrance" in connection with the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the United Empire Loyalists held at Belleville last June, and an effort is being made to publish the book as extensive a list as possible of the names and addresses of descendants of the original United Empire Loyalists who are now living.

You will assist in this effort by sending to me the following information :

1. Names of all persons now living who claim to be descended from original United Empire Loyalists.

2. Their addresses.

3. Name of original United Empire Loyalist ancestor if you have it.

4. Any further information concerning Loyalist ancestor or family you may have.

By the Order-in-Council passed November 9th, 1789, the first and only attempt was made to create an hereditary title in Canada. By this Order-in-Council a "Mark of Honour" was conferred on the original United Empire Loyalists "and their posterity". It will therefore be a matter of importance in the years to come to have as exact a knowledge as possible of the United Empire Loyalists.

Mayor of Belleville,

NEWBURGH

The death took place of Mr. Marshall Peters, on Saturday, at the age of 82 years. Mr. Peters had been in poor health for some years, but was able to be around until a few months ago, when he had the misfortune to fall and break his thigh bone. This sent him to bed where he remained until his death. Mr. Peters lived on a farm in the 6th Concession of Ernestown, but came to Newburgh about four years ago. His father's name was Israel Peters; they were of U. E. L. stock. In 1875 he married Miss Brown, of Newburgh, who survives him. He is also survived by two brothers, one in Vancouver, and the other in Oregon, U.S.A. A sister also lives in Oregon. Some parties from Kingston have the contract of re-roofing the school building and church. The school building will be completed this week.

Dr. and Mrs. McPherson and family, of Ottawa, spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hartman. The whole party went to Beaver Lake for a day's fishing.

Miss Queenie Jerrell, of Chatham, is spending holidays with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Shorts.

William Kellar, of Detroit, son of P. N. Kellar, is visiting his aunt, Mrs. Maud Kellar.

Mr. Chas. Welbanks, our veteran mail driver, has gone to take in the Toronto fair and then on to see his grandmother in Simcoe Co. We hope that he will be able to come his visit so as to meet Admiral Field, in Toronto.

We are pleased to note the appointment of Miss Myrtle Perry to the position of Superintendent of Niagara-on-the-Lake hospital. Her sister, Miss Florence Pero, graduate nurse, Niagara Falls, Ont., hospital as nurse-in-training.

We notice a letter in last week's Beaver, over the signature of Rev. J. W. Forster, of Kingston, in which that gentleman is asking for proof of certain things as to the introduction and operation of the O. T. A. This is certainly a safe and rather cheap way of appearing wise. It would be quite within the line of his lead to ask him if he could prove that the moon is not made of green cheese. From the general trend of his letter, the Rev. gentleman must be a kind of pessimist. Perhaps aping Prof. Leacock.

For hard water washing— Sunlight!

YOU will find that Sunlight quickly softens the water as no other product can do. The dirt in your clothes will be easily dissolved by the natural cleansing oils in Sunlight, and you will not be annoyed by the dirt floating on the surface and clinging to the clothes as you remove them from the wash.

Sunlight Soap is equally successful in hard or soft water.

POISON IVY TIME ON HAND KEEP LOOKOUT FOR VINE

Gasoline First Aid—Usually Prevents Blisters From Spreading

"Leaves three, let it be."

General as that admonition may be, authorities agree that in the absence of real familiarity with the poison ivy plant, its observance would do away with the painful and sometimes serious effects of contact with this deceptively attractive vine. This is the season at which the rascally three-leaved ivy attains its fullest and most alluring luxuriance — and plays its worst havoc with those careless or unsuspecting ones who handle or touch it.

Poison ivy is found almost everywhere. It is encountered as far north as Nova Scotia, as far south as Florida and Texas, and as far west as Utah and British Columbia. It takes all positions. Sometimes it grows erect, as much as three feet high; often it is prostrate and trailing; still oftener it is climbing.

It runs profusely along fences and the edges of paths and roadways. It scrambles over rocks and walls. It climbs poles and trees, and mixes with other shrubbery so that it often escapes even of the traenid eye.

Three Leaves Tell Tale.

It may always be recognized, notwithstanding, by its leaves, which are divided into three leaflets, and, in some varieties, by its whitish, waxy fruits, which look somewhat like mistletoe berries. The Virginia creeper —as harmless as it is attractive—is easy to distinguish from the poison ivy, for the creeper always puts forth its leaves in clusters of five.

Poison ivy begins to blossom in May and June, putting out small yellow-ish green flowers, which are arranged in densely clustered spikes. Toward fall, at about this season, these flowers develop into smooth, white, waxlike berries that often last all winter, while the ivy leaves—shining, green, short-stemmed and oval-pointed — take on a rich bronze sheen that makes them doubly attractive.

Perhaps the best way to learn to recognize the plant unfailingly is to study the pictures which will be found in any good encyclopaedia or large dictionary. A few moments thus devoted may well save the investor as many days of acute discomfort.

The effects of poison ivy are first, a slight itching, then a reddening of the skin, which in turn develops into myriad small burning blisters. If the victim carries out his natural impulse to rub or scratch the reddened or blistered area, the skin is broken and the infection deepens and spreads. Not infrequently the result is a period in bed and a call for the doctor.

Areas Become Smaller.

Even when the results are less severe, the blisters may become extensive and the affected areas swollen. The infection is easily transmitted from one part of the body to another by means of the unwashed hands, the more serious results occur when it is carried to the eyes by hands which have been infected or which have touched affected parts.

Some persons are so sensitive to the poisonous exudate of the three-leaved ivy they are infected by contact with garments which have touched the plant. The oil is so persistent that shoes have been known to spread the poison a year after contamination. There have been many instances in which fires of grasses and ivy has carried the poison on the tiny particles of dust and produced infection. In the caves of Kentucky it has been infected merely from being in the vicinity of the plant without having touched it, experiments have shown that the poison probably was carried on dust blown from the leaves.

Medical literature shows there are more than 200 "remedies" and "cures" which at one time or another have been described as efficient. Some of them undoubtedly are; others probably are not. Some apparently are efficacious with some persons and not with others. In any event, prevention, or preventive measures, always are much more satisfactory than any cure, however efficient.

Gasoline "First Aid"

As a preventive, or "first aid" measure if it is suspected that one has been exposed, gasoline or benzine, rubbed on the skin, has been found to be an almost certain preventive. The poisonous oil is dissolved and removed entirely by a liberal application of either of these. The sooner it is applied after exposure the better, but it is declared to be efficient if used within four or five hours after irritation of the skin commences.

Beauty In Distress.

At a seaside concert some pretty girls were acting as attendants. One approached an old gentlemen.

"Shall I show you to a seat?" she murmured, with a bashful blush.

The old man stared at her, and the girl repeated her question, feeling rather abashed.

"Can I show you to a seat?" she said in louder tones.

"Eh, what—what?" exclaimed the old man, who was very deaf.

That finished the poor girl.

"Shall I sew you to a sheet?" she screamed wildly.

No More Peters.

There are more churches dedicated to St. Peter than to any other saint. But there has never been a Pope Peter! The custom, according to which popes change their Christian names on their elevation, was introduced in A.D. 884 by Peter di Porca. He felt that it would be presumptuous to have himself styled Peter the Second, so he took the name of Sergius the Unlucky. Following in the same line of sentiment, no pope has ever been named or assumed the name of Peter.

Kills and Cures.

Cocaine, which is filling our jails and making the tools of crooks the most pleasant, comes from the coca plant, whose dried leaves South American Indians carry about with them in little bags. These leaves are chewed much as we smoke tobacco, when they are on journeys, and are extremely sustaining. Cocaine taken in the form in harmless, and people would be content to chew the dried coca leaves instead of taking the concentrated form of the drug dry cell." no harm would be done.

GLOBE-TROTTING FEATS

WALKED AROUND THE WORLD TO WIN WAGERS.

Scot Travelled 50,000 Miles In a Kilt —Another Had to Wear Handcuffs Twenty-Two Hours a Day—A Seven Years' Tramp.

Nothing but an indomitable spirit of adventure could have carried William Campbell, ex-soldier of the Black Watch, on his 50,000-mile tramp "round the world in a kilt."

Through India and Australia, and many another land of our "far-flung" Empire, this gallant Scotsman swung his kilt to a jaunty stride. "At Tarsano, in Italy," he tells us, "I was arrested for doing an impromptu Highland fling in the street. In Ceylon I came near to being murdered at a religious festival, for people mistook me for a devil. In New Zealand a Maori Chief offered me a native bride in exchange for my costume."

But the brave Campbell brought his kilt safely back to his native heath.

It seems but yesterday that a man of mystery strode out of Trafalgar Square on a similar trip round the world, but in very different guise, for his face was concealed behind a black mask, and in front of him he pushed a perambulator. His journey was, it is said, undertaken to win a wager of £20,000, made by an American millionaire.

Still more exciting were the conditions under which Marius Bernstorf Schroder started from Copenhagen to make his way round the world, for the terms of the wager which Schroder set himself to win stipulated that he should carry no money in his pockets, and that he should wear handcuffs for twenty-two hours of each day. That he reached New York, in spite of his heavy handicap, we know, qualifying for his voyage from Liverpool by acting as stoker during his two free hours a day, but of his further wanderings there seems to be no record.

When, a few years ago, three Italians reached London on a similar circuit of the earth, they had a strange tale of adventure and tragedy to tell. When they started lighheartedly from Liverpo on their long journey there were seven of them. Their itinerary was one of 45,000 miles, mapped out by The Stone Geographical Society. They were to earn their living on the way, and their guerdon for completing the journey was to be $50,000.

All had gone merrily until they reached the Balkan States, where, more than once, they narrowly escaped death or capture by brigands. In Croatia one of the party fell over a precipice and died from the injuries he received; in Montenegro another died from bronchitis, the result of exposure and exhaustion; in Albania a third of their fellows was shot through the head by brigands; while the fourth succumbed to the attractions of Monte Carlo and refused to tramp another mile.

In August, 1897, an enterprising American, Mr. G. M. Shilling, left New York on a tramp round the earth for a wager of $5,000, the only stipulation being that he should neither beg nor borrow money. For seven years Shilling continued his tramp, covering 52,000 miles, from Asia Minor, Constantinople, and Egypt; and everywhere he reaped a rich crop of adventure, hardship, and danger.

But probably his most trying experience was during his long tramp from Adelaide to Perth over the untrodden ways of South Australia. Following the telegraph line, he trusted for his water supply to the Government tanks, which are often forty miles apart. One day he arrived at one of these tanks almost at the last gasp from thirst, to find that it was empty. He had no strength to walk another mile, and was resigning himself to death when a happy idea occurred to him. He cut the telegraph wires above his head, and after a few hours a party of engineers arrived to make the necessary repairs, and his life was saved.

When Johann Beck, a German, left Hamburg on a similar journey, he conceived the daring plan of walking across the Atlantic packed in a box and shipped as "goods." Buying a packing-case, six feet long, four feet high, and three feet wide, he lined the bottom with hay, put in four dozen pint bottles of coffee, a bottle of whisky, some chocolate, biscuits, and loaves; and, packing himself as closely as possible in the small space left, was duly "consigned" by a friend to New York in the Hamburg-American liner Palatia.

Unfortunately stormy weather prolonged the voyage from the usual ten or twelve days to fifteen, and when the stowaway was at last discovered and rescued from his cabined quarters he was found unconscious and in a terrible state of emaciation. He had been without food for nearly a day, and had suffered indescribable torture.

For a wager of $100,000 M. Georgescu, of Bucharest, undertook to walk through every country of Europe within a year, wearing the costume of a Roumanian peasant, taking no money with him, and no apparel other than that with which he started.

A fifteen-year-old boy, William E. Mason, left London in June, 1897, on a walking-tour of the world under much more exacting conditions, for all his raiment consisted of a suit fashioned from two penny newspapers. In this novel costume he quickly made enough money to purchase a more durable suit, and succeeded in reaching British Columbia, after a walk of 36,578 miles.

Miller's Worm Powders destroy worms without any ipconvenience to the child, and so effectually that they pass from the body unperceived. They thoroughly cleanse the stomach and bowels and leave them in a condition not favorable to worms, and there will be no revival of the pests.

DATES FROM SAHARA.

One District Supplies 12,000 Tons to Other Countries.

Now that railway trains are penetrating some distance into the Sahara and tanks have, once at least, crossed the rest of that great waste, Europeans and Americans are hearing more and more about the vast and mysterious region.

Among the surprises of which we read is that oases are not little green spots scattered at wide intervals in the vast waste of sand, but vale in the vast waste of sand, but quite large regions where the date palm flourishes. In one such district called Oned Ruhr, there are 50 oases each bearing 20,000 palm trees —a million and a half altogether. Besides feeding the people who live in their shelter, and the wandering tribes who tarry there to water their camels and obtain fresh provision for their journey, the railway carries away 12,000 tons of dates for the use of people in lands where the date palm does not grow. Not only food, but drink and material for clothing and shelter are obtained from the palm tree.

France, to whom Sahara now belongs, is cultivating palm trees, making artificial oases by sinking artesian wells. It is doubted whether such experiments can be carried on, except near the places where oases already exist, but no one can tell what can be done by the help of science and the time ever comes when the civilized world needs for the production of food this area of three and a half million square miles.

Motorists' Treacherous Foe.

Serious illness or death may result from allowing the automobile engine to run in a closed garage, while the owner is making adjustments, or driving closely behind a closed motor truck or bus. This is the warning given by Dr. L. S. Cotter, vice-president of the American Automobile Association.

Dr. Cotter cites the narrow escape from death resulting from carbon monoxide gas poisoning of two young men who were piloting an automobile float in a recent civic parade in Cincinnati. The parade was moving slowly and in close formation and the young men were enclosed in a specially built cab. The carbon monoxide gas fumes from the exhausts of the cars and trucks ahead resulted in both young men being hurried to the hospital for emergency treatment. Women on the float were affected by the gas to a milder degree.

"Poisoning from carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of the automobile engine is more prevalent than the average automobile owner appreciates," said Dr. Cotter. "Often motorists are affected and do not recognize that the symptoms of fatigue, headache, shortness of breath, dizziness and possible nausea result from carbon monoxide gas poisoning.

"The American Medical Journal quotes a report from the Ohio State Department of Health showing eighty-one cases of poisoning from the deadly gas from automobile exhausts, with thirty-four deaths, during the first two weeks of last winter.

"It is extremely dangerous to run the engine in a closed garage. With cool days approaching, the motorist will do well to avoid the too close contact with the confined fumes from the exhaust of an automobile engine.

Turtle's Bite Wrecks Auto.

When George Ardler, motor truck driver for a Pittsburgh concern, passed through Butler county, Pennsylvania, he had never met up with the 'possum and coon hunting known as a snapper. He saw one of the queer creatures at the side of the road and stopped and took it into the cab of his truck.

The snapper enjoyed the ride for a while, and then started to explore the floor of the cab. Taking a notion for fresh meat he fastened his beak in Ardler's ankle and held on. Ardler used some hot language and in his efforts to kick the snapper loose lost control of his truck, which was wrecked against the guard rail of a bridge and almost went into a creek.

When the turtle was pried loose from Ardler's leg he ambled off as though nothing had happened.

Doe Summons a Rescuer.

Reuben Johnston, of Caldwell, N.J., was summoned by a wild doe to rescue her fawn, which had been mired in the marshes two miles south of Pine Brook.

Johnston was in a rowboat on the Passaic river, fishing, when he espied the doe, apparently in distress, pacing the bank. When Johnston rowed close to shore the doe seemed to beseech him to follow her. Johnston, in his boat, followed the doe as she trotted along the bank until he came in sight of a clump of sweet of whisky, some chocolate, biscuits, and loaves; and, packing himself as closely as possible in the small space left, was duly "consigned" by a friend to New York in the Hamburg-American liner Palatia.

Unfortunately stormy weather prolonged the voyage from the usual ten or twelve days to fifteen, and when the stowaway was at last discovered and rescued from his cabined quarters he was found unconscious and in a terrible state of emaciation. He had been without food for nearly a day, and had suffered indescribable torture.

Sawdust as Food.

A chemical process for making sawdust into cattle food is being tried by chemists.

"You used to say you thought Hesven sent me to you," said the young wife, tearfully, during their first quarrel.

"And I say so still—"

"Really?" she exclaimed, delighted.

"Yes," he added, coldly, "as a punishment."

The September issue of Rod and Gun in Canada will appeal to every sportsman. A canoe trip through the Chain Lakes from Dartmouth to Shubenacadie, by R. G. BETHANY

A very severe electric storm and downpour of rain passed over here on Friday last. — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clarke, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bartley, also Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Keech at Jas. Davis', on Sunday. — Once again death has visited our little community and bereft it of a very much respected citizen, in the person of Mr. Henry Goodman. Although he had reached the ripe old age of eighty-four, he was always active, and his passing was a shock to all. — Mr. John Rumbly left on Friday last to spend some time in the Western Provinces.—Mrs. W. R. Miller is visiting her daughter in Syracuse, N.Y. —Mr. and Mrs. P. Seeley, of Bath, spent the week end at B. Hayck's.—Mr. Mac Cooper and mother, Desoronto Road, at Wm. Conger's, on Sunday.—The Ladies' Aid will meet at the home of Mrs. Arthur Dean, on Wednesday next, Sept. 3rd.

TRUE TO THE END

An old Jew was sinking fast. In feeble tones he spoke to his family round the bedside.

"Is Rachel there?" he asked. "Yes, dear, I'm here," replied his wife. "Is my son Solomon there?" "Yes, father." "Is Hyman there?" "Yes, father." "Is little Abbie there?" "Yes, father." "Is my daughter Leah there?" "Yes, father." "Are you all there, every one of you?" "Yes, father," came the chorus.

"Then who the deuce is looking after the shop?"

Lighting a Wet Match.

If your only wax match fails into a puddle just as you are preparing to light your camp fire you need not despair of striking it, even though it may have been in the water for quite a minute.

Take and dry it roughly on your handkerchief or coat and then stick it in your hair. Leave it there for a minute, and it will come out perfectly dry again.

Winter Flowers.

Before the frost nips them break off some branches of nasturtiums and put them in water for a week or two until tiny roots appear, then plant them in pots and keep them in the shade for a few days. Then put them in earth window, and they will grow and bloom all winter.

A Memorial.

"Won't you give me a kiss to remember you by?"

"You'll remember longer the kiss you didn't get," said the wise girl.

And he did.

Justice to the Soil.

We can well close this discussion with a statement published years ago by the Mr. Heard, for in it is the moving thought of all that has gone before. "In renting farms," wrote Mr. Heard, "there are three kinds of justice to be provided for: justice to the owner, justice to the tenant, and justice to the soil. Until these three are fairly considered in the bargain, there will be constant friction and dissatisfaction. * * * * It has well been said that the finest product of the land, whether it be corn, or pigs, is straight justice and common sense in all the relations of life."

The Lamb Market.

An investigation of the lamb markets was carried out by the Animal Husbandry Department, O. A. C., Guelph, and a study of the leading markets for the past twenty years. It is evident that the lowest prices occur in the month of June, July and November, and anything that can be done to spread the lamb marketing period over a greater part of the year would be of value to the producers.

Experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College, conducted within the past four years, show excellent results from seeding Sweet Clover alone in the month of June. The seeds go which took place later than July we've unsatisfactory.

Robbing Bank of Monte Carlo

It is by no means every visitor to the Monte Carlo Casino who is content to "play the game"—to take the normal chances of winning and losing—and the bank has occasionally suffered heavily from one or another of these unprincipled gamblers.

One day a "swell" nobleman, called Ardisson, with a female and two fashionably dressed women, took their seats, two on each side of a trente-et-quarante board. At the moment when the croupier was about to deal the cards one of the women dropped a rouleau of gold coins on the floor, where they rolled noisily hither and thither, creating a most unseemly diversion, and attracting all eyes from the cloth. Attendants gathered up the coins, and the game proceeded.

The disturbance caused by the rolling coins was quickly forgotten in the sensation which followed when the gambling at last began. Never was such luck witnessed at Monte Carlo, or, indeed, anywhere else. Staking the maximum each time on rouge or couleur, the quartette won every coup until, after less than half an hour's play, they "retired majestically," taking 180,000 francs (about £7,200) of the bank's money with them.

They entered a carriage waiting for them at the door of the Casino, and in a few minutes they were over the frontier. Horrified at such a heavy loss in so short a time, the umpires made an examination of the cards, and found that a specially shuffled pack had been substituted for the Casino pack—doubtless during the disturbance caused by the hunting for the fallen gold.

The croupier's complicity was obvious, even without his confession that he had been heavily bribed by Ardisson, and he was sentenced to a term of imprisonment. But of the 180,000 francs so cleverly filched from the bank not one was ever recovered.

In another case the fraudulent player fared less fortunately, thanks to the vigilant eyes of the croupier. Secreting himself in the rooms for the night, armed with a pair of pincers, he squeezed half the brass slides separating the numbers on the roulette wheel, so that the ball could not enter them; and on the following morning he began to play on the unsqueezed ones, with such success that by the time he adjourned for luncheon he had won over 100,000 francs.

When, however, he resumed play after the interval, with much larger stakes, he found to his surprise and consternation that his luck had deserted him. Angry and incredulous at his failure, he increased his stakes, losing every time, until at last he rose from the table, his last franc gone.

The croupier's suspicion being aroused by the man's extraordinary luck, he had taken advantage of his absence to inspect the wheel carefully. He quickly discovered the truth, and then dexterously reversed the process—the former winning numbers being losers, and the vice versa.

The bank has probably suffered almost as much from its own carelessness as from such felonious attempts to rob it.

One day a shabbily dressed old lady, who had been observed to win small amounts with rather surprising consistency, accosted the director of play, and asked, "How much will you/ give for the secret of an infallible system at roulette?"

"Nothing!" was the smiling answer. "We are not buying secrets to-day."

To which the old lady responded, "Ah, but m'sieur will be glad to purchase it some day. Bon soir!"

A few days after this conversation the director heard that the old lady, with three male companions, had just won 70,000 francs (£2,800), and that, strangest of all, they had only played for the maximum, and scarcely ever lost.

A week passed, each day adding enormously to the old lady's winnings, and three times the bank at the table where she played had been broken. At last, and after long haggling, the woman's secret was purchased for 70,000 francs—and it was cheap at the price.

She told us that, after same years at the table, she knew quite well that no system was infallible until of a sudden, when registering the numbers, she noticed that certain of them always followed each other. For days she watched this, then played and won.

"And why was it that these numbers turned up in sequence? Well, it was quite simple when madame showed us. The roulette wheel had become warped by the heat, and was not quite round. Hence, if it turned from a certain point it invariably stuck at a certain other point. Therefore the players never hesitated to risk a maximum."

Ancient Philosopher's Advice.

Many years ago there lived a wise man named Ptah Hetep. He was regarded as an ancient philosopher long before Tutankhamen was born. Some of his sayings or maxims are reported in a roll of eighteen columns of Egyptian writing of the twenty-fifth century, B.C., which is preserved in the Louvre, and is one of his letters to his son, Ptah Hetep says: "Do not argue with your superiors: it does not do any good. Do not argue with your equals: make a plain and courteous statement and contest yourself with that. Do not argue with your inferiors: let them talk and they will make fools of themselves."

Not for Pleasure.

Mrs. Gadsby: "Oh, no! I'm going out to my husband!"

"Woman" Was the Limit

The other day the words "lady," "female," and "woman" were used in a London police court, with the special meanings they possess in certain back-street controversies.

"It was like this," said the defendant. "She says to me, 'You're no lady,' she says, and I smiles contemptuous. Then she says, 'You're an outrageous female,' she says, and I lar's scornful-like. Then she says, 'You're a woman,' she says, and I let's her 'ave the soapsuds in her face. Ow'd you like to be called a woman, sir?"

Head of the House (in angry tones)—"Who told you to put that paper on the wall?"

Decorator—"Your wife, sir."

FEEDING FOR BACON.

Leave Litters With Sows for Eight Weeks—Selection as Important as Breed—Proper Soil for Feed in Winter.

At the Ontario Agricultural College all litters are left with the sow until they are eight weeks old. Skim milk and middlings are the main satisfactory feeds on which to start the newly weaned pigs. Rations are made up with the idea of promoting growth during the first four months by using growth promoting rather than fattening feeds until the pigs are five months old. Middlings, oats, milk, whey, tankage and clover are protein feeds and capable of building bone and muscle. When the pigs are well grown at five months old the ration is changed for the finishing or fattening period. Two-thirds barley and one-third finely ground oats along with skim milk has been highly satisfactory. Tankage up to 3 or 4 per cent. has been successfully and profitably used when skim milk was not available.

In the experimental feeding with swine at the Ontario Agricultural College it has been found that there is but very little difference in the cost of gain with the various breeds, but there is a difference in the grade of product, which means more money for the kind that grade "select." Four hundred pounds of meat or its equivalent produced one hundred pounds of gain in weight for four breeds in the test. In cheapness of gain the bacon breeds fully held their own.

Before it freezes up store a waggon load or two of good, tough, green sods away in the barn ceiling, pit or shed. Such will be very useful to toss into the pig pens now and again during the winter months. The pigs need mineral matter and this is an easy, cheap and efficient way to give it to them.—Department of Extension, O.A. College, Guelph.

In packing meat, put it in the brine skin side down, except the top layer, which should be turned skin side down.

CHECKS ON CHEQUES.

Expert Bank Clerks Can Identify Thousands of Signatures at Sight.

It will probably be a surprise to many to learn that there are hundreds of men in London alone whose sole duty is to examine cheques with the object of detecting forgeries. In every bank, in the city, there are half a dozen clerks who do nothing else, and who often examine as many as ten thousand cheques in a single day.

They not only scrutinize the signatures both of drawer and drawee, but also examine the "filling in," the latter being just as important—perhaps more important from a monetary point of view—than the signatures. As a matter of fact, the commonest forgery of which we have to deal is the "raising" of cheques bearing a genuine signature.

For instance, it is not difficult for a forger to raise a cheque from £5 to £5,000, for all he has to do is to erase the words "pounds," insert the word "thousand," and then add the erased word again.

It is marvellous what a vast number of signatures some clerks will carry in their mind's eye, enabling them to pass cheques by the thousand without once having to refer to the signature books. One clerk, who was on this duty a few years ago, knew perfectly the signatures of at least five thousand customers, and could detect the alteration of a stroke in any one of them in an instant.

More remarkable still, he recognized with equal facility the signatures of customers whose cheques only came in once or twice a year. But he made an art of his work, and most of his evenings were spent in studying signatures.

He was a wonderful hand at copying writing, and whenever a signature with which he was not acquainted came in, he would at once imitate it in his pocket-book, and by the next morning would be able to recognize it among ten thousand.

Each cheque received passes through the hands of each signature clerk in turn, and if one should pass a forgery or a "raised" draft, it is very unlikely that the entire staff would do so. All these cheques come through the clearing house, and if we should pass a forged draft and not find out our mistake before three o'clock in the afternoon our bank would be held responsible.

Another part of a signature clerk's duties is to see that no cheques are post-dated, as, of course, no drafts must be paid until they fall due.

Then, again, we are often notified that payment on certain cheques has been stopped, and the clerks have to be on the look-out for these—and it must be a very careless staff indeed that can let them slip by. Anything of this sort that goes through unchallenged means a bad mark against those in the future, and they feel its effects next time promotions or "rises" are being handed out.

Altogether, though the work is interesting, and even fascinating in a way, the responsibilities are so great that the effect on the nerves is often very trying.—Answers.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor of the Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir,—In the issue of your paper, August 22nd, you printed an article taken from The Globe of the same week, written by the (Rev.) J. W. Forster, of Kingston, under the caption "Clergyman Attacks the O. T. A." The appearance of this article seems to advertise a position taken by a few of the Clergy and some others that the O. T. A. has to be ended and that it doesn't matter much what kind of argument is used so long as it succeeds. I, too, am a Clergyman, or at any rate a Minister of a Non-conformist Church, and I would deeply appreciate it if you would publish a few remarks, intended to offset some of the fallacies of Mr. Forster's argument. I am quite persuaded that it has never been possible to make society good by laws placed on the statute books whether they be moderately observed or ignored, and I gratefully admit and defend the real truth embodied in Mr. Forster's question in Sec. 4. But it is very hard to see what is being accomplished by the different challenges to the prohibitionists,—"prove so and so".

Re Sec. 1.—I would like to know what it could mean as an argument against the O. T. A. if it could be proven that that instrument did defeat the Hearst Government? Perhaps someone can prove that it did. I don't know. But supposing he succeeded, would he prove that the O. T. A. as a piece of legislation is wrong or immoral? Or would he merely establish that a majority of those voting in this province disliked Mr. Hearst because of the O. T. A.? Where is the significance of asking the prohibitionists to prove the relation of the O. T. A. to the downfall of past legislators?

Re Sec. 2.—What can you gain for the moral rightness or wrongness of the O. T. A. by proving that the "Despicable tyrannical acts of the Raney-Spracklin enforcement squad did defeat the U. F. O. Government?" It may or may not be true, but wherein lies the value of proof? Let me point out that it is the nature of law to be legalistic and liberal, and that when Mr. Spracklin undertook to enforce the O. T. A., he was only discharging his personal responsibility as an officer of the law. The trouble was with the man —he really did what the law expected him to do, but he did it in a society that did not take the law seriously. Mr. Spracklin found out that after all there is only one way to have laws enforced and that is by having the people regard them. But be it noted, the fault was not his, and note also that you can't condemn the laws because they aren't observed. You must prove that any particular law is not for the good of society as a whole. The burden of proof does not rest upon the prohibitionists.

Re Sec. 3.—Mr. Forster brings forward the Bible. "Prove that it teaches prohibition." One thing I know is, he can't prove it doesn't. But why prove it? Is religion and Christian Spirit progressive or static? Is Jesus Christ the Christ of the 1st century and not of ours also? What about slavery and polygamy? What does the Bible teach? I know men, Christian Ministers, living now, who fought with the South in the American Civil War to defend slavery, but no man dare take that position to-day. Mr. Forster's argument can be used to defend queer family relationships if applied to Polygamy, but who dares apply it? Why then do we countenance statute laws which forbid these practises if we have not express Biblical sanction? Of course if some people want things they want them in spite of Bible, Religion or Law, and that's all there is about it.

Re Sec. 4.—I can't refute off hand that "the vast majority of the criminals of the United States and Canada are more youthful" but I have mental reservations. I have visited Juvenile courts and prisons in this country during the year, and what I saw and heard disproves any such sweeping statement. I did learn, moreover, that in very many of the cases of juvenile delinquents, their misdemeanors are blamable to parents who drink. Suppose, however, that the statement of Mr. Forster be true, can he hope to convince people that laxer prohibition laws will make fewer youthful criminals? Since when?

Re Sec. 5.—Let anyone who can prove that "there is less drunkenness in Roman Catholic Quebec than in Protestant Ontario with its O. T. A." It can't be done. Evidently the writer of that article is not conversant with the facts of drunkenness and consequent immorality in certain sections of Montreal, which city alone is worse than any other place its size on this continent. Readers of the Ladies' Home Journal know that.

Re Sec. 6.—No one desires to prove that the O. T. A. is not class legislation. It is. So are nearly all laws, and in the same sense. It is impossible to have it otherwise until we have a social order desiring and demanding the highest social benefits. What of immigration laws, juvenile laws and trade Union issue? Shall we do away with them? It's pure nonsense to speak of a particular law in this way so long as we are members of society amenable always to rules which are designed to benefit society as a unit.

Re Sec. 7.—Let me remind you that there is an abundance of sterner examples of "British Justice" in existence, than the one which gives the Englishman the right to have his beer. Really I hardly know what to make of "British Justice" when so associated.

Re Sec. 8.—The writer here seems to have recovered his sense of literal legalism which he had lost in Sec. 2. Remember I am not defending the O. T. A. as a perfect legal instrument. But I do believe it is more effective as a prohibitory law if enforced than any other we have had.

Re Sec. 9.—Yes, I do think it a sin to denounce all who fail to see the benefits of the O. T. A. real or imagined. Readers of the former article will have observed, however, that the virtue of charity is not universal even among those who oppose the O. T. A., and that an argument which merely beclouds any issue, is quite as much a sin as lack of charity.

Thanking you heartily for valuable space, I remain yours for a better and purer social order,

W. R. McWILLIAMS.

Yarker, August 25th, 1924.

THE RIGHT TIME.

When You Do a Thing And How You Do It.

Asked to state what was meant by "the psychological moment," a boy replied that it meant "the right time." True! And, to carry the definition further, the "right time" is that when all the conditions, human and otherwise, are favorable.

For instance, although this is a matter of well-worn humor, the psychological moment, the right time for a young man to approach the father of a marriageable maiden is when the old man has just had a good dinner, plumbed himself into an easy-chair, and lighted his pipe.

Some people have an uncanny gift of being able, as they go through life, always to spot the all-important psychological moment. A tremendous asset! It means—as commercial travellers especially would agree—not only a greater chance of success, but also that no feeling of antagonism is aroused.

Those who cut in at the wrong time not only fail to get what they want at the moment; they handicap themselves for the future. For example: If a busy man has a rule of going to lunch punctually at one, three minutes to the hour is not the psychological moment to approach him on a business matter. If you do it you antagonize him. Next time you come he'll remember that you worried him once at the wrong time.

If you've the gift of being able to spot the psychological moment, be thankful. If you haven't, set yourself to acquire it. Common sense is the first essential.

How to tackle is good, but when to tackle is better. Next, cultivate the gift of quick facial judgment. If, in all innocence, you've cut in at the wrong time, that fact will exhibit itself on the face and sometimes in the manner of the man on whom you have called. Then "get out," and quickly, with a short and smoothing apology, so that antagonism may be avoided.

The Last Match.

A man never craves for a smoke so much as when he is reduced to his last match.

When his matchbox is full he will let many a precious hour go by and wantonly neglect his opportunities. He may have as many as fifty or a hundred matches in his possession, yet he never thinks of taking out his pipe and having a good smoke.

It is only when he is down to the last match that he says to himself: "I'll have a pipe."

He fills up, produces his matchbox, and fishes out the last match. In nine cases out of ten—the world of smokers may be appealed to on this point—the last match is an absolute duffer, a cripple, a mere stump. Either it is all head and no stick, or else it is all stick and no head.

All day long the friends who dipped into this matchbox took good care to leave that wretched stump severely alone. They went for the healthy, full-grown, adult matches, and with distressing unanimity put that miserable cripple on one side for you.

And dutifully you do it.

The thing goes out, although you take every precaution. You are as solicitous to cherish the flame of the match as ever a mother was for the life of her child.

You stand in a sheltered doorway, you make a shield with your hands, you wait until the wind ceases, then you strike.

The feeble thing gives up the ghost after an ineffectual splutter, and you are left in the empty street with a choice but unglowing pipeful between your teeth and the match famine ravaging your heartstrings.

Cards and Courtships.

Visiting cards originated in China, and were in use in the Celestial Empire, more than a thousand years ago. From very ancient times to the present day, the Chinese have observed the strictest ceremony with regard to the paying of visits. The cards which they use for this purpose are very large and usually of a bright red color. When a Chinaman desires to marry, his parents intimate the fact to a professional "matchmaker," who thereupon runs through a list of her visiting acquaintances, and selects one whom she considers a fitting bride for the young man. She then calls upon the young woman, armed with the bridegroom's card, on which is inscribed his ancestral name and the day of his birth. If the answer is an acceptance of his suit, the bride's card is sent in return; and, should the oracles prophesy good concerning the union, the particulars of the engagement are written on two large cards tied together with red cord.

Street Gold Tooth Vendor.

The gold tooth craze has struck certain Asiatic villages and towns. A traveller records having seen a gold tooth vendor sitting on the side of the street with moulds of different sizes lying loose in a box before him. These are slipped on over sound teeth and worn as ornaments. Prospective customers fit the moulds on their own teeth and watch the effect in a small mirror provided by the tooth merchant. When a fit is found, or a tooth that suits a special fancy, bargaining commences and lasts for an indefinite time. If an agreement is reached, the customer pays down and goes away with his new possession in his mouth. If no trade is made the tooth is thrown back into the pile and held for the next customer.

What Cromwell Had.

The brilliant French critic, Henri de Régnier, was criticising, at a Greenwich Village reception, the people of Sherwood Anderson, Theodore Dreiser, Floyd Dell and other writers of frank books. "It isn't," he said, "the frankness of your writers that I dislike. It's their crudeness, their amateurishness. Much of their work, in fact, is on a par with the schoolboy's essay on Cromwell that began: 'Oliver Cromwell had an iron will, an unsightly wart and a large red nose, but underneath was deep religious feelings.'"

A new line of Toilet Preparations, (Face Powder, Compact, Perfume, Cream, etc.), that has achieved a tremendous success, is Conde' glo d'or. It is being shown in leading drug stores all over Canada. Napanee, at Wallace's. We invite your inspection.

WOMEN'S WAYS

Another English Novelist Attempts an Explanation.

"All human being are strange, but less can be understood if we will put ourselves in their place," says Mr. W. L. George in the Royal Magazine. "If women sometimes understand men better than men do women, it is because they make more effort while most men are too lazy to ask themselves what they would feel if they were in the woman's position. They just shrug their shoulders, say, 'Oh like a woman!' and leave it at that. If he no wonder, then, that they hold fast to see what is passing in woman's mind.

Often we come to women's attitude clothes we strike a vital part of the subject. A popular society man said to me: 'That woman is well dressed. She has got it and wears it with ease. It is a glorious green. To be well dressed a woman must wear an unobtrusively glorious color.' Complicated, but all women understand; and perhaps I do a little, too.

"The same woman suggested to me: 'Clothes classify women.' I underclothes show that she aspires to affection; boots and shoes that she desires respect.' Of the one whose clothes are good throughout she said nothing; she must have a wonderful head of hair. This lady was rather unkind to women, and it was she who made me think: 'Only those energies of time and quite women can admire for their beauty in their own sex.' Indeed two pretty women must be rivals; if they didn't struggle for us a little they would be unnatural. Indeed beauty in their own sex." Indeed two pretty women must be rivals; if they didn't struggle for us a little they would be unnatural.

"It was a man who suggested to me that: 'Love though blind is not indiscriminate; it is not dumb, and once speech to conceal the truth.' Women complain equally of his silence and of what they can never close their ears while he chooses to sing. I am thinking now of a middle-aged woman, long past the gentle passion, whose chief delight was to make marriages. She had a way of her mind when I say. 'Romance is woman's compensation for the coldness of life.'

"This naturally does not apply to all women; it does not entirely apply to the energetic girls who are out for making their own career. These are as liable to fall in love as the old-fashioned women, but when they do it is not always a success. I am thinking of one who, rather loved a married architect-civil engineer and gave up her own work, a prosperous typewriting office, to be his wife. I happy, and I sum her up by saying: 'Only a great love can compensate a woman for the loss of a freedom which she has enjoyed.'"

Fireflies.

The statement that the light of fireflies and other phosphorescent insects is produced without any appreciable degree of heat has often been repeated, although no investigation of the actual amount of heat that would be required to produce a similar amount of light by artificial methods, for such information is supplied by Prof. Macintosh. He says that a temperature approaching 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit would be necessary to make a light equivalent to that emitted by an ordinary firefly. The enormous waste of energy in all industrial methods of producing light is a matter of common knowledge, and the example of the firefly remains unimitated by man. The very simplicity of the mechanism employed by nature in phosphorescent insects is baffling.

Effect of Water Shed.

A curious result of a study of the Blue Ridge mountain region in North Carolina and Virginia is the showing that the Atlantic is slowly gaining some of the waters that have hitherto flowed into the Mississippi. This arises from the fact that the Blue Ridge, instead of being a crest with strong slopes on each side, is an escarpment separating a mountainous upland on the southeast, and the high-level head waters of the streams that flow to feed the Mississippi are constantly losing length by the retreat of the escarpment, through the retrogressive erosion of the lower headwaters of the Atlantic-seeking streams. From a practical point of view, of course, the change is very slow.

Star Near Earth.

The star Alpha Centauri, one of the nearest to the earth, consists, as by telescope shows, of two suns, one of which is five or six times brighter than the other. Dr. Silberstein of Roberts at the Cape of Good Hope Observatory led to the conclusion that the two components of Alpha Centauri, much as they differ in brightness, are really much the same as our sun. It seems to follow from these facts that one of those twin suns is losing its light and that in course of ages may become only a gigantic opaque planet, while its companion will continue to blaze with solar splendor.

Didn't Need Nerve Tonic.

"You are in a very bad condition," said a physician to a weak-looking patient. "Just take this prescription to the chemist. It will cost you a dollar." "Thanks," said the patient, "but you might lend me the money." The doctor, in amazement, took back the prescription, and made out a fresh prescription. "Take this one," he said. "It will cost you a quarter; the other prescription was for your nerves."

Father (to Sammy, coming home in bedraggled condition) : "Great Scott! how you do look!"

"Yes, pa, I fell in a mud hole."

"What! and with your new pants on, too?"

"Yes, I didn't take time to take them off."

CRADLES OF GENIUS

HUMBLE HOMES WHICH GAVE BIRTH TO GREAT MEN.

Where Was Shakespeare Born?—Robert Burns' Birthplace Was Near Ayr—Thomas Carlyle First Saw the Light of Day at Ecclefechan—Inventor of Spinning-Mule.

I have a great respect for intellect; Indeed, I am what Carlyle would style a "hero-worshipper." So I frequently visit the birthplaces of those who have become famous, or of the elect, says a writer in Answers.

Foremost among them, of course, is "The Birthplace" in Henley street, Stratford-on-Avon, in which it always has been assumed Shakespeare was born, April 23rd, 1564, which is also "St. George's Day."

But there are those who question the right of the house in Henley street to be styled Shakespeare's birthplace. No documentary evidence ever has been produced to back up the tradition. And the actual birthplace of most historical persons must often be merely a matter of tradition, because before compulsory registration no birthplaces were recorded.

In the year of Shakespeare's birth the plague was raging at Stratford-on-Avon. At that time a John Shakespeare, of whom nothing is known before or after, was living at the village of Clifford Chambers, two miles distant, in a picturesque cottage now known as the "old Rectory." Those who are disposed to criticise "the birthplace" in Henley street believe that the John Shakespeare, temporarily of Clifford Chambers, was identical with the father of William. They hold that he took his wife out of the plague-stricken town, and that in the "old Rectory" in this village the poet and dramatist was born.

No doubt, however, attaches to the birthplace of Robert Burns, who was born, on January 25th, 1759, at Alloway, some two miles south of Ayr, in the little thatched cottage yet standing by the roadside.

This humble little dwelling was built by the poet's father with his own hands. In after years it became an inn, but it was eventually purchased by the Trustees of the Burns' Monument at Ayr, who demolished all later additions, and restored the cottage to its original appearance.

The interior is characteristically humble, of the old peasant type, and much of the furniture consists of genuine Burns' relics.

The birthplace of Thomas Carlyle, at Ecclefechan, is not quite so humble, but it also was built by the writer's father, though in this case aided by his uncles.

The name "Ecclefechan," it may be noted, means the "Church of St. Fechan," a seventh-century saint. Here Carlyle was born, December 4th, 1795, as a tablet on the house-front duly records. Locally, the dwelling is known as "the Arch House," from the archway connecting the back. It is now a Carlyle museum. The philosopher died in 1881, and lies in the churchyard close by. The relics of him in the house are simple personal articles, such as his pens and blankard, and a walking-stick. I have had the latter on my hand, and, although this is approximately twenty years since, the relic's hot "bonnetted" me, coming down on my knees.

Samuel Crompton, inventor of the spinning-mule, was born at Firwood, near Bolton, Lancashire, on Hall-i'-th'-Wood, not far distant. There, in a dilapidated old house, lived the widowed Mrs. Crompton and her son. She eked out the proceeds of a small farm by spinning yarn by hand. The boy helped in the spinning, but his mind revolted from the drudgery, and he followed up Hargreaves' spinning-jenny and Arkwright's improvement by his own epoch-making invention.

He sold his idea, however, for a miserable pittance, and thus benefited little by his invention. Ultimately, however, he received a grant of £5,000, and with it established business in a bleaching business. This failed, but friends secured a subscription, which gave him an annuity of £63. He enjoyed this trivial sum but two years, and died, in 1827, aged seventy-three.

How Music Affects the Heart.

Various are the emotions which different strains of music arouse. There is that martial ardor which stirs to battle, the merry tune of the dance, the solemn measure which depresses. Science has discovered that it is all due to a little gland situated at the base of one's brain, and it controls the rhythmic beating of the heart. It prevents—and other organs of the body—from racing, or working irregularly. Martial music excites the Englishman very much as it inspires the gland manufactures and sends into one's blood more than the normal amount of fluid. It is this fluid that controls the speed of the heart, and with the same amount one's heart beats much faster, giving one that exhilarated military feeling. Another type of music acts on the pituitary gland in just the opposite way—it slows it down, with an accompanying depression or sadness.

Out of Bacon Again.

An old negress went to a governor of Tennessee and said: "Massa, my mighty poor this winter, and Ah wish you'd please send me one mo' husband." "What was he put in for?" asked the governor. "Stead of workin' fo' it he went an' stole some bacon." "If he's good for nothing why do you want him back?" "Well, you see, we's out o' bacon again."

AIRPLANES MAY AID ELOPERS

Science Seems to Have Given Sweethearts Another Way to Trick Their Irate Parents.

Will modern lovers elope by air?

It is on record that at least one enterprising couple have made such an attempt. Unfortunately the plan was nipped in the bud owing to unforeseen circumstances. But there is little reason to doubt that before long aerial Don Juans will soar away with their fair burdens.

It is interesting to recall the various means of effecting elopements. They are as old as time. First they took place on foot with perhaps the aid of a rowing boat to help cross a river. Horses, too, were in great demand and many a happy maid rode pillion snatched away from under the very eyes of her irate parents. Later came the coach to aid Romeo and Juliet and what a gallant "my love against the world" air it added to the romance. Trains and automobiles have also played their part in "love's young dream," but the future "stunt" will be to elope by airplane.

The airplane wooer will have to be on his guard against the vigilance of the law which has already found the flying machine useful in the execution of justice. Thus a policeman in Los Angeles attempted to arrest a Japanese aviator for debt. The man promptly flew off while the policeman gave chase in an automobile. The pursuit continued until the aviator was compelled to come down through lack of gasoline.

A somewhat similar occurrence took place in Florida. A negro servant in a fashionable hotel stole a very valuable brooch. He ran away but detectives discovered, by means of wireless, that he was on board a ship off Bermuda. The vessel was delayed a few days off the coast while it was decided to bring him back by hydroplane, the machine being offered by Harold McCormick. The owner, accompanied by a detective, acted as pilot. In a few minutes they were alongside the ship, the thief was arrested and taken back a prisoner.—Sydney Levy in the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Caught 28,000,000 Fish.

Fishing is not like farming. The farmer can reckon pretty well what his crops are going to yield, but the fisherman merely guesses.

Our East coast fishermen, for instance, guessed that they would be visited in the middle of last September by herrings. But the herrings did not come, according to London observers. Then, when all hope had been relinquished the herrings turned up one day—exactly 28,000,000 of them.

Perhaps the late summer had made them lose count of the calendar and delay their visit.

Fishermen who had been looking glum returned with beaming faces. Three hundred and fifty drifters, after dreary days of waiting, came back with lords averaging 80 crans each—that is, 80,000 herrings. Some boats had more, one bringing in 100,000 fish. The total fish landed in one day equaled 28,000,000, with millions more to follow.

Herrings, like swallows, have their migrating periods. The swallows fly south, but the poor herrings—or a goodly portion of them—are cooked and eaten.

Asleep.

The Woman at service could not resist the temptation of watching a man on the opposite side of the church who had fallen asleep during the middle of the sermon. He did not snore or create any disturbance, and he looked so comfortable and peaceful that his neighbors smiled at each other indulgently and did not rouse him.

The Woman speculated a little on how and when he would wake up. When she had worked it out to her own satisfaction she again bestowed her attention on the sermon, still keeping half an eye on the man asleep.

At the close of the sermon, when the congregation knelt, the man evidently sensed the stir around him as that of the audience departing. He stood up quickly, grabbed his hat and overcoat and started to make his exit. Then he did wake up.—Chicago Journal.

One on Him.

The telephone bell at police headquarters jangled sharply.

"Police headquarters," answered Fred Loucks, operator.

"Where?" asked a surprised voice over the wire.

"This is the police station," informed the operator.

"Well, my name is Jones and I'm stopping at the Claypool hotel. Some one left word for me to call Mr. Cell at Main 1750. Is he there?"

"Yes, we have several Mr. Cells here," replied Loucks, "but their language is a dead one."

"That's one on me, old timer," retorted the inquirer, as he hung up.

A few days ago, Mr. Loucks said, a sweet voice inquired whether Mary could answer the phone.—Indianapolis News.

Finds It Hard to Collect.

Lending money to kings is an experience which Mrs. Roberta Menge Hill Youtz, formerly of Brooklyn, but lately of Paris, declares is exciting, but not altogether profitable. She arrived in New York from Paris bent on visiting the American State department to seek aid in collecting 2,000,000 francs, which she says she loaned Prince William of Wied, who occupied the throne of Albania for seven months before the war.—Minneapolis Journal.

An Oil Without Alcohol.—Some oils and many medicines have alcohol as a prominent ingredient. A judicious mingling of six essential oils, compose Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, and there is no alcohol in it, so that its effects are lasting.

HOUSING AN EMPIRE.

From a Royal Palace to a Parkside Lodge.

His Majesty's office of works conducts what is far the most extensive estate agency business in the world. Its interests extend to the uttermost parts of the earth, for in every place where there is a British embassy, legation, or consulate it is the duty of the office of Works to see that the building is kept in proper repair.

At home the office of Works has to see that all Government buildings, which include court-houses, prisons, and the London Law Courts, as well as all Government offices and the residences of certain of His Majesty's Ministers, are maintained in good condition. In addition, the Office of Works is responsible for all the royal palaces, parks, and forests.

There is never a day of the working week that the employes of this gigantic estate business are not at work on some of the many buildings that are national property. Now a small repair to the roof of a lodge in Hyde Park may be in question, or again, extensive works may be in progress at a cost of £100,000 or more.

The value of the property under the care of the Office of Works runs into hundreds of millions. In the conduct of its business abroad the Office of Works has a vast correspondence, legations, etc., rented and owned by His Majesty, are duly reported and properly carried out, but it has to see that there buildings are supplied with the proper quality of furniture.

Any item of furniture so supplied has to be marked with a broad arrow and the royal cypher, G. R.

Brands for making this impression on furniture can only be obtained from the Office of Works in London. These brands are constantly being sent out to British consulates in all quarters of the globe.

The care of the property of His Majesty's Government abroad involves the Office of Works in an immense volume of correspondence, sometimes of rather an amusing kind.

If any furniture at any British Mission abroad gets damaged it cannot be replaced by the officer in charge of the Mission without the consent of the Office of Works at home, unless the officer chooses to replace it at his own expense, and then he may, or may not, get the money so expended refunded to him.

In this connection a story is told of a certain Consul abroad. Rather to the surprise of his friends at home, he suddenly began to grow a beard. Which did not particularly become him. When asked for an explanation that the wind had blown the looking-glass in his bed-room off its mounting-table, and that it had been smashed.

"When they allow me at home to buy another I shall do so," he said, "but we would add significantly, "then I'll begin to shave again."

Eight months later he received permission to replace the mirror at the expense of His Majesty's Exchequer, and once more appeared clean-shaven.

Teachings of Confucius.

Two of the three religions of Japan, Confucianism and Buddhism, came into the country some four hundred years before King Alfred was holding sway in England, while less interdicting them was the reverence of nature and of Ancestors called, in contrast to the other two, "Shinto-ism" or "Way of the Gods."

Confucianism is, strictly speaking, not a religion. There is no God, no temple, no ritual, no prayer. It is a system of ethics, which adapted to Japan's peculiar circumstances, entered in loyalty to lord and sovereign, and produced a soldier class whose moral standards became the standards of the whole people in large part. Another system was that which contributed most to the early Christian Church, and it is in this class that the leaders of the church is found to-day. The ethical code of former days is not applicable in many ways to modern conditions, but it has the merit of being strong and inflexible human. Twenty-five years ago, says a missionary, I read to a Japanese Confucian scholar, who had never read the Bible, the whole of the Sermon on the Mount. His comment was a gladly assent to that teaching, for it is the very record with the teachings of Confucius."

Why Mint With Lamb.

Mint, which is so much favored when mutton is on the table, apparently the only one left of the bitter herbs ordered to be eaten with lamb at the Jewish passover and recorded in Exodus XII:8. "Thou shalt eat the flesh roast with bitter herbs." This was a commandment connection with the feast of the Passover, and is the only record of invariable accompaniment to the Passover lamb. The lamb is not a mere dish like the turkey at Christmas, but actually stands for the sacrificial lamb of old days. It is possible that it has been retained when so much has been dropped, simply because mint is a wholesome and easily digestive, happens to be the best herb to bring out the flavor of the new potatoes and peas with which our lamb is generally eaten.

Not Without Friends.

Sir J. C. Percy tells this one. A prisoner charged at the Cork assizes charged with a serious offense. He was not professionally represented, but the presiding judge in the case the judge addressing him, said: "This is a very serious offence you are charged with, and if you are convicted it means a long term of imprisonment. Have you no counsel or solicitor to look after your defense?" "Sure, I have the most confidential man in the world," he replied, "No, my lord, I have no counsel, but I have a friend outside and I am pleased to be able to inform your lordship that I have some very good friends on the jury." — London Tatler.

HUGE POWER OF LIGHTNING.

Flash During Thunderstorm Greater Than Anything Produced by Man.

When a great storm is raging, with flashes of lightning illuminating the air, and thunder crashes deafening our ears, we realize something of the stupendous power of electricity.

If a cat's back is rubbed in the dark during hot, dry weather, sparks will fly from it. They are perfectly harmless, though they are identical with lightning flashes, and the crackling that accompanies them is thunder on a small scale.

In a thunderstorm the earth represents your hand and the clouds are the cat's back. The pressure that causes a flash of lightning may be as much as 1,000,000,000 volts — that is, 5,000,000 times greater than that which is used for household lighting.

Could we collect and harness the power set free by a single flash of lightning, we should have at our disposal a force greater than anything that can be produced by man.

In a famous scientist's laboratory in Pittsburg was tried of producing a million-volt spark. It leaped a ten-foot gap with a noise like the explosion of a bomb and came near to wrecking the entire building. This is the highest pressure that has so far been produced artificially.

Most of the lightning in a thunderstorm does not come near the earth, but flashes from cloud to cloud. Occasionally a fork from a cloud darts to earth and then anything in its path is destroyed.—London Tit-Bits.

Valuable Tire Hints.

Put your spare worn tires on the front wheels and always put the new ones on the rear wheels. The principle of tire rotation, if strictly followed, will increase the tire mileage at least fifty per cent. Careful tests have proven this.

The service which tires are called on to give on the front wheels is much less severe than on the rear wheels. Tires, nearly worn out in service on the rear wheels will run for hundreds of miles more and often thousands, if transferred to the front wheels.

The chief objection to rotation of tires comes from motorists who use non-skid tires on the front wheels only. They find the non-skids on the rear wheels make the steering more difficult. The steering is a matter of practice, however, and much experience will be saved if the plan is tried.

Because they stay up is no reason for neglecting the state of your tires. Most drivers pay little attention to their tires and give them attention through all sorts of difficulties, without regard to the effect on their tires. Tires need regular attention as well as the motor. They must be kept in proper condition if they are to give satisfactory service.

Tires should be inspected at regular intervals for cuts, bruises and other injuries. Cuts and bruises should be repaired immediately. Nails and glass are responsible for many punctures and blow-outs. Tires should be washed regularly. Gashes and cuts, made by sharp stones or trolly crossings, should be cleaned and filled with gasoline and repaired as soon as possible.

Look for tires defects regularly, make a habit of this and you will add many miles to your tire record and obtain full service from your tires. In the list of materials to meet temporary emergencies while on the road are preparations for stopping and closing surface cuts on casings and tubes, tire gauge and inside patches for weak spots in carcass and outside laced sleeves for holding temporary blowouts in check.

Some Peculiar Newspapers.

In Germany before the world war a postcard newspaper was issued, the print of which was so small that a hundred pages had to be used to master its contents; while in 1813 appeared the first number of Bethodi's Pebbled Handkerchief, a newspaper printed on calico to evade the stamp duty. The news-sheet measured 18 inches by 11 inches and sold for eight cents. A similar sheet was printed in Greenock in 1849. It was known as the Greenock News Cloth, and the letter advised its readers to use it as a pocket handkerchief when read!

Some years before the war the Journal des Dames appeared in Paris. Its prospectus declared that it filled a "long-felt want," and that it would be "a friend and counsellor to the ladies, who will keep their keys fit, and to all who worry, impatient, or worn out, wrongly believe that they have lost the use of their limbs beyond recovery." It went on to say: "This journal will deal with all the medical, surgical, chiropodistic, sporting, or other questions relating to the human key of either sex."

Cruse of Seminole War.

The Seminole wars were a war between the Seminole Indians of Florida and the United States Government. The former refused to leave the red men to remove to lands west of the Mississippi river in accordance with a treaty made with some of their chiefs in 1832. The war broke out in 1835 and lasted seven years. The Indians signed a treaty of submission in 1839 and, after many delays, were removed to Indian territories. Some of the Seminole leader, at whose instigation the original treaty was repudiated, was imprisoned at last, into prison, where he died in 1837. The war is said to have cost $30,000,000 and hundreds of lives.

Value of Movies.

What motion pictures can do is shown by the experience of a young hotel man who was located in the Rocky Mountains who travelled by horse or mule. The hills and dales delivered his message at the crossroads to forty or fifty people. Some one provided him with an inexpensive automobile and a portable motion-picture equipment, which he mounted on the rear of his car. His services now are extended by 400 to 500 people, who travel hundreds over the mountains to reach them.

ON A BIG LINER.

There Are Quite a Number of Shops on a Ship.

That there are quite a number of shops on a ship is not generally known to the average reader.

The two most important are the butcher's "shop" and the baker's. These are busy all hours of the day, but there is no need for the services of a cashier in either of them.

Carcasses are taken on board whole and are stored in cold storage. To these butchers, with their heavy, fur-lined coats and overalls, getting out the day's meat makes one think of an expedition to the Pole; and though the sun is pouring down with tropical heat upon the decks or awnings above, down here, in the bowels of the ship, the temperature is well below zero.

In contrast, a short distance away, with all windows open to the torrid, heat-laden air, the bakers ply their trade in cotton singlet and chequered "ducks," for they are a busy crowd of men and hot rolls are required for breakfast—not a dozen or two, but hundreds of them.

Then the preparing of "sweets" for lunch or dinner is more often than not the task of the bakers, besides the baking of bread, cake, and other and more luscious things from the adept hands of the pastry-cook.

Down below, in a cabin all to himself, steadily working with his pipe in his mouth, is the printer. He is another worker, for each section of the vessel has a different menu, and on the first and second classes there are three meals each day which require the preparation of such cards, not counting afternoon tea, which means that the printer has to turn out many hundreds of menus a day, including all classes and meals.

But he is also there for the passengers' convenience if they need his services for such things as concert programs, dance and sport fixtures, and private cards.

Let us leave the printer to his clanging "platen" and go across to the "general" shop. The first thing that strikes one in this latter "shop" is the agreeable sense of blended perfumes. Yes, the master here, and his assistants, of both sexes, are not general dealers by trade, but fully fledged hair-dressers, manage as experts, chiropodists, as well as common or garden barbers.

On the more superior vessels the barber may have a "shop" of his own, and probably does; but even on the type of craft the writer has in mind the barber very materially assisted his commerce by the sale of sweetmeats, chocolate, novels, books, and oddities too numerous to mention.

When Women Were Muzzled.

Nagging women of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries wished they had kept still tongues in their heads when they were haled before the Burgess Court of Westminster in 1611.

The court, constituted in 1585, and finally abolished in 1901, was originally concerned with promoting orderly living within its jurisdiction, and "The Westminster City Fathers," by W. H. Manchee, tells its story with extracts from its official records, now published for the first time.

Women were women in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries much as they are now, but burgesses were burgesses, and had no doubt about the right of wives to deal with them.

They ordered scolds to be "bridled" with an iron muzzle strapped over the face and having a projection that was forced into the mouth and clamped down the tongue.

But there were other ways. In 1611, Maudlin Tichon having "misbehaved herself in scoulding and abusing of her neighbors with most reproachful speeches," it was "ordered by the court that according to the ancient custom of the city she should be lastened to a boat's tayle and so be drawne through the water to the other side of the Thames."

Whether the reproachful Maudlin was killed or cured by this drastic treatment does not appear. The burgesses as a matter of morals were not to be trifled with. Mary Boast, who had before been sent to Bridewell as a "troublesome to the noblemen about the Court," was later found to have had at least two children, "and never wed nor married," so it was ordered that "she should be stripped from the waist upward and fastened to a cart's tayle and to be whipp'd from the gate house in Westmr into Tuttle Bell Lane and so back againe to Westmr."

Dew of Evening.

Many who have soulfully sung about early fa's the dew will be interested to learn that the dew does not "fa" at all. What happens is that as the sun heats the earth, but as the cool night chills it, the earth E. Moore visited cousins at Smithfield last week.—Miss Annie Dean, of Napanee, visited her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sills, Picton.—Mrs. M. Lewis, of Sills, visited her niece, Mrs. H. E. Sills, Picton.—Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sills, Picton,—and Mr. and Mrs. William Cox, of Toronto, visited on Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Lewarden, Bloomfield.—Mr. and Mrs. Willis Sills and family, East Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Sills, Picton, spent Sunday afternoon at Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Vincent's.

Was a Yeller.

The young mother had just read in a new book that everyone is surrounded by a halo, the color of which is determined by the temperament of the person. When her husband came home she tackled him on the subject. After settling the colors of all her neighbors' halos to her satisfaction she remarked:—

"And what about baby, Alfred? What color is he, do you think? Hint: I imagine, because he's the pink of perfection."

"He may be pink when I'm away," replied Alfred, "but when I'm home he's a mighty loud yeller."

KEEPING FIT BY FASTING.

Writer Tells Why Nature Needs a Holiday.

Feast days and fast days have been recognized since the earliest periods of man's history, says Tit-Bits.

Indeed, there are few, if any, religions or forms of religious belief which do not include such special "seasons" in their calendar of the year.

This, perhaps, is specially true of fast days. So much so, indeed, that the Christian churches, at any rate, preface their more important events by a time of abstinence.

Nor is the fast to be regarded merely as a prelude to the subsequent feast day. There is no doubt that its primary object is the production of a certain attitude of mind.

When we eat little we feel deep and think much. The mind and spirit are released, as it were, from the body and the body's vagaries. They can pursue, unhindered, their nobler aspirations.

For at all times, in ordinary life, bodily needs hamper the expression of spiritual life. Our bodies are the "vehicles" of our true selves; but often enough they were vehicles with rough wheels and but small comfort in action.

This is specially true of all those who suffer from dyspepsia and indigestion. "Many a fine character"—as the late Sir William Osler used to say, "is included or hidden altogether by lack of a good digestion."

Personally, I regard long facts as a mistake (write a London specialist). They are only possible when great care is exercised and medical precaution taken. What I am saying, therefore, applies only to short fasts —of a day or two's duration.

Yet I have a patient who has fasted for forty days without the least harm to his constitution—indeed with great benefit. His belief—which I do not share—is that many diseases can be cured by what he calls "scientific abstinence."

The value of the short fast—apart from its effect on the mind—is its release of the organs of digestion from their daily toil. As one woman whom I attend put it: "I like to give my insides a holiday occasionally." She fasts one day in each month.

On that day, however, she drinks a large quantity of water, and believes that this helps her very much.

We are not all made alike, and there are those who would rather suffer any amount of discomfort than forego a meal. For them I usually advise what I call "fasting by half."

Once a week they should—again like the monks—have a "fish day," a day of very light eating.

The innovation is pleasant in any case, and the effects of it on health are often extraordinary. So much so, indeed, that many people set, aside two days, instead of one, for "light diet."

This habit, I am convinced, prevents illness. Indeed, the longer I practice the more I think that it is a mistake to "tempt patients to eat."

When, for any reason, we lose our appetites it is a sure sign that nature wants a holiday. Nor need there be any anxiety in gratifying this wish.

Hunger will return in due course. When it does we should take care not to eat too much.

The correct way, indeed, of ending a fast is to eat little for a day or two after it.

Sound Waves.

Sometimes when the air is extraordinarily clear and distant sounds are heard with unusual sharpness and sounds come from afar with startling distinctness, it is a warning of foul weather. Then it is

When the peacock loudly bawls
Soon we'll have both rain and squalls.

Under these atmospheric conditions the songs and cries of birds sound loud to the ear. The barking of dogs, the lowing of cattle, the whistles of locomotives, the honking of motor horns, come from far away, whence sounds are not commonly heard. To the eye the difference of visibility from the ordinary may be likened to the contrast between a view through a pane of ordinary window glass and that through one of the plate glass. The reason is that early during the occurance of a warmer southerly wind at a moderate height, a condition usually preceding a storm, a stratus cloud is likely to cut off the sun's heating from the ground and so prevent evaporation in heating and also to permit the surface air to remain cool. The result is a homogeneous lower atmosphere through which light and sound waves travel without local disturbance. The sound waves are further intensified at a distance from their source by a phenomenon very common on a quiet morning after a clear night when the air close to the surface is cooler than that a few hundred feet aloft. There is a concentration of the waves. In the warmer air at a moderate height the sound waves travel faster than in the lower cooler air, so those that ascend are bent back to earth and comflhue with those that travel the normal path. Of course, thus intensifying the sound in the listener's ears.

From the Pages of History.

In a popular History of Rome we are told—"It is extremely doubtful whether the Prince Mercurius ever existed at all, but he had a son, Childeric, whose existence is well authenticated." Another historical writer graphically describes a warrior fighting "like Samson of old, who, armed only with the jawbone of an ass, put a thousand Philistines to the sword."

There was a fat man in Savanah
Who stepped on an empty bananah;
The words that he said
As he hit his head
Wouldn't do for a Sunday-chool bannah.

Easier to Catch.

RELIC OF BURIAL CUSTOM

Stuffed Parrot Near Grave of Duchess Buried In Westminster Abbey.

It was once the curious custom in England to carry wax effigies of the dead — if they were distinguished enough—in their funeral processions. It was also customary to leave these effigies near the grave for some time thereafter, and the mourning friends of the deceased were used to compose elegies, rhymed laments and similar productions, which they would write fairly out on paper and pin to the clothing of the effigy. A number of the quaint old effigies are still preserved at Westminster Abbey, where they are stored in the Islip Chapel, and at least, that of Frances, Duchess of Richmond, is still to be seen beside her grave in Henry VII.'s chapel.

The fair duchess was something of a figure at the court of Charles II. and she was for some years a particular favorite of the merry monarch. Her effigy at Westminster is magnificently dressed in the robes she wore on some great occasion—the coronation perhaps of Queen Anne—and beside it on its plinth is the stuffed body of her grace's pet parrot. It is a strange thing to be seen in this last resting place of the great and famous. Doubtless it is the only creature not human on whom such distinction has been conferred. The story goes that the bird died of grief within a few days of its mistress, and that it was carried in her funeral procession on account of her great affection for it. How it happened to be left in the abbey and way it has never been dispossessed of its place there no one seems to know. It has been there a long now, watching like Tut-Ankh-Amen's two guardian statues over the last slumbers of its fair mistress, that it may fairly be thought to have established a prescriptive right to its post of honor.—Youth's Companion.

Marks and Rubles Sale.

Although marks and rubles are a good deal like prophets, with no standing in their own home towns, there is an excellent market for them in some districts of New York.

There is a stocky little man who talks large numbers in Russian and German and offers currency of these two countries to garment workers—operators, cutters, pressers, jerseyers, foremen. He sells six-figured Russian notes for 25 cents, except when it is raining, when you may have them for 15 cents, because, he said, he takes cold easily.

The money man said he had been out of work when a friend told him how he could sell these rubles and marks and do right well at it. He said he couldn't see why anyone wanted "that fool money" until he began to ask them. He knows now. Indeed, that many people set, aside two days, instead of one, for "light diet."

"They buy this money," he explained,"only to hold it, to own it. When they were in Russia 100,000 rubles was a mere fortune. There were two rubles for a dollar, but now it was worth only 50 cents when you bought something. They just want to hold this money now, and I make them feel rich, even if no one will take it in a store."

Skimmed Milk Ivory.

A material that resembles ivory is made from skimmed milk by a process worked out by an Englishman. The material being non-inflammable, odorless and can be drilled, fluted and turned, it has a multitude of uses as a substitute for ivory, ebony, amber, tortoiseshell, horn, and other similar products. It may be used also as an almost perfect imitation of many natural products of great price—among them being Chinese jade and lapis lazuli. A brilliant polish is easily obtained and it can be bent, pressed, and, to some extent, moulded, or machined. As it is a non-conductor of electricity, it may be used in making decorative radio and dielectric fittings. Also it has been found valuable for ships' cabins, handrails, automobile fittings, and in the making of beads, buckles, buttons, jewellery, fancy ornaments, cigarette holders, combs, brushes, carriage handles, parts of furniture, pencils and penholders, organ stops, and piano keys.

The Last Whitewash.

The north-bound Stuyvesant Fish of New York, was talking about a certain "whitewash" report.

"That report," he said, "reminds me of a little boy who was taken by his mother to visit a cemetery.

"The little boy went from plot to plot, from tomb to tomb, reading the inscriptions with awe and delight. Then, when he had read them all, he said:

"'Now take me to the other cemetery, ma.'

"'The other cemetery?' said his mother. 'What other cemetery do you mean, dear?'

"'The one,' said the little boy, 'where the bad people are buried'."

Why the Crescent?

Here is a new explanation of the Turkish crescent. When Alexander the Great, so the story runs, was besieging ancient Byzantium, a vital night attack was revealed by the bright shining of the crescent moon, and the grateful citizens adopted it as their symbol. When the Romans came they adopted the crescent also for the new city of Constantine, and when Mohammed II. conquered the city in 1453 he added its emblem to his own flag, hitherto plain red, explaining to his followers that his new standard represented Constantinople in a field of blood.

England's Diving Thrush.

The English brook-haunting dipper is an oddity—a thrush which has become a waterbird. Deeper and deeper it thrust its head into the water seeking for aquatic beetles and other insects, says an authority. Attempted ducking is of no avail, for the dipper emerges altogether, and beckons a diver. Still it has not acquired even yet any of the characteristics of the true diving birds. Its feet are unwebbed. It is still a thrush.

THAT FORTY INCH WAIST.

It Means Overeating, Underexercising and Future Poor Health.

"Beware of a forty inch waist line," says a bulletin from the North Carolina state board of health. "Tell to one the man who is five feet eight inches tall and forty inches about the waist will sooner or later have to consult a doctor for gallstones and kidney trouble and most likely for Bright's or some other sodious disease.

"Forty inches about the waist is an abnormal size and condition and shows that he who carries such a burden around with him has an appetite of an abnormal size and proportion. It further shows that something is wrong with his diet or that his energy is produced in naught. His appetite is either several sizes too big or he 'sits tight' on exercising. Most likely he has excessively of meats, pastries and heavy foods, which means overworked kidneys and faulty elimination.

"There is usually one, and only one, diagnosis to be made of this class—'fat and forty.' Their bulkiness, thickness and shortness of breath are symptoms having for their cause 'overfed and underworked.'

"The sufferer provides with. 'Overfeeding contributes more to disease and premature deaths than underfeeding."

Confucius on Kingcraft.

"What is kingcraft?" demanded a disciple.

Confucius replied, "Food enough, troops enough and a trusting people."

"Were there no help for it which could be best spared of the three?"

"Troops," said the master.

"And were there no help for it which could be better spared of the one or two?"

"Food," said the master. "From of old all men die, but without trust a people cannot stand."

The Turnip.

The turnip is supposed to be a native of Asia and Europe. It has been cultivated for centuries. The wild East Indian turnip is said to be the parent stock to the edible turnip. It is the size of a walnut and first tasted is sweetish, but in a moment the taster's tongue feels as though it were pricked by a hundred hot needles, and he feels like expectorating for hours after. It is the country boy's favorite medium for a joke on the visiting town boy.—London Tatler.

Little Known Island.

Very few people have ever heard of the little French island of Saint Pierre de Miquelon. It is almost lost in fogs and icebergs off the coast of Newfoundland, and yet it has a most interesting history. It is a French possession and the first authentic visit of a Frenchman to Newfoundland was that of Jehan Denys in 1506; and in 1536 Jacques Cartier stated that he had hailed several ships from France and England "at the island of Saint Pierre de Miquelon." By the first half of the sixteenth century, Normans, Bretons and Basques were competing in daring expeditions for France's fishery. From January to March, 1544, at least two ships a day left Havre, Rouen, Honfleur or Dieppe for Newfoundland and Saint Pierre de Miquelon. In the autumn everyone returned to his port of embarkation, where he passed the winter, and Saint Pierre was only a fishing station.

CEDAR CREST

Among the pretty camping spots on Varty Lake "Cedar Crest" stands out most prominently. In the summer of 1922 Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Salisbury, of Colebrook, ventured into the wilds and built their cottage, "Out E. E. E. E." Mr. A. E. Holland and family, of Yarker, were the next to come, and their cottage, "Idyl Wyld", became an important addition to Cedar Crest. Among the other campers are Mrs. Eckardt and Miss Eckardt at "U-No-Us", the Misses Freeman at "Duck Inn", and Mr. and Mrs. A. Alkenbrack and family at "Seldom Inn".

On Monday evening of last week about forty-eight spent an enjoyable evening at the corn roast, which was held here by the campers. This was followed by various forms of entertainment, including speeches, community singing and stunts.

In the evenings the campers gathered around the camp fire and listened to the Camp Journal, which was prepared and read on each occasion. Other sports included high jumping, skipping and playing ball.

The Misses Freeman very kindly acted as hostesses to a number of the younger campers to a "Feed" held at "Duck Inn". Mr. Winston Holland, in his usual manner, entertained those present.

The Union Sunday School picnic from Yarker and Colebrook was held here on the 6th of August, and on the following Wednesday the Camden East Sunday School picnic was held here.

An interesting event occurred on August 16th, when Mrs. Sarah Benn celebrated her eighty-fourth birthday here. About twenty-eight of her immediate relatives attended the picnic held in her honor.

One of the most successful camping seasons at Cedar Crest came to a close on Wednesday evening, August 25th, when Mr. and Mrs. Levi Salisbury entertained the campers. After a delightful evening, spent in games and music, the campers were treated to ice cream and cake. After thanking their host and hostess, the guests returned to their homes, determined to come back next year and make it a camping season to surpass even the best.

Visitors: Miss Helen Church, of Alexandria Bay, N.Y., was the guest of her aunt, Mrs. I. E. Salisbury; Mrs. E. A. Loan, of Watertown, N.Y., visited her daughter, Mrs. Eckardt, at "U-No-Us"; Mr. and Mrs. Bach, of Fulton, N.Y., are recent visitors at "Out E. E. E. E"; Mr. and Mrs. F. Newman and daughter, of Picton, and Mrs. McCormack, of Switzerville, visited at "U-No-Us" recently; Mr. Bill Cochrane, of Prescott, spent a few days the guest of his friends here; Mr. Will Brodhecker, of Toronto, visited his cousins at "U-No-Us"; Miss Mildred Kilborn, R.N., of New York City, and Mrs. W. C. Shangraw, of Colebrook, visited friends here recently; Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Bell and Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Bell and family, of Desmond, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. I. E. Salisbury at "Out E. E. E. LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Avenhurst, Sask.,
August 21st, 1924.

Dear Editor,—Please insert in your valuable paper, not only as a report, but a warning to others, as how careful one should be with strangers, and particularly of the sort mentioned below.

Considerable excitement prevailed at the home of R. W. McCormick, farmer, Avenhurst, Sask., Saturday, August 16th, about 2.30 a.m.

His sons were awakened by the two dogs barking furiously. Swayne, rushing to a window overlooking the barnyard, saw by the bright moonlight, two men prowling around the barn, each carrying a sack. One carried a bright small pail, which at the time, was thought to be a lantern; to help them secure some fowl.

Melville and Swayne quickly dressed without a light, hurried down the yard, and without being seen, hooked the door of a small room adjoining the hen-house just as the lads had slipped in. The next expectation from the visitors was a return of shots and a break-a-way through the window, and the only protection against such was an axe and a 22-rifle. But they had no gun and made no effort to escape.

Swayne ran to the house to give the alarm, while they were telling that their motive was hunting for a place to sleep and not to steal fowl. The smell of garlic was thick.

Mr. McCormick and a visitor, Rev. Mr. Muttell, of Lorcburn, Sask., soon reached the scene. Swayne and the clergyman, before going to phone for the police, gathered some tangling information. They told that they were Ruthenians, sixteen and seventeen years old, walking from Saskatoon to Qu'Appelle by rail. Having seen these buildings half mile away, they cut across the fields and were well wet by the heavy dew. Unable to get into the barn because of the dogs, they took this small room (their prison), to be a grainary where they could sleep. Upon looking through the sacks, were found bread, meat, a file, pie-tin, garlic and onions, and from fifty to one hundred shot gun shells. They vowed up and down that they had no gun of any sort.

This story, not sounding good, was phoned in and the police, having had report of such, were anxious to get this clue, and were present in the course of seven to eight hours.

The boys were fed, given some dry stockings and a cap a piece, and were asked all sorts of questions in the meantime. They tried their best to prove innocent, thinking we would let them go, but all in vain. They were used to such stories might believe them.

The police arrived, and upon examining them could get no headway except by separating them. Then the younger one told the truth of how they had escaped from the Detention Home, Regina, three days ago. This the police had tried hard to get before but the older one would keep chipping in. Then the older one confessed. Until the last moments, all they had told were lies. Chicken thieving, looting, etc., was their profession. The older one had travelled the summer before with "Bill the Barber". Luckily for the McCormicks, they were not armed.

They were loaded in the back seat of the car and taken to Regina for further examination prior to being returned to their former abode in the Home.

Now, Mr. Editor, you may compose this more briefly, if you wish, but this explanation will show you how too many prowlers of this sort get through the country and get away with their lies. If they are looking for a bed, they should be given it, (in the proper place), and not allowed to run loose, especially after being trapped. Beware of them, the police may have some report of them. We are only too glad to get a clue to their capture.

MELVILLE McCORMICK.

OBITUARY

Mrs. F. S. Ruttan

The death occurred on Monday afternoon at her home on Vansittart avenue, Windsor, of Mrs. F. S. Ruttan, wife of Dr. Ruttan. She had been seriously ill for some time and had suffered a good deal; but the end was peaceful and painless. Her passing was a shock rather than a surprise to those who had kept closely in touch with her. She is survived by her husband, her mother, two children and four brothers. The children are William F. Tebey, of the Sentinel-Review business staff, and Mrs. Wilson, widow of the late Archibald G. Wilson, formerly of Ingersoll, Winnipeg and Montreal. The brothers are, W. J. Taylor, publisher of the Sentinel-Review and the Chatham Daily News; G. M. Taylor, of London; Melvin Taylor, of Napanee, and D. B. Taylor, of Toronto, assistant manager of the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association.

The late Mrs. Ruttan was born in Napanee, daughter of the late James Taylor. In Napanee she received her education and spent her early days. After her marriage to the late William F. Tebey she went with her husband to Montreal, and there they lived for some years and until his death. After Mr. Tebey's death she taught school for a time, and about twenty years ago she took charge, under the nom familiar pen-name of Dorothy Dale, of The Mirror, a department of The Sentinel-Review, which she continued to conduct till the condition of her health compelled her to give it up. About eighteen years ago she was married to Dr. F. S. Ruttan, of Sydenham, who came with her to Woodstock, where they have lived ever since.

During the war she spent three years in hospital work in England as a V. A. D. Her letters from overseas to The Mirror constituted an important and enlightening feature of The Mirror. During her years in Woodstock she took an active and sympathetic interest in the life of the community in its various phases. The range of her interests was far-reaching. As a wife and mother she was naturally concerned about matters relating to the home, the school, the church, society in its broad sense and social betterment; but her duties as a newspaper writer kept her in touch with a great variety of other matters, and her pen was always at the service of every cause and movement that seemed to her to be worthy of earnest effort. As Dorothy Dale and through the columns of The Mirror she had formed a relationship that was something more than impersonal with her readers, who had learned to look for her page from week to week, not merely for something to read but as a place for giving expression to their own views or for seeking confidential advice. As a member of the Canadian Women's Press Club she was widely known among the newspaper people, men and women, of the Dominion.

Something of her place in the community and of the varied character of her activities may be indicated by an enumeration of the organizations of which she was a member. She was a member of the Red Cross, and for years had served in the office of treasurer. She was a member of Havelock Chapter, I.O.D.E., and was made a life member for service overseas during the war. She was an active member of the local Council of Women and was deeply interested in all phases of women's work. She was a member of the hospital auxiliary and gave unsparingly of her time and energy. She was a member of the Saturday Reading Club and did her part in promoting an interest in good literature among its members. She was one of the very first promoters of the movement for the establishment of a Y. W. C. A. She was a member of New St. Paul's Church.

She lived a full life, and she liked to live and to be doing something. She was indifferent to nothing that was likely to be of importance to the community. Matters that might not have appealed to her as a woman attracted her attention as a newspaper writer. Her sense of service was strongly developed; she was deeply religious and had a high appreciation of the things that afford enjoyment and satisfaction, whether in art, in literature, in religion, or in life. She leaves not one, but many voids, not easily filled. To great numbers of personal friends her death will be an abiding sorrow; to hosts of newspaper friends who knew her only through The Mirror the passing of Dorothy Dale will be a cause of genuine regret.

The funeral was held from her late home on Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, interment being made in the Anglican cemetery.

WOLFE ISLAND WINS

DEFEATED TAMWORTH AT NAPANEE ON MONDAY SCORE 14-13

In the final game of baseball between Tamworth and Wolfe Island, played at the Napanee Driving Park on Monday afternoon, the Islanders won the right to go into the intermediate O. B. A. A. finals when they defeated Tamworth by a score of 14-13.

It was a slugging bee from start to finish, and the two teams showed no mercy to the pitchers. The game was won and lost several times, and the excitement reached its peak in the eighth inning, when Tamworth, after trailing all through the game, gathered in five runs and jumped into the lead. Wolfe Island put across four runs in their half of the eighth and made the score 13-10 in their favor. Tamworth came right back in the ninth and tied up the score. Lalush was the game for the Islanders when he delivered one of his famous hits and scored Woodman.

Despite the large score there was some snappy ball played at times and Tamworth pulled a nice double play in the seventh when Little hit a liner to Kellar, who threw Stebbin at third for an easy double. The Island made a pretty play in the fifth when they caught Wells at the plate. The ball was thrown from Kyle to Kiell and then to Spoor, the relay being perfect.

Kellar and Goodfriend did mound duty for their respective teams, each being touched for eighteen hits. The fourth inning struck out seven, and Goodfriend five.

The game was attended by nearly a thousand fans.

Origin of Honored Title.

The title of Prince of Wales is bestowed upon the eldest son of the reigning monarch in Great Britain. It is not hereditary and the title must be bestowed on each newly entitled prince. It carries no financial benefit but a grant is made by Parliament for the support of the holder. The title of Prince of Wales originated in the fourteenth century. Edward I, King of England, who accomplished the conquest of Wales, created the title in 1301. Tradition has it that when a baby prince was born in the newly built Carnarvon Castle in Wales by the victorious monarch, the baby was presented to the Welsh people as a prince "who could not speak English." When the boy was 17, according to the story, his father formally made him Prince of Wales. He later became King Edward II. His son, Edward III, was known as Edward of Windsor and was ever made Prince of Wales. But it since has become an invariable custom to honor the heir to the throne in this way.

Ants Are Horticulturists.

Wonderful stories of ant life and intelligence have been added to by a celebrated botanist who has just returned from the Amazon's country. He tells of an ant which deposits the seeds of certain parasitical plants of the arum and nightshade families on tree trunks and branches where they have light and air, and then covers them with soil. In the moist, tropical air, the seeds soon sprout, and produce a mass of leaves. The roots become so firmly embedded in the tree that neither wind nor water can loosen them. This provides the ants with shelter and food. Their efforts also benefit the seeds, which they thus free from a precarious struggle for existence in the dark under-growth.

Not Popular.

The Smithers were new arrivals in the neighborhood, and, intent on finding one out all she could, Mrs. Gadroad, the local busybody, went to see the family.

"I heard your daughter was keen on music," she gushed, as the sound of Eleanor's voice drifted into the room where the Smithers and their visitor were sitting. "Is that a popular song she is singing now?"

Then Father spoke for the first time.

"Not in this house," he remarked, gloomily.

Ontario Fishing Competition.

A Peterboro baker won the silver cup for the catching of the largest trout by a tourist trolling the Meaford Business men's Fishing Competition. First prize went to Chas. C. Cumber, manager of the Bank of Montreal, in Peterboro.

His trout measured thirty-five inches long and weighed fourteen pounds, five ounces. Mrs. Geo. E. Taylor, 350 Hughson street, Hamilton, wins second. Mrs. G. Graham, of London, Ont., wins third.

In the local competition, W. F. Graham, of Meaford, wins first, his fish weighed 21 pounds.

Great Win for Ayrshires.

A cablegram from Hugh Bone, secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Great Britain to W. F. Stephen, secretary, Canadian Ayrshire Breeders' Association, states that at the London (England) Dairy Show, an Ayrshire cow won the Supreme Championship and six Ayrshire cows won the valuable Bledisloe Trophy over all breeds. This indicates that Scotch Ayrshires are not only holding their own but are outlining other breeds at British Shows.

A PIONEER STEAMER

Built In Britain to Run the Federal Blockade of Southern Ports.

A recent reference in an upper lake newspaper to the steamer Undercora recalls to a veteran reader some phases and incidents of Lor interesting career. She was one of two slaver steamers built in Britain for running the Federal blockade of the Southern ports during the last year of the American Civil War. Naturally, she was built for speed, with long, sharp prow and low-set, powerful engines, with paddle-wheels of short diameter and capable of great rapidity of revolution, and without any accommodation for passengers. The somewhat freakish names of the twins were "Let Her B" and "Let Her R," the capital letters standing for "Be" and "Rip," respectively. The latter of the two had a short career, and a tragic end, but the former was eventually, after the war, brought up the St. Lawrence to carry passengers and freight between Collingwood and the head of Lake Superior. In order to get her through the canals, she had to be cut in two, and the parts, made watertight, were towed by tugs.

"One of her early captains, it not her first, was Murray McGregor of Port Bruce, in the county of the same name. McGregor was an odd combination of skill and daring, and in those early days there was abundant room for the exercise of both qualities. An old Highland Scotsman, who had been engineer of the Chicora, told me once that while he never liked McGregor he always had in spots he knew to be dangerous, had the steamer slowing up before he got the signal. The same McGregor was afterward a wreck-master for an insurance company, and when the latter was called on to pay for a steamer that had been stranded on the shore of the Lower St. Lawrence McGregor was sent down to view the wreck. To the surprise of the company, he rigged her with jury-masts, had her pulled off the shore, and sailed her up to Quebec, where she was disposed of, thus saving the company tonnage. Many wooden vessels, better adapted than the Chicora for the upper lake service of 40 years ago, were put on the route, she was again cut in two and kept many years on the Niagara route, to be supplemented by the Cibola, and replaced by the Chippewa, the Cayuga and the Corona."—Toronto Globe.

MARVELLOUS.

"You are soon to be married to the man you love," said the fortune-teller. "You are dark?" inquired the sweet young thing.

"Yes."

"Is his name Herbert?"

"Yes."

"Does his father own a car?"

"Yes."

"Will Herbert give me a ring with a ruby and two diamonds?"

"Yes."

"Are we going to the Continent for our honeymoon?"

"Yes."

The sweet young thing turned to a friend. "Isn't this the most remarkable fortune-teller?" she asked. "He's told me the most wonderful things!"

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

I would like to answer some of the Rev. Mr. Forster's problems for him if I was clever and as well educated as a minister is, but being only a farm woman and a mother of boys I can only speak from a limited knowledge perhaps. He thinks having more religion in the home would be safer, more honor, truth, purity and goodness. That is right. Our whole country is dearth of religion, and if we have what he calls a sane temperance law, religion will be a whole lot scarcer. When an ordained minister upholds the sale of liquor he is going a long ways toward making it respectable for the boys who are growing up to drink it, and if the government passes laws to sell it, they certainly will drink it. Where a boy learns to like liquor, how long will he lessons in honor, truth, purity and goodness keep him from getting drunk? The O. T. Act has some faults, so the men say, but if they pass a liquor law and have it restricted, will they be able to enforce it any better than the O. T. A.? The arguments against the O. T. A. include the excuse of bootlegging. In Quebec where all of liquor is sold, it has not stopped bootlegging, nor the making of illicit liquor. Right in the heart of the City of Montreal, the police unearthed a still big enough to turn out two thousand gallons of whiskey a day, not to mention fifty-five other bootleggers and moonshiners. So, Rev. Mr. Forster, if you think the legal sale of liquor in Ontario will stop the making of the deadly home brew, it will be more than it did in Quebec. I have never been in Kingston since the O. T. A. came in force, but have been in Ottawa, Belleville, Trenton, Napanee etc., and many smaller towns, and have never witnessed many drunks. On a big day the streets are crowded with autos and people. There are no drunks to be seen, no smell of stale liquor, no congestion of traffic in front of hotels. It is perfectly safe for a woman or young girl to pass by a public hotel, and she does not have to elbow her way or be jostled by a maudlin crowd as it was in the days previous to the passing of the O. T. A. Will it still be as quiet and safe if this law is repealed? In the old days it was considered not respectable to drink whiskey, but when we get this new (temperance?) law, it will be quite respectable for even a Rev. Mr. — to go and buy a bottle for himself, I suppose. He says we want a law that will not make the members of an honorable profession barkeepers. He evidently thinks barkeeping is not respectable then if it is dishonorable for doctors to handle it? Well, perhaps I have not expressed myself very well, but all I have said I have seen for myself, except what I wrote about Montreal; that was quoted from a leading magazine.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, the famous Polish pianist and composer, received one of the heartiest welcomes accorded him since his return to the concert stage when he appeared before a Paris audience recently.

The French press retold at great length the story of how the noted artist was expelled from Russia years ago by Emperor Alexander III., after Paderewski had played before the court.

"You are a great artist, and an honor to Russia," the emperor is reported to have said.

"Pardon, your majesty," replied Paderewski. "To Poland."

The next day the pianist received an order to leave Russia, and he has never returned since.

The Parisian newspapers here also mentioned the fact that on the day of his first concert, Paderewski drove to the theatre box office and purchased nearly 100 seats at regular prices, which he distributed among his friends.

Germans and Potatoes.

"Yes, we have no potatoes to-day," is the universal complaint in Germany, which played a large part in the downfall of the Cuno Government. The lack of grain has forced Germany to forego large quantities of the bread which plays so great a part in the diet of the French and other extensive wheat growing neighbors, with the result that the potato is of more importance in Germany than it is in Ireland. Frederick the Great fought a food war which was called the "potato war" in 1778-79 against the Austrians.

Where the walls join the floor of the stable, be certain that the cement is rounded; not like a "quarter-round" but like a "cove." It will help to keep the barn clean. Do not neglect this precaution because it may be slightly inconvenient for the person doing the cement work; remember the inconvenience it will be daily not to have the rounded corner.

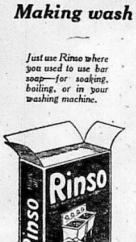
Just use Rinso where you used to use bar soap—for soaking, boiling, or in your washing machine.



THE hardest part of wash-day, rubbing, rubbing, rubbing, has given way to the new method of soaking the clothes clean with Rinso. This wonderful new soap gently loosens the dirt and a thorough rinsing leaves things white and glistening as you never could get them before.

Only spots where the dirt is ground-in, such as neck bands, cuff edges, and the like need a light rubbing, and a little dry Rinso rubbed on these spots quickly makes the dirt disappear.

OBITUARY

Mrs. George H. Robinson

The sympathy of many friends goes out to Miss Lillian Robinson and Mrs. E. A. Ross, daughters of Ida May Valleau, widow of George H. Robinson, who passed to her eternal home on Monday, August 18th, 1924, in her sixty-fifth year, at Edmonton, Alta. Mrs. Robinson was well known in Napanee and vicinity. Since coming to Edmonton about twelve years ago, Mrs. Robinson has contributed generously of her time and talents in the service of her Master. The Sunday School, Women's Missionary Society and Ladies' Aid of McDougal Methodist Church found in her a devoted worker. It was with regret that she laid aside her activities on account of failing health. During her illness of several months' duration of heart trouble her daughters cared for her most devotedly, and her mother, Mrs. Wm. Valleau, of Moose Range, Sask., spent the last five weeks with her. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor, Dr. Brown, assisted by Rev. W. E. MacNiven, of Calgary, Alta., a personal friend of the family and former pastor of McDougal Church, who testified to the consistent christian life of Mrs. Robinson, using the words good and kind, patient and loving. During her long hours of suffering no words of complaint passed her lips. Mr. MacGarvey sang a most appropriate solo, "Home at Last". She was laid to rest in the beautiful Edmonton cemetery, literally buried in flowers, so emblematic of her life.

Archie Hanes

The death occurred on August 16th of Mr. Archie Hanes, Tees, Alta., second son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hanes, after a long illness, borne with christian fortitude. Mr. Hanes had resided in the neighborhood for several years, and was deservedly respected, and his funeral, which was held on Monday, August 18th, was largely attended. A short service was held at the home for the immediate relatives and the friends and was conducted by Rev. A. A. Adams, of Edmonton, who was visiting Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sayres. The service at Tees Church was taken by Mr. Adams and Rev. Geo. Renwick and the committal prayers at the graveside were read by Mr. Adams. A number of beautiful tributes were sent in by sympathetic friends.

The funeral arrangements were under the direction of Henry Sayres, Ernest Perry, W. Orser, and R. Jenkins. The pallbearers were Messrs. Henry Bellhouse, Meadows, Walters, John Craik, W. Astley and Mellotte. The heartfelt sympathy of the whole district goes out to the widow and family, and to the father, mother, sisters and brothers of the deceased gentleman, who was in his forty-second year.

NEWBURGH

Much sympathy is extended to Mrs. N. Vandervoort in the loss of her two uncles in the past week.—Everybody is enjoying the beautiful weather for this time of the year, and all hope it will continue.—Mrs. James Boyce has returned to home here, after spending the past month with her son in Syracuse, and friends in Watertown.—School has opened with a new staff of teachers. — A large number from here are attending the Big Methodist camp meeting at Harrowsmith.—Miss Dela Pero and mother spent Thursday in Kingston.—Mrs. M. Lee, of Watertown, is the guest of Mrs. J. Boyce.—Mr. H. McFarlane, of Roblin, made a business trip to this village on Friday.—Many sports pass through here, en route to Varty Lake, where the fishing and bathing are fine.

Fear of Premature Burial.

A bill has been introduced in the British House of Commons calling for the appointment of public certifiers of death in order to prevent premature burial. If it is passed, a doctor issuing a death certificate will have to certify that he had inspected the body, that death has taken place, and the signs on which he inferred death; he must also certify that he attended the patient at least twice, one of the occasions being within eight days of death.

There is a condition of trance," said Dr. Hoskes to a newspaper representative, "that in every superficial way simulates death. The breathing of the heart cannot be heard, even with a stethescope; the breathing is so slight it cannot be detected, and, seeing such a person, most doctors would certify him dead. Meanwhile the 'dead' person is perfectly conscious. His muscular system is paralyzed. He cannot even flicker an eyelid. But he hears the preparations for burying him go on.

"This actually happened to a very dear friend of mine who lay in a cataleptic trance. The doctor had certified her dead. Now all the time she was perfectly conscious. She felt them measuring her for the coffin. She was aware that they were putting on her shroud and composing her hands for burial. She heard them making the funeral plans. She listened to her own funeral. But she could make no sound, no gesture, for her entire muscular system was paralyzed. She was about to be buried when, suddenly, her daughter noticed a faint quiver about the muscles of her mouth. She was given stimulants, regained consciousness, or, rather, the use of her muscles, and lived thirty years after.

"The horror of 'coming alive' to find oneself buried deep under the earth can hardly be estimated."

TOO SEVERE.

The two ladies had not met for some time and, as they were the sort of ladies who are always vitally interested in each other's welfare, they had a great deal to talk about, you may be certain.

After discussing numerous domestic details, the first lady remarked:

"I hope your health is better than when I saw you last."

"No, I grow worse every day," was the doleful response.

"Too bad—too bad! What seems to be the matter?"

"Nobody knows," said the long-suffering one. "And the doctors say they can't tell until after a post-mortem."

"Why, how awful! You poor, dear thing! In your state of health your can never live through that," said the woman.

LICE INFESTING FOWLS

Vermin Are a Source of Great Loss to Poultrymen

The Various Species Named and Described—As Affecting Chickens, Turkeys, Ducks, Geese and Pigeons —Stable Ventilation — Carrying Young Pigs Along.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Losses due to infestations of the various forty species of lice that infest domestic fowl are in the aggregate many thousands of dollars annually to the poultry-keepers of Ontario. Small insects working out of sight of the human eye, their presence is often unsuspected until the birds show unthriftiness, loss in weight, lower egg production, and reduced vitality, causing the owner to make an examination. If the examination is thorough, lice are generally found in the great majority of flocks. A few may not be serious, but if the little crawlers are permitted to increase to thousands the effect on the poultry-keeping part of the farm business is serious. Infested birds present a droopy and unkempt appearance, the wings lowered, the feathers ruffled, and the birds may suffer from diarrhea.

Infesting Chickens.

Of the forty species that infest fowl, seven have a decided preference for and infest chickens. The body louse "Menopon biseriatum," is light yellow in color and sticks pretty close to the skin. It lays its eggs in large clusters on the small feathers below the vent. It takes about three weeks from egg to mature louse. This species sticking close to the skin and feeding thereon is very irritating. The "Menopon pallidum" is similar to the preceding, only somewhat smaller and has the habit of spending its life on the feathers. It is not so irritating and deposits its eggs singly at the base of the feathers. The head louse "Lipeurus heterographus" is commonly found on the head and neck of young chickens. It is dark grey in color, deposits its eggs singly on the down about the heat of the chick. It takes about one week to reach the hatching stage and two weeks for the young louse to grow to maturity.

The large hen louse "Goniocotes abdominalis," sometimes called the "blue louse," is smoky grey in color and one-third larger than the preceding. It sticks close to the body, may be found anywhere and is easily recognized by its size and large round head.

The wing louse "Lipeurus caponis" is a small, long and slender species with a large rounded head. It confines its activities to the wing feathers.

Two other species, the "fluff louse" and the "brown louse," are rarely present in numbers. Both inhabit the body feathers.

Infesting Turkeys.

Two species are commonly found on turkeys, the "Goniodes stylifer" and the "Lipeurus polytrapezius." The "Goniodes stylifer" is the most common. It is a large louse bearing some resemblance to the large hen louse, and may be distinguished from it by having the posterior angles of the head extended backward and terminating in long bristles.

Ducks and Geese.

Three species infest ducks and geese to a limited extent, the oily nature of the skin of waterfowl being a good preventive against these external parasites. The species commonly found are "Decophorus stenodes," a very small parasite, and the "Lipeurus squalidus," a long, slender, yellowish colored louse.

Pigeons.

These birds are frequently infested with one or all three species—"Lipeurus baculus," "Goniodes damicornis" and "Goniocotes compar."

Methods of controlling these vermin will be given in a later issue.—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

Stable Ventilation.

When planning the changes to be made in the farm stables next season, give the question of ventilation first consideration. Animal life is dependent upon oxygen. Food that is eaten would never be of service to animals or to humans if it were not oxidized or combined with oxygen in the body. Fire cannot burn without air, and food cannot be "burned" in the body without air. It is strange that so much time and study have been expended on the problems of breeding and feeding, and that so little attention has been given to the most important demand in the life of a domesticated animal—pure air. Plan the stable in such a way that pure air will be available to the animals every hour of the day. So says Mr. Stevenson of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Carrying Young Pigs Along.

Nature's tonics for young, growing pigs are exercise, sunshine, plenty of green succulent feed, and clean surroundings. Success with the litter, therefore, will depend on getting the sow and pigs on pasture as soon as possible. It is just as important to the health and thrift of the little that the mother get exercise as it is for the pigs.

As a result of the depletion of our forests, industries dependent upon wood are already going out of business, with the inevitable depressing influence on their localities. Local exhaustion of the forests is leaving great stretches of land in an unproductive condition, resulting in virtual impoverishment, if not depopulation, of very considerable areas.

A simple method which safeguards lovely complexions the beauty every woman can possess

No girl or woman can be called unattractive who has kept the beauty and radiance of youthful complexion.

And today millions of women know this simple method. You too may employ it to keep lovely and young the clear, fresh skin Nature gave you.

This is all you need

Cleanse the skin regularly, authorities say, to keep your complexion lovely, radiant, youthful. But beware of harsh cleansing methods. They injure skin.

Wash thoroughly with Palmolive Soap—last night before retiring. Rub the creamy, foamy lather well into the tiny pores. Rinse — and repeat the washing. Then rinse again.

Then—if skin is dry—apply a little cold cream. That is all. Skin so cared for is not injured by cosmetics, by wind and sun, or by dirt.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

When he proposed, she said: "Dearest, I won't marry you—but I shall always respect your good taste."

"Do motor cars make us lazy?" asks the lady.

"Well, not if we're pedestrians," answers the man.

Many mothers can testify to the virtue of Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator, because they know from experience how useful it is.

"So you let your old bookkeeper go? What was the trouble; couldn't he balance his accounts?"

"He could; and so well that he was beginning to juggle them."

No need to suffer with corns, or to run the risk of paring them. Remove them surely and painlessly with Holloway's Corn Remover.

Tommy: "My sister sings 'I Trovatore' in five sharps."

Jack: "Mine sang it in six flats, but they made her move out of every one of them."

Strangled With Asthma is the only expression that seems to convey what is endured in the attack of this trouble. The relief from Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy is beyond measure. Where all was suffering there comes comfort and rest. Breathing becomes normal and the bronchial tubes completely cleared. This unequalled remedy is worth many times its price to all who use it.

A small girl, who has been over to England with her parents for the season and Wembley, has just gone home again. She enjoyed herself so much that she stated the idea of returning, and she concluded her prayers the night before she sailed with the sentence: "Good-bye, God, I'm going to America in the morning."

Ready-made Medicine. — You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles, it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores and the like it is an unquestionable healer. It needs no testimonial other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

Mrs. Jones: "You told me that if I left my tablecloth out all night the fruit stains would disappear. Well, I put it out last night."

Mrs. Brown: "Of course the stains were gone in the morning?"

Mrs. Jones: "Yes, and so was the tablecloth!"

An Oil of Merit.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result of the careful investigation of the healing qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any who doubt its power to repair and heal.

The prisoner had been convicted a dozen times before.

"Your honor," he said, "I should like to have my case postponed for a week. My lawyer is ill."

"But you were captured with your hand in this man's pocket. What can your counsel say in your defence?"

"Precisely so, your honor. That is what I am anxious to know."

The indications of worms are restlessness, grinding of the teeth, picking of the nose, extreme peevishness, often convulsions. Under these conditions one of the best remedies that can be got is Miller's Worm Powders. They will attack the worms as soon as administered and they pass away in the evacuations. The little sufferer will be immediately eased and a return of the attack will not be likely.

On the first night of a new play a man in the front row of the stalls got bored by the end of the second act and began to put on his overcoat. This was too much for the actor-manager, who stalked down to the centre of the footlights and addressed the delinquent.

"Excuse me, sir," he observed, "but perhaps you are not aware that there is another act?"

"Yes," retorted the stranger, cheerfully. "That's why I'm going!"

FEATS OF SLEEP-WALKERS.

Rarely Come to Harm Unless Abruptly Awakened.

Sleep-walkers, though they often move in most dangerous places, says a London paper, very rarely come to harm unless they are abruptly awakened. But in one case recently a lady fell out of a window in her sleep, awaking to find herself lying in the courtyard below the window.

Somnambulists are supposed to be able to see with their fingers when sleep-walking. Extraordinary as this may sound, it has been proved over and over again that a sleep-walker who takes the precaution to put on gloves, before going to bed, will never walk in his sleep. The gloves should be finally fastened at the wrists.

Another preventative of sleep-walking is to put upon the carpet by the side of the sleep-walker's bed a strip of steel metal, iron or zinc, wide and long enough to make certain that in getting out of bed his feet will rest upon the metal. The sudden chill is bound to awaken him.

Yet doctors say that sleep-walking is more common in cold countries than in hot. So that if you are given to sleep-walking you should see to it that you are thoroughly warm in bed.

Another odd fact is that fair-haired people are more given to sleep-walking than dark-haired folk.

The feats of some confirmed sleep-walkers are absolutely amazing. While sound asleep, men have been known to saddle and ride horses for miles, to thrash corn. One, a Californian, actually swam two miles down a river and continued his sleep upon the bank after leaving the water.

Another, a schoolgirl, anxious to pass an examination, rose night after night, lit a candle and studied, yet was totally unconscious of what she had done, and amazed to find that she knew her lessons when to all seeming recollection she had not yet opened the book.

Oddest of all, perhaps, was the performance of a tradesman at Ekeworth, who one morning woke to find that, in the night, he had stripped all the paper off the walls of his bedroom.

A Bird Monument.

In Salt Lake City, Utah, is one of the two monuments in the world—the other is in Italy—erected to the memory of birds. This monument commemorates the fact that about the year 1850 the original settlers in Utah were saved from starvation by sea-gulls.

A year after their arrival the white settlers were alarmed to observe that their crops were being devoured by myriads of crickets and grasshoppers, which overran the country until it was as if it had been scorched by fire.

Attempts were made to stop the plague, but without results. At that time the nearest point of civilization was 1,000 miles away, and it seemed as if the people must be starved.

Prayer was resorted to, and one day, as if in answer to their appeals, there appeared a great flock of sea-gulls, which proceeded to devour the pests, and it was not until the "enemy" had been completely annihilated that the gulls took to their wings and disappeared.

The monument commemorating the event was unveiled in 1912.

NEWBURGH

Two or three years ago, in a correspondence to The Beaver, we referred to what rural communities were going to do for mechanics, such as blacksmiths, carpenters, tailors, shoemakers, etc. There are a necessity in any community, and there are very few farming trades as compared with times passed. What the cause of this is is a little hard to determine, as there are a number of things that owe a tribute to this condition. One of the causes that many public men and educationists, among whom is our present Minister of Education, Hon. G. H. Ferguson, is that the system of education that has prevailed has had the effect of drawing young people's thoughts away from the necessity of work, particularly work with their hands. This may be true to an extent, but there are those who are not overburdened with education of any kind who are simply idling their time away without an effort to make any contribution to their own future welfare, such as they might do if they learned some useful trade. In these days, when so much paternal legislation is looked for and being enacted, it might not be out of place to pass a law requiring young men who had no positive aims, to become apprentices to some trade, as in the days of Queen Elizabeth, when a law was enacted requiring that all such before becoming the new members and welcoming back the old. We hope for a year of successful work and pleasant experiences for them all.

Quite a number of our citizens have paid visits to the Exhibition at Toronto. They have mostly gone by motor car. When this experience is multiplied by thousands, we can understand what the steam railways are up against. It is noteworthy in this connection how few people are in sympathy with the railways. There seems to be an impression that their management have lorded it over the public in the past and are still inclined so to do. There are at least three things that stand against the Canadian National Railways in the mind of the public. They are helping to increase the national debt, are charging too much for transportation, and they are paying too high salaries to their officials. This is how it appears to the man on the street, at least.

Mrs. W. W. Adams is spending a week in Toronto, visiting her brother, Mr. Newton Piller, and sister, Mrs. Dr. Longmore and his daughter, Josephine, of Campbellford, were callers on Mr. and Mrs. Dunwoody on Tuesday.

Mrs. Rock and daughter, Emma, of Napanee, have been spending the holidays in Newburgh, the guests of Mrs. J. M. Ramsay, Mrs. Rook's daughter.

All the teachers whose homes are in Newburgh, have gone back to their old schools.

The Misses Gandier have gone to Southampton, on Lake Huron, to be the guests of their brother, Dr. Jos. Gandier, at his summer cottage.

A very pleasant and unique social event took place this week at the home of Mrs. Ferris, when that lady gave a home gathering, or re-union, to which over forty relatives were invited, including guests from Detroit Guelph, Hamilton, Kingston, Belleville, Deseronto, Bath, and other nearer points. Among the guests was Mrs. Tomkins, of Newburgh, who is in her 95th year, and they ranged in age from that down to children. A table was erected on the lawn on which a bounteous dinner was spread and it was surrounded by a happy company which engaged in jokes, reminiscence and laughter as only a happy company can. A delightful time was spent and the event will be remembered by old and young present as the great time of their lives. Mrs. Ferris and her daughter, Mrs. Kingwere the most bountiful and charming of hostesses, and so they were voted by all present.

Rev. Duff Wartman and Mrs. Wartman are visiting Mr. Wartman's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Wartman, of Wesley, and other friends.

FRIDAY AND SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 5th AND 6th, ARE FALL OPENING DAYS. WE Invite You to Inspect Our First Formal, Authentic Exhibits of Millinery, Wearing Apparel, Materials, Accessories, and Men's Wear. You'll Find These Displays in Our Various Departments Authoritative, Complete, and Thoroughly Inspirational.

With a flourish of many delightful new costumes and materials a new season takes the stage. Fall Fashions are making their entrance with magic grace and subtle charm. And throughout the rich, fall modes there sparkles a suggestion of Parisian inspiration in alluring shades, in fascinating embroideries, and in beautiful fabrics.

It is this new gorgeousness of color and fabric that our store is prepared to exhibit for your enjoyment and selection.

The slender, short silhouette remains unshaken, yet Fashion creates a tremendous amount of enthusiasm and variety by introducing for the first time many new and novel materials, along with a magnificent range of new Fall shades.

For Autumn, Fall introduces her new standing Collar. This usually takes the form of a straight band of fur, which stands erect. Frequently a colored braid is applied to add color and exclusiveness. Sleeves show unique changes in style and ornamentation.

Luxurious Furs are used lavishly for trimmings.

Refreshing Diversity Will Be Found in Fall Millinery

It has been said "That the only permanent thing about Fashion is her change of styles".

Certainly, each succeeding season finds widespread changes in Millinery vogues. For Autumn, the uniformity that has dulled so many seasons has given way to refreshing diversity. This applies to shapes, materials, and especially to trimmings.

The fur collars on Autumn Coats demand that hat shapes be reasonably small, and reasonably snug fitting. Crowns go to unexpected heights, and are completed with narrow brims that snap down or that unexpectedly turn back from the face.

Feathers in many diversified forms create the major nart of the ornamentation on Fall Millinery. Ribbons, flowers, embroideries also enjoying a share in the Autumn trimmings.

Burnt russet, reddish browns, all the mahogany and copper tones, are being emphasized along with brown, navy blue, and black.

As might be expected, Velvet is the outstanding fabric, but hatter's plush, duvetyn and felt also share much of the honors.

Boy Accidentally Shot.

Master Bob, Howitt, with a chum, started for the marsh on Monday morning, where they intended doing some hunting; in going through a fence the trigger of the 22 rifle caught, discharging the gun, the bullet grazed his wrist and entered his side, penetrating the lung and lodging at the base of the heart. Martin's ambulance was called and he was rushed to Kingston General Hospital. Although he is in a serious condition every hope is held out for his recovery.

OBITUARY.

Sim. C. Storms

It is with feelings of deepest regret that we are called upon to chronicle the death of Mr. Sim. C. Storms, of Wilton, who departed this life August 3rd, 1924, at the age of 46, after a protracted illness of several months. Deceased was a devoted husband and father, and was esteemed most highly as a friend and neighbor by all who knew him. Being of a bright and genial disposition, he bore his sickness without complaint, putting his trust in the dispensation of Divine Providence, knowing that He does all things well. The funeral was held in the Methodist Church, at Wilton, services being conducted by a former pastor of the deceased, the Rev. W. D. P. Wilson, of Belleville, assisted by Rev. Soford Dixon, of Odessa, and both pastors testified to the sincere christian faith of the departed and the high esteem of the community was apparent from the large gathering of friends who came to pay their last respects. Music was rendered by the choir, with which he was affiliated for thirty years, always ready to give his musical talents freely in any church work. A widow and one daughter, Margery, are left to mourn the loss of one who was nearest and dearest to them. Also six brothers, Peter J., of Santiago, Cal.; Robert, of Watertown; Albert N., of Odessa; John G., of Sydenham; Korah N., of Wilton, and William, of Yarker. The remains were interred in the family plot in Wilton cemetery.

A ROUSING RALLY

St. Andrew's, Trinity and Grace Congregations Hear Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D.

On Sunday night last, in Grace Church, the three churches gave a large and enthusiastic audience to hear the Organizing Director of the Ontario Prohibition Union.

No more convincing presentation of any subject could be given than the congregation heard, and despite a chronic dispesition on the part of some people who periodically insist on a change of some kind, whether for better or worse, the sober thought of steady people will be overwhelmingly in favor of the continuance of the present law, backed up by such safeguards as experience has proven to be necessary for a more adequate enforcement of that law.

J. D. Flavelle, for several years chairman of the Provincial License Board, declares that it is possible to enforce the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act and believes that within a reasonable time this law would be as easily enforced as any other difficult law on the statute books of the Province.

The County and local Committees are intact, none having been disorganized. They may be trusted to conduct a vigorous campaign.

Among Dr. Moore's interesting statements were :—

One will say what of bootleggers ? There is bootlegging, altogether too much of it, but what are the effects ? There is more bootlegging in the Province of Quebec under Government sale than there is in Ontario under the Temperance Act. In a speech a short time ago, by Mr. H. H. Stevens, he said, "Never before has drunkenness been prohibited as it is now, so if you want it to increase in this Province, repeal the Temperance Act. For every one we have drunk there will be ten if the Temperance Act is repealed. We have only one in Ontario to ten in Quebec. The Temperance Act is not a failure, it is a success. It has taken away from our places the class so common in the days of the bar-room. There was a drunkard's home in every village. Now we travel up and down our Province and we do not see these."

In Vancouver in the jail for prisoners that were intoxicated the yearly average incarceration under prohibition was 511 persons and the year after prohibition, under Government sale, the incarceration was 1565 persons, an increase of over 209 per cent.

In New Westminster, B.C., the incarceration in the penitentiary under prohibition was 61 persons, and the year after, under Government sale, the incarceration of the same penitentiary was 113 persons, an increase of 85 per cent.

What are we going to do about this matter? The Government has stated that we are going to vote, but the questions are not published yet, but the vote is going to be on the value of the Ontario Temperance Act. I wonder if any of us think that we dare go back to the old days. I have been in your town a lot of times and have seen things which I do not see to-day, because of the Ontario Temperance Act. Get organized in your town. See to it that every man and woman who is a British subject and who has lived for a year in the Dominion and three months in this locality and is 21 years old, has their name on the Voters' List. Get your name on the List, then when you hear people say, "Oh ! it's a failure," look them straight in the eyes and ask them for the facts. Make them give you the facts. It is not true. There is not one man drunk to-day to ten in the old days. Think of the attractive bar-rooms with their plate glass mirrors and their bars. Think of the shops and clubs and how easy it was to get liquor. There is not one boy tempted in this way to-day. That is what the Temperance Act has done for us. Get the facts. Get every voter to see the effect of the Ontario Temperance Act. The only votes that are counted are those that are taken out of the ballot box. Put in your vote.

In the campaign when we had four vacations given us by the Hearst Government we had a majority of 47,000 in favor of the Temperance Act. In the vote against importation of liquor into the Province we had a majority of 300,000. I am looking forward with confidence that the strong-minded christian people of the Province of Ontario will roll up a victory for prohibition of half a million on October 23rd.

Will you in Napanee stick together for the victory for the boys, for the girls, for the homes, industry, commerce, for our country, for God, and for our people?

Will you stand for it ? Adv.

TURNING THE TABLES.

An Irish witness was being examined as to his knowledge of a shooting affair.

"Did you see the shot fired?" the magistrate asked.

"No, sorr, I only heard it," was the evasive reply.

"The evidence is not satisfactory," replied the magistrate sternly.

"Stand down." The witness turned round to leave the box and directly his back was turned he laughed derisively.

The magistrate, indignant at this contempt of court, called him back and asked him how he dared to laugh in court.

"Did you see me laugh, your honor," queried the offender.

"No, sir, but I heard you," was the irate reply.

"That evidence is not satisfactory," said Pat. And this time everybody laughed except the magistrate.

VICE VERSA.

He was a stout man and liked to eat a good breakfast. As he never got out of bed in the morning until the last possible moment his wakening cry for "laying a good foundation for the day" often made him late in arriving at the station.

On one occasion recently he was later than usual. He looked very hot and a peculiar acquaintance happening to see him, shouted:

"Now, Mr. Smith, are you training for a race?"

Mr. Smith had no time to stop, but cried over his shoulder:

"No, you ass, I'm racing for a train."

A man was strolling down the main street of a town, holding a pointer in each hand. Presently he met a friend, and after talking for some time, they began to discuss the merits of the dog.

"Yes, sir," said the owner, "that dog can smell a bird a mile away."

"Indeed," said his friend incredulously.

He glanced at the pointer, and was surprised to see the dog sniffing nervously.

"That dog acts as if a bird was under his nose, and there isn't a bird anywhere around here," he said.

The owner looked and was perplexed.

Then, seeing some other men a little distance away, he approached one of them and inquired: "Pardon me, sir, but have you a bird in your pocket?"

"No," answered the man.

The owner of the dog was very puzzled, but after thinking a while he suddenly asked the man his name.

"Partridge," was the reply.

A Weary Willy called at an office the other day.

"Can I give you a job," said the merchant; "two other men here are on the strand."

In pained and surprised tones Weary Willy inquired: "Why me?"

BUTTER FOR WINTER USE

How to Make and Pack to Best Advantage

Use Clean, Sweet-flavored Cream—Coat the Box Inside With Parafine—Finish the Package Off Neatly—Made Slight of Oats—Honesty Pays.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

I attended an institute meeting one day and heard one of the speakers close his address with this little verse:

"Good, better, best;
Never let it rest,
'Till your good is better,
And your better, best."

It is the very best butter that we can make that must be packed for winter use.

Butter undergoes changes in the keeping, and two things necessary for good results when keeping butter for winter use are best quality of butter and low temperatures for holding.

Use Clean, Sweet-flavored Cream.

Use cream that has a clean, sweet flavor. Churn it at a temperature low enough to bring the butter in fine, firm granules in from 20 to 30 minutes.

If by any chance the butter comes soft be very careful to get rid of the buttermilk. It will be necessary, in a case of this kind to use an extra wash water.

Salt the butter in the usual way and work it thoroughly. Should the butter soften during the process of working, put it away in a cool place to become firmer before completing the working.

As butter keeps best in a solid form, crocks or boxes are used for winter use.

Coat the Boxes Inside With Parafine.

The boxes have a coating of parafine on the inside, and it is necessary to line them with heavy parchment paper.

While many people have a 56-lb. box filled for winter, in some cases it would be much better to have it put in two 28-lb. boxes.

The crocks should be in good condition, free from cracks or breaks in the glazing.

When packing the butter, be sure to pack solidly. See that there are no openings in the sides, and that the corners are well filled.

If there is 8 or 10 lbs. of butter in a churning, do not put the whole lump into the crock and then try to force it down. Rather put it in in pieces, making sure that each piece is solidly packed.

Finish the Package Off Neatly.

Finish the top off evenly, and cover with parchment paper. A thin layer of salt paste may be put over the butter before putting down the lid.

With crocks it will be necessary to tie down. Rubber paper cut to fit on top after the lid has been put on.

All butter should be stored in a clean, dark place, where the air is pure and the temperature is low and even.—Miss Belle Millar, O. A. C., Guelph.

Blade Blight of Oats.

This disease occasionally causes heavy losses in the oat crops of Eastern Canada and Eastern and Central States of America. It attacks also barley, wheat and bluegrass to a limited extent. So says Prof. Dan Jones, Ontario Agricultural College.

It is most noticed in the spring and early summer when it causes the young plants to turn yellow, brown and red, withering them up. In the latter part of the season it induces blast in the heads.

Its spread and the amount of damage it causes is largely dependent on weather conditions. The seasons when much rain, cloudiness and muggy weather prevail are the seasons most favorable for its development.

Primary infection is chiefly through the stomate resulting from scattering of the leaves by the rain with the organisms from the soil.

Two species of bacteria working together are considered necessary to cause the disease. They are found in the soil. They do not, however, affect the plant through the root.

Little can be done to prevent or control this disease except to select and breed resistant varieties.

Honesty Pays.

The man who aspires to the accomplishment of things worth while in the realm of pedigreed live stock, must realize that his integrity as a breeder will be one of his greatest assets, and he must guard it, as he would his stocks, from foul admixtures. As his herds and flocks increase and his business expands, he must make certain that, at the same time, there grows up a reputation for absolute honesty and fair dealing. Only by the help of these essentials can he expect his business to ensure and yield to him satisfaction and profit.

A Song of Good Feed.

A handful of grain while on pasture Is a song like a terrible Circle,
But the cow will return it all later If given of grain a slight taste.

The stomach of a young calf is very delicate, and changes in feeding must be made gradually. The calf will begin to eat grain and hay when it is about four weeks of age. Shelled corn is about the best grain feed, as it takes the place of cream in the milk.

Poorly-fitting collars are sure to cause sore shoulders. It is a good practice to bathe the shoulders noon and night with cold water. This avoids the chance of blood congestion and is of once soothing and pleasant to the animals.

ONLY A BUTTON!

Beautiful Ivory Buttons May Have Grown on a Tree.

Something clinked on the floor of the tramcar and half a dozen people stooped down to find that which was lost. All except the loser.

"Please don't worry about finding it," she said apologetically. "It was only a button!"

Whereupon all the searchers straightened their backs, in full agreement that a button was a thing not worth looking for.

This is common attitude, for most people are apt to regard buttons as insignificant items, sometimes useful, but other wise uninteresting. Which is as wrong as can be, for the evolution of a button is full of unexpected marvels, and a button factory, prosaic though it may sound, has romance in every corner of it.

The geography of a button alone commands attention, for the materials used for the making of these everyday articles come from all parts of the earth, and travellers are constantly journeying into strange countries in order that supplies may not fall short.

In Western Australia there are the great pearl fisheries where mother-of-pearl, one of the basic materials for buttons, is found. The opalescent shells are graded and sorted before being packed into sacks and crates for export, and there have been times when little pearls, which have evaded the lynx eyes of the "fishers," have been found in the shells when these packages have been unpacked in London factories.

Vegetable ivory, another leading material from which buttons are made, is collected chiefly in South America and Africa. From the former comes the corozo nut, the commonest of vegetable ivory, while Africa grows a strange apple, which in due course hardens to the hardness of ivory. Thousands of these nuts and apples are converted into buttons every year.

Compressed casein, that is, dried milk treated with acid and subjected to high hydraulic pressure, is being used extensively for button-making to-day, though a quarter of a century ago this substance was unknown. Some of these "milk buttons" are very beautiful.

The processes of button-making are more complicated than one might guess. A button manufacturer with a turn for statistics lately proved that over a thousand different things happened before a certain button could be put on the market.

Button-making is largely a woman's job, and hundreds of different sorts of buttons are made in a single factory, styles changing with every season and being well ahead of time. The buttons for December, 1924, for instance, are manufactured in early spring. To simplify operations, a computing scale is used—a single button in the small scale being equivalent to a gross of buttons in the main scale.

Where Nutmegs Grow.

The world's greatest nutmeg plantations are found on the Banda Islands in the Dutch East Indies. The fragrant nutmeg is the seed of the nutmeg tree. From the fruit of this tree, also, mace is obtained. When the crop is ripening, a nutmeg plantation is a wonderful sight, with its orange-colored fruit, crimson mace, and the dark leaves lined with silver. When the fruit is collected, the fleshy husk is removed, and the mace is carefully stripped off, revealing the hard kernel or nutmeg. The fleshy part of the fruit, preserved in syrup is a favorite sweetmeat in this Dutch East Indies.

Chinese Newspaper Freak.

As a result of the prophetic utterances of a missionary in China, to the effect that the world come to an end at 12 o'clock on September 25th of last year, a Shanghai newspaper prepared a special edition for the event. Named the "Fifth Horseman," it consisted entirely of news, maps, and diagrams of the end of the world, and contained an announcement that the next edition would be printed on asbestos! The weather report foretold "warmer conditions," and a famous tinned milk firm advertised that it would be opening stores along the Milky Way. After printing twenty-four copies of the special issue the machines stopped suddenly. Whether the Chinese printers got wind of what had led to the hills is not known, but this copy of the "Fifth Horseman" is probably the only one which has found its way to Britain. Only twenty-four copies are said to be in existance, one of which is owned by the London Press Club.

The Dodo.

About 250 years ago the curious dodo bird was quite plentiful on the island of Mauritius near the African coast, its only known habitat. It derives its name from the Portuguese word "duodo," meaning simpleton. The dodo was twice as big as the average sized turkey. Its plumage was ash-colored, its bill darkish, and its legs and feet clumsy and yellow. The dodo was never known to exist after 1681. What caused its annihilation is not known. As the Dutch navigators who landed on the island of Mauritius in the sixteenth century called this bird "walghvogel," or "nauseous," because it was not palatable with any kind of cooking, it is not likely that it became extinct because it was not eagerly sought as a dainty for the table.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Letter from Mrs. Ayars Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Spring Valley, Sask.—"I took the Vegetable Compound before my last confinement, when I got to feeling so badly that I could not sleep nights, my back ached so across my hips, and I could hardly do my work during the day. I never had such an easy confinement and this is my sixth baby. I read about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the 'Farmer's Telegram' and wrote you for one of your books. We have no druggist in our town, but I saw your medicine in T. Eaton's catalogue. I am a farmer's wife, so have all kinds of work to do inside and outside the house. My baby is a nice healthy girl, who weighed nine pounds at birth. I am feeling fine after putting in a large garden since baby came. (She is as good as she can be.) Yours is the best medicine for women, and I have told about it and even written to my friends about it."—Mrs. ANNIE E. AYARS, Spring Valley, Sask.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system so that it may work in every respect as nature intends. All druggists sell this dependable medicine. Give it a trial. C

Dr. Carver's Triumph.

The Spingarn medal given annually to the American citizen credited by competent Judges with the most notable scientific achievements, has been awarded to a man of African decent. Dr. George Washington Carver, of Tuskegee Institute. The doctor has specialized in agricultural chemistry and here are some of his triumphs. He has developed 162 by products of the peanut and 115 of the sweet potato; has made potash and clayless marl from the cotton berry and made a stalk for stock food from vegetable products. He also devised a dressing for canvas shoes and white and colored rayons from clay; has used okra fiber for making paper rope cordage, straw matting and carpet, and has made 20 varieties of laundry blueing.

A Hint!

The sailor was engaged by the benign old gentleman in conversation. "You have evidently had an adventurous life," said the old gentleman, when they had been talking for some time. "And what was the best thing that happened to you?"

"Well, sir," said the sailor, "only a few weeks ago I had an epic thing. When I came to the doctor told me he had left a sponge inside me, and it's there still."

"Dear me! Does it cause you any pain at all?"

"Oh, no, sir—no pain. But it does make me terribly thirsty."—Stevenson's Weekly.

FEED THE BRUTE.

Over the low wall of the garden Weary Willie had caught a glimpse of an open back door, and on the kitchen table a tasty plate of cakes.

Climbing over the wall, he dropped to the ground on the other side and then walked boldly across the lawn, where the lady of the house tapped him on the shoulder. The next moment her dog sprang at him and pinned him against the wall, growling and showing his teeth.

"What are you doing here ?" asked the lady, without attempting to call off the dog.

"Madam," replied the tramp, with as much dignity as he could muster, "I did intend to request something to eat, but all I ask now is that, in the interests of humanity, you feed the dog."

RIDDING HENS OF LICE

The Best Poultrymen Now Favor Using Sodium Fluoride

It Is Very Effective — The Dusting and Dipping Methods — Other Means Suggested — Hardy Alfalfa in Ontario.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

In the control of poultry lice one remedy has come very much to the front during the past seven years. It is sodium fluoride, a chemical that is easy to obtain, easy to apply, effective and safe in its application.

Sodium Fluoride Very Effective.

Sodium fluoride may be obtained in fine white powder form or as fine crystals. The powder form, if guaranteed 90 to 95 per cent. pure, is the most desirable form to apply as a dust. Sodium fluoride retains its efficiency, and may be kept if need be in closed tight bottles or cans and used when wanted. One application, if thorough, will destroy all lice on the birds and remains effective long enough to get many of the parasites that hatch later. There are three methods of application in common use; all are effective, but the "plank method" is the most commonly practiced in small flocks. It consists of the application of the sodium fluoride powder directly to the skin and feathers of the bird, the operator taking up what he can hold between the thumb and forefinger and applying on breast, each thigh, each side of back, on the neck, head, underside of each wing, below the vent. It takes ten pinches of the chemical to cover the bird by this method and and skilled operators can handle sixty birds an hour.

The Dusting Method.

The dusting method of applying sodium fluoride is by mixing with a filler material, as flour, talc, or plaster, to make four times the bulk of the insecticide, and then apply by shaker or blower duster to the ruffled feathers of the bird. Greater speed in treating the birds is secured at a greater expenditure of chemical.

The Dipping Plan.

The dipping method of applying sodium fluoride can be practiced during the summer and early autumn season when there is ample warmth and sunlight to dry wet birds. The bath is prepared in a wooden tub and consists of one ounce of commercial sodium fluoride to a gallon of warm water. Sufficient quantity should be mixed to handle the work at hand. Five gallons of the solution will do for 100 birds. The birds to be treated are placed in the dip for twenty seconds and just before removal the head is soused and the bird taken out and allowed to drain. The dip should be body heat for fowl, about 107, and the work done on a quiet, bright day, when it is warm enough to dry the birds quickly.

Other Means Suggested.

There are a number of other methods that have proved to be fairly efficient, among which the carbolic acid, gasoline and plaster or paris mixture is coming into general use. Thus dusting powder is prepared by mixing three parts gasoline, one part carbolic acid (90 per cent. pure) and stirring in enough paster of paris to take up all moisture. It is applied as a dusting powder with a shaker or by hand.

A medicated dust wallow beneath the shade in the poultry yard or within the shelter of the building is a great aid in keeping the louse population down. A box partly filled with fine road dust to which tobacco dust has been added at the rate of one to six, is very useful and relieves the old hen of many an itch.—L. G. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

Hardy Alfalfa In Ontario.

A large number of tests have been conducted in past years on the experimental plots at the Ontario Agricultural College with different varieties and strains of alfalfa. It was discovered more than a decade ago that the Common alfalfa from the Central Western States would not survive in Ontario. Variegated alfalfas, such as the Grimm and the Ontario Variegated, however, proved hardy in this Province. These two varieties are now increasing substantially as the farmers appreciate their superiority over the Common, violet flowered variety.

In one experiment at the College alfalfa has been cut for hay three times a year for eleven successive years without re-seeding. The first cutting this year, therefore, is the thirty-fourth crop obtained from the one seeding. The average yield of hay per acre per annum from the eleven years of this test has slightly over four tons.

In another experiment of thirty-four plots seeded in the spring of 1922, the highest yield of hay from the first cutting of this year was of the Variegated type.

The Common alfalfa has variegated flowers of different deanities and the Variegated alfalfa has violet, green, blue and yellow of various blends which can be seen when the blossoms are fully opened.

Several carloads of seed of high quality of Variegated alfalfa have been produced and sold for seed purposes in each of the past two or three years in Peel County alone. Also in a number of other counties seed of the Variegated type of alfalfa is being produced.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

TREES FALL PLANTED

How They Compare With the Spring Planted Trees

Pears, Plums and Sweet Cherries Do Well — Dig vs. Dynamited Holes for Planting—The Appeal of the Tree—Rainfall and Potato Rot—The Great Oat Crop.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Experiments to determine, for the Niagara Peninsula, the relative merits of fall and spring planting of pears, plums and sweet cherries were started at the Horticultural Experiment Station, Vineland, in 1914 and 1915. Complete records of growth and fruitfulness have been kept for each season so that the evidence we now have is fairly conclusive.

Pears, Plums and Sweet Cherries Do Well.

Severally speaking for pears, plums and sweet cherries fall planting has resulted in the least number of deaths, and has given a somewhat greater growth of tree, both during the first season and thereafter. At no time, however, have the differences been very great, though they have been sufficiently marked to warrant fall planting, providing well matured trees can be secured from the nurseries. Trees dug too early and with unripened wood are apt to suffer from winter injury. In some seasons, owing to weather conditions which stimulate late growth, it is practically impossible to secure well-matured nursery stock. After such seasons spring planting would probably be preferable.

A possible reason for the fewer number of deaths in fall planted than in spring planted trees is that the roots of the fall planted trees are not subjected to drying out as are the roots of trees held over until spring.

Dug vs. Dynamited Holes for Planting.

In conjunction with the fall vs. spring planting, experiment trees were also planted in ordinary dug holes and in dynamited holes. This experiment was carried on, of course, in heavy soil. The general size, health and vigor of the trees in the various plantings seemed to indicate that the trees set in holes immediately after dynamiting were for some cause weakened and delayed in growth. This was attributed to the rapid drying out of the soil immediately following the dynamiting, which delayed the starting of the trees. To overcome this difficulty the experiment was continued with the addition of trees planted in holes dynamited in the fall and covered to fill with water and settle over winter.—Hort. Exp. Station, Vineland Station.

The Appeal of the Tree.

Travellers in Portugal report that in many places where timber trees are to be found—in woods, parks, and gardens—one sees the following inscription, headed "To the Wayfarer":

Ye who pass by and would raise your hand against me, harken ere you harm me.

I am the feat of your hearth on the cold winter night, the friendly shade screening you from the summer sun, and my fruits are refreshing draughts, quenching your thirst as you journey on.

I am the beam that holds your house, the board of your table, the bed on which you lie, and the timber that builds your boat.

I am the handle of your hoe, the door of your homestead, the wood of your cradle, and the shell of your coffin.

I am the bread of kindness and the flower of beauty.

Ye who pass by, listen to my prayer; harm me not.

Rainfall Affecting Potato Rot.

Very careful records of the rainfall at the College have been kept by the Department of Agricultural Physics in each of the past seven years. In comparing the amount of rainfall during the months of July, August and September with the amount of rot in the potato crop in each of the past sixteen years some interesting information has been obtained. The annual amount of rainfall for the three months referred to for the eight years in which there was no rot was 7.1 inches, for the four years when there was a moderate amount of rot 9.8 inches, and for the four years in which the rot was abundant 11.7 inches. The amount of rainfall, therefore, appears to have a very marked influence in making conditions favorable or unfavorable for the development of rot.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

Ontario's Greatest Grain Crop.

In 1923 oats were grown more extensively in Ontario than all other grain combined. It is probably safe to say that three-quarters of the oats which are now grown in this Province are of the O. A. C. No. 72 and the Banner varieties. According to extensive experiments and accumulated records at the College at Gueiph and in Western, Eastern and Northern Ontario, the O. A. C. No. 72 has surpassed the Banner in both quality of grain and yield of grain per acre. The difference in making conditions favorable or unfavorable for the development of rot.—Dept. of Extension, O. A. C., Guelph.

CHARMED STORM AWAY.

Medicine Man Performs Timely Service for Travellers.

We camped that afternoon on a hill above Tataan and there I saw an impressive spectacle. Two huge waterspouts were visible at sea, and one of them was working toward Tawi-Tawi, an island in the Sulu Archipelago. We all stood on the brow of the hill watching it moving slowly about, when suddenly it took up a straight line for us. It seemed about so that the only thing to do was to stand still and await developments, and in any case we were too far away to get out of a mile from the beach.

When it hit the beach below us, it seemed that the whole mass of millions of tons of water fell. The flood surging far up among the trees. There it paused a few seconds, and then resolved itself into a cyclone that moved directly toward us, twisting the large trees into matchwood. We stood there silent and appalled when one of our boatmen who had a sort of combined roustabout and medicine man, hastily kicked off what few clothes he had on, seized a naked kris and dashed down the hill to meet the storm. He yelled his pagan charms at the top of his lungs and kept slashing at the cyclone as if it were a living enemy. Before he reached it, it suddenly swerved about 45 degrees to the south and passed us by with a fiendish uproar at a distance of a couple of hundred yards.

When we looked for our boatman he was standing there bowing to us with a smirk like a prima donna after her solo, as if to say "this is really very easy when one knows how, but still I do it very well." The tension was at an end, and we shouted with laughter. He was quite a boy with us for the remainder of the trip, but later I had to banish him for some diversion or another.—Lt.-Col. Sidney A. His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, Colonel Cockshutt, will be in Picton on Monday, Sept. 8th, to unveil the United Empire Loyalist log cabin memorial. On that afternoon the schools of the city and of the territory immediately surrounding will be dismissed early so that pupils may attend the ceremony, which will be of considerable interest historically, and a large crowd of people is expected to attend the function which will, of course, be mainly of a patriotic nature. Officers of the garrison will meet His Honour, and while details have not been finally settled, it is possible that some troops will be on parade for the ceremony. The unveiling will take place at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

No. 358 and visiting Brethren of the district, will assemble as a body for a Memorial service, at 10.30 in the Armouries. The Kingston Band will supply the music, and the address will be given by Captain N. H. Thomas, of Napanee. Sunday evening a Salvation meeting, conducted by the Band, will be held in the Armouries, at 7 o'clock. After the conclusion of the church service the churches will unite in the Armouries, where the Band will render a Sacred Musical Service. Everyone is urged to take in all these services. The Kingston Band has won for itself a splendid reputation. Do not fail to come and hear it. 35b

Lad Hurt When Horse Fell on Him.
Frederick Hartley, a lad 15 years of age of Amherst Island, was taken to Kingston on Saturday morning on the steamer Brockville and from there removed in James Reid's ambulance to the General Hospital, suffering from severe bruises and injuries when the horse that he was riding took fright and in starting to run away fell with the boy under him. The accident happened in a most peculiar way. Young Hartley and his father were each on horseback when they met a threshing outfit. The father dismounted and led his horse past the machine, but the boy thought that he could ride past. His horse, however, became unmanageable, and finally bolted, and then fell with the lad under him. Suffering acutely he was taken by the steamer Brockville Saturday morning and brought to the dock at the foot of Brock street where the boat was met by the ambulance. The young lad was accompanied by a Mr. Scott and a woman who resides near to the farm of Mr. Scott. They were both very kind, doing as much as possible to relieve the boy on the trip from the island.

Oddfellows' Memorial Day, Sunday, September 7th
The officers and members of Argyll Lodge No. 212 and Napanee Lodge No. 86, I. O. O. F., have made arrangements with the Boards of Management of the Riverview Cemetery and Riverside Cemetery to have placed in each cemetery a flower bed, which will be kept up by the two lodges, as a memorial to the brothers who have been buried therein. The Brothers of Argyll Lodge No. 212, Napanee Lodge No. 86, Mt. Ararat Encampment, and Queen of Sheba Rebeckah Lodge No. 254, and all visiting brothers are requested to meet in the Oddfellows' Lodge Rooms, Harshaw Block, at 2 p.m., Sunday afternoon, Sept. 7th. The Brethren will leave Lodge Rooms at 2.30 p.m. sharp, accompanied by the Kingston Salvation Army Band and assemble in the cemetery. At 3 p.m., the memorial services in the deceased brethren will be conducted. Bro. Anderson, K.C., Lindsay, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of the I.O.O.F., will be present and will deliver the address. In case of rainy weather arrangements have been made to hold the services in the Armouries at 3 p.m. Sunday.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR.

To the Editor of Napanee Beaver.

Dear Sir,—I notice in your issue, dated August 29th, two letters, of some interest, which are purported to be replies to the questions raised by the Rev. J. W. Forster in a previous issue. (There was also a note from the Newburgh correspondent, but that was of so paltry and trifling a nature as to be unworthy of consideration). One of the letters was signed Edgar Drew, and the other W. R. McWilliams.

Now I may as well state at the outset that, as far as the O. T. A. is concerned I believe it to be an inadequate solution to the problem it attempts to solve and I would like to see some other measures experimented with, with a view to discovering a better solution. However, it is not with the O. T. A. that I wish to deal, but with the Biblical quotations and references given in the two letters.

Mr. Drew brings forward the text, "Woe unto him that riseth up early in the morning that he may follow strong drink," to prove that the Bible teaches prohibition, and advises Rev. Mr. Forster to study his Bible. I would advise Mr. Drew to study the English language first and his Bible afterwards. The text, in question, is merely the expression of a fact well known in the East and in all hot countries that it is a disastrous thing to drink intoxicating liquor before, and during, the heat of the day. The text implies that there is a proper time for all things, and that hardly favors prohibition.

Mr. McWilliams apparently believes that the Bible preaches prohibition and that it can't be proved that it doesn't. As a minister in a church which professes to be founded on the Bible, he ought to have studied the Old Book better than that. It teaches temperance, and temperance means moderation, not prohibition. "Be temperate in all things". That is the keynote of Bible teaching, and if a man has to use things in moderation it is necessary that he must be able to get them. Mr. McWilliams, as a member of a society which regards the Bible as infallible ought, therefore, to be more consistent, and denounce prohibition.

But the point arises, is the Bible the final authority, or the only authority? And the answer to that question also answers Mr. McWilliams' question, "Is religion static?" The Holy Catholic Church existed before the New Testament was written. In fact the writers of the New Testament were some of her leading members, and only those books of which she approved, were admitted into the Canon of the Old Testament. Thus the church can claim to be the only authority with the right to interpret the Scriptures. Further, our Lord left power in His church, "Whosoever sins ye remit shall be remitted, whosoever ye retain shall be retained", and that power and the authority aforesaid still exists in those branches of the Holy Catholic Church which have retained an Apostolic Succession, valid Sacraments, and Catholic Doctrines. The Catholic Faith is so comprehensive in its scope that, having once been delivered it can never be altered. Man's ideas may change and he can obtain a better comprehension of God's goodness, but the Faith remains unaltered. Since religion consists of man's ideas of God it can never remain static, because the Faith was given for all ages and all conditions, and successfully copes with the problems of to-day as with those of the First Century. Thus if the church sees fit to stop drunkenness by prohibiting the sale of liquor she has a perfect right to do so and no members would have to conform to her expressed opinion, but if we must rest on Biblical opinions alone then prohibition must be dispensed with and the open sale of liquor allowed. Personally I'm for the church every time.

Yours sincerely,
(REV.) JAMES HUTTON.

WEDDING BELLS

Anderson—McCarten

At St. Patrick's Church on Monday morning, Sept. 1st, one of Napanee's most charming and popular young ladies, Miss Gertrude A. Anderson, Belleville Road, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Anderson, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to James V. McCarten, Selby Road. The officiating clergy were Rev. Father T. P. O'Connor, Rector of the Parish, assisted by Rev. Father Farrell. The bride was given away by her sister, Miss Effie Anderson, as bridesmaid, and the groomsman was Martin McDonald, of Bath. The bride was attired in a most becoming frock of navy blue crepe de chene and wore a fawn-colored picture hat. She carried an exquisite bouquet of roses and carnations. After the ceremony, a recherche dejeuner was served at the home of the bride and then the happy couple left by the morning train for their honeymoon trip to western points. A host of friends were at the station to say good-bye and wish them good luck. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful and useful presents.

Smith—Gleeson

The marriage was quietly solemnized in the Lady Chapel of St. Patrick's Church, Montreal, on Thursday morning, August 14th, of Margaret Smith, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Smith, of Toronto, and Mr. Raymond Gleeson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gleeson, of Napanee. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father Greene. The bride was prettily clad in sand colored georgette with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. She was attended by Mrs. Burton A. Bennett, who wore a powder blue georgette gown with hat to match. Mr. Burton A. Bennett acted as best man. Mr. and Mrs. Gleeson left directly after the ceremony for points in Ontario, and will reside in Montreal.

Tragic Death of Millhaven Boy Thursday Morning

Pinned under a heavy load of lumber when the Bath stage in which he was riding went into the ditch yesterday morning, Aubrey Asmory, of Millhaven, eighteen years of age, was crushed to death. The stage was being used to transfer a large load of lumber from Greenlawn, and Mr. Henry Calver, the regular driver who makes the trip between Kingston and Bath, was at the wheel. Just in front of the farm of Mr. Frank Collins, about a mile and a half east of Bath, the truck went off the road and into the ditch, turning completely over and coming to a stop with the wheels in the air.

The deceased was lying on the lumber at the back part of the load. He had absolutely no warning of the accident, and when the truck went over he was caught by the shifting lumber and crushed to death by its weight. The driver, Mr. Calver, was thrown from his seat, but escaped with only a few scratches.

No definite reason could be given for the accident. The stage was heavily loaded and was being driven moderately. The road at that point, however, is quite narrow and slants considerably towards the side. In some way the truck left the road and headed into the ditch.

Immediately after the accident Dr. H. S. Northmore, Bath, and Dr. J. E. Mabee, Odessa, were summoned, but the young man was dead when they arrived.

The deceased is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Amory, Bath, and a nephew of Mr. Robert Rickey. He was born in Millhaven and lived there all his life, where he was well known and greatly respected. The funeral will take place at three o'clock this afternoon from the home of the family at Millhaven, Rev. Mr. Huffman officiating. Interment will take place in Wilton cemetery.

"Scaramouche," according to advance reports from the larger cities, where it has been played as a two dollar attraction, is one of the greatest pictures in screen history.

The story is laid in the time of the French Revolution and deals with the adventures of a young noble who takes the side of the people. Willis Goldbeck made the screen adaptation and the photography was by John F. Seitz. 37a

NEWBURGH

The festive season was ushered in here by a dance given by Mr. Roy Redden, at which we understand there were about sixty guests, which included much of the youth and beauty of Newburgh and surrounding district. The O'Connor Orchestra of Strathcona furnished the music, and a most enjoyable time is reported.

So Rev. Jas. Hutton, of Selby, thinks the remarks of the Newburgh correspondent, re the Forster letter, trivial and not worthy of notice. If such is the case, why did he notice them? Anyway Mr. Hutton has given the readers of The Beaver a puzzle. He starts out to argue against Prohibition, and the puzzle is to find the argument.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Wilson, of Sault Ste Marie, are visiting Mr. Wilson's mother, Mrs. Bella Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tomkins have gone to Oswego to push their fortune.

Mr. and Mrs. Huston and their son and his wife have been visiting with Mr. Huston's sister, Mrs. Mary Madden. They have taken Mrs. Madden home with them to visit them in their home in the vicinity of Watertown, expecting to return for the Old Boys' Re-union in Napanee.

Mrs. Conway has returned from a short visit to her daughter, Mrs. Cane, in Toronto.

Mrs. Young, of Craigh ville, Simcoe County, has spent a week with her father and sister, Mrs. Chas. Welbanks and Miss Maud.

Word has come to Newburgh of the death of Mrs. Allen, wife of Rev. W. F. Allen, who was predecessor to Rev. Mr. Gandler, as minister in the Presbyterian charge of Camden and Newburgh. Her death took place on August 24th, at Duffield, Alta. Readers of the Beaver, who remember Mr. Allen, will be sorry to hear that he is an invalid and partially blind as the result of a stroke. Both Mr. and Mrs. Allen were much beloved by their people here.

The Newburgh correspondent to The Beaver is hunting in every one in the village, and while he is not anxious to, nor will he retail the things that belong to people's private life, he will thankfully receive and duly forward items of interest to readers of The Beaver given to him from week to week. This correspondent will not dig up because of any selfish interest, but because we think that Newburgh should be represented on the map of the county.

Mail Orders promptly filled at Wallace's Drug Store.

An event of considerable local interest took place at 9 o'clock on Wednesday morning when Miss Agnes Elizabeth Chalmers was united in holy matrimony to Mr. George Lewis Millard Johnston, Rev. The bride was handsomely attired in a suit of navy poiret serge, with sand colored overblouse of knitted silk crepe, and a hat of fog cutha brown velour interlaced with baby ribbon to match. Both the bride and groom are well and favorably known in this locality and it is a pleasure to know they will take up their residence here. The bride has been for a number of years the efficient treasurer of St. Alban's Guild and the groom is a veteran of the Great War.—Mr. Walter Membery, Jr., of the U. S. LENNOX AGRICULTURAL EXHIBITION AND LENNOX AND ADDINGTON OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

THE OLD TOWN GAILY DECORATED FOR THE FOUR DAYS' CELEBRATION AND A RIGHT ROYAL WELCOME EXTENDED TO OUR GUESTS

THE 1924 FAIR ECLIPSES ALL PREVIOUS EFFORTS

The Old Boys' Re-union of former residents of Napanee and the County of Lennox and Addington, with the old folks at home and the place of their birth, or early residence, is drawing to a close, and a most enjoyable time has been had by all concerned.

The closing episode will be the big Community dance in the Armouries, to-night (Friday), at 8.30 o'clock. One does not need the mantle of a prophet to descend upon him to be able to say without fear of contradiction, that there will be a very large attendance and a night brimful of enjoyment. The energetic chairman of committee and his capable committee have seen to it that success in this instance should be written with capital letters.

The decoration of the business streets is a thing of beauty; the profusion of flags and bunting so well displayed on all of the buildings to the best advantage, and the abundance of electric lights, including the numerous strings of vari-coloured lights criss-crossing, Dundas Street, represented a vision of fairyland. The Armouries are most tastefully decorated, and the old Town Hall looked quite juvenile with its flags and red, white and blue bunting. Speaking of the old Town Hall, many a prospective mate have joined in fixing it up. Everybody knows that the people of Napanee are the most hospitable in the world, but surely it is the height of hospitality to put a streamer on the upper part of the facade, in large letters with the word "welcome" and underneath (also in large letters), the legend "Police Headquarters".

Regarding the decoration of the residential portions of the town, too much praise cannot be given. With flags and streamers and other things of brilliance and beauty, the neatly kept lawns and flower beds, and the charming homes, were a source of pleasure to the passers-by. These things will not soon be forgotten by the dear friends who have re-visited their old home town.

The Napanee Fair and Napanee, Lennox and Addington Old Boys' Re-union, billed to take place on Sept. 10th, 11th and 12th, opened on Tuesday.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, the Children's Parade and the horse races for the day had to be held over to Wednesday, when there will likely make their parade from the Fairgrounds to the Fair grounds in the afternoon of Friday, 12th inst, headed by the local Corps of the Boy Scouts and Girl Guides.

There is a fine showing of exhibits in all lines. Some splendid cattle, sheep and horses are shown in the stock barn; also in their pens will be found a splendid assortment of pigs and sheep as will be found anywhere in the country.

Many fine birds are on exhibition in the Poultry house and all of good birds. The display will compare favorably with any shown elsewhere.

In the Palace will be found most tastefully arranged booths, with an infinite variety of wares. Among the exhibits are:—Display of Ladies' Fancy Work; The Graham Co., Clothiers; The Hydro Electric Shop exhibit; Abbassine; The Webster Grocerys, a most artistic exhibit; G. H. Vanloven, Oval Separator, etc.; VanLuven, Coal; E. F. Smith, Radio and Electric devices; Home-made bread, butter and other home-made supplies; Drawings, etc., by School pupils; The Harris Dairy; Dry Goods, etc.; H. L. VanLuven, Gerhardt-Heintzman and other Pianos, also Photographs; The Art Gallery; Chautauquan's Guild, useful and artistic work; The Haines Shoe Houses, Boots, Shoes, Rubbers and Travelling Goods.

The long tables running the length of the building is a magnificent display.—Display of Ladies' Fancy Work; The Graham Co., Clothiers; The Hydro Electric Shop exhibit; Abbassine; The Webster Grocerys, a most artistic exhibit; G. H. Vanloven, Oval Separator, etc.; VanLuven, Coal; E. F. Smith, Radio and Electric devices; Home-made bread, butter and other home-made supplies; Drawings, etc., by School pupils; The Harris Dairy; Dry Goods, etc.; H. L. VanLuven, Gerhardt-Heintzman and other Pianos, also Photographs; The Art Gallery; Chautauquan's Guild, useful and artistic work; The Haines Shoe Houses, Boots, Shoes, Rubbers and Travelling Goods.

The Happyland Midway, with its side-shows, Ferris Wheel, Merry-go-round, etc., was a source of attraction throughout the day and evening.

On Tuesday evening, in the Palace, the most important feature of the whole Fair occurred, viz., the Baby Show. There was a very large audience present and thirteen babies, the finest ever seen, were judged by Dr. Mounce, of Camden East, assisted by Nurse Gardiner, V.O.N.. Every entry in the contest won a prize, and each mother knew that her baby did not get any more than it deserved. The audience agreed with them.

Throughout the evening a good concert was given by the Napanee Band Company and the Cobourg Kilties Band.

WEDNESDAY.

Wednesday, the second day of the Fair and Old Boys' Re-union started proceedings with the taking of a photograph of the Old Boys and Girls in front of the Court House, and about two hundred of them assembled there.

At one o'clock a grand parade of decorated cars and floats was formed at the Armouries and proceeded to the Fair grounds passing through the principal streets, which were densely lined with people, who were highly pleased with the beautifully decorated cars and much amused with many comical and ludicrous spectacles contained in a variety of vehicles. The various styles of music enriched the effect. The parade was about a mile long.

Many noted characters of long ago were represented in the procession, notably Old Billy Applebee and Mr. and Mrs. Weller, the latter was an artist of note and used to exhibit some fearful and wonderful drawings and paintings, of the futurist species.

It is estimated that from eight thousand to ten thousand people were on the grounds during the afternoon and a good time was enjoyed.

The Midway, as usual, had a large patronage.

A judging of horses and cattle took place, and the fancy riding of the Royal Military Academy was as popular as ever.

The exhibits in the Palace were a source of pleasure, and was constantly re-visited.

The decision has been made regarding decorated cars and residences :—

BASEBALL

Kingston Circle Six vs. Belleville Juniors.

Result, 10-2, in favor of Belleville.

In the evening a fine concert was given by the Orpheus Quartette, of New York, followed by a midnight dance on the pavement on Dundas street. Surely the old boys and girls are having a good time, and they freely admit it.

Lots of good things are provided for Fair's entertainment, and all who can do so, should make a point of attending to-day.

THURSDAY.

Thursday, the third day of the Fair, was a great success in every way. The various sections of the Fair were thronged throughout the day. And take many others, your reporter enjoyed revisiting them again and again.

The display in vegetables is more ample than on the first day of the Fair, and some splendid specimens are well worthy of attention and admiration.

One of the most successful exhibitors is R. J. Solmes, of Napanee, who is a notable prize-winner, as he gained one first and one second for tomatoes. For onions he got three first and two second prizes. He is a first prize for the best collection of vegetables. For red cabbage, second; for green Hubbard squash, second. In the following exhibits he was also well :—Parsley 1st and 2nd; cucumbers 1st and 2nd; red onions 1st and 2nd; red peppers and parsnips 1st and 2nd; carrots 2nd; white cabbage 2nd and 3rd.

In the tent were some fine samples of wheat and other grains; also of grass, alfalfa and numerous other seeds.

This year's vegetable showing should encourage many others to show in this class next year.

In the art exhibit at present are many fine paintings, drawings, etc., which are more than highly creditable to this county, and we certainly have artists here whose work will bear the keenest criticism. Amidst many other beautiful paintings on china, contained in two glass cases are to be found two specimens of outstanding merit, they are really wonderful and are the work of Mrs. Cameron Wilson, Napanee; both are women's fancy work in drawing and colouring are almost perfect. One is a plaque and the other a vase.

In going through the Palace one is always finding something new, unique or at least interesting. A lady always in that building is the charm of the beautiful flowers, so pleasing and satisfying to a lover of these gems, the product of the earth and the sun.

BASEBALL.

Picton vs. Napanee.

Score, 11-10, in favor of Picton.

During the afternoon The Napanee Ladies' Bowling Club entertained the visitors at their friendly match at the Bowling Club House, from 4 to 6 o'clock. It was a most charming function.

The Napanee Collegiate Institute had an interesting series of exhibits in a tent near the entrance to the grounds. Many visitors were much interested.

The evening entertainment in front of the grand stand and the elaborate display of fireworks were fine and a big crowd was there to enjoy it.

TO-DAY—FRIDAY.

A fine programme is provided for to-day, including horse races, baseball and lacrosse games. To-night, the grand Midway, the exhibits, the meeting of old friends and new ones, and lastly the Big Community Dance in the Armouries at 8.30 o'clock tonight.

This is the last episode in the Old Boys' Re-Union. We enjoyed the visit of our friends from afar and we are assured they had a good time. Happy to meet, sorry to part, happy to meet again.

God Save the King.

NAPANEE I. O. O. F. HELD MEMORIAL

Impressive Ceremony Held in Riverside Cemetery on Sunday—Kingston Salvation Army Band Present.

Memorial Day, under the auspices of the Independent Order of Oddfellows, was fittingly observed in Napanee on Sunday afternoon. The day was an ideal one for the occasion, which was instrumental in one of the largest parades ever seen in Napanee.

The Order was particularly fortunate in having Bro. J. E. Anderson, of Lindsay, Grand Master for Ontario, present, who delivered a most masterly and appropriate address.

Promptly at 2.30 the members of Napanee Lodge No. 86 and Argyle Lodge No. 212 left the lodge rooms and, headed by the Salvation Army Band of Kingston, and the lady members of Queen of Sheba Lodge No. 254, in motors, proceeded to Riverside cemetery. A circle was then formed around the plot, which was in the form of three links, and after the introductory address by Bro. U. M. Wilson, F.G.P., had been given and a hymn sung, the lady members of the Rebekkas deposited the bouquets on the plot. A male quartette was then given by four members of the Band, after which the Grand Master delivered his address.

This was followed by the singing of another hymn, led by the Band, after which Rev. W. R. Tanton, P.D.D.G.M., pronounced the benediction. It was considered to have been the most successful memorial day ever held under the auspices of the I. O. O. F., and friends and visitors from town and throughout the district were present by the hundreds. A similar service will be held next year at Riverview cemetery.

A. W. HAYCOCK SEES OLD HOME

Former Cataraqui Boy, Now Member of British Parliament, Visiting in City. — Sees Old Familiar Scenes About City — Speaks Highly of Labor Government.

Making his first visit to Kingston in twenty years, Mr. A. W. "Wilkie" Haycock, Labor member of the British House of Commons for West Salford, and a former Cataraqui and Kingston boy, arrived in the city this morning from Adolphustown where he visited his father, Joseph Haycock. Mr. Haycock was overjoyed at returning to the familiar scenes in Kingston, and felt that Ontario never looked better than it does just now.

"I feel somewhat like a ghost, if one can imagine the feelings of a ghost," said Mr. Haycock, "for while the streets are the same the old faces are gone. It is a treat to look at the old Collegiate where I attended, but that too has changed, and there is hardly familiar feature in the caretaker."

Speaking of the work of the Labor Government, Mr. Haycock stated that there was a general assumption that if the Labor party took office the heavens would fall. But nothing terrible has happened, said Mr. Haycock, the trains are still running, and instead of the country going to the dogs the pound sterling has increased in value, unemployment has decreased, and the dock and ship canal question is now before the House. Progress has been taken, Premier MacDonald succeeding where others failed.

Inherited Mess

"One thing we must remember when quarring the work of the Labor Government," said Mr. Haycock, "is that the Government had to inherit a mess. Britain, economically speaking, is not a country but a city, and is dependent on other countries in the world running smoothly. Ramsay MacDonald has not yet been able to get things as they ought to go, but matters are well on the way. Other departments have done well. We find an ugly unemployment problem to handle, and the Government is thinking of providing work which will help the country as a whole. Ontario, in my opinion, has shown the way for the Hydro-Electric development is the biggest undertaking in the world. We have no Niagara Falls, but we have coal, and what Ontario did with water, we can do with coal."

Speaking of his visit to Canada, Mr. Haycock stated that the primary reason for his visit was to visit the old folks at Adolphustown. At the same time he is seeing how Britain can cooperate with Canada. "It may be clearly for me to say it," said Mr. Haycock, "but it does seem strange that a man in Canada will take $1.50 for a barrel of apples, and the same will sell in London for twelve cents a pound. If we can eliminate half a dozen middle men, who not only take their pound of flesh, but who also delay the market, there would be better and more co-operation between the countries."

Situation in Ireland.

Mr. Haycock spoke briefly of the situation in Ireland, and felt that a solution to the difficulties there would likely be found shortly.

The Labor member, who is the only colonial member of the Government, has had considerable experience in journalism in England, and expressed his surprise that Kingston should turn out what he termed such fine daily newspapers. "A Ontario of 25,000", said Mr. Haycock, "would, in England, only have a weekly newspaper."

Mr. Haycock was accompanied back to Canada by Mrs. (Dr.) E. A. Pearson, his sister, who spent a most delightful visit in the old country, and who is returning to her home in Alberta. It is but how long Mr. Haycock will stay in Kingston and Ontario depends entirely on developments in England.—The Kingston Daily Standard, Sept. 8th, 1924.

CONWAY UNION CHURCH DECORATIONS

Decorated by C. B. Scantlebury, Church Decorator, of Belleville.

The general tones are of Rose Buff; the walls are of deep biscuit toning into lighter shades of cornice, ceiling panels, and lightening gradually to an ivory centre field, the ceiling being a succession of panel fields with plastic moulding divisions.

A fresco frieze follows the lower cornice, being of self tones of biscuit harpooning to a remarkably soft degree.

The alcove effect is of ivory with appropriate moulding separations from the wall field. The woodwork and the seats are of antique oak shades. The window sash and window jambs are carried into the same antique oak shades. Thus offering a delightful two-color scheme of wall field and wood work evened down to the same family of color that of brown.

The alcove Corinthian arch has for its field decoration a fresco. Cross and crown of mellow coloring suited to the quiet general tones of the interior which symbolize restfulness, quiet and reverence.

The vestibule entrafce corresponds with the church interior.

The exterior has been painted in quiet buff approaching the fawn shades somewhat the color which ever looks best with red brick and which wears better than any other.

The steeple has been stained in a yellow green, with the windows to match the other outside painting.

Search Organized by Britain for 17th Century Statuettes

House of Commons Engaged in Quest for Set of Six Treasures Which Display Scenes of Stirring Incidents in British History.

London, Sept. 7th.—The British House of Commons is engaged in a treasure quest. It is believed that somewhere there are to be found, perhaps on the Continent or in America, if not in this country, three ivory statuettes of the 17th century, which open and display beautifully carved scenes of stirring incidents in British history.

There have already been discovered two of Charles I and one of Oliver Cromwell, which are now in the possession of the House; but the original set, it is thought, consisted of six. A fourth, in fact, has already been traced. It is a Mary Queen of Scots, the skirt opening back to reveal a carved scene of the death of Rizzio. Though it has been stated that it was bought for £30 in Mesan by an American some time ago, there is reason to believe that it is in this country, and that there is a prospect of the House having an opportunity to acquire it.

Of the subjects of the others of the set there is no very definite information, but so novel is the idea in the carving—the historic scene within the body of the figure—that members of the House who are devoting their holidays a little time to the quest, cannot fail to identify the historic figures if by some lucky chance they should come across them.

The first was found some six years ago by Sir Clive Morrisby-Bell in a shop at Genova. It was a Charles the First, standing in full cavalier costume, with the left hand resting on the belt which holds the sword. The whole of the body of the figure opens in the centre and reveals the three parts which is described on the label that rests on the thighs, "Dissolution du Parliament par Oliver Cromwell." The central scene, with its ten or a dozen little figures, depicts the moment when Cromwell is thundering, "Take away that bauble." In the left hand panel are soldiers entering the House, and in the right hand panel are being expelled. The head of Charles, like a rock above a climber, overhangs the episod scene.

Another Charles and an Oliver Cromwell with a scene of the Battle of Naseby, have been presented more recently by Sir William Bell and W. R. Rea. They have not yet been shown, but will shortly be placed in glass cases with the first Charles in the library.

The curtain had just fallen on the second act of the years annul terrific applause from the audience. Suddenly there was nearest 15% smoke conscious of a stir and hurrying behind the scenes.

In an instant the same thought struck everyone, and the same word left every lip: "Fire!"

A stampede seemed imminent.

The hero of the hour arose from his seat in the stalls.

"Keep your seats!" he shouted. His words and manner reassured the terror-stricken people, and shamefully they sank back into their seats.

Slowly the man strode to where there was an open avenue of escape. Then, without a moment's hesitation, he rushed for the door. Once outside he mopped his head and murmured breathlessly:

"Well, someone's saved, anyway."

Casey met Kelly attired in his Sunday clothes. "Aren't ye wurrkin' to-day?" queried Casey.

"No," said Kelly. "We declared a strike yisstiday."

"For more pay?"

"No. For shorter hours."

"O don't blame ye! Oi always maintained that 60 minutes wux much too much for an hour—an' Oi hope ye win."

Bag Limits and Shooting Restrictions Provided By The Migratory Birds Convention Act and Regulations

Next to the observation of the shooting seasons themselves the most important factor for giving all hunters an equal chance to take game, and for giving all game a fair chance, is the observation of the bag limit and the certain simple shooting restrictions. Following the Migratory Bird Treaty such restrictions have been provided throughout Canada and the United States, and thus the hunters of both countries are given equal privileges while the game stock is conserved as well.

Bag Limits.

Daily bag limits in Ontario: Ducks 25, Geese 15, Brant 15, Rails 25, Wilson's Snipe 25, Jacksnipe 25, Greater and Lesser Yellow-legs, 15 of all kinds. Wilson or Jacksnipe 25, Woodcock 10. Not more than 200 ducks shall be taken in any one season.

Shooting Restrictions.

The use of automatic, swivel or machine guns, and punts, or sail gun larger than number 10 gauge is prohibited, and the use of any aeroplane, power boat, sail boat, motor light, and shooting from any horse drawn motor vehicle is forbidden.

The shooting of migratory game birds, in the Province of Ontario, earlier than one hour before sunrise, or later than sunset, is prohibited.

ELIMINATE THE NON-PRODUCER

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Probably the greatest hindrance to the profitable keeping of poultry on the ordinary farm is the retention of a lot of fowl that are poor layers, due either to their being too old or of a type to produce meat rather than eggs.

The production of eggs is the end and aim of the poultry man in view, but most profit can be made, so that a heavy egg producing type is the type that is best suited to ordinary farm conditions.

Generally speaking, the pullet year is the most profitable period of a hen's life. It is unfortunate, therefore, either to mark the chicks when hatched, using a different mark for each year, or to band the pullets when they are put into winter quarters, so that at culling time the age of the different birds may be seen at a glance and only those hat are required for breeding purposes be retained after the first year's production.

Be careful breeder the use of the trap-nest is the logical thing to cull the flock but the ordinary farmer does not use trap-nests so that reliance must be placed on physical characteristics. The high producer will be found to be of an active disposition, early off the roost in the morning and late to go to roost at night and always busy. Her head will be clear cut, face smooth and free from wrinkles, with bright prominent eyes, skin soft, pliable, and of fine texture and a general appearance of health and vigor.

Cull all birds that show a lack of vigour, a sluggish lazy disposition, a coarse rough head with overhanging cheekbones, an inclination to break down behind, or that show heavy deposits of internal fat, as evidenced by a thick skin and an abdomen that is hard and firm to the touch. In contrast to this the heavy layer will have skin that is fine and texture and the abdomen will be soft and pliable. This last feature is one on which weight should be placed, but in culling preference should be placed on a combination of features rather than on any one feature.

TRAIN JOURNEY TO THE NORTHWEST

By Elmer Wagar.

A city station at night—late at night. Long trains heading in every direction that trains can go, each with its giant engine, noisily throbbing, hissing, panting, breathing as if eager to start its journey by a leap into the darkness.

Hurrying, scurrying, fussy, anxious parcel-laden travellers crowd the platform in search for their car and their tiny niche in their car. Old travel-hardened voyagers, knowing the ropes and the routine, leisurely finish a cigar before turning in.

A pandemonium station, dramatic lights and shadows, dazzling, blinding headlights like an all-seeing, all-piercing eye, driving darkness back into remote corners. Wisps of steam above roofyard, clanging bells blot out the good-byes of human speech, while they clang their imperative cry of get-ready, about to start, all aboard! Red caps dot in and out of the crowds and groups. Miniature trains of luggage trucks threaten to crush the in-the-way creatures into minee meat. Mountains of mail bags, stacked of express packages, pyramids of trunks, baby carriages, bicycles—a coffin. The train swallows them all up with undiscriminating quickness, only a minute to spare. "All aboard" and no nonesense about it this time. A conductor's cry must be taken seriously at times. The final of the last good-byes, the finding of seats and the really last if one could read the uncertain future. Steps tossed on the platform, doors closed, an almost imperceptible movement. Sometimes, echo of, "

Next morning. Another day; another world. A hamlet of a few natal scenery and sleeping. Although a many spired town, each with its relative station status; were little and bigger, according to their respective population. Lots of country in between some—mostly country.

Fences, wire, board, snake ledge, farms painted and paintless; windmills silhouetted against the clear morning sky. Man and women starting another day's work in farmsteads, garden, field, shop and home. Spirals of blue smoke tell of active kitchens. Cackling fowl and barking dogs; a collie having a hundred yard dash for a bird; a milkmaid at work. Daughters of Eve always look charming as milkmaids.

Farther and farther Northwest; rarer signs of settlement. Lonely shacks lost in a wilderness of woods. Lumber piles, rivers, dark brown, checked with logs. Mountains of pulpwood blocks ready to be fed into universe crushers. A train load of paper billed for Winnipeg to be served up as a daily paper next week. Thus do trees help to spread news—and mis-news. Wilderness again. A rippling stream keeps the train company for many a league. Lakes, little and larger, have a spacious world all to themselves. A lonely canoe with a lonely canoeist—a speck afloat on a shimmering sea of silence.

A man—one white man, walking the ties, looks like a prospector; a red man looking on white man as if they doesn't understand worlds, a half-breed even less of a fit. White man rests on a pile of ties; red man disappears into the bush.

A ten-minute stop at a North country station. The tired emotion is put to rest in its round house bed; fresh coal pushes up to us. A tidy station flower bed; a kindly station gardener, who gives big open-eyed parasis a message. A long sound of a cornet—the only sound on a quiet Sabbath morning; a Salvation Army cornetist, a Salvation Army exhorter and an earnest faced lad make two of a choir. Strident but striking sentences come to hearing having to do with eternal verities and another world—later on stations of the future.

But time and tide and trains do not even wait for prayer. The little trio of missionaries are left to speak and pray and sing their fleeting message to other transient passengers of a day.

Soon full speed ahead again. The sway of the car, with the curves of the track lulls one to a half slumber, as trees and track and wayside clearing and dense forest and rock cutting blend into an indistinct picture—a picture one which makes it perfectly clear.

Suddenly a start, a swish, a roar, a rush as a faster express passes at a forty-mile-an-hour pace. Ships—and trains—that pass in the night or the day, never pass again. Hundreds of humans sweeping Westward to the prairies, the mountains, and the sea; others hurrying Eastward to cities, the rivers and the eastern seas and perchance far beyond.

Missanabie, the musical word has long ago made an impress on mind and memory. The river, a noble one in sweep and breadth, luring one to canoe trips and sports. Ah! Ah! there is the magic trio of initials that belong to our North "Countree". Herebefore, Columbus? Almost. The ancient Company of Gentlemen Adventurers are still doing business at their old fur-trading stands. "Board and Room" reads a sign-on a log cottage. The painted tripee started it all and ended with lower case letters. But there is a haven of refuge to the extent of a room for a chance traveller. More red men—human nature bounds in red. The Indian fits into the wild and misfits into the tame. He is far more picturesque on the trail than on the train; more himself in a canoe than leaning on the counter.

Another clearing. The subjugation of Mother Earth continues. Tapping the soil is the great basic Canadian industry. Candles light at night in a log cabin, electric light in the station. The distance between the two is the distance between the Canada of yesterday and of to-day.

More rocks, crossed crossed, serrated and streaked. Rocks of ages, glacial boulders old when Adam delved and Eve spun. Some carry moss. Rolling stones still gather moss—animate and inanimate. Jack Fish bay is in its accustomed place; the red rocks of Nipigon still face Superior. Fish boats, platforms, crates of scaly beauties. Some are met on the diner later on. Bridges, many telling of streams, many tunnels swallowing us up, making the twilight world look all the more alluring as one emerges from the darkness. Most folks prefer light to darkness. A wonder sunset on shoreless Superior. Wonder after-shades ere Mother Earth puts on her nightly night-cap. Another city at midnight twins rather. Elevators bulk enormously in their black outline against a night sky. A few stray lights in windows blink their message of human occupation; stray passengers make their way up deserted streets to the station. Another human hive for ten minutes, then the silence. A boundary line is crossed..one doesn't know exactly where Manitoba succeeds Ontario. The world of the plain succeeds the realm of the rolling hill. The morning of the second day. A new picture and a rare one—the old familiar black earth, advertising its fertility in garden and field. The old familiar trail-road, black too. A world without a seeming boundary except an inconceivable remote sky line. Elbow room for millions and millions more. No crowding here. Space to spare. Bright little towns scattered over the prairie floor. Bright looking little schools where one would like to go to school. Elevators raising their tea-caddy fronts against the ample sky. A farmer toiling in the field, adding to Canada's wealth with every furrow turned. A herd of cattle advertising their sleekness and their well-filled udders.

Another city with the end of the run for the day. A city that is as of yesterday in its relative youth; a metropolis in its trade and commerce of to-day just beginning to grow.

Thus ends a mere train trip.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Sceptic—"Six feet in his boots? Nonsense! Why, they might as well tell me that the man has six heads in his hat!"

Corns cripple the feet and make walking a torture, yet sure relief in the shape of Holloway's Corn Remover is within reach of all.

Mothers can easily know when their children are troubled with worms, and they lose no time in applying a reliable remedy—Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

Farmer: "So you have had some experience, have you?"
New Man: "Yes, sir."
Farmer: "Well, what side of a cow do you sit on ter milk?"
New Man: "The outside."

Miller's Worm Powders do not need the after-help of castor oil or any purgative to complete their thoroughness, because they "are thorough in themselves." One dose of them, and they will be found palatable by all children, will end the worm trouble by making the stomach and bowels unfriendly to the parasites. And not only this, but the powders will be certain to exert most beneficial influences in the digestive organs.

Wife: "Your honor, he broke every dish in the house over my head, and treated me cruelly."
Magistrate: "Did your husband apologize or express regret for his actions?"
Wife: "No, your honor, he was in the ambulance took him away before he could speak to me."

An Oil That Is Prized Everywhere.—Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil was put upon the market without any flourish over fifty years ago. It was put up to meet the wants of a small section, but as soon as its merits became known it had a whole continent for a field, and it is now known and prized throughout this continent. There is nothing equal to it.

Shop Foreman: "You ain't one of them blokes wot drops their tools and kicks as soon as knock-off blows, are you?"
Lily White: "Not me. Why, I often have to wait five minutes after I put my tools away before the whistle goes."

An Oil For All Men.—The sailor, the soldier, the fisherman, the lumberman, the out-door laborer and all who are exposed to injury and the elements will find in Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil a true and faithful friend. To ease pain, relieve colds, dress wounds, subdue lumbago and overcome rheumatism, it is excellent. Therefore, it should have a place in all home medicines and be amongst those taken on a journey.

Insurance Agent: "Yes, sir; if your premises are burned down we pay you the money immediately."
Client: "And do you make any inquiries?"
Insurance Agent: "We make the most careful inquiries."
Client: "Ah, I thought there was a catch in it somewhere."

A Real Asthma Relief.—Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has never been advertised by extravagant statements. Its claims are conservative indeed, when judged by the results which it performs. Expect real relief and permanent benefits when you buy this remedy and you will not have cause for disappointment. It gives permanent relief in many cases where other so called remedies have utterly failed.

A Scotsman went to an English race meeting and staked five shillings. The horse he backed proved a winner, and he went to the bookmaker to claim his money.

The sporting man handed him five half-crowns, and the Scotsman looked at each one very carefully before placing them in his purse.

"Well," said the bookmaker, "are you afraid they're bad?"

"Oh, no," said the Scotsman; "but I was just lookin' to mak' sure the bad yin I gied ye wians among them!"

"Does yo take this woman for thy lawfully wedded wife?" asked the negro clergyman, glancing at the diminutive, bowlegged bridegroom, which stood beside 210-lb. of feminine assurance.

"Ah takes nothin'," responded the bridegroom, gloomily. "Ah's bein' tooked."

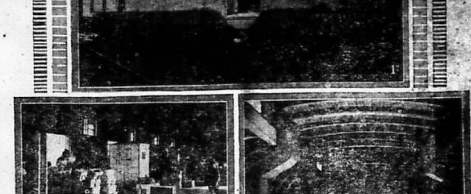
FRUIT NOW SHIPPED IN NEW TYPE OF CAR



1.—Exterior of Car.
2.—Interior of Fruit Shed at Bonaventure Station.
3.—Interior of Car.

THE development of the Niagara Peninsula as a source of fruit for the markets of the Dominion is becoming more pronounced, through the co-operation of the fruit growers, the dealers and the Express Department of the Canadian National Railways.

For this traffic, the Canadian National Express has designed an entirely new style of fruit car which has already given satisfaction. No ice is used in these cars, a natural air-cooling method being used. While this does not develop as low a temperature as ice refrigeration, the process is more natural, and as a result, the fruit does not deteriorate as quickly when removed to the warmer outside atmosphere.

There are ordinary baggage or express merchandise cars, 60 feet in length. They are equipped with a steel underframe and can be added to the equipment of any type of train; they are also equipped with special ventilating devices, consisting in part of ten metal air intakes and channels placed in a staggered position, five on each side of the car, for the purpose of carrying outside air, while train is in motion, through the channel into a chamber of approximately seven inches in depth under a racked false flooring, which entirely covers the regular floor of the car, with the exception of the two passage ways across the car between the two side doors at each end. There are also eight metal air exhausts placed in a staggered position, four on each side of the car, for the purpose of carrying off gases and foul or warm air thrown off by the fruits and vegetables. The intakes and exhausts lead to the outside of car through the deck light openings.

The channels running from the air intakes into the chamber under the false flooring are placed against the wall and curved portion of the roof inside of the car. All of the equipment is portable and will in no way damage the car when being attached thereto. In addition, the intakes bring air into the car irrespective of the direction it moves. The idea is to utilize an ordinary baggage or express merchandise car, equipping same at the start of the fruit and vegetable season and dismantling at the close of the season.

There are thirty of these cars in operation between the Niagara Peninsula and points in Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces and the North West, and they received several tests under the most severe conditions that it is possible before they were finally adopted for service. These tests were carried out by G. E. Bellerose, general superintendent of transportation of the express department. In the case of an empty car, it was found that the car exhausted 290,000 cubic feet of air, which is equivalent to changing all the air in the car every 53 seconds. A car loaded with 800 crates, composed of radishes with the tops on, asparagus and spinach, exhausted 165,366 cubic feet of air per hour, or a complete change of air in the car every 101 seconds. Thermographs in this car showed the inside temperatures to range from 53, 54 and 56 degrees, while the outside temperature ranged from 78, 58 and 56 degrees.

Another test carried out with 1,200 crates of the same traffic, showed a complete change of air every 87 seconds and temperature readings inside of 60, 68 and 60 degrees, and outside readings of 90, 84, 68 and 58 degrees. Still a further test was made with smoke bombs broken in the car, proving that the car could be entirely cleared of smoke in 90 seconds while not in motion.

The claim is made that not only do these cars carry out their object better than any other type of air-cooled car, but they cost less to equip, and the maintenance charges are nil. The false floors are put down in sections and can be removed by one man and the true floor of the car can be swept clean in a few minutes. As the air from the intake devices comes in underneath the false floor, any dust or cinders that may enter the air channels, remain on the bottom and is not blown down on the fruit. Most the fruit arrives as clean and fresh as when it left its shipping point.

When it comes to choosing Wool Dresses, the great majority of women will be splendidly pleased with the select variety that awaits their choosing in our dress cabinets.

SILHOUETTES

The slender, shorter line remains the foundation for all types of dresses. With this as a start, Fashion artistically introduces her exclusive variations. For Autumn "Tailored" lines smartly executed prevail. The "long tunic" is another clever new feature. Long sleeves are in many of the best frocks. Oval, round and low V neck lines take the lead. Buttons, Braids, Laces and Bias Bands create still further ornamentations.

ODE TO DEPARTED COMRADES OF N. H. S.

Our school has opened up again
Its doors, that are forbidding,
Comrades have gone, the world to gain,
We stay to do our bidding.

We stay here, yet a little while,
On comrades gone, we meditate;
Our hearts, with warmth, again do glow,
That's all true friends, at any rate.

And though we gain a few thin year,
Though some are wild and bold;
There still is left, a place to fill;
No comrades like the old.

I see new faces 'round about,
And cheerful voices 'round I hear,
But there are some I'll ne'er forget,
Who are far away from me this year.

Where are the girls of yesterday?
From whence their like shall come?
Or you! There are new ones, I know,
But they're, to us, like deaf and dumb.

Where are the boys of yesterday?
I'd love to hear a joyous peal
Of laughter, from the boys I knew,
Some either to me seems so real.

But ah! They're gone. Good-bye
Dear friends. This earthly loss of ours
Is but another's earthly gain,
As swiftly speed receding hours.

Another's gain. Oh, yes; but we Must bear our loss, a loss so great
It shakes us to our very quick
And turns us to the arch-fiend "hate".

Hate for the world that caused this change,
And of dear friends has robbed us all;
But we will love those who remain,
And hope some good, from them, may fall,

We'll do our best; we'll play our part;
We'll ne'er forget friends far away.
We'll hope they ll ne'er forget us, too
And live to love another day.

All Dressed Up and No Place To Go

That isn't nearly so disastrous as having some place to go and no clothes to go in. The man who is all dressed up is at least ready in case he's invited. The first step in success is to dress up for it in advance. You will not only look the part, but you will meet with less opposition than if you are poorly dressed; and the better the fabrics and the better the workmanship, the better impression you will create.

We want to sell you more than clothes. We want to sell you the success that good clothes command.

WEDDING BELLS

Henderson—Herrington.

A very pretty wedding took place on Saturday, Sept. 6th, at twelve o'clock, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Henderson, Napanee, when their eldest daughter, Jessie Geraldine, became the bride of Mr. Frank Huffman Herrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Herrington, Rev. W. R. Tanton officiating. The drawing room was banked with ferns and a profusion of pink and white asters. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, rendered by Miss Ramsay, of Newburgh. The bride was attired in a gown of powder blue canton crepe, with trimmings of lace, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses. Little Miss Helen Henderson, sister of the bride, was flower girl, and carried a basket of sweet peas and roses. During the signing of the register Miss Ruth Ramsay sang "Until". After the ceremony luncheon was served to about forty guests at daintily decorated tables. Mr. and Mrs. Herrington left for a motor trip to Montreal and Quebec, the bride travelling in a navy blue tailored suit, grey hat and squirrel fur. On their return they will reside in Napanee. Mr. and Mrs. Herrington have the best wishes of a host of friends. The out-of-town guests were Miss Curtis, Peterboro'; Miss Hicks, Lindsay; Misses Ramsay, Newburgh; Mr. King, Lindsay.

Brown—Simmons.

A very quiet wedding took place at the Methodist Parsonage, Napanee, on Saturday evening, August 30th, at 6.30 o'clock, when Miss Mildred Marion Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Simmons, Bicknell's Corners, was united in marriage to Mr. John Edward Brown, of Napanee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Brown, of Cambusiang, Scotland. The wedding ceremony was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Truscott. The young bride looked very pretty in her bridal suit of navy blue silk Canton crepe, with hat and veil to match. After the wedding ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Brown left on the midnight train for Flint, Mich., to spend a short time visiting the bride's sister, Mrs. Roy Samson. On their return they will reside in Napanee.

For the Love of a Woman and to Avenge a Friend

Andre-Louis Moreau was born with the gift of laughter, and a sense that the world was mad. His laughter mocked his enemies and his madness inflamed the world. Not in all the pages of fiction is there such a glowing dare-devil character as that of this young scion of the nobility who became Scaramouche the clown. Not in the history of motion pictures has there been such a production as

CO-OPERATIVE SELLING

What Ontario May Learn From California Fruit Growers

An Immense Range of Business—The Market Still Growing — Organized Effort Pays the Producer—Legume Inoculation—The New O. A. C. No. 144 Oat.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange shipped 17,857,417 boxes of oranges, lemons and grapefruit in 47,254 cars to points outside California; increased its proportion of all citrus fruit grown in the state from 68.7 to 75.8 per cent.; returned $55,-272,450 to its members; lost through failure of customers only $6,926.70; did all this business at a cost of 1.51 per cent. of the delivered value and, including advertising, 2.4s per cent. Such is the record for its last financial year of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, whose products are best known to Canadian consumers by the brand "Sunkist."

An Immense Range of Business.

The California Fruit Growers' Exchange is the oldest and largest of the California Co-operatives. In the last twenty years it has returned to its members $546,000,000 from the sale of their products. It is a federation of 7ws local associations with 11,000 members. The locals each have their own packing houses and are fully responsible, financially and otherwise, for their own local activities. They are grouped into 21 district exchanges. Each district exchange has one director on the board of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, which owns the brand "Sunkist" and acts as the Central Selling Agency for all the fruit. It has business connections with 2,500 wholesalers, who serve 400,000 retailers, who in turn serve 112,000,000 consumers in Canada and the United States.

The Market Is Still Growing.

The market demand for its products is being constantly increased by the Exchange. Twenty-five years ago the orange growers of the State were faced with what they thought was over-production. Since then production has quadrupled and the crop is still concerned. Judicious advertising and merchandising methods have kept demand equal to or ahead of supply. A levy of four cents a box on oranges and 6½ cents a box on lemons pays for it all. Advertising and dealers' service work is directed chiefly to the retailer and consumer, in any town and village in Ontario, where you could not buy an Ontario apple, you will find oranges constantly displayed according to directions worked out by those wide-awake growers in Southern California.

Lower Freight Rates Secured.

Last year an arrangement was made with the railways by which, through the use of larger cars and quantity shipments, a lower freight rate was secured on oranges. The reduction will effect a saving of $3,000,000 a year to the orange growers of the State. This works out to 14 cents a box. The total cost of the organization's services, exclusive of advertising, is 6.86 cents per box or less than half the amount of the reduction.

Organized Effort Pays the Producer.

The oldest and best Co-operative Marketing Association of California, after a quarter of a century of successful experience, is still demonstrating that the farmers' marketing problems can only be solved through organized marketing effort by the farmers themselves.—R. D. Colquette, Professor of Marketing, O. A. College, Guelph.

Legume Inoculation.

The popularity of the Bacteriology Department of the Ontario Agricultural College is attested by the following statements: During 1923 a total of 4,227 cultures of legume bacteria for seed inoculation were prepared and sent out. Of this number alfalfa was most frequently asked for, with 1,892; Red clover, 886; alsike, 647; peas, 541; alsike, 143; soy beans, 88; beans, 71; sweet peas, 39; vetch, 31; white clover, 1. The creamerymen and the cheese makers asked for and were supplied with 147 bottles of starters, and 63 Bulgaricum cultures.

The multiplying influence of the nodule bacteria is at from the Bacteriological Department during the year had a very noticeable influence on legumes of the fields and the finished dairy products of the factories.

The New O. A. C. No. 144 Oat.

The O. A. C. No. 144 oat was obtained from the Siberian variety through nursery plant selection. This oat, which matures about the same time as the Banner, has a spreading head, white grain and less than the average per cent. of hull found in oats. The straw is strong and it has proven to be an excellent yielder of grain.

When tested on thirty-two farms situated in twenty-one different counties in Ontario in 1923, it outyielded the O. A. C. No. 72 by 5.7 bushels, the O. A. C. No. 3 by 10.3, and the Liberty Hulless oat by 17.3 bushels of grain per acre. In triplicate plot tests at Guelph and at the average of the last five years, it surpassed the O. A. C. No. 72 by 4.3 and the Banner by 5.2 bushels of grain per acre. During this five-year period the straw of the variety lodged less than either the O. A. C. No. 72 or Banner Oats. —Dept. of Extension, O. A. College, Guelph.

CHOOSING A MATE.

Beauties of the Heart and Mind Improve With Keeping.

The men who marry nowadays are, as a rule, keenly aware of the advantage of choosing a cultured girl instead of some frivolous little thing who hasn't outgrown the flapper stage and possibly never will.

They have studied other men's wives and realize what a terrible bore an ignorant girl can be. She is usually unreasonable and much more liable in middle life to grow acrid, nagging, and snappish, if not positively bad-tempered, than the versatile woman, whose interests are very varied.

There is really no woman quite so perverse and provoking as the one withas: intellectual resources and whose position happens to be at variance with her ideas of comfort, or who, being comfortable, is conscious of the faint contempt, the slight avoidance of those round her.

Wives are perfectly well aware when their husbands listen from politeness alone. When this happens they grow more disappointed and crotchety than many a spinster.

Men at thirty and upwards are quite able to realize how great a part friendship plays in married life and how it deepens affection. On the other hand, they know the difficulty of friendship with a woman whose early charms has passed away, who does not understand one word in six of what they say, and who is incapable of either sympathizing with their failures or understanding why they have scored a huge success.

Clever girls are much more likely to be free from feminine extravagance, perhaps the most annoying weakness which a wife can possess. The great majority of cultured girls are economical. Fascinity has been their road to independence. They could not have had a career, in very many instances, if they had cost their parents too much. Realizing the true value of money, they expend it carefully and avoid debt like the plague.

They may not be so devoted to housekeeping as some of the uninitiated are, meaning in the majority of cases endless and harassing interference with their helpers, but when they know their incomes they can keep house comfortably at an outlay well within it.

Men are well aware that there is no bore on earth to be compared with the woman who can neither talk nor listen, who has no mental interests in common with her husband, and who thinks his friends satirical because they attend to her meaningless chatter with amused amazement.

Men of the above type believe also that the educated girl is more capable of real affection and far less exacting than her sister of limited intelligence and education.

Do Animals See Spirits?

Most people are satisfied that animals dream and many believe that they see spirits. Here are some recorded instances: A horse was to be put in a stable at an hotel while the owner had his lunch. The horse would not enter the hotel yard, so the owner asked what was the cause. The reply was: "I expect he knows we have a dead man here, taken from the river this morning." A terrier was seen begging (as he always begs for sugar), then he barked and went upstairs, then begged again. A person who was a clairvoyant, noticed this, and saw he was begging to the spirit of the lady who, when she was on earth, taught him to beg for sugar. A cat was seen running all over a bedroom, put upon the bed. The cat was trying to follow a spirit form that was moving about the bedroom. At a lecture given at the Crystal Palace, a live rat was put in a glass tube, and the tube was closed up at each end. The room was in darkness and an electric light was put on to the tube. When the rat died, a form, the same shape as a rat, came from the tube and went up in the air.

Making Gold Leaf.

Gold beating is a very ancient art. It was introduced in Great Britain by the Romans about 2,000 years ago. The Romans probably gained their knowledge of the art from the Greeks and the Greeks from the Egyptians and the Egyptians from somebody else. The final process of gold beating has to be done by hand. Seen in its virgin state, in a crucible just taken from the furnace, the gold glistens like diamonds and after being poured into a mould and rolled in a special bath a 200-oz. brick of 22-karat quality is worth about $700. The men who beat gold by hand wield hammers weighing fourteen or twenty-one pounds each. The skill of the workers is such that gold can be beaten to the thinness of 1-282,000th of an inch and one ounce can be made to cover an area of more than 200 square feet. A skilful craftsman takes a week to beat two and a half ounces of gold into leaf, and one ounce produces 2,500 gold leaves three and a quarter inches square.

Skill in Metallurgy.

The Chinese have long been the world's leaders in the making of alloys, and what is known as German silver is an imitation of Chinese "tutenag" white steel which is obtained by fusing red steel with arsenic. The Chinese gongs and tom-toms have long been the admiration of the world on account of their perfect tone which defies imitation. Chemicals analysis has proved conclusively the composition of the tom-toms, but the details of their manufacture, the tricks of the makers, remain mysteries. It is the same with the bronze vases, so treasured by collectors. A brass pagoda built on a hill near Tsing Kianfou dates from the twelfth century.

Hurrah!

A safe which automatically chloroforms a burglar when he attempts to open it has been put on the market by an Austrian firm.

Lock Church Doors.

In Holland it is the custom for the church doors to be locked during the sermon, so that nobody can interrupt by going in or out.

Landlord: "I hear you are kicking about the flies in your room."

Roomer: "Oh, no. I was just knocking them around with my hand."

MISERABLE AND ALWAYS IN PAIN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Dependable Help for Mothers

Port Greville, Nova Scotia.—"I took your medicine for a terrible pain in my side and for weakness and headaches. I seemed to bloat all over, too, and my feet and hands were the worst. I am the mother of four children and I am nursing my baby—the first one of four I could nurse. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before the baby's birth, so you can see how much it helped me. I cannot praise it too highly for what it has done for me. I took all kinds of medicine, but the Vegetable Compound is the only one that has helped me for any length of time. I recommend it to any one with troubles like mine and you may use my letter for a testimonial."—Mrs. ROBERT McCULLEY, Port Greville, Nova Scotia.

Before and after child-birth the mother will find Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a blessing.

Many, many letters are received giving the same sort of experience as is given in this letter. Not only is the mother benefited, but these good results pass on to the child.

No harmful drugs are used in the preparation of this medicine—just roots and herbs—and it can be taken in safety by the nursing mother.

98 out of every 100 women reported benefit from its use in a recent canvass among women users of this medicine. C

Sandy, the porter of a large school, had a small dog of which he was very fond, and when teased about the animal he would say: "I woodna take twenty shillings for ma wee doggy." Some of the older boys decided to test Sandy's assertion, and made up twenty shillings between them. Then they led up to the familiar statement, and one of them said:—"Now, Sandy, I'd like that dog myself, and here's twenty shillings if you will sell him."

He counted out twenty shillings.

Without a smile, Sandy drew a sixpence from his pocket and said, as he took up the money:—"Weel, I dinna say I woodna take nineteen shillings and sixpence for him. The wee doggy's yours."

On Sunday morning the Band held open air meetings at several corners of the town, and later assisted in a memorial service under the auspices of the I.O.O.F. memorial service at Riverside cemetery, and at the conclusion of the church services at night rendered a choice program of music, both vocal and instrumental, in the Armouries. The several members of the Band were billeted at the different homes. The attendance at the Sunday evening concert was, extremely large.

Lennox Exhibition

G. H. Switzer.

Farmers and owners of property were attracted to the good display in Mr. Switzer's booth. He has many things of interest for them, and should make good sales at and after the Fair as a result of his fine exhibit.

The DeLaval Separators shown have many improvements over the older styles. The new models are capable of giving a long life time of clean skimming service.

The "Eastlake" Galvanized shingles on exhibition, make a safe and permanent roof.

Try DeLaval Oil for your machines—it pays to use it.

If you want the best—use DeLaval Milker.

For Felt Roofing and Shingles, see G. H. Switzer, Dundas street, Napanee.

VanLuven Coal.

A most interesting exhibit was that of VanLuven, the old and well-known Coal Dealer. Specimens of various kinds and size were well displayed in a charmingly decorated booth.

Anthracite coal was shown in the sizes, Egg, Stove, Chestnut, Pea and No. 1 Buckwheat. They are fine samples of D. L. & W. of the highest grade in heat units.

Bituminous steam coal was also exhibited and looked of fine quality select lump.

Some good specimens were there of Ebony Cube Cannel Coal, hand picked for grates, just the thing to make a cheerful fire these chilly days and evenings. It is a high grade coal and sure to give satisfaction.

A good sample of Smithing Coal is shown from Cumberland big vein. It is known as the famous Georges Creek Coal.

The Hamilton By-Product Solvey Coke made from coal from Elkhorn and Pocahontas, has wonderful heating qualities. It is a Canadian product.

Farmers and others should see VanLuven's for their coal supply. Prices right and quality right too. Phone No. 92, Napanee.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S EXHIBIT

The exhibits by the school children were more attractive than in former years, owing largely to the fact that more space was provided, and it was possible to view them to better advantage. The mass and amateur efforts in colored drawings of dishes of fruits were above the average productions. The etchings, while few in number, were superior in quality, and that which was awarded the first prize a sketch of the late Dr. Lougheed, is worthy of especial mention. The youthful artist who produced it is likely to be heard from again for such talent cannot be suppressed. The greater part of the space was filled with what might be termed illustrated menus. There were many competitors in this class and much skill and originality were displayed in the exhibits. The idea was to have the child illustrate by a series of pictures his or her conception of what is proper to eat at the different meals. Every available source was evidently ransacked in procuring the desirable pictures. These were pasted upon plain sheets of white paper and labelled "Breakfast", "Dinner" and "Supper", and some went even farther and produced illustrated lists of the dishes that children should not eat. In one instance we observed strawberries and ripe chicken on the prohibited list in the same category as pickles and mince pie. There were some remarkable bills of fare, but upon the whole good judgement was displayed and the pictures were tastefully arranged and from a purely artistic point of view helped to make the exhibit one of the most attractive in the main building.

WEDDING BELLS.

Anderson—Freeman.

One of the prettiest of summer weddings took place yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Blanche Winifred, youngest daughter of Mrs. J. A. Freeman, of Hamilton, Ontario, became the bride of William Halliday Anderson, son of Mrs. Anderson, of Napanee, Ontario. The ceremony which took place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hodgson, was performed by Rev. J. Phillips Jones of Knox Church, in the archway of the home, banked with quantities of cosmos and sweet peas, and beneath beautiful wedding bells of summer flowers with dainty ribbon streamers. Creeping fern and sweet pear were gracefully entwined about the pillars, between which hung lovely baskets of flowers and fern.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. J. E. Hodgson, made a charming picture in her gown of white georgette, embroidered in silver, and carrying an exquisite shower bouquet of Ophelia roses with strands of satin ribbons caught with sweet peas. Her beautifully embroidered wedding veil was arranged in bandeau effect, entwined with orange blossoms. She was attended by little Douglas Hodgson in a court costume of white satin and lace, carrying the ring in a basket of flowers.

As the bride entered and left the room Miss Evelyn Hodgson softly played the wedding march, and during the signing of the register Mrs. Murdoch sang very sweetly.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mrs. Hodgson, who wore peach-colored georgette, while the bride's mother, who came to Lethbridge to attend her daughter's marriage, wore black georgette embroidered with steel beads.

Mrs. W. S. Ball and Mrs. A. J. Watson cut the ices at the pretty appointed tea-table which was centred by the bride's wedding cake and above which was suspended a huge floral wedding bell, covered with satin ribbons and sweet-pea greenery interwined. Assisting in serving were Mrs. William Short, of Calgary, (nee Miss Matchett), and Misses Ethel Higinbotham, Helen McDiarmid, Kathleen Ball, Marion Marra, Dorothy Marra, Glenella Hardy and Florence Hill.

The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful string of pearls, and to Miss Shillington and Mrs. Murdoch handsome bracelet set with amethysts. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left by motor for a visit in Glacier Park, and later will go through the Banff-Windermere Highway. They will make their home in Forestburg, near Edmonton, where Mr. Anderson is manager of the Bank of Montreal. Both the bride and groom are well known in Lethbridge, where Mr. Anderson was at one time a resident.—Lethbridge, Aug. 26th.

TO ALL WHO HELPED MAKE "OLD HOME WEEK" A SUCCESS

On behalf of the Executive of the Old Boys' Re-Union Committee I would like to say a word of appreciation of the splendid response made by the people of the County and Town.

This was the first re-union ever held in this County and we feel that the occasion was a decided success. The Committee feel very grateful to the citizens of the Town and County for their whole-hearted support.

The residents of the Town were asked to decorate their homes, the storekeepers were asked to decorate their stores, owners of trucks and automobiles were asked to take part in the parade, and in every case the response was most gratifying.

We are also deeply indebted to the ladies who did so much towards making the parade a success.

I would like to express my thanks to the Chairmen and members of the different Committees, who gave so freely of their time, and through whose efforts the success of this occasion was made possible. While everyone did their share, yet special mention should be made of the work done by Mr. J. M. Simpson, Secretary; Mr. C. A. Walters, Chairman of Decoration Committee; Mr. Wilfred Wilson, Chairman of Billetins Committee, and Mr. John G. Daly, Chairman of Dance Committee.

It has been a pleasure for me to work with the members of the different Committees, and the success of the undertaking has been a clear demonstration of what team work can accomplish.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the assistance you have rendered through liberal donation of space in your valued paper.

I am, yours sincerely,
MARK P. GRAHAM,
President Old Boys' Re-Union Committee.

CLOSING DAY OF NAPANEE FAIR AND LENNOX AND ADDINGTON OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

COMMUNITY DANCE AT THE ARMOURIES

Friday, the closing day of the Fair and of the Old Boys' Re-Union, was a record breaker at the Fair, as there was an attendance of five thousand people on the grounds during the afternoon, the largest attendance ever present on the last day.

It was a bright warm day and everybody was pleased with the day's programme.

The very choice selections rendered by the Cobourg Kiltie Band during the afternoon added very much to the pleasure of the day. This organization has great musical ability and their music was highly appreciated at many places. The conductor is J. H. Goldrick, who is an accomplished musician and a good leader.

Recently they have played for Lindsay Old Boys' Re-Union, also at Peterboro', Toronto's Exhibition Week, and at Port Hope 1st of July celebration.

On the last night, at the big Community Dance in the Armouries here, the Orchestra was composed of members of the band, and the dances pronounced the music to be all that could be desired.

After having paid this well deserved tribute to the band, your reporter will revert to the afternoon's proceedings at the Fair grounds.

The display of carriage horses in single horses was given in front of the grand stand. The first prize was won by F. D. Marsh, Napanee. All the horses shown in this class were very fine animals.

In the Royal Bank Silver Cup competition Mr. Wellanks' horse won the prize.

There was a parade of horses and cattle, the latter mostly Holstein and Durham breeds, before the grand stand. This is an innovation, inaugurated at this year's Fair, and is a move in the right direction as it gives all the people at the Fair a better chance of viewing the animals than in the stock barns. If the directors will emphasize this feature for next year they will get a greater number of entries.

The exhibition of horsemanship by the R. C. H. A. Rangers, in tent pegging, the musical ride, hurdle jumping, etc., was splendid.

The slow automobile race was very amusing, but fortunately two of the three cars competing stalled, so the onlookers did not have to wait for hours for the finish once around the track.

The horse races were particularly good and, of course, were the attraction of a large portion of the people on the grounds.

The baseball and the lacrosse games each drew a large quota of interested and enthusiastic spectators.

The palace and other buildings, and the tents on the grounds received a constant stream of visitors.

was a decided success, and the visiting Old Boys and Girls helped to make it so.

COMMUNITY DANCE

The great event, and the concluding one, of the Fair was the big Community Dance given in the Armouries last Friday night, commencing at 8.30 o'clock.

The Armouries presented a fairy-like scene with its beautiful decorations of flags and bunting and innumerable colored electric lights arranged in rainbow lines and festoons and balconies to the centre of the building, above the orchestra stand, in the middle of the dancing floor, forming a brilliant and dazzling ring of lights, including all the colors of the rainbow.

As near as one might estimate there must have been at least a hundred people who participated in what is considered to be the largest and best dance ever given in Napanee.

Everybody seemed to have a thoroughly good time.

OLD BOYS' RE-UNION

On page 2 of this issue will be found the complete list of Old Boys and Girls who registered as visitors for the 1924 Re-Union and the number whose names are recorded amounts to about five hundred. A large number of our guests did not register and it is impossible to estimate how many. Although all entries for the "Ed. Hall Prize" were in on Friday last, the committee has been unable to award a decision. The prize is offered by Mr. Ed. Huff, of Telford, Mich., for the oldest Old Boy or Girl who, being an ex-resident of Napanee or of the County, returned to the Old Boys' Re-Union after the longest absence.

There are three or four possibilities which must be carefully considered, and the difference between the contestants being so slight that the making of the decision is rendered very difficult. The prize, if expected, will be awarded during this week.

NEWBURG

We caught the spirit of the Old Boys' Re-Union in Newburgh and the citizens generally patronized the Fair and all the events and spectacles that were so well put on by the people of Napanee, and which made the occasion one long to be remembered. We enjoyed some of the overflow in the way of visits from some of Newburgh old boys.

Among those who visited Newburgh were Mr. A. Hassard, B.C.L., of Toronto, and his sister, Mrs. S. A. Hazzard and her daughter, Miss Florence. These parties visited the Public School where Mr. Hassard had attended 45 years ago. He addressed the pupils in a neat, fatherly and encouraging way. Mr. and Mrs. John Bock also gave us a part of their time, calling on old friends.

Mr. John Dunn, one of our High School graduates, who volunteered for service overseas, spent a day in the village last week, renewing old acquaintance and locking over his old haunts. Mr. Dunn has a position in the Toronto Post Office.

Mr. Bert Vanalstine, of Saskatoon, and Mr. Percy Vanalstine, Toronto, took in the Old Boys' Re-Union and visited their aunt, Mrs. Geo. Miller, here.

Mr. Percy Lochhead, of the Bank of Montreal, Lindsay, was calling on friends on Saturday.

A number from here attended a meeting on Monday night in the Town Hall, Napanee, held for the purpose of organizing the Plebiscite campaign for the County. There was a large and representative turnout, and an optimistic air prevailed.

AGED RESIDENT OF CAMDEN CELEBRATES HER 92nd BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Maria York, relict of the late F. H. York, celebrated her 92nd birthday, at the home of her son, Mr. Manson York, of Camden. She was born August 26th, 1832, and in 1850 was united in marriage to Frederick Hainer York, of Camden. To this union were born six children, four of whom survive, viz., Mr. Manson York, on the homestead; Mr. F. A. York, of Marshalls; Mrs. Joseph Teskey, Wellington, and Miss Nelson Albertson, of Kingston. One son, Wellington, died Feb. 26th, 1899, and one daughter, Mrs. Harvey Bradshaw, died January 9th, 1919. There are living fifteen grandchildren, forty-two great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren. Mrs. York is of a very cheerful disposition and always has a pleasant word of greeting for all who call on her. Her hearing and eyesight are good. Not only is she able to do her own mending, but she also assists with the family mending. Her Bible and Hymn Book are her daily reading and as the possesses a remarkably sweet voice, though weak, one enjoys hearing her sing the familiar old hymns. She also enjoys reading the newspapers and keeps up with the current events of the day. Her intellect is keen and her memory clear, and it is a pleasure to converse with her and hear tales of those early days, when the settlers cleared the ground for their homes, before the Napanee road was built, and the blazing of trees was the only guide, and automobiles were not dreamed of. Now it is a fine, improved road for autos. She remembers when the first homes were built in what is now the prosperous Town of Napanee.

Owing to rheumatism, she has to go around with the aid of a cane, but she is able to wash dishes, care for her own room, make her bed, does her own ironing, and assists with other household duties.

A few days prior to her 92nd birthday she was taken for an auto drive and made a few calls around the neighborhood and home town, covering a distance of several miles.

She is young at heart and it keeps the countenance fresh and youthful. As her own mother lived to be a hundred and one years old, we trust that "Grandma York" will yet celebrate her one hundredth anniversary.

UNVEILING OF MEMORIAL MONUMENT

A monument with a meaning erected to the memory of the United Empire Loyalists, was unveiled at the City of Belleville by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor of the Province of Ontario on the 8th of September.

This date was selected because it was the anniversary of the date on which seven ship loads of Loyalists, convoyed by the ship "Elizabeth" set from New York City in 1783, on a two thousand mile journey for the Bay of Quinte District, where they landed on the 16th of June, 1784, and Belleville is the first city on the Province since to commemorate this interesting bit of history.

The monument has a meaning, as it suggests the conditions of the early pioneers, the plain, unpolished and enduring character. It is constructed of concrete and the clay and stone off farms adjoining Belleville originally settled by Loyalists. Mounted on the top is a representation of a log cabin typifying the first home of the U. E. Loyalists after coming to Canada. The coming of the Loyalists was the greatest event in the history of Canada because by it Canada's membership in the Empire was assured with its two million British hemes and a territory nearly as large as Europe.

The corner stone of the monument was laid last June by the Masonic Grand Lodge Officers, during the celebration of the 140th anniversary of the settlement of Upper Canada by the U. E. Loyalists.

Arrangements have been made to publish a "Book of Remembrance" giving a history of the U. E. Loyalists, an account of the celebration and containing as complete a list as possible of original U. E. Loyalists and of their descendants who are living to-day, to bring out prominently facts concerning, and encourage a greater admiration for, the men and women who did so much for Canada.

ARRIVAL IN TANGIER.

All Bedlam and Rabel Seems to Have Broken Loose.

A traveller who has recently visited Morocco gives his experiences as follows:

Your arrival at Tangier is apt to be a little alarming. Boatloads of Moors besiege the steamer, clamoring for passengers, for it is in their small boats that one is forced ashore. A crowd of yelling Moors and Jews assess on the pier, and it is a wise for the traveller who has friends waiting to engage him from the last pertinacious crowd. Even in these circumstances it is hard to escape the murderous fellowship of a dozen or more figures, who shout to their speed impossible ways at the blazing pace of the botana vivos.

Once safely mounted on your steed, mule, or horse, and on your way, bump, bump, along some up the polluted airport, amidst a riot of cries, and yet nobody runs at you, nobody knocks you down. Everyone seems to serve each's way, and yet nobody runs at you. Everyone is the picture of good humor. By the time you have reached the baksheesh, the mark is passed, you are on good ground and you know that you are not running into a snare, or in front, a donkey behind is not running into you.

"Bluff, bull!" shouts the Moor by your side, shaking off the horrors of the evil eye, and it is true. Then follows an interesting display of finance at bad language, and the regret you are unable to insert one so very deep it stand.

In the Soko all brethren and breed seem to have divided themselves into their hereditary characters, and each all the characteristic groups of which he haggled together, carried on their business, and sang the most unmusical airs. Everything is carried on in the open air, and the quarrels and remarks are conducted in the most public manner. Everyone is in the picture of good humor. By the time you have reached the baksheesh, the mark is passed, you are on good ground and you know that you are not running into a snare, or in front, a donkey behind is not running into you.

CANADIAN CEMETERIES ON THE WESTERN FRONT

By Albert Close.
August 30th, 1924.

The Beaver, Napanee.

Dear Mr. Editor,—I have just made a tour of the Battlefields of the Western Front and the Cemeteries in which Canadians in large numbers are buried. At Ypres Major de St. Victor, Supt. of the Imperial War Cemeteries, kindly took me around in his car to the various Cemeteries in which our Canadian boys are sleeping their last sleep on the fields they triumphed over the foe.

Major de St. Victor is an old Quebec and Montreal boy and was able to direct me to the cemeteries where the boys killed in the different campaigns and battles were laid to rest. At the capture of Passchendale in 1917 Major de St. Victor's battalion reached Passchendale Church, but the Church was not there. In the dark he had a hard job to find the objective for the reason that only the site remained.

The cemeteries are beautifully kept and in many cases are veritable flower gardens of the choicest flowers. Civil cemeteries cannot compare with them for beauty. First, I went to Vermandovillers cemetery where many of the boys killed in the great gas attack in April, 1915, lie buried. Grave after grave is marked "An Unknown Canadian Soldier", "Known Unto God". About 400 are buried here. Next I went to Passchendale New British cemetery, where over 400 of the Canadians killed in 1917 at Passchendale are buried. Large numbers are marked "Unknown Canadian Soldier". These have been found all round Passchendale on the great battlefields of 1917 and concentrated in this beautiful cemetery. They have been found in many cases so perfectly preserved that the features seemed as natural as in sleep after six years. This is true, I am informed, where a soldier has been buried in clay soil. After exposure to the air a change speedily takes place. The War Graves Commission men are finding about fifty missing men a week on the average as building or farming operations unearth them. Trained men can tell at once if a body is buried by the green colour of the nail. Seven were identified at Hill 60 last week by the number on the boots of each soldier. The reason why so many are unknown, although perhaps preserved, is because the earlier identification discs were made of fibre and perished in the earth. The Germans made their discs of bronze and they last out the test of time.

Next, I went out to Villers au Bois cemetery, about eight miles West of Ypres, where are the graves of about 500 Canadians killed at the taking of the Ridge in April, 1917. This also is a beautiful cemetery. All of the boys have their headstones over their graves instead of crosses as at Voormezeele. About 1187 Canadians are buried in the beautiful Lissenshik cemetery, where over 2000 British are buried. There are 185 British cemeteries around Ypres containing 101,000 registered graves, and 148 German cemeteries containing 70,000. German registered graves number over 240,000 British were killed, or died of wounds received at Ypres 1914-18, but many died in base hospitals. I noticed chiefly for the discrepancy in the number of actual graves and the 240,000 killed. Vimy Ridge a great German cemetery has been used for concentration. They say there are 25,000 graves in it.

North East of Arras four miles I saw a big German cemetery with 4,800 identified graves, and 25,000 "unknown". The French are collecting them from all over the Front. The coffins are stacked up 25 feet deep on the top of another and covered over with the chalky limpy soil six feet deep.

Friends coming from Canada can save large sums of money when visiting graves by using the light railways, instead of hiring motors. Stanfords of 12-14 Long Acre, London, have just published a fine cemetery map showing where all the cemeteries lie and the road and railways leading to them. These cost $1.25.

We also visited Verdun, the great French Fortress, which cost the Germans 500,000 killed and 1,500,000 wounded in their furious assaults in 1916. The whole country-side has been blown to pieces. About 300,000 French killed are buried in unknown graves, 100,000 in known graves. We went right down inside Fort Vaux and saw the underground galleries, hospitals and gun emplacements. Steel and iron 15 inches thick are shattered to pieces.

The Germans captured the Fort for a time by throwing hand grenades and bombs down the air ventilators, etc., and by cutting off the water supply.

We saw the 170 bayonets still sticking up out of the ground, where a salva of German shells blew in a trench and buried the men just as they stood. The French have left them as they stand and are erecting a vast Mausoleum over the spot.

General Falkenhayne and the Crown Prince buried their reputations as soldiers at Verdun. The great dug-outs all over the Front are fast falling in.

As one goes over the Front and sees the positions stormed by the Canadians it makes one proud of the race to which we belong.

I enclose a photo of Villers au Bois and Voormazeele cemeteries. If any Napanee relatives desire copies you can let them have these for reproduction.

Yours truly,
ALBERT CLOSE,

ERADICATION OF WEEDS

Co-operative Experiments Show How It May Be Done

Rape for Perennial Sow Thistles and Twitch Grass—Iron Sulphate for Mustard—Another Plan for Killing Twitch—O. A. C. Barley Popular In the United States.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

As a result of ten years' experiments the following methods are recommended by the department of Botany of the Ontario Agricultural College:

Use of Rape to Destroy Perennial Sow Thistle and Twitch Grass.

Cultivate the field until about the middle of June, running over it frequently with the cultivator so as to keep the tops down and thus weaken the "roots." Then apply manure at the rate of about twenty tons per acre (12 good loads). Cultivate the manure in thoroughly, and with a double mould board plough slightly ridge up the land, making the ridges about 26 inches apart. On the ridges sow pasture rape 5, the rate of 1½ pounds per acre. It is important that the right amount of rape be sown, for if too little is sown the stand will not be thick enough to smother the weeds, and if on the other hand too much is sown the plants will be too crowded and not grow vigorously enough to keep ahead of the weeds. Sow the rape when the land is sufficiently moist to insure quick germination of the seed. If the rape is slow in starting the weeds may get a start in the rows and thus necessitate hand cultivation thereafter. If, when the rape is cut or pastured, any weeds remain, the field should be ridged up the last thing in the fall and put in with a hoed crop the following year. This should not be necessary if a good stand of rape is secured.

Spraying With Iron Sulphate to Destroy Mustard In Cereal Crops.

Iron sulphate or copperas can be successfully used to destroy mustard in standing grain without injury to the crop.

Preparation of Solution.

A 20% solution should be applied. This can be prepared by dissolving 80 lbs. of iron sulphate in 40 gallons of water. Iron sulphate is dissolved quite readily in cold water. The solution should be strained through a cheese cloth, as it is put into the spray pump tank. This will remove dirt and small particles that are apt to clog the nozzles.

Time to Apply.

Apply on a calm, clear day just as soon as the first few plants in the fields show flowers. It is very important to spray early. If the plants are left too long the treatment is not nearly so effective. If a heavy rain comes within 24 hours after the solution is applied, it will be necessary to spray again.

How to Apply the Solution.

An ordinary hand pump barrel sprayer, such as is employed to spray potatoes may be used. A large potato sprayer can be rigged up to do the work. Many of the up-to-date sprayers have a special broadcast attachment for spraying weeds. These are excellent for large areas, as they cover a wide strip at each round. Care must be taken to see that every mustard plant is covered with the solution in the form of a fine spray. Iron sulphate can be obtained from any hardware store.—J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Another Plan for Killing Twitch Grass.

A successful experiment in ridding land of twitch grass was made recently by the Farm Department of the Ontario Agricultural College on a field that was a mass of twitch after the oat crop had been removed.

The land was so badly infested that the field produced a very small crop that season. After the oats were removed, the land was ploughed lightly and trash-disked twice, and then cultivated and harrowed. Later in the fall this field was ploughed with a double-disc plough, the usual disc cutting six to seven inches deep and the rear disc twelve to thirteen inches. This brought the roots up and threw it on top of the sound mass of roots.

In the following spring the field was planted to flint corn in the check-row system. Practically no twitch made an appearance during the summer, and the field, without fertilizer, produced an excellent crop of flint corn for husking.

O. A. C. Barley Grown In the United States.

Dr. C. A. Zavitz received a letter recently from Prof. Moore of the Agricultural College of Wisconsin, which says: "Now practically all of the barley grown in Wisconsin, and in many of our surrounding States, emanated from the few pounds of barley which you so kindly sent up. We will never be able to get even for the good things you have done for us in bygone years."

The man who takes pride in "doing chores well" usually has stock and clean stables, and realizes a great profit from his everyday cleaning as from any other of his farm operations.

A bee is said to travel 43,776 miles to gather one pound of honey consisting of 29,184 drops of nectar. Those who do not believe it are invited by the bee to count the drops.

Sometimes it's lack of time and sometimes it's just indifference that leaves farm machinery neglected and broken from one season to the next.

Requisite on the Farm.—Every farmer and stock-raiser should keep a supply of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on hand, not only as a ready remedy for ills in the family, but because it is a horse and cattle medicine of great potency. As a substitute for sweet oil for horses and cattle affected by colic it far surpasses anything that can be administered.

After many conferences had been held by the Board of Directors of a small-town bank about buying a new safe-cooler, a grouchy old member had this to say:

"Gentlemen, before we adjourn, I move that our next conference be held on a merry-go-round."

And, as they locked at him in astonishment, he added the tag of explanation:

"We never get anywhere." — Wall Street Journal.

No surgical operation is necessary in removing corns if Holloway's Corn Remover be used.

An Oil That is Famous. — Though Canada was not the birthplace of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, it is the home of that famous compound. From here its good name was spread to Central and South America, the West Indies, Australia and New Zealand. That is far afield enough to attest its excellence, for in all these countries it is on sale and in demand.

A farmer came to town to insert a death announcement.

"How much do you charge?" he asked.

"Ten shillings an inch," was the reply.

"Heavens! He was over six feet high!"—Kasper (Stockholm).

"Ah, here's something interesting," said the near-sighted American tourist in Holland. "Let's wait and see the game."

"Game? I don't see any game."

"What's that ahead of us?"

"A windmill."

"My mistake! I thought it was a baseball pitcher going through the motions preliminary to sending a hot one over the plate."—Boston Transcript.

It holds no preference to age. It is a test of your skill in ferreting out "S-Words" in the Puzzle Picture. It's a jim dandy puzzle game. We know you will enjoy it, for everyone loves a puzzle, and we venture to say you'll never have more fun.

It costs nothing to take part. The "S-Word" Puzzle Game is a campaign to increase the popularity of The Mail & Empire. It is not a subscription contest, and you do not have to send in a single subscription to win a prize. If your answer is awarded first prize by the judges, you will win $25.00; but if you would like to win more than $25.00, we are going to make the following special offer, whereby you can win bigger cash prizes.

--YOU CAN WIN $1,000.00--

Here's how: If the judges award your answer First Prize, and you have sent in one yearly subscription to The Mail & Empire at $5.00 a year, you will receive $500 instead of $25; Second Prize, $250; Third Prize, $150; (See second column of figures in prize list.)

Or, if you are awarded First Prize and you have sent in two yearly subscriptions (either one new and one renewal or two new subscriptions) to The Mail & Empire at $5.00 a year each, you will receive $1,000 instead of $25; Second Prize, $500; Third Prize, $300. (See third column of figures in prize list.)

It takes but two subscriptions to qualify for the big $1,000 reward. Remember, two subscriptions is the maximum, one of which is to be a new subscriber. You can do this with little effort. Your own subscription will count as one and we can take subscriptions to start at any future date. In sending in your subscription give full instructions on a separate sheet from that on which you send your answer.

OBSERVE THESE RULES

1. Any man, woman or child who is not a resident of The Mail and Hamilton, and who is not in the employ of The Mail and Empire or a member of an employe's family, may submit an answer. It costs nothing to try.

2. ALL ANSWERS MUST BE MAILED BY OCTOBER 11th.

3. Only lists of names should be written on one side of the paper only, and numbered consecutively 1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address on each page in the upper right hand corner. If you desire to write anything else, use a separate sheet.

4. Only such words as appear in the English Dictionary will be counted. Do not use obsolete words. Where the plural is used, the singular cannot be counted and vice versa.

5. Words of the same spelling can be used only once, even though a word may mean two or more things, as parts of objects or articles. The object or article can be named only once.

6. Do not use hyphenated words, abbreviations, or any words formed by the combination of two or more complete words, where each word is itself is an object.

7. The answer having the nearest correct list of names of visible objects and articles shown in the picture that begin with the letter "S" will be awarded First Prize, etc. Neatness, style or handwriting have no bearing upon deciding the winners.

8. In the event of a tie for any prize offered, the full amount of such prize will be awarded each of the tieing answers.

9. In subscriptions (both new or renewal), payable in advance at $5.00 a year by mail will be accepted. However in qualifying for the $1,000 Bonus Reward, at least one new subscription must be sent in.

11. A new subscriber is any one who has not taken The Mail and Empire by mail since September 11th.

12. All answers will receive the same consideration regardless of whether or not a subscription to The Mail and Empire is sent in.

13. All correct answers will be carefully sorted. All are judges' decisions. Candidates making out subscriptions for new will positively forfeit the credit of such subscription as qualifying for the Maximum Bonus Rewards.

14. Three prominent Toronto citizens, having no connection with The Mail and Empire, will be appointed judges. By entering this contest all participants agree to accept the decision of the judges as final and conclusive.

15. The judges will meet on October 11th, and announcement of the Prize Winners and correct list of words will be published in The Mail and Empire just as quickly thereafter as it is possible.
